HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

The "ENCYCLOPEDIA OF QUOTATIONS" is divided into four parts:

1. A Topical Index of the Subjects of the quotations with cross references to other subjects which are of allied interest.
2. A List of the Authors Quoted, with dates of their birth and death, and the pages on which the quotations from them are to be found.
3. Dictionary of Quotations in the English and Foreign Languages, arranged alphabetically under words which denote the subject or principal sentiment of the quotation, each quotation being identified by the name of the author, the work from which it is taken and the location as closely as practicable. A valuable feature of the arrangement used in this work is the fact that Latin and all quotations from other foreign languages are classified under the same alphabetical arrangement with the English quotations, an arrangement whlch makes it unnecessary for the user to refer to more than one list to find either the original quotation in a foreign language or its translation in English.
4. A Complete Concordance to the Dictionary of Quotations. Every prominent word in every quotation is indexed with sufficient context to locate every passage in which the word occurs. In this concordance it is noteworthy that the index words, for instantaneous distinction, are printed in bold-face type, the quotation or portion of quotation which they index being printed, when derived from English literature, in the ordinary Roman letter. Quotations from foreign languages are printed in italic letters. To preserve the desirable conciseness the index word in each quotation of the concordance is represented only hy its initial, as the reader will perceive that it is unnecessary to print the word in full. Furthermore, quotations from the eight authors most frequently quoted are followed by a classifying mark which instantly accredits them to their author. Thus the quotations from the following authors, as being those most frequently quoted, are distinguished by the signs which follow their names: Shakespeare*, Milton, Pope $\ddagger$, Byron $\|$, Wordsworth $\uparrow$, Longfellows, Lowell $\dagger \dagger$, Tennyson $\dagger$.

There are four uses to which an Encyclopedia of Quotations is most frequently put, and this work has been arranged with special consideration for quickest and most satisfactory answer to any desired question.

1. To find a quotation on a given subject: Turn to the subject word in the Dictionary of Quotations and look for a suitable quotation among those listed under such subject word. If the quotation be not found in the first place sought for, a reference to the topical index of cross references will give another subject under which it will likely be found.
2. To find a quotation by any given author: Turn to the list of authors quoted, where the pages are listed on which quotations by the author appear.
3. To find a particular quotation of which only a portion or possibly one word is remembered and of which the author is unknown: A reference to the concordance will reveal sufficient of its context for identification, with a reference to the page in the dictionary on which the quotation in full will be found.
4. For those who desire to cite a quotation showing the use of any particular word, a similar reference to the concordance will yield an example of the context and meaning in which the word is used.

Fullness, accuracy and facility of search have been the principal aims of the compiler of this encyclopedia. It is not to be expected that every saying of celebrated writers, nor every worthy phrase of obscure authors, can be comprised in a volume of this size, but this work will be found to contain every phrase which is in current use in spoken or written language, and is sufficiently comprebensive and thorough for the needs of the scholar, teacher, minister, speaker, writer and reader of every kind.

A valuable accessory to the book, which will prove to be a great time-saver, is a thumb index to all important divisions of the work.

POETICAL AND PROSE QUOTATIONS.

ABDICATION.

K. Rich. What must the King do now? Must he submit?
The King shall do it. Must he be depos'd?
The King shall be contented. Must he lose
The name of king? o' God's name, let it go.
I'll give my jewels for a set of beads;
My gorgeous palace for a hermitage ;
My gay apparel for an alms-man's gown;
My figur'd goblets for a dish of wood;
My sceptre for a palmer's walking-staff;
My subjects for a pair of carved saints;
And my large kingdom for a little grave,
A little little grave, an obscure grave.
Shakespeare. Richard II. Act iii. Sc. 3.

1. 143.

ABILITY.

Hamlet. Sure, he that made us with such large discourse,
Looking before and after, gave us not That capability and godlike reason To fust in us unused.

Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act iv. Sc. 4.
And sure th' Eternal Master found
His single talent well employ'd.
SAM'L Johnson. Verses on the Death of Mr. Robert Levet. St. 7.

C'est une grande habileté que de savoir cacher son babileté,

There is great ability in knowing how to conceal one's ability.

Ye flowers that droop, forsaken by the spring;
Ye birds that, left by summer, cease to sing;
Ye trees that fade, when autumn heats remove,
Say, is not absence death to those who love?

Pope. Autumn. 1. 24.
Condenn'd whole years in absence to deplore,
And image charms be must behold no more.

Ibid. Eloisa to Abelard. 1. 360 .
Where' er I roam, whatever realms to see,
My heart untravell'd fondly turns to thee;
Still to my brother turns with ceaseless pain,
And drags at each remove a lengthening chain.

Goldsmith. Traveller. 1.7.
In all my wanderings round this world of care,
In all my griefs-and God has given my share-

I still had hopes my latest hours to crown,
Amidst these humble bowers to lay me down.

I've tried, alas ! its power to prove,
But thon art not forgot.
Frederick W. Thomas (1808- - ). Absence Conquers Love.

I do perccive that the old proverbis be not alwaies trew, for 1 do finde that the absence of my Nath. doth breede in me the more continuall remembrance of him.

Anne Lady Bacon. Letter to Jane Lady Cornwallis, 1613.

Tho' lost to sight, to mem'ry dear Thou ever wilt remain:
One only bope my heart can cheer,The hope to meet again.

George Linley. Song.
[This song was composed for and sung by Augustus Braham about 1840, and was set to music and puhlished in London in 1848. But the words "Though lost to sight, to memory dear" are much older than the poem. Linley incorporated an already familiar quotation of unknown authorship into his poem.]
Though ahsent, present in desires they be;
Our soul much further than our eyes can see.
M. Dray'ton. The Baron's Wars. Bk. iii. 20.

And when he is out of sight, quickly also is he out of mind.

Thomas a Kempis. Imitation of Christ. Ch. xxiii.
Quantum oculis, animo tam procul ihit amor.

Far as I journey from thy sight, so far
Shall love too journey from my mind.

Clovor. Songs of Absence.
Wives in their husbands' absences grow subtler,
And daughters sometimes run off with the butler.
Byron. Don Juan. Canto iii. St. 22.
Absento nemo ne nocuisse velit.
Let no one be willing to speak ill of the absent.

Propertius. Elegix. ii. 19, 32.
Absentes tinnitu aurium præsentire sermones de se receptum est.
It is generally admitted that the absent are warned by a ringing in the ears, when they are being talked about.

Pliny the Elder. Natural History. xxviii. 5.

ABSTINENCE.

Call'd to the temple of impure delight
He that abstains, and he alone, does right.
If a wish wander that way, call it home; He cannot long be safe whose wishes roam.
COWPER. The Progress of Error. 1. 578.

Against diseases here the strongest fence

ACCIDENTS.

Chapter of accidents.
Chesterfield. Letters, Feb. 16, 1753.
[The phrase is also used by Burke, Notes for Speeches (edition 1852, vol. ii.. 426. Southey, in The Doctor, chapter exviii., attributes to John Wilkes the saying,"The chapter of accidents is the longest chapter in the hook."]

Accidents will occur in the best regulated families.

Dickens. David Copperfeld (Mr. Micawber). Ch. xxviii.

Our wanton accidents take root, and grow
To vannt themselves God's laws.
Charles Kingsley. Saint's Tragedy. Act ii. Sc. 4.
At first laying down, as a fact fundamental,
That nothing with God can be accidental.

Of moving accidents by flood and field. Shakespeare. Othello. Act i. Sc. 3.

The moving accident is not my trade. WORDSWORTH. Harl-Leap Well. Pt. ii.

Hamlet. Sir, in this audience,
Let my disclaiming from a purpos'd evil
Free me so far in your most generons thoughts,
As that I have shot my arrow o'er the house,
And hurt my brother.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 2.1. 232.
Florizel. As the unthought-on accident is guilty
Of what we wildly do, so we profess
Ourselves to be the slaves of chance, and flies
Of every wind that blows.

The accident of an accident.
Lord Thurlow. Speech in reply to Lord Grafton.
[During a debate on Lord Sandwich's administration of Greenwich Hospital, the Duke of Grafton taunted Thurlow, then Lord Chancellor, on his hnmble origin. Thurlow rose from the woolsack, and, advancing toward the dnke, declared he was amazed at his grace's speech. "The noble duke," he cried, in a burst of oratorical scorn, "cannot look before him, behind him, and on either side of him without seeing some noble peer who owes his seat in this House to his successful exertions in the profession to which 1 belong. Does he not feel that it is as honorable to owe it to these as to being the accident of an accident q'']

ACCUSATION.

Macbeth. Thou can'st not say I did it; never shake
Thy gory locks at me.
Shakesprare. Macbeth. Act iii. Sc. 4.1.50.
Duke. To vouch this is no proof.
Without more certain and more overt test,
Than these thin habits, and poor likelihoods
Of modern seeming do prefer against him.

Ibid. Othello. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 107.
Angelo. Who will believe thee, Isabel?
My unsoil'd name, the austereness of my life,
My vouch against you, and my place i' the state,
Will so your accusation overweigh,
That you shall stifle in your own report, And smell of calumny.

Ibid. Measure for Measure. Act ii. Sc. 4. 1. 154.

The breath

Of accusation kills an innocent name,
And leaves for lame acquittal the poor life,
Which is a mask without it. Sheldey. The Cenci. Act iv. Sc. 4.
I do not know the method of drawing up an indictment against a whole people.

Burke. Speech on Conciliation with America. Works. Vol, ii. p. 136.

Therefore hath it with all confidence been ordered by the Commons of Great Britain, that I impeach Warren Hastings of high crimes and misdemeanors. I impeach him in the name of the Commons House of Parliament, whose trust he has betrayed. I impeach him in the name of the English nation, whose ancient honor he has sullied. I impeach him in the name of the people of India, whose rights he has trodden under foot, and whose country he has turned into a desert. Lastly, in the name of human nature itself, in the name of both sexes, in the name of every age, in the name of every rank, I impeach the common eneny and oppressor of all.

Burke. Conclusion of Speech at the Trial of Warren Hastings.
[This is the Macaulayized version of Burke's peroration-couciser, swifter, more dazzling than the original-which has gained popularity through Macaulay's essay on Warren Hastings.]

ACTION.

When Demosthenes was asked what was the first part of oratory, he answered, "Action"; and which was the second, he replied, "Action"; and which was the third, he still answered, "Action."

Plutarch. Lives of the Ten Orators.
[The saying has frequently been imitated. Thus when Louis XI. usked what he needed to make war the Marshal Trivulce replied: "Three things, money, more money, always mouey." (" Trois choses: de l'argent, encore de l'argent et toujours de l'argent.' Fifty years later General von Schussendi repeated the phrase in German: "Sind dreierlei Dinge nötig: Geld, Geld, Geld."]
"Boldness, more boldness, and always boldness, and France is saved" ("De l'audace, et encore de l'audace, et toujours de l'audace, et la France est sauvée").

DANTON. Speech before the National Assembly, August, 1792.

And as she lookt about she did behold
How over that same dore was likewise writ
Be bolde, be holde, and everywhere Be bold.
That much she mused, but could not construe it
By any ridling skill or commune wit,
At last she spyde at that ronme's upper end Another yron dore, on which was writ,
Be not too bold; whereto, though she did bend
Her earnest minde, yet wist not what it might intende.
Spenser. Faerie Qucene. iii. 2, 54.
Write on your doors the saying wise and " old,
"Be bold! be bold!" and everywhere, "Be bold;
Be not too bold !", Yet hetter the excess
Than the defect; better the more than less; Better like Hector in the field to die,
Than like a perfumed Paris turn and fly.
Longfellow. Morituri Salutamus.

Agitate, agitate, agitate!
Daniel O'Connell.
[ 0 'Connell was known as "the Irish agitator" from this his constant exhortation to his fellow-countrymen. The advice, however, originated with the Marquis of Anglesea when Lord Lieutenant of Ireland under the Dulsc of Wellington. Parnell substituted as a watchword, "Organize, organize, organize!"]

[The anonymous verses have been found (in MS. and enclosed in quotation marks with Jacob Bobart's autograph) on the flyleaf of an album in the British Museum. The catry runs thus:

Virtus sua gloria.
"Think tbat day lost whose descending sun Views from thy band no nobleaction donc."
Apparently Bobart trusted to memory and was misled by a defective ear. The more metrical and more familiar version given above is first found (in print) in Staniford's Art of Reading, p. 27 (third edition, Boston, 1803).]

English Proverb.

In one form or another the sentiment reappears in the proverbial and written literature of all languages. A few examples follow:

For as action follows speeches and votes in the ordcr of time, so does it precede and rank beforc them in force.

Demosthenes. Olynthiaca. iii. 15.

Butler, Hudibras. Pt.i. Canto i. 1. 867.
Such distance is between high words and deeds!
In proof, the greatest vaunter seldom speeds. Southwell. St. Peter's Complaint.
Say well is good, but do well is better;
Do well seems the spirit, say well is the letter;
Say well is godly and helps to please,
But do well is godly and gives the world ease;
Say well to silence is sometimes bound,
But do well is free on every ground;
Say well has friends, some here, some there,
But do well is welcome everywhere.
By say well man to God's word cleaves,
But for lack of do well it often leaves.
If say well and do well were bound in one frame,
Then all were done, all were won, and gotten were gain.

ACTORS.

Hamlet. Good, my lord, will you see the players well bestowed? Do you hear, let them be well used; for they are the abstract and brief chronicles of the time: after your death you were better have a bad epitaph than their ill report while you live.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 545.
York. As, in a theatre, the eyes of men, After a well graced actor leaves the stage, Are idly bent on him that enters next, Thinking his prattle to be tedious:
Even so, or with much more contempt, men's eyes
Did scowl on gentle Richard.
Ibid. Richard II. Act $\nabla$. Sc. 2. 1. 23.

Ulysses. And, like a strutting player, whose conceit
Lies in his hamstring, and doth think it rich
To hear the woolen dialogue and sound
'Twixt his struch'd footing and the scaffoldage.
Shakespeare. Trolius and Cressida. Act i. Sc. 3.

Hamlet. O, what a rogue and peasant slave am I!
Is it not monstrous, that this player here,
But in a fiction, in a dream of passion,
Could force his soul so to his whole conceit,
That from her working, all his visage wann'd ;
Tears in his eyes, distraction in 's aspect,
A broken voice, and his whole function suiting
With forms to his conceit? And all for nothing !
For Hecuba!
What's Hecuba to him, or he to Hecuba, That he should weep for her? What would he do,
Had he the motive and the cue for passion
That I have? He would drown the stage with tears,
And cleave the general ear with horrid speech;
Make mad the guilty, and appal the free,
Confound the ignorant; and amaze, indeed,
The very faculties of eyes and ears.
Ibid. Hamlet. Act ii. Sc. 2.
Hamlet. Speak the speech, I pray you, as I pronounc'd it to you, trippingly on the tongue ; but if you month it, as many of our players do, I had as lief the town-crier spoke my lines. Nor do not saw the air too much with your hand, thus ; but use all gently. For in the very torrent, tempest, and, as I may say, whirlwind of your passion, you must acquire and beget a temperance that may give it smoothness. Oh ! it offends me to the soul, to see a rohustious periwig-pated fellow tear a passion to tatters, to very rags, to split the ears of the groundlings; who, for the most part, are capable of nothing bat inexplicable dumb shews, and noise. I would have such a fellow whipped for o'erdoing Termagant; it out-herods Herod. 'Pray yon, avoid it.

1 Play. I warrant your Honour.
Ham. Be not too tame neither; but let your own discretion he your tutor. Suit the action to the word, the word to the action; with this special observance, that you o'erstep not the modesty of Nature: for anything so overdone is from the purpose of playing ; whose end, both at the first, and now, was, and is, to hold, as 'twere, the mirror up to Nature, to shew Virtue her own feature, Scorn her own image, and the very age and body of the Time, his form and pressure. Now this, overdone, or come tardy off, though it make the unskilful langh, cannot hut make the judicions grieve; the censure of which one, must, in your allowance, o'erweigh a whole theatre of others. Oh! there be play-ers-that I have seen play and heard others praise, and that highly not to speak it profanely-that, neither having the accent of Christians, nor the gait of Christian, Pagan, nor man, have so strutted and bellowed, that I have thought some of Nature's journeymen had made men, and not made them well, they imitated humanity so abominably.

1 Play. I hope, we have reform'd that indifferently with us, sir.

Ham. Oh 1 reformitaltogether.-And let those, that play your Clowns, speak no more than is set down for them: for there be of them, that will themselves laugh, to set on some quantity of barren spectators to laugh too; though, in the mean time, some necessary question of the play be then to be considered; that's villainous; and shows a most pitiful ambition in the fool that uses it.

ADAPTATION.

To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven :

A time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted;

A time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to break down, and a time to build up;
A time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance.

[^0]When thou art at Rome, do as they do at Rome.

Cervantes. Don Quixote. Pt. ii. Ch. liv.
Perhaps the earliest appearance in general literature of a popular proverb which arose in the following manner. St. Augustine was in the habit of dining on Saturday as on Sunday; hut, being puzzled with the different practices then prevailing (for they had begun to fast at Rome on Saturday), he consulted St. Ambrose on the snbject. Now, at Milan they did not fast on Saturday: and the answer of the Milan saint was: "When I am here I do not fast on Saturday; when at Rome I do fast on Saturday" ("Quando hic sum, non jejuno Sabbato; quando Romæ sum, jejuno Sabbato").

See ST. AUuUSTINE. Letters. xxxvi. Sec. 32 to Casulanus.

He that fasted on Saturday in Ionia or Smyrna was a schismatick; and so was he that did not fast at Milan or Rome upon the same day, both upon the same reason:
Cum fueris Romæ, Romano vivito more, Cum fueris alibi, vivito sicut ibi:
When you're in Rome, then live in Roman fashion;
When you're elsewhere, then live as there they live.
Becuuse he was to conform to the custom of Smyrna as well as that of Milan, in the respective dioceses.

Mahomet made the people believe that he would call a hill to him, and from the top of it offer up his prayers for the observers of his law. The people assembled; Mahomet called the hill to come to him, again and again, and when the hill stood still, he was never a whit abashed, but said, if the hill will not come to Mahomet, Mahomet will go to the hill.

> Bacon. Of Boldness.

Our torments also may in length of time
Become our elements, these piercing fires
As soft as now severe, our temper changed
Into their temper, which must needs remove
The sensible of pain.
Milion. Paradise Lost. Bk. ii. 1. 274.

The remnant of his days he safely past,

ADDISON, JOSEPH.

Peace to all such ! but were there one whose fires
True genius kindles, and fair fame inspires;
Bless'd with each talent and each art to please,
And horn to write, converse, and live with ease ;
Should such a man, too fond to rule alone,
Bear, like the Turk, no brother near the throne;
View him with scornful, yet with jealous eyes,
And hate for arts that caused himself to rise;

Damn with faint praise, assent with civil leer,
And, without sneering, teach the rest to sneer;
Willing to wound, and yet afraid to strike,
Just hint a fault, and hesitate dislike;
Alike reserved to blame or to commend,
A timorous foe, and a suspicious friend;
Dreading e'en fools, by flatterers besieged,
And so obliging that he ne'er obliged,
Like Cato, give his little senate laws,
And sit attentive to his own applause;
While wits and Templars every sentence raise,
And wonder with a foolish face of praise-
Who but must laugh, if such a man there be?
Who would not weep, if Atticus were he?
Pope. Satires and Epistles. Prologue to Dr. Arbuthnot. 1. 193.

Nor e'er was to the bowers of bliss conveyed

Byron. Don Juan. Canto xii. St. 50.

ADVICE.

(See also Comport.)
Who cannot give good counsel? 'Tis cheap, it costs them nothing. Burton. Anatomy of Melanchoty. Pt. ii. Sec. 2. Memb. 3.

Nothing is given so profusely as advice.
la Rochefoucauld. Maxim 110.
Many receive advice, only the wise profit by it.

Publius Syrus. Maxim 152.
We give adrice, but we cannot give the wisdom to profit by it.

Lá Rochefoucauld. Maxim 97.
Let no man value at a little price
A virtuous woman's counsel; her wing'd spirit
Is feather'd oftentimes with heavenly words.

Chapman. The Gentleman Usher.

Byron. Don Juan.
Of all the horrid, hideous notes of woe, Sadder than owl-songs or the midnight blast,
Is that portentous phrase, "I told you so,"
Utter'd by friends, those prophets of the past,
Who, 'stead of saying what you now should do,
Own they foresaw that you would fall at last,
And solace your slight lapse 'gainst "bonos mores,"
With a long memorandum of old stories. Ibid. Don Juan. Canto xiv. St. 50.

AFFECTATION.

There affectation, with a sickly mien, Shows in her cheek the roses of eighteen; Practis'd to lisp, and hang the head aside;
Faints into airs, and languishes with pride;
On the rich quilt sinks with becoming woe,
Wrapt in a gown, for sickness, and for show.
Pope. Rape of the Lock. Canto iv. 1. 31.

In man or woman, but far most in man, And most of all in man that ministers, And serves the altar, in my soul I loathe All affectation. 'Tis my perfect scorn: Object of my implacable disgust.

Cowper. Task. Bk. ii. 1. 414.

AFFECTION.

Affection is a coal that must be cool' d,
Else, suffer'd, it will set the beart on fire,
The sea bath bounds, but deep desire hath none.
Shakespeare. Venus and Adonis. 1. 387.
For the affection of young ladies is of as rapid growth as Jack's beanstalk, and reaches up to the sky in a night. Thaceeray. Vanily Fair. Cb.iv.
'Tis sweet to feel by what fine spun threads our affections are drawn together. Sterne. Sentimental Journey.
Deep is a wounded heart, and strong
A voice that cries against a mighty wrong ;
And full of death as a hot wind's blight, Doth the ire of a crushed affection light. F. Hemans. The Indian City. iif.

There are some feelings Time cannot benumb,
Nor Torture shake, or mine would now be cold and dumb.
Byron. Childe Harold. Canto iv. St. 19.
Talk not of wasted affection, affection never was wasted;
If it enrich not the heart of another, its waters, returning
Back to their springs, like the rain, shall fill them full of refreshment ;
That which the fountain sends forth returns again to the fountain. Longrellow. Evangeline. Pt. ii. 1.

AGE (Middle).

Falstaff. Your lordship, though not clean past your youth, hath yet some smack of age in you, some relish of the saltness of time; and I most humbly beseech your lordship to have a reverend care of your health.

Shakespeare. II. henty IV. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 91.

We that are in the vaward of our youth.

Shakespeare. II. Henry IV. 1. 166.
Fat, fair, and forty.
Scotr. Sl. Ronan's Well. Cb. vii.
I am resolved to grow fat, and look young till forty.

DRyDEn. The Maiden Queen. Act iii. Sc. 1.
Mrs. Trench, in a letter, February 18,1816, writes: "Lord a is going to marry Lady - a fat, fair, and fifty card-playing resident of the Crescent."
A man of forty is either a fool or a physician.

Mrs. Quickly. Will yon cast away your child on a fool, and physician? SHAKESPEAFE. Merry Wives of Windsor. Act iii. Sc. 4.

Be wise with speed;
A fool at forty is a fool indeed.
Young. Love of Fame. Satire ii. 1. 282.
At thirty man suspects bimself a fool;
Knows it at forty, and reforms his plan;
At fifty chides his infamous delay, Pushes his prudent purpose to resolve, In all the magnanimity of thought
Resolves, and re-resolves; then dies the same.
Young. Night Thoughts. Night 1. 1. 417.
He who at fifty is a fool,
Is far too stubborn grown for school.
N. Cotton. Visions in Verse: Slander.

Hamlet. At your age,
The hey-day in the blood is tame, it's humble,
And waits upon the judgment.

O shame! where is thy blush? Rebellious hell,
If thou canst mutine in a matron's bones,
To flaming youth let virtue be as wax,
And melt in her own fire : proclaim no shame
When the compulsive ardour gives the charge,
Since frost itself as actively doth burn
And reason panders will.
Sgakespeare. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 4. 1. 69.
She, though in full-blown flower of glorious beauty,
Grows cold even in the summer of her age.

Dryden. ©edipus. Activ. Sc. 1.

Sweet is the infant's waking smile,
And sweet the old man's rest-
But middle age by no fond wile,
No soothing calm is blest.
Keble. The Christian Year. St. Philip and St. James. St. 3.
Ho, pretty page with the dimpled chin
That never has known the barber's sliear,
All your wish is woman to win,
This is the way that boys begin,-
Wait till you come to Forty Year.
Forty times over let Michaelmas pass,
Grizzling hair the brain doth clear,-
Then you know a boy is an ass,
Then you know the worth of a lass,
Once you have come to Forty Year. Thackeray. The Age of Wisdom.
Of all the barb' rous middle ages, that
Which is most barbarous is the middle age
Of man; it is-I really scarce know what;
But when we hover between fool and sage,
And don't know justly what we would be at-
A period something like a printed page,
Black letter upon fool's-cap, while our hair
Grows grizzled, and we are not what we were ;-
Too old for youth-too young, at thirtyfive,
To herd with hoys, or hoard with good three-score,-
I wonder people should be left alive ;
But since they are, that epoch is a bore :
Love lingers still, although 'twere late to wive;
And as for other love, the illusions' o'er ;
And money, that most pure imagination,
Gleams only through the dawn of its creation.
Byron. Don Juan. Canto xii. St. 1 and 2.
On his bold visage middle age
Had slightly pressed its signet sage,
Yet had not quench'd the open truth
And fiery vehemence of youth:
Forward and frolic glee was there,
The will to do, the soul to dare.
Scott. Lady of the Lake. Canto i. St. 21.

Men of age object too much, consult too long, adventure too little, repent too soon, and seldom drive business home to the full period, but content themselves with a mediocrity of success.

Bacon. Essay xlii. Of Youth and Age. Man in no one respect resembles wine; For man by age is made intolerable; But age improves all wine.

Alexis.
Regan. O, sirl you are old;
Nature in you stands on the very verge Of her confine.

Shakespeare. King Lear. Act. ii.
Sc. 4. 1. 145.
Fulstaff. You, that are old, consider not the capacities of us that are young; you do measure the heat of our livers with the bitterness of your galls; and we that are in the vaward of our youth, I must confess, are wags too.

Chief Justice. Do you set down your name in the scroll of youth, that are written down old with all the characters of age? Have you not a moist eye, a dry hand, a yellow cheek, a white beard, a decreasing leg, an increasing belly? Is not your voice broken, your wind short, your chin double, your wit single, and every part about you blasted with antiquity? and will you yet call yourself young? Fie, fie, fie, Sir John I

Falstaff: My lord, I was born about three of the clock in the afternoon, with a white head and something a round belly. For my voice, I have lost it with halloing and singing of anthems. To approve my youth further, I will not: the truth is, I am only old in judgement and understanding; and he that will caper with me for a thousand marks, let him lend me the money, and have at him.

Green old age.
Virgil.
[There is no other locution that has been so persistently twisted from its legitimate meaning. It is a literal translation of Virgil's description of Charon, the ferryman of the nether regious. The poet speaks of him as "Jam senior; sed cruda deo viridisque senectus (somewhat aged; but his godship's old age was still fresh and green).
This we might say of a-hale sexagenarian;
but to talk, as we do, of the green old age of a nonogenarian, however hale, is sheer nonsense. In describing the preparations made by Galgacus, the leader of the Britons, to give battle to the Roman legions at the foot of the Grampians, the historian uses the very words applied by Virgil to Charon. "Already," he says, "there were upwards of thirty thousand armed warriors to be seen ; while all the youth kept pouring in, and those whose old age was still fresh and green (quibus cruda ac viridis senectus).'"]

AGNOSTICISM.

He hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel.

New Testament. 1 Timothy จ. 8.
I took thonght, and invented what I conceived to be the appropriate title of "agnostic." It came into my head as suggestively antithetic to the "Gnostic" of Church history who professed to know so much about the very things of which I was ignorant, and I took the earliest opportunity of parading it at our society, to show that I, too, had a tail like the other foxes. To my great satisfaction, the term took; and when the Spectator had stood godfather to it, any suspicion in the minds of respectable people that a knowledge of its parentage might have awakened was, of course, completely lulled.

Huxley. Christianity and Agnosticism : a Controversy.
The world, and whatever that be which we call the heavens, by the vault of which all things are enclosed, we must conceive to be a deity, to be eternal, without bounds, neither created nor subject at any time to destruction. To inquire what is beyond it is no concern of man; nor can the human mind form any conjecture concerning it.

Pliny the Eider. Natural History. Bk. ii. Sec. 1.

It is ridiculous to suppose that the great head of things, whatever it he, pays any regard to human affairs. Ibid.
I am going to take a frightful leap in the dark.

Thomas Hobbes.

[Lord Derby used to characterize his Reform Bill of 1867 sometimes as a"dishing of the Whigs," sometimes as "a leap in the dark." Buthe did not coin the latter phrase. It is to be found (quoted) in Lord Byron's diary, under date December 5, 1813 : "The 'leap in the dark' is the least to be dreaded." The originator is probably Hobbes, who, on his death-bed (1679), is reported to have said: "I am going to take a frightful leap in the dark." Somewhat analogous is Rabelais's death-hed expression in 1553 : "I am going in search of a great Perhaps:" ("Je $m^{\prime}$ en vais chercher un grand peut-estre"') ; and, indeed, we find this Englished by Mottenx in his Life as "I am just going to leap into the dark.']

ALTRUISM.

And as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise.

New Testament. Lake vi. 31.
Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them : for this is the law and the prophets. Ibid. Matthew vii. 12.

What I do not wish men to do to me, I also wish not to do to them.

Confucrus. Analects. Bk. v. Ch. $\mathbf{x i}$. (Legge, translator.)

Do not do to others what angers you if done to you by others.

Isocrates. Nicocles. xiii. 61. (Stephens. p. 39, c.)

And with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again. New Testament. Matthew vii. 2.
Men are used as they use others.
Pilpay. The King who became Just. Fable ix.
Ab alio exspectes, alteri quod feceris.
Look to he treated by others as you have treated others.

Publius Syrus. 1.
The question was once put to him, how we ought to behave to our frieuds; and the answer he gave was, "As we should wish our friends to hehave to us."

Diogenes Lafrtivus. Aristotle. xi.
We ought to do our neighhour all the good we can. If you do good, good will be done to you; but if you do evil, the same will be measured back to you again.

Dabschelim and Pilpay. Ch. i.
Conduct thyself towards thy parents as thou wouldst wish thy children to conduct themselves towards thee.

Isocrates. Ad Demonicum. iv. 14. (Stephens, p. 4, E.)
Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thy self.

Old Testament. Leviticus xix. 18.
For this I think charity, to love God for himself, and our neighbor for God.

Sir Thomas Browne. Religio Medici. Pt. ii. Sec. 14 .
Wolsey. Love thyself last: cherish those hearts that hate thee;
Corruption wins not more than honesty. Still in thy right hand carry gentle peace,
To silence envious tongues. Be just, and fear not:
Let all the ends thou aim'st at be thy country's,
Thy God's, and truth's; then if thou fall'st, O Cromwell,
Thou fall'st a blessed martyr.
Shakespeare. Henty VIII. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 443.

He husbands best his life, that freely gives
It for the publick good; he rightly lives,

That nobly dies: 'tis greatest mastery,
Not to be fond to live, nor feare to die
On just occasion; he that (in case) despises
Life, earns it best; but he that overprizes
His dearest blood, when honour bids him die,
Steals but a life, and lives by robbery. Quarles. History of Esther. Sec. 15. Med. 15.

Youth, beauty, graceful action seldom fail ;
But common interest always will prevail :
And pity never ceases to be shown
To him who makes the people's wrongs his own.
Dryden. Absalom and Achitophel. Pt. i. 1. 723.

Ahou Ben Adhem (may his tribe increase I)
Awoke one night from a deep dream of peace.

Leigh Hunt. Abou ben Adhem.
Write me as one who loves his fellowmen.

And lo! Ben Adhem's name led all the rest.

Ibid. Abou ben Adhem.
O may I join the choir invisible
Of those immortal dead who live again In minds made better by their presence:

This is life to come,
Which martyred men have made more glorious
For us who strive to follow. May I reach
That purest heaven, be to other souls
The cup of strength in some great agony, Enkindle generous ardor, feed pure love, Beget the smiles that have no crueltyBe the sweet presence of a good diffused, And in diffusion ever more intense.
So shall I join the choir invisible
Whose music is the gladness of the world.
George Eliot. o may I Join the Choir Invisible.

Still glides the stream, and shall forever glide;
The Form remains, the Function never dies;
While we, the brave, the mighty, and the wise,
We Men, who in our morn of youth defied
The elements, must vanish;-be it so !
Enough, if something from our hands have power
To live, and act, and serve the future hour;
And if, as toward the silent tomb we go,
Through love, through hope, and faith's transcendent dower,
We feel that we are greater than we know.

Wornsworte. After-Thought.
Were a star quenched on high,
For ages would its light,
Still travelling downward from the sky,
Shine on our mortal sight.
So when a great man dies,
For years beyond our ken,
The light he leaves behind him lies
Upon the paths of men.
LoNGFEILOW. Charles Sumner.
When good men die their goodness does not perish,
But lives though they are gone. As for the bad,
All that was theirs dies and is buried with them.

Euripines. Temenida. Frag. 734.
To live in hearts we leave behind, Is not to die.

Campbell. Hallowed Ground.
But whether on the scaffold high
Or in the battle's van,
The fittest place where man can die
Is where he dies for man!

AMBER.

E'en such small critics some regard may claim
Preserved in Milton's or in Shakespeare's name.
Pretty! in amber to observe the forms
Of hairs, or straws, or dirt, or grubs, or worms.
The things, we know, are neither rich nor rare,
But wonder how the devil they got there.

Pope. Prologue to Salires. 1. 169.
The last line seems to be a reminiscence of Dryden :
And wonders how the devil they durst come there.
Prologue to The Husband his own Cuckold.
If Pope plagiarized, he has heen plagiarized from in turn. Thus Sidney Smith wrote of Canning:
He is a fly in amber; nobody cares about the fy The only question is, "How the devil did it get there?'

A less obvious resemblance is the following:
"No!" cried the staring Monarch with a grin;
"How, how the devil got the Apple in?" JoHn Woicotr (Peter Pindar). The Apple Dumplings and a King.

The bee enclosed and through the amber shown,
Seems buried in the juice which was his own.
Martial. Bk. iv. 32. vi. 15. (hay, trans.)
While an aut was wandering under the shade of the tree of Phæton, a drop of amber enveloped the tiny insect; thus she, who in life was disregarded, became precious by death.

Martial. Epigrams. Bk. vi. Ep. 15.

Antony. The noble Brutus
Hath told you Cæsar was ambitious :
If it were so, it was a grievous fault,
And grievonsly liath Cessar answer'd it.
Here, under leave of Brutus, and the rest,
For Brutus is an honourable man;
So are they all, all honourable men,-
Come I to speak in Cæsar's funeral.
He was my friend, faitllful and just to me:
But Brutus says lie was ambitious;
And Brutus is an honourable man.
He hath brought many captives home to Rome,
Whose ransoms did the general coffers fill :
Did this in Cæsar seem ambitious?
When that the poor have cried, Casar hath wept:
Ambition should be made of sterner stuff.

Hill Monument, p. 107 .

Let us cultivate a true spirit of union and harmony. In pursuing the great objects our condition points out to us, let us act under a settled conviction and an liabitual feeling that these twentyfour States are one country. Let our conceptions be enlarged to the circle of our duties. Let us extend our ideas over the whole of the vast field in which we are called to act. Let our object be, OUR COUNTRY, OUR WHOLE COUNTRY, AND NOTHING BUT OUR COUNTRY. And, by the blessing of God, may that country itself become a vast and splendid monument, not of oppression and terror, but of wisdom, of peace, and of liberty, upon which the world may gaze with admiration forever.

Daniel Webster. Speech. Charlestown, Mass., June 17, 1825. The Bunker Hill Monument.
Our country-whether bounded by the St. John's and the Sabine, or however otherwise bounded or described, and be the measurements more or less; -still our country, to be cherished in all our hearts, and to be defended by all our hands.

Time's noblest offspring is the last.
George Berkeley, Bishop of Cloyne. Verses on the Prospect of Planting Arts and Learning in America. St. last.
The "Verses" have an interesting history. They were written under the inspiration of a project formed in Berkeley's youth, of establishing in the Bermuda Islands a college for the training of young natives as missionaries to their fellow-Indians in America. "Religion is failing in the old World," "he cries in a pamphlet published in 1825'; "in Europe the Protestant religion hath of late years considerably lost ground, and America seems the likeliest place wherein to make up what has been lost in Europe." Full of these yisions, he, for the first and last time in his life, burst into song. The project was finally abandoned for lack of funds. But the verses will survive as one more example of a prophecy fulfilled in a manner very different from the expectations of its author.
George Bancroft, or his binders, in an epigraph stamped on the back of the cover of the early editions of Bancroft's History, misquoted the first line of the above stanza in a form which has been frequently followed:
Westward the star of empire takes its way.
Long bcfore Berkeley, Samnel Daniel (1562-1619) and George Herbert had dreamed similar dreams of future glory in the unknown West:
And who (in time) knows whither we may vent
The treasnre of our tongue? To what strange shores
This gain of onr best glory shall be sent
T'enrich unknowing nations with our stores?
What worlds in the yet unformed Occident
May come rcfin'd with th' accents that are ours?

Fin'st Clown. There is no ancient gentlemen but gardeners, ditchers, and grave-makers: they hold up Adam's profession.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 29.
From yon blue heavens above us bent,
The gardener Adam and his wife
Smile at the claims of long descent.
Tennyson. Lady clara Vere de Vere. St. 7.
[In the first draft of this poem the second line of the foregoing quotation appeared thus:
" The grand old gardener and his wife."]
As he said in Machiavel, omnes eodem patre nati, Adam's sons, conceived all and borm in sin, etc. "We are by nature all as one, all alike, if you see us naked; let us wear theirs and they our clothes, and what is the difference?"

'Tis only noble to be good.
Kind hearts are more than coronets,
And simple faith than Norman blood.
tennyson. Lady Clara Vere de Vere.
I am my own ancestor. andoche Junot, Duke of Abrantes.
[When the Emperor Napoleon created Junot, a soldier who had risen from the ranks, Duke of Abrantes, a French nobleman of tbe old régime sneeringly asked what was his ancestry- "Ah, ma foi," was his reply, " 'je ne'en sais rien; moi je suis mon ancettre." ("Faith, I know nothing about it ; I am my own ancestor.') The blunt soldier had certainly never heard of the Emperor Tiberius's description of Curtius Rufus:

He seems to be a man sprung from himself.
Napoleon made a kindred reply tn his prospective father-in-law, the Emperrr of Austria, when the latter would fain trace the Bonaparte lineage to some petty prince:

Sire, I am my own Rudolph of Hapshurg.
(Rudolph was the founder of the Hapsburg family). Again, he silenced a genealogist by saying:

Friend, my patent of nobility comes from Montenotte, his first great victory. Roscoe Conkling, in nominating Grant at the Republican Presidential Convention, June, 1880, quoted this verse from Miles O'Reilly:

[^3]To Harmodius, descended from the ancient Harmodins, when he reviled Iphicrates [a shoemaker's son] for his mean birth, "My nobility," said he, "begins in me, but yours ends in you."

Plutarch. Apothegms.
[Almost the same words were used by Alexander Dumas when asked if he were not descended from an ape (a cuvert sneer at his negro grandmotber): " Very likely: my ancestry began where yours ends."]

When Adan dalfe and Eve spane So spire if thou may spede,
Whare was then the pride of man, That now merres his meed?
Richard Rolle de Hampole. Early English Text Society Reprints. No. 26. p. 79.
[This is the first appearance in English literature of this phrase. But it had long before been extant as a proverb. During Watt Tyler's rebellion against Richard II. John Ball used it as his text for an address to the mob in this more familiar form :

When Adam delved and Eve span
Who was then the gentleman?
Ray, in his Proverbs, adds a second couplet which provides an answer to the first, but is probably of much later birth :

Up start a churl, and gathered good,
And thence did spring our gentle blood.]
People will not look forward to posterity who never look backward to their ancestors.

Burke. Reflections on the Revolution in France. Vol. iii. p. 274.
If there be no nobility of descent, all the more indispensable is it that there should be nobility of ascent,-a character in them that bear rule so fine and high and pure that as men come within the circle of its influence they involuntarily pay homage to that which is the one pre-eminent distinction, the royalty of virtue.

Bishop Henry C. Potter. Address at Washington Centennial Service in St. Paul's Chapel, New York, April 30, 1889.

Norfolk. Surely, sir,
There's in him stuff that puts him to these ends:

For, being not propp'd by ancestry, whose grace
Chalks successors their way ; nor call'd upon
For high feats done to the crown; neither allied
To eminent assistants ; but, spider-like,
Out of his self-drawing web, he gives us note,
The force of his own merit makes his way;
A gift that heaven gives him, which buys
A place next to the king.
Shakespeare. Henry Vili. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 58.

Dost thou look back on what hath been,
As some divinely gifted man,
Whose life in low estate began
And on a simple village green;
Who breaks his birth's invidious bar,
And grasps the skirts of happy chance,
And breasts the blows of circumstance,
And grapples with his evil star;
Who makes by force his merit known
And lives to clutch the golden keys,
To mould a mighty state's decrees,
And shape the whisper of the tlirone;
And moving up from high to higher,
Becomes on Fortune's crowning slope
The pillar of a people's hope,
The centre of a world's desire.
tennyson. In Memoriam. St. 54.

ANGELS.

Be not forgetful to entertain strangers, for thereby some have entertained angels unawares.

New Testament. Hehrews xiii. 2.
Unbless'd thy hand, if in this low disguise
Wander, perhaps, some inmate of the skies. Homer. Odyssey. Bk. xvii. 1. 576. (POPE, trans.)
Angels are bright still, though the brightest fell:
Though all things foul would wear the brows of grace,
Yet grace must still look so.
Shafisplare. Macbeth. Act iv. Sc. 3.
Laertes. A ministering angel shall my sister be.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 1.

How oft do they their silver bowers leave To come to succour us that succour want! Spenser. Faerie Queene. Bk. ii. Canto viii. St. 2.

Every man hath a good and a bad angel attending on him in particular all his life long.

Burton. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. i. Sc. 2. Member 1. Subsec. 2.
[Burton also quotes Anthony Rusca in this connection, $v$. xviii.]

Gratiano. This sight would make him do a desperate tirn;
Yea, curse his better angel from his side, And fall to reprobation.
Shakespeare. Othello. Act v. Sc. 2. 1. 211.
Hear all ye Angels, progeny of light, Thrones, Dominations, Princedoms, Virtues, Powers.
Mxlton. Paradise Lost. Bk. v. l. 600.
Speak ye who best can tell, ye sons of light,
Angels, for ye behold him, and with songs
And choral symphonies, day without night,
Circle his throne rejoicing; ye in Heaven.
On earth join all ye creatures, to extol
Him first, him last, him midst, and withont end.
Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. v. 1. 160.
How sweetly did they float upon the wings
Of silence through the empty-vaulted night,
At every fall smoothing the raven down
Of darkness till it smiled!
Ibid. Comus. 1. 249.
At last, divine Cecilia came, Inventress of the vocal frame;
The sweet enthusiast, from her sacred store,
Enlarg'd the former narrow bounds,
And added length to solemn sounds,
With nature's mother-wit, and arts unknown before.
Let old Timotheus yield the prize,
Or both divide the crown ;
He rais'd a mortal to the skies;
She drew an angel down.
Dryden. Alexander's Feast. Last stanza.
Orpheus cou'd Iead the savage race;
And trees uprooted left their place,
Sequacious of the lyre:
But bright Cecilia rais'd the wonder higher :

When to her organ pocal breath was giv'n, An angel heard, and straight appear'd Mistaking earth for heav'n.
Dryden. Song for St. Cecilia's Day. St. 7.
I thank God, that if I am gifted with little of the spirit which is able to raise mortals to the skies, 1 have yet none, as 1 trust, of that other apirit which would drag angels down.

Daniel Webster. p. 316.
And the angel said, Let me go, for the day breaketh. And Jacob said, I will not let thee go, except thou bless me.

Old Testament. Genesis xxxii. 26.
Hold the fleet angel fast until he bleas thee.
Nathaniel Cotton. To-morrow. 1. 36.
The Present, the Present is all thou hast For thy sure possessing;
Like the patriarch's angel hold it fast
Till it gives ita blessing.
Whittier. My Soul and I. St. 34.
Could we forbear dispute and practise love,
We should agree as angels do above.
Wallef. Divine Love. Canto iii.
When Nature's happiest touch could add no more,
Heaven lent an angel's beanty to her face.

Mickle. Mary, Queen of Scots.
Though an angel should write, still 't is devils must print.
Moore. The Fudges in England. Letter iii.
Who does the best his circumstance allows,
Does well, acts nobly; angels could no more.
Young. Night Thoughts. Night 2. 1. 90.
When one that holds communion with the skies
Has fill'd his urn where these pure waters rise,
And once more mingles with us meaner things,
'Tis e'en as if an angel shook his wings. Cowrex. Oharity. 1,435.
Angels from friendship gather half their joy.
Young. Night Thoughts. Night 2. 1. 575.
We are ne'er like angels till our passion dies.

Dekker. The Honest Whore. Pt ii. Act i. Sc. 2.
"A-well-a-day! do what we can for him," said Trim, maintaining his point, "the poor soul will die." "He shall not die, by - I" cried my Uncle Toby. The accusing spirit which flew up to heaven's chancery with the oath, blushed as he gave it in, and the recording angel, as he wrote it down, dropped a tear upon the word, and blotted it out forever.

Sterne. Tristram Shandy. Ch. xlix.
The Recording Angel has been freely imitated and plagiarized. Thus Campbell: But, sad as angels for the good man's sin, Weep to record, and blush to give it in.

Campbell. Pleasures of Hope. Pt. ii. 1. 357.

[^4]What though my winged hours of bliss have been
Like angels' visits, few and far between. Camprall. Pleasures of Hope. Pt. ii. 1. 378.

The good he scorned
Stalked off reluctant, like an ill-used ghost,
Not to return ; or if it did, in visits
Like thoze of angels, short and farbetween. Blair. The Grave. Pt. ii. 1. 586.
[Hazlitt, in his Lectures on the English Poets, first pointed out Camphell's indebtedness to Blair. He added : "Mr. Campbell, in altering the expression, has spoilt it. 'Few' and 'far between' are the same thing." Elsewhere he notes that Campbell never forgave him this bit of detective work. But Blair himself was not original. He borrowed from John Norris, of Bemerton (16561711), who twice used the image:

How fading are the joys we dote upon!
Like apparitions reen and gone;
But those which soonest take their flight
Are the most exquisite and atrong:
Like angels', visits, short and bright,
Mortality's too weak to bear them long.
Norris. The Parting.

Angels, as 'tis but seldom they appear,
So neither do they make long stay;
They do but visit and away.
Norris. To the Memory of His Niece.
Once at the Angelus
(Ere I was dead),
Angels all glorious
Came to my bed;
Angels in blue and white,
Crowned on the head.
One was the friend I left
Stark in the snow;
One was the wife that died
Long, long ago;
One was the love I lost,
Now could she know?
One had my mother's eyes
Wistful and mild;
One liad my father's face;
One was a child;
All of them bent to me,-
Bent down and smiled.
AUSTIN Dobson. Good Night, Babette.
How did he git thar? Angels.
He could never have walked in that storm.
They jest scooped down and toted him
To whar it was safe and warm,
And I think that saving a little child,
And bringing him to his own,
Is a derned sight better husiness
Than loafing around the Throne.
John Hay. Pike County Ballads. Little Breeches.

Was there no star that could be sent,
No watcher in the firmament,
No angel from the countless host
That loiters round the crystal coast,
Could stoop to heal that only child?

ANGER.

(See Hatred.)
Let not the sun go down upon your wrath.

New Testament. Ephesians. Ch. iv. 26.

[^5]Reckon the days in which you have not been angry. I used to be angry every day; now every other day; then every third and fourth day; and if you miss it so long as thirty days, offer a sacrifice of thankspiving to God.

Epicterus. How the Semblances of Things are to be Combated. Ch. xviii.

As Athenodorus was taking his leare of Cæsar, "Remember," said he, "Cæsar, whenever you are angry, to say or do nothing before you have repeated the four-and-twenty letters to yourself." Plotarch. Crsar Augustus.

Ira furor brevis est: animum rege: qui nisi paret imperat.

Anger is momentary madness, so control your passion or it will control you.

Horace. Epistola. i. 2. 62.
Norfolk. Stay, my lord,
And let your reason with your choler question
What 'tis you go about: to climb steep hills
Requires slow pace at first: anger is like
A full hot horse, who being allowed his way,
Self mettle tires him.

ANIMALS.

A righteous man regardeth the life of his beast: but the tender mercies of the wicked are cruel.
old Testament. Proverbs xii. 10.
I think I could turn and live with animals, they are so placid and selfcontained,
I stand and look at them long and long. They do not sweat and whine about their condition;
They do not lie awake in the dark and sweat for their sins,
They do not make me sick discussing their duty to God,
Not one is dissatisfied, not one is demented with the mania of owning things.
Not one kneels to another, nor to his kind that lived thousands of years ago,
Not one is respectable or unhappy over the whole earth.

ANTICIPATION.

Many count their chickens before they are hatched; and where they expect bacon, meet with broken bones. Cervantes. Don Quixote. Bi.ii. Ch. 1v.

To swallow gudgeons ere they're catched, And count their chickens ere they're hatch'd.

Butler. Hudibras. Pt. ii. Canto 3.
[The proverh "Never count your chickens before they are hatched," is probably a reminiscence of Esop's fable of The Milkmaid, versified hy Lafontaine under the title of Pierrette. The milkmaid loses herself in a dream of what she will do with the proceeds of her milk, deciding to invest them in eggs, which, when hatched, will lead hy slow gradations to fortune. A sudden jar topples the milk-pail off her head, and away go all her dreams. A similar story with Alnaschar for its hero forms one of the Arabian Nights.]

ANTIPATHY.

Shylock. Some men there are love not a gaping pig;
Some, that are mad, if they behold a cat;
And others, when the bag-pipe sings i'the nose,
Cannot contain their urine; for Affection,
Mistress of passion, sways it to the mood Of what she likes, or loaths. Now, for your answer:
As there is no firm reason to be render'd,
Why he cannot abide a gaping pig;
Why he a harmless necessary cat;
Why he a swollen bag-pipe; but of force
Must yield to such inevitable shame,
As to offend himself, being offended;
So can I give no reason, nor I will not,
More ihan a lodged hate, and a certain loathing
I bear Antonio, that I follow thus
A losing suit against him.
Shaikespeare. Merchant of Venice. Act
i. Sc. iv. 1. 48.

Bertram. At first
I struck my choice upon her, ere my heart
Dursi make too bold a herald of my tongue:
Where the impression of mine eye infixing,
Contempt his scornful perspective did lend me,
Which warp'd the line of every other favour;
Scorn'd a fair colour, or express'd it stolen;
Extended or contracted all proportions
To a most hideous object; thence it came,
That she, whom all men prais'd, and whom myself,
Since I have lost, have lov'd, was in mine eye
The dust that did offend it. Ibid. All's Well that Ends Well. Act v. sc. 3. 1. 54.
I do not love thee, Dr. Fell,
The reason why I cannot tell;
But this I know, and know full well-
I do not love thee, Dr. Fell.
том Brown.

A free translation from the Latin of Martial :
Non amo te, Sabidi, nec poasum dicere quare;
Hoc tantum possum dicere, non amo te, Sabidi.

I love thee not, Sabidius, nor can I say why ; this, however I can asy, I love thee not, Sabidius.

Epigrams. i. 33.
In changing the name from Sabidius to Dr. Fell, the facetious Thomas is said to have had in mind no less a personage than his contemporary, Dr. John Fell, Dean of Christ Church, Oxford, and Bishop of Oxford. The story runs that Brown in his student daya was dismissed from Christ Church College by Dean Fell, but was recalled and promised restitution if he would translate extempore the thirty-third epigram from the first book of Martial. Thereupon he produced the famous impromptu. It ia a little singular that Brown was subsequently chosen to write the inscription for Dr. Fell's monument in Christ Church. It was probably before Brown's English version that Roger de Bussy, Comte de Rabutin (1618-93), produced this French tranalation of Martial's epigram:

Je ne vons aime pas, Hylas ;
Je n'en saurais dire la cause, Je sais aeulement une chose: C'est que je ne vons aime pas.

ANTIQUITY.

"Antiquitas sæculi juventus mundi." These times are the ancient times, when the world is ancient, and not those which we account ancient ordine retrogrado, by a computation backward from ourselves.

Bacon. Advancement of Learning. Bk.i. 1605.

It is worthy of remark that a thought which is often quoted from Francis Bacon occurs in [Giordano] Bruno's Cena di Cenere, published in 1564: 1 mean the notion that the later times are more aged than the earlier.

Whewell. Philosophy of the Inductive Sciences. Vol. ii. p. 198. London, 1847.

As in the little, so in the great world, reason will tell you that old age or antiquity is to be accounted by the farther distance from the beginning and the nearer approach to the end,-the times wherein we now live heing in propriety of speech the most ancient since the world's creation.

GEOREE HAEEWILL. An Apologie or Declaration of the Power and Providence of God in the Government of the World. London, 1627.
For as old age is that period of life most remote from infancy, who does not see that old age in this universal man ought not to be sought in the times nearest his birth, but in those most remote from it?

Pascal. Preface to the Treatise on Vacuum.
All this cant about our ancestora ia merely an abuse of words, by transfering phrases true of contemporary men to succeeding ages. Whereas of living men the oldest has, cxteris paribus, the most experience, of generations the oldest has, cxteris paribus, the least experience. Our ancestors up to the Conquest were children in arms; chubby boys in the time of Edward I.; striplings under Elizabeth ; men in the reign of Queen Anne; and we are the only white-bearded, silver headed ancienta, who have treasnred up, and are prepared to profit by, all the experience human life can supply.

APOTHECARY.

Romeo. I do remember an apothecary,And hereabouts he dwells,-which late I noted

In tatter'd weeds, with overwhelming brows,
Culling of simples; meagre were his looks;
Sharp misery had worn him to the bones:
And in his needy shop a tortoise hung,
An alligator stuff'd and other skins
Of ill-shaped fishes; and about his shelves
A beggarly account of empty boxes,
Green eartheu pots, bladders and musty seeds,
Remnants of packthread and old cakes of roses,
Were thinly scatter'd, to make up a show.
Noting this penury, to myself I said,
$\mathrm{An}^{\prime}$ if a man did need a poison now,
Whose sale is present death in Mantua,
Here lives a caitiff wretch would sell it him.

Macbeth. Is this a dagger which I see before me,
The handle toward my hand? Come, let me clutch thee.
I have thee not, and yet I see thee still.
Art thou not, fatal vision, sensible
To feeling as to sight? or art thou but
A dagger of the mind, a false creation,
Proceeding from the heat-oppressed brain?
I see thee yet, in form as palpable
As this which now I draw.
Thou marshall'st me the way that I was going;
And such an instrument I was to use.
Mine eyes are made the fools of the other senses,
Or else worth all the rest. SHARESPEARE. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 33.

APPEARANCE.

(See also Dress; Hypockisy.)
Appearances to the mind are of four kinds. Things either are what they appear to be; or they neither are, nor appear to be; or they are, and do not appear to be; or they are not, and yet appear to be. Rightly to aim in all these cases is the wise man's task.

Will bless it, and approve it with a text,
Hiding the grossness with fair oruament?
There is no vice so simple, but assumes
Some mark of virtue on his outward parts.
How many cowards, whose hearts are all as false

Every one is the architect of his own fortunes.
[Attributed by Sallust (?) to Appius Claudius Cæcus.]

There are extant two letters addressed to Cæsar "Duæ Epistota de Republica ordinanda," which contaiu political counsel and advice, and are attributed, on doubtful authority, to the historian Sallust. In the first of these letters occurs the following seutence: "But these things teach us the truth of what Appius says in his verses, that everyone is the architect of his own fortuue" (Fabrum esse suæ quemque fortunæ). The reference is to Appius Claudius Cæcus, who held the office of censor in B.c. 312 . His poems have not survived him.

Bacon refers approvingly to the saying of Appius: "lt cannot be denied, but outward accidents conduce much to fortune; favor, opportunity, death of others, occasion fitting virtue: but chiefly, the mould of a man's fortune is in his own hands: Faber quisque fortunz sux.

ARGUMENT.

In discourse more sweet,
For eloquence the soul, song charms the sense,
Others apart sat on a hill retir'd,
In thoughts more elevate, and reasoned high
Of providence, foreknowledge, will and fate,
Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute;
And found no end, in wand'ring mazes lost.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. ii. 1. 556.
Where we desire to be informed, 'tis good to contest with men above ourselves; but to confirm and establish our opinions, 'tis best to argue with judgments below our own, that the frequent spoils and victories over their reasons may settle in ourselves an esteem and confirmed opinion of our own.

If I sent him word again it was not well cut, he would send me word, he cut it to please himself: This is called the Quip Modest. If again, it was not well cut, he disabled my judgment: This is called the Reply Churlish. If again, it was not well cut, he would answer, I spake not true : This is called the Reproof Valiant. If. again, it was not well cut, he would say, I lie: This is called the Countercheck Quarrelsome; and so to the Lie Circumstantial, and the Lie Direct.

Jaq. And how oft did you say his beard was not well cut?

Touch. I durst go no further than the Lie Circumstantial, nor he durst not give me the Lie Direct; and so we measured swords and parted.

Jaq. Can you nominate in order now the degrees of the lie?

Touch. O, sir, we quarrel in print, by the book; as you have books for good manners: I will name you the degrees. The first, the Retort Courteous; the second, the Quip Modest ; the third, the Reply Churlish; the fourth, the Reproof Valiant; the fifth, the Countercheck Quarrelsome; the sixth, the Lie with Circumstance ; the seventh, the Lie Direct. All these you may avoid, but the Lie Direct; and you may avoid that too, with an If. I knew when seven justices could not take up a quarrel ; but when the parties were met themselves, one of them thought but of an If, as, 'If you said so, then I said so ;' and they shook hands, and swore brothers. Your If is the only peace-maker; much virtue in If.

"L'A vocat Patelin," in one act. Gnillaume, a cloth dealer, prosecutes his shepherd Agnelet for stealing some of his sheep, and employs the advocate Patelin. But lo! in the thick of his evidence against the shepherd he spies the advocate arrayed in cloth he can swear to as of his own make. He must have stoled it. The thought so troubles his poor hrain that he keeps wandering from the stolen sheep to the stolen cloth, while the judge keeps striving to make him stick to his story by adjuring him "Revenons a nosmoutons"-i.e., "Let us retura to our sheep." As mouton is French alike for sheep and for mutton, English waggery or ignocance has translated the phrase "Let us return to our muttons."]

[These lines, published in 1841, created a great sensation in England, where they were hailed as voicing the sentiments of the "Young England" Party, an essentially conservative and aristocratic group. In answer to assailants, some of Lord Manners' friends sought to explain that nobility of character and not of caste was meant. The explanation was not accepted. The noble poet, who afterward became Duke of Rutland, lived to express regret for the sentiment, characterizing it as the foolish ebullition of youth. Curiously enough, the lines had been anticipated, but in a sarcastic sense, by an anonymous satirical poet of a quarter century previous:
Be aristocracy the only joy:
Let commerce perish, let the world expire.

ART.

Art is Long, and Time is fleeting. Longrellow. a Psalm of Life. St. 4.

A rendering of the Latin proverb, Ars longa, vita brevis est ("A Art is long, life brief" which in its turn is based upon the Greek of Huprocrates (Aphorism i.): "Life is short 'and the art long and occasion swift, and experience fallacious and judgment difficult." Hippocrates complains that the longest life is insufficient to acquire more than the rudiments of any art or science. Seneca in rebuttal declares that although that greatest of the sayings of the doctors, "Vita hrevem esse, longam artem," was indorsed by Aristotie, nevertheless this is an unjust railing against Nature or Providence. Chaucer closely follows Hippocrates:
The lyfe so short, the crafteso long to lerne, Th' assay so hard, so sharpe the conquering. Assembly of Fowls. 1. 1.

Art indeed is long, but Life is short.
Maryell. Upon the Death of Lord Hastings. Last line.

Art is long, life short ; judgment difficult, opportunity transient.
Goetre. Wilhelm Meister. Bk. vii. Ch.ix.
All passes; Art alone
Enduring stays to us:
The Bust outlasts the throne. The Coin, Tiberius. Austin Dobson. Are Victrix.
Dead he is not, but departed,-for the artist never dies.

Longfellow. Nuremberg. St. 13.

Art is consummate when it seems to be nature.

Longinus. De Sublimitate. xxii. 2.
Now nature is not at variance with art, nor art with nature; they being both the servants of his providence. Art is the perfection of nature. Were the world now as it was the sixth day, there were yet a chaos. Nature hath made one world, and art another. In brief, all things are artificial; for nature is the art of God.

Sir Thomas Browne. Religio Medici. Sec. xpi.

Hobbes quotes the last sentence in the above extract, without acknow ledgment, at the beginning of his introduction to Leviathan. But before Browne Sir Thomas Overbury had said :
Nature is God's, Art is man's instrument.
A Wije. St. 8.
Overbury in his turn was indebted to Plato:
Those things which are said to be done by Nature are indeed done by Divine Art.

Young borrowed the phrase and spoilt it:
The course of Nature is the Art of God.
Young. Night Thoughts. Night 9. 1. 1269.
Shakespeare anticipated Browne in pointing out that nature and art are not at variance, that the difference between them is ultimately arbitrary. In the Winter's. Tale Perdita explains to the disguised visitors, Polixenes and Camillo, that she cares not to plant in her garden "streaked gillyvors" (i. e., gilly flowers) which "some call Nature's bastards":

Pol. Wherefore, gentle maiden, Do you neglect them?

Per. For I have heard it said, There is an art which, in their piedness, shares
With great creating nature.
Pol. Say, there be;
Yet nature is made better by no mean,
But nature makes that mean: so, over that art,
Which, you say, adds to nature, is an art
That nature makes. You see, sweet maid, we marry
A gentler scion to the wildest stock;
And make conceive a bark of baser kind
By bud of nobler race: This is an art
Which does mend nature,-change it rather: but
The art itself is nature.
Per. So it is.
Pol. Then make your garden rich in gilly'vors,
And do not call them bastards.
It is the fashion to talk as if art were something to nature, with power to finish what nature has begun or correct her when going aside. . In truth man has no power over nature except that of motion,the power, I say, of putting natural bodies together or separating them,-the rest is done by nature within. Bacon. Descriptic Globis Intellectualis.

All Nature is but art unknown to thee;
All chance direction, which thou canst not see.

Pope. Essay on Man. Ep. i. 1. 289.

Ars est celare artem ("Art lies in concealing art").

Latin Proverb.

A popular rendering of Ovid's line in the "Art of Love," ii., 313:"Si latet ars prodest", ("If the art is concealed, it succeeds"). The meaning, of course, is that true art must always appear natural and spotaneous, and give no evidence of the labor which perfected it. As Burkesays, "Art can never give the rules that make an art" (The Sublime and Beautiful, pt. i. sec. 9).

The contrary fault is iudicated in Collins' lines,-
Too nicely Jonson knew the critic's part;
Nature in him was almost lost in Art.

ASS.

He shall be buried with the burial of an ass.

old Testamenl. Jeremiah xxii. 19.

My thoughts ran a wool-gathering; and I did like the countryman who looked for his ass while he was mounted on his back.
Cervantes. Don Quixote. Pt.ii. Ch. Ivii.
The ass will carry his load but not a double load; ride not a free horse to death.

Ibid. Don Quixote. Ch. Ixxi.

Con. Away! you are an ass, you are an ass.

Dogb. Dost thon not suspect my place? Dost thou not suspect my years? O that he were here to write me down, an ass 1 But, masters, remember, that I am an ass; though it be not written down, yet forget not that I am an ass. No, thou villain, thou art full of piety, as shall be proved upon thee by good witness. I an a wise fellow ; and, which is more, an officer ; and, which is more, a house-holder; and, which is more, as pretty a piece of flesh as any in Messina; and one that knows the law, go to; and a rich fellow enough, go to; and a fellow that hath had losses; and one that hath two gowns, and everything handsome about him. Bring him away. O, that I had been writ down, an ass!

SHakespeare. Much Ado aboud Nothing. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 68.
Clown. Marry, sir, they praise me and make an ass of me; now my foes tell me plainly I am an ass; so that by my foes, sir, I profit in the knowledge of myself.
Ibid. Twelfth Night. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 20.
Iago. Egregiously an ass.
Ibid. Othello. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 318.

ASTROLOGY.

When princes meet, astrologers ${ }^{\circ}$ may mark it
An ominous conjunction, full of boding, Like that of Mars with Saturn.

Sir W. Scott. Quentin Durward. Ch. XXXi.

Ye stars! which are the poetry of Heaven,
If in your bright leaves we would read the fate
Of men and empires,-'tis to be forgiven,
That in nur aspirations to be great,
Our destinies o'erleap their mortal state, And claim a kindred with you.
byron. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 88.

ASTRONOMY.

Biron. Small have continual plodders ever won
Save base authority from others' books.
These earthly godfathers of heaven's lights
That give a name to every fixed star
Have no more profit of their shining nights
Than those that walk and wot not what they are.
Too much to know is to know naught but fame;
And every godfather can give a name. Shakespeare. Love's Labor's Lost. Act i. sc. 1. 1. 86 .

Hereafter, when they come to model heaven
And calculate the stars, how they will wield
The mighty frame, how build, unbuild, contrive,
To save appearances, how gird the sphere
With centric and eccentric scribbled o'er,
Cycle and epicycle, orb in orb.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. viii. 1. 78.
But who can count the stars of Heaven?
Who sing their influence on this lower world?
Tномson. Seasons-Winter. 1. 528.
It may well wait a century for a reader, as God has waited six thousand years for an observer.

Join Kepler (1571-1630). Martyrs of Science (Brewster). p. 197.

> O how loud

It calls devotion 1 genuine growth of night $]$

Devotion ! daughter of Astronomy !
An undevout Astronomer is mad.
Young. Night Thoughts. Night 9. 1. 768.
Eyes of some men travel far
For the finding of a star ;
Up and down the heavens they go,
Men that keep a mighty rout 1
I'm as great as they, I trow,
Since the day I found thee out,
Little Flower !-I'll make a stir,
Like a great astronomer.
Wordsworth. To the Small Celandine.

ATHEISM; ATHEIST.

The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God.

Old Testament. Psalm xiv. 1.
He who does not kelieve that God is above all is either a fool or has no experience of life.
Ceflilues Status. Incert. Fragment. xy.
"There is no God," the foolish saith,But none, "There is no sorrow":
And Nature oft the cry of Faith
In bitter need will borrow.
Eyes which the preacher could not school,
By wayside graves are raised;
And lips say, "God be pitiful,"
Who ne'er said "God be praised." Mrs. Browning. Cry of the Human.
"There is no God," the wicked saith, "And truly it's a blessing,
For what He might have done with us
It's better only guessing."
Some others, also, to themselves
Who scarce so much as doubt it,
Think there is none, when they are well
And do not think about it.
And almost every one, when age,
Disease, or sorrows strike him,
Inclines to think there is a God,
Or something very like Him. Cloder. Dipsychus. Pt.i. Sc. 5.

Sir, he [Bolingbroke] was a scoundrel and a coward : a scoundrel for charging a blunderbuss against religion and morality; a coward, because he had not resolution to fire it off himself, but left half a crown to a beggarly Scotchman to draw the trigger at his death.

Bobwell. Life of Johnson. Vol. ii. Ch. i. 1754.
They that deny a God destroy man's nobility ; for certainly man is of kin to the beasts by his body; and, if he be not of kin to God by his spirit, he is a base and ignoble creature.

Bacon. Essays, of Atheism.
I do not know, sir, that the fellow is an infidel; but if he be an infidel, he is an infidel as a dog is an infidel; that is to say, he has never thought upon the subject.

Boswell. Life of Johnson. Vol. iii. Ch. iii. 1769.

The writers against religion, whilst they oppose every system, are wisely careful never to set up any of their own.

Burke. A Vindication af Natural Society. Preface. Vol. i. p. 7.
Every philosopher is cousin to an atheist.
A. de Musset.

But if man loses all, when life is lost,
He lives a coward, or a fool expires.
A daring infidel (and such there are, From pride, example, lucre, rage, revenge,
Or pure heroical defect of thought),
Of all earth's madmen, most deserves a chain.
Young. Night Thoughts. Night 7. 1. 199.
Who tells me he denies his sonl's immortal,
Whate'er his boast, has told me he's a knave.
His duty, 'tis to love himself alone;
Nor care though mankind perish, if he smiles,
Who thinks ere long the man shall wholly die,
Is dead already; nought but brute survives.
Ibid. Night Thoughts. Night 7. 1. 1168.
This sacred shade, and solitude, what is it?
'Tis the felt presence of the Deity.
Few are the faults we flatter when alone.
Vice sinks in her allurements, is ungilt,

And looks, like other objects, black by night;
By night an atheist half-believes a God. Youne. Night Thoughts. Night 5. 1. 171.
An Atheist-laugh's a poor exchange For Deity offended!

Burns. Epistle to a Young Friend.
Forth from his dark and lonely hidingplace
(Portentous sight 1) the owlet Atheism, Sailing on obscene wings athwart the noon,
Drops his blue-fring'd lids, and holds them close,
And hooting at the glorious sun in heaven
Cries out, "Where is it?" Coleringe. Fears in Solitude.
O Reader ! hast thou ever stood to see The Holly-tree?
The eye that contemplates it well perceives

Its glossy leaves
Ordered by an Intelligence so wise
As might confound the Atheist's sophistries.

Southey. The Holly-Tree. St. 1.
This dull product of a seoffer's pen.
Wordsworth. Excursion. Bk. ii.
We must repeat the often repeated saying, that it is unworthy a religious man to view an irreligions one either with alarm or aversion, or with any other feeling than regret and hope and brotherly commiseration.

Carlyle. Essays. Voltaire.

AUDIENCE.

Still govern thou my song,
Urania, and fit audience find, though few.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. ii. 1. 36.
Plus apud me ratio valebit quam vnlgi opinio.
Reason weighs more with me than the opinion of the vulgar.
This annonymous phrase is quoted on the title of "Poems" by Anthony Pasquin (1789).]

[^6]And for the few that only lend their ear, That few is all the world.

Daniel. Musophilis. St. 97.

AUTHORITY.

For he taught them as one having authority and not as the scribes.

New Testament. Matthew vii. 29.
I would have nohody to control me; I would be absolute: and who but I? Now, he that is absolute can do what he likes; he that can do what he likes can take his pleasure; he that can take his pleasure can be content; and he that can be content has no more to desire. So the matter's over; and come what will come, I am satisfied.

Cervantes. Don quixote. Pt. i. Bk. iv. Ch. xxiii. (Lockमart, trans.)
I would do what I pleased; and doing what I pleased, I should have my will; and having my will, I should be contented ; and when one is contented, there is no more to be desired; and when there is no more to be desired, there is an end of it.

Lear. Thou hast seen a farmer's dog bark at a beggar,
And the creature run from the cur: There. There, thou might'st benold the great image of authority;
A dog's obeyed in office.
Shakespeare. King Lear, Act iv. Sc. 6. 1. 159.

0 slavish man! will you not bear with your own brother, who has God for his Father, as being a son from the same stock, and of the same high descent? But if you chance to be placed in some superior station, will you presently set yourself up for a tyrant?

Logan. The Country in Autumn. Ver. i.
The yellow year is hasting to its close;
The little birds have almost sung their last,
Their small notes twitter in the dreary blast-
That shrill-piped harbinger of early snows;-
The patient beauty of the scentless rose,
Oft with the morn's hoar crystal quaintly glassed,
Hangs a pale mourner for the summer past,
And makes a little summer where it grows ;-
In the chill sunbeam of the faint brief day
The durky waters shudder as tbey shine
The russet leaves obstruct the straggling way
Of oozy brooks, which no deep banks define,
And the gaunt woods, in ragged, scant array,
Wrap their old limbs with sombre ivytwine.

Coleridge. November.

November!
Hood. November.
The melancholy days are come, the saddest of the year,
Of wailing winds, and naked woods, and meadows brown and sere.
Heaped in the hollows of the grove, the autumn leaves lie dead;
They rustle to the eddying gust, and to the rabbit's tread;
The robin and the wren are flown, and from the shrubs the jay,
And from the wood-top calls the crow through all the gloomy day. Bryant. Death of the Flowers.

Which thro the summer is not heard nor seen,
As if it could not be, as if it had not been!
Shelley. Hymn to Intellectual Beauty.
The warm sun is failing, the bleak wind is wailing,
The bare boughs are sighing, the pale flowers are dying; And the year
On the earth her deathbed, in a shroud of leaves dead,
Is lying.

Come, months, come away,
From November to May,
In your saddest array;
Follow the bier
Of the dead cold year,
And like dim shadows watch by her sepulchre.

Shelley. Autumn. A Dirge.
How bravely Autumn paints upon the sky
The gorgeous fame of Summer which is fled!
Hoon. Written in a Volume of Shakespeare.
That beautiful season the Summer of All-Saints!
Filled was the air with a dreamy and magical light; and the landscape
Lay as if new-created in all the freshness of childhood.
Peace seemed to reign npon earth, and the restless heart of the ocean
Was for a moment consoled. All sounds were in harmony blended.
. . . And the great sun
Looked with the eye of love through the golden vapors around him;
While arrayed in its robes of russet and scarlet and yellow,

AVARICE.

The love of money is the root of all evil.

New Testament. 1 Timothy vi. 10.
Mammon led them on,
Mammon, the least erected spirit that fell
From Heaven; for even in Heaven his looks and thoughts
Were always downward bent, admiring more
The riches of Heaven's pavement, trodden gold,
Than aught divine or holy else enjoyed
In vision beatific: by him first
Men also, and by his suggestion taught,

Ransacked the centre, and with impious hands
Rifled the bowels of their mother Earth
For treasures better hid. Soon had his crew
Opened into the hill a spacious wound,
And digged out ribs of gold. Let none admire
That riches grow in Hell; that soil may best
Deserve the precions bane.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. 1. 678.
Poorly rich, so wanteth in his store,
That, cloy'd with much, he pineth still for more.
Shakespeare. Rape of Lucrece. 14.
Maleolm. With this, there grows,
In my most ill-compos'd affection, such
A staunchless avarice, that, were I king,
I shonld cut off the nobles for their lands;
Desire his jewels, and this other's house:
And my more-having would he as a sauce
To make me hunger more; that Ishould forge
Quarrels unjust against the good and loyal,
Destroying them for wealth.

BALLADS AND SONGS.

I knew a very wise man that believed that if a man were permitted to make all the ballads, he need not care who should make the laws of a nation. andrew Fletcher of Saltoun.
[This phrase occurs in a letter to the Marquis of Montrose, Earl of Rothes. Many surmises have been made as to the identity of the "very wise man." As good a guess as any names John Selden, who was a friend of Fletcher's. The saying finds special significance in France, which was described in a seventeenth centiry proverb as "a monarchy tempered by songs." Later the word "epigrams" was substituted for "songs" in recognition of the popular influence of epigrams or " mols."

Falstaff. An I have not ballads made on you all, and sung to filthy tunes, let a cup of sack be my poison.

Shakespeare. I. Henry IV. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 43.

But touch me, and no minister so sore.
Whoe'er offends, at some unlucky time Slides into verse, and hitches in a rhyme, Sacred to ridicule his whole life long,
And the sad burthen of some merry song. Pope. Satire i. l. 76.

Fools are my theme, let satire be my song. Byron. Emglish Bards and Scotch Re. viewers. 1. 6 .
Hotspur. I had rather be a kitten, and cry mew,
Than one of these same metre balladmongers ;
I had rather hear a brazen canstick turn'd,
Or a dry wheel grate on the axle-tree;
And that would set my teeth nothing on edge,
Nothing so much as mincing poetry:
'Tis like the forced gait of a shuffing nag.
Shakespeare. I. Henty IV. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 129.

We left our country for our country's good.

George Barrington.

[Barrington was a convict in New South Wales. On January 16, 1796, he and his fel-low-convicts acted in a production of Young's tragedy, "The Revenge," for the opening night of the new play-house at Sydney. Barrington wrote the prologue, which commences as follows:
From distant climes, o'er wide-spread seas, we come,
Though not' with much eclat or beat of drum;
True patriots we, for, be it understood,
We left our country for our country's good.
No private views disgraced our generous zeal,
What urged our travels was our country's weal;
And none will doubt but that our emigration
Has proved most useful to the British nation.]

A similar idea occurs in Farguhar's The Beaux Stratagem (1706), in this dialogue between a well-meaning philanthropist and a highwayman:
Aimwell. You have served abroad, sir?
Gibbett. Yes, sir, in the plantations; 'twas my lot to be sent into the worst of service. I would have quitted it, indeed, but a man of honor, you know-. Besides, 'twas for the good of my country that I should be abroad. Anything for the good of one's country ; I'm a Roman for that.

In a complimentary sense the phrase had heen applied so early as 1596 to Sir Francis Drake:
Leaving his country for his country's sake.

Fitz-Geffrex. The Life and Death of Sir Francis Drake. St. 213.
[The sarcasm was anticipated in Eastward Ho 1 a tragedy written by Chapman, Jonson, and Marston shortly after the accession of James VI. of Scotland as James I. of England, when the arrival of a horde of Scotsmen in London aroused the jealous anger of the English:

Only a few industrious Scots perhaps, who indeed are dispersed over the face of the whole earth. But as for them, there are no greater friends to Englishmen and England, When they are out on't, in the world, than they are. And for my own part, I would a hundred thousand of them were there [Virginia]; for we are all one countrymen now, ye know, and we should find ten times more comfort of them there than we do here.

Act iii. Sc. 2.
James I. was so offended at thisinsult to his countrymen that he imprisoned the anthors, seized the first edition of the play, and cancelled the leaves containing this passage, leaving them to be reprinted withont it. Hence it occurs only in a few of the original copies, which are highly prized by bibliomaniacs.]

BEAUTY (in General).

A thing of beauty is a joy forever;
Its loveliness increases; it will never
Pass into nothingness, but still will keep
A bower quiet for us, and a sleep
Full of sweet dreanis and health and quiet breatling.
Therefore, on every morrow, are we wreathing
A flowery band to bind us to the earth, Spite of despondence, of the inhuman deartb

Of noble natures, of the gloomy days,
Of all the unhealthy and o'er-darken'd ways
Made for our searching : yes, in spite of all,
Some shape of beauty moves away the pall
From our dark spirits. Such the sun, the moon,
Trees old and young, sprouting a shady boon
For simple sheep; and such are daffodils
With the green world they live in.
Keats. Endymion. Bk. i. l.1.
When old age shall this generation waste,
Thou shalt remain, in midst of other woe
Than ours, a friend to man, to whom thou say'st,
" Beauty is truth, truth beauty,"-that is all

Abstract

Never teach false morality. How exquisitely absurd to tell girls that beanty is of no value, dress is of no use. Beauty is of value, her whole prospects and happiness in life may often depend upon a new gown or a becoming bonnet, and if she has five grains of sense she will find this out. Sydney Smith, in Lady Holland's Memoir.

Beauty is nature's brag, and must be shown In courts, in feasts, and high solemnities,
Where most may wonder at the workmanship;
It is for homely features to keep home,
They had their name thence; coarse complexions.
And cheeks of sorry grain, will serve to ply The sampler, and to tease the huswife's wool.
What need a vermeil-tinctur'd lip for that,
Love-darting eyes, and tresses like the morn?
There was another meaning in these gifts.
Mllton. Comus. 1. 745.
Physical beanty is the sign of an interior beauty, a spiritual and moral beanty which is the basis, the principle, and the unity of the beautiful.

Schiller. Essays, Esthetical and Philosophical. Introduction.
Beauty is certainly a soft, smooth, slippery thing, and, therefore, of a nature which easily slips in and permeates our souls. For I affirm that the good is the beautiful.

None can be call'd deform'd but the unkind:
Virtue is beauty; but the beauteons-evil
Are empty trunks, o'erflourish'd by the devil.
Shakespeare. Twelfth Night. Act iii. Sc. 4. 1. 401.
No beanty's like the beanty of the mind.
Joshua Cooke (attributed to). How a Man may choose a Good Wife from a Bad. Act v. Sc. 3.
Exceeding fair she was not ; and yet fair
In that she never studied to be fairer
Than Nature made her ; beauty cost her nothing,
Her virtues were so rare.
Grorge Ceapman. All Fools. Act i. Sc. 1.
'Tis not a set of features, or complexion,
The tincture of a skin that I admire:
Beauty soon grows familiar to the lover,
Fades in his eye, and palls upon the sense.

Addison. Cato. Act i. Sc. 4.

She is not fair to outward view As many maidens be;
Her loveliness I never knew
Until she smiled on me:
Oh! then I saw her eye was bright,
A well of love, a spring of light.
Hartley Coleridge. Song.
What's female beauty, but an air divine,
Through which the mind's all-gentle graces sbine?
They, like the sun, irradiate all between;
The body charms, hecause the soul is seen.
Hence men are often captives of a face,
They know not why, of no pecnliar grace:
Some forms, though bright, no mortal man can bear;
Some none resist, though not exceeding fair.
Young. Love of Fame. Satire 6. 1. 141.
Beauties in vain their pretty eyes may roll ;
Charms strike the sight, but merit wins the soul.
Pope. Rape of the Lock. Canto v. 1. 33.
I must not say that she was true, Yet let me say that she was fair ;
And they, that lovely face who view,
They should not ask if truth be there. Matteew Arnold. Euphrosyne.

She was not fair,
Nor beautiful-those words express her not;
But, oh, her looks had something excellent,
That wants a name.
Longfellow. Hyperion.
Beautiful as sweet,
And young as beantiful, and soft as young,
And gay as soft, and innocent as gay!
Bulwer. New Timon. iii. 1. 81.
BED.
In bed we laugh, in bed we cry,
And born in bed, in hed we die;
The near approach a bed may show
Of human bliss and human woe.
Isaac De Benserade. (Trans. by Dr. Johnson.)

If he that in the field is slain,
Be in the bed of honour lain, He that is beaten may be said
To lie in honour's truckle-bed.
Butler. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto iii. l. 1047.

Cos. Pray now, what may be that same bed of honor?

Kite. Oh, a mighty large bed ! bigger by half than the great bed at Ware: ten thousand people may lie in it together, and never feel one another.

George Farquiar. The Recruiting officer. Act i. Sc. 1.

Oh, bed! bed! bed! delicious bed!
That heaven upon earth to the weary head,
Whether lofty or low its condition! T. Hood. Miss Kilmansegg.

Night is the time for rest;
How sweet, when labors close,
To gather round an aching breast
The curtain of repose,
Stretch the tired limbs and lay the head
Down on our own delightful bed.
James Montgomery. Night.

BEES.

Canterbury. So work the honey bees, Creatures that by a rule in nature teach The art of order to a peopled kingdom. They liave a king and officers of sorts; Where some, like magistrates, correct at home;
Others, like merchants, venture trade abroad;
Others, like soldiers, armed in their stings,
Make boot upon the summer's velvet buds;
Which pillage they with merry march bring home,
To the tent-royal of their emperor ;
Who, busied in his majesty, surveys
The singing masons building roofs of gold,
The civil citizens kneading up the honey,
The poor mechanic porters crowding in Their heavy burdens at his narrow gate; The sad-ey'd justice, with his surly hum,

Delivering o'er to executors pale
The lazy yawning drone.
Shakespeare. Henty V. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 187.
[Bees, of course, have no king. The same error appears in Bacon, who speaks of "the king in a hive of bees" (Apothegm8). Both authors were blindly following Virgil:
The bees of a hive are very obsequious to their king. They attend him in crowds, often raising him on their shoulders and exposing their own bodies in his defence. Georgics. iv.l
For where's the state beneath the firmament
That doth excel the bees for government?
Du Bartas. Divine Weekes and Works. First Week. Fifth day. Pt. i.
What is not good for the swarm is not good for the bee. Marcus Aurelids. Meditations. 64.

But chief the spacious hall
Thick swarmed, both on the ground and in the air,
Brushed with the hiss of rustling wings. As bees
In spring-time, when the sun with Taurus rides,
Pour forth their populous youth about the hive.
Milton. Paradise Lnst. Bk. i. 1. 767.
The careful insect 'midst his works I view,
Now from the flowers exhaust the fragrant dew,
With golden treasures load his little thighs,
And steer his distant journey through the skies;
Some against hostile drones the hive defend,
Others with sweets the waxen cells distend,
Each in the toil his destin'd office bears,
And in the little bulk a mighty soul appears.

Gay. Rural Sports. Canto i. 1. 83.
He is not worthy of the honey-comb,
Who shuns the hives because the bees have stings.
SHAKESPEARE (attributed to). Locrine. Act iii. Sc. 2.
Where the bee sucks, there suck I;
In a cowslip's bell I lie.
Ibid. The Tempest. Act v. Sc. 1. Ariel's Song.

Cassins. But for your words, they rob the Hybla bees,
And leare them honeyless.
Shakespeare. Julius Cæsar. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 34.

By sucking you, the wise, like bees, do grow
Healing and rich though this they do most slow,
Because most choicely; for as great a store
Have we of books as bees of herbs, or more:
And the great task to try, then know, the good
To discern weeds and judge of wholesome food,
Is a rare scant performance.

Where thou art is clime for me.
Let them sail for Porto Rique,
Far-off heats through seas to seek;
I will follow thee alone,
Thon animated torrid zone!
Seeing only what is fair,
Sipping only what is sweet,
Leave the chaff, and take the wheat. Emerson. The Humble-Bee.

BEGGARS; BEGGING.
Bastard. Well, whiles I am a beggar I will rail
And say there is no sin but to be rich: And being rich, my virtue then shall be
To say there is no vice but beggary.
Shakespeare. King John. . Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 593.

York. Thy father bears the type of king of Naples,
Of both the Sicils, and Jerusalem,
Yet not so wealthy as an English yeoman.
Hath that poor monarch taught thee to insult?
It needs not, nor it boots thee not, proud queen,
Unless the adage must be verified,
That beggars mounted run their horse to death.
Shakespeare. Henry VI. Pt.iii. Acti. Sc.4. 1. 121.

Set a beggar on horseback and be'll ride to the devil.-English Proverb.

Set a beggar on horseback and he'll outride the devil.-German Proverb.
Set a beggar on borseback and he will ride agallop.

Burton. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. ii. Sec. ii. Memb. 1. Subsec. 1.

Full little knowest thou that has not tried,
What hell it is in suing long to bide:
To loose good dayes, that might be better spent;
To waste long nights in pensive discontent;
To speed to-day, to be put back tomorrow;
To feed on hope, to pine with feare and sorrow.
To fret thy soule with crosses and with cares;
To eate thy heart through comfortlesse dispaires;
To fawne, to crowche, to waite, to ride, to ronne,
To spend, to give, to want, to be undonne.
Unhappie wight, borne to desastrous end,
That doth his life in so long tendance spend!
Spenser. Mother Hubberd's Tale. 1. 895.
His house was known to all the vagrant train,
He chid their wanderings, but reliev'd their pain;
The long-remembered beggar was his guest,
Whose beard descending swept his aged breast.

Beggars must be no choosers.
BEAUMONT AND FLETCEER. SCornful Lady. Act v. Sc. 3.
[A proverb found in most languages, and recorded by John Heywood hefore Beaumont and Fletcher, in the form: "Beggars should be no choosers."]
Pity the sorrows of a poor old man,
Whose trembling limbs have borne him to your door,
Whose days are dwindled to the shortest span;
Oh give relief, and Heaven will bless your store.

LaNDOR. Imaginary Conversations Eschines and Phocion.

BEGINNINGS.

Principiis obsta.
Resist the beginnings. Ovin. Remed. Amoris. 91.
We must be watchful, especially in the beginning of temptation, because then the enemy is easier overcome, if he is not suffered to come in at all at the door of the soul, but is kept out sud resisted at his first knock. Whence a certain man said, "Withstand the beginning: after remedies come too late."

Thomas i Kempis. Imitation of Christ. Ch. xili. Sec. iv.

We shut our eyes to the beginnings of evil becanse they are small, and in this weakness lies the germ of our misfortune, Principiis obsta: this maxim closely followed would preserve ns from almost all our misfortunes.

Amiel. Journal Intime. ii. 76.
Beware of the beginnings of vice. Do not delude yourself with the belief that it can be argued against in the presence of the exciting cause. Nothing hut actual fight can soye you.
B. R. Haydon. Table Talk.

To doubtful masters do not headlong run,
What's well left off were better not begun.

Falstaff. To the latter end of a fray, and the heginning of a feast,
Fits a dull fighter, and a keen guest:
Shakespeare. Henry IV. Pt. i. Activ. Sc. 2. 1. 85.
As the proverb says, "a good beginning is half the business," and "to have begun well" is praised by all.
Plato. Laws. vi. 2. (STEPRENs, trans.)
A bad beginning makes a bad ending. EURIPIDES. EFolus. Frag. 32.
The converse proposition, "A good beginning makes a good ending," is a popular proverh in many languages. Heywood gives it in these words:" "of a good heginning cometh a good end." (Proverbs. Pt. i. Ch. x.)

The beginning is said to be half of the whole.

Aristotle. Politica. viii. 3.

Timoleon. All greai actions the wish'd course do run,
That are, with their allowance, well hegun.
Massinger. The Bondman. Act i. Sc. 1.
0 small beginnings, ye are great and strong,
Based on a faithful heart and weariless brain!
Ye build the future fair, ye conquer wrong, Ye earn the crown, and wear it not in vain.

Lowell. To W. L. Garrison. St. 11.
Each goodly thing is hardest to begin.
Spenser. The Faerie Queene. Bk. i. Canto x. St. 6.
Ce n'est que le premier pas qui coote. It is only the first step which costs.
Maname du Deffand. In reply to the Cardinal de Polignac.
[This bon mot is recorded in one of Voltaire's notes to Canto i. of "La Pucelle." The lady herself gives its genesis in a letter to Horace Walpole (June 6, 1767). It appears that Cardinal Polignac, a man of vast credulity, told her the old story of the martyrdom of St. Denis, who, after decapitation, walked two leagues with his head in his hand to the spot where his church was afterward erected. The cardinal laid special stress on the distance traversed. "The distance is nothing," quoth Madame; "'tis only the first step that costs" " "La distance n'y fait rien; il n'y a que le premier pas qni coute ')].

"Be of good comfort, Master Ridley,"
Latimer cried at the crackling of the flames. "Play the man! We shall this day light such a candle, by God's grace, in England, as I trust shall never be put out."
This is the better because more scriptural, and, therefore, more likely version of Latimer's speech. Hume, however, gives it as follows:
"Be of good cheer, brother, we shall this day kindle such a torch in England, as, J, trust in God, shall never be extinguished."

History of England. Ch. xxxvii.
I shall light a candle of understanding in thine heart, which shall not be put out.

2 Esdras. xiv. 25.

BELLS.

Vivos voco-mortuos plango-fulgura frango.

I call the Living-I mourn the DeadI break the Lightning.

Inseribed on the Great Bell of the Minster of Schafhausen-also on that of the Church of Art, near Lucerne.
Another form in which the distich appears runs as follows:
Funera plango, fulgura frango, sabbato pango

Excito lentos, dissipo ventos, paco cruentos.
I toll for funerals, I hreak the lightning, I announce the Sabbath,
I wake the sluggard, I dissipate the winds, I pacify the quarrelsome.
Silence that dreadful bell: it frights the isle
From her propriety.
Shakespeare. Othello. Act ii. Sc. I.
Ophelia. Like sweet bells jangled, out of tune and harsh.
Ibid. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 166.
Macbeth. The bell invites me.
Hear it not, Duncan; for it is a knell
That summons thee to heaven or to hell.
Ibid. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 62.
With melting airs or martial, brisk or grave;
Some chord in unison with what we hear
Is touch'd within us, and the heart replies.

How soft the music of those village bells,
Falling at intervals upon the ear
In cadence sweet; now dying all away, Now pealing loud again, and louder still, Clear and sonorous, as the gale comes on!
With easy force it opens all the cells
Where Memory slept.
Cowper. The Task. Bk. vi. Winter Walk at Noon.

Their magic spells.
Father Prout (Francis Mahony). The Bells of Shandon.
Hear the mellow wedding bells, Golden bells !
What a world of happiness their harmony foretells

Through the balmy air of night
How they ring out their delight!
From the molten golden notes, And all in tune
What a liquid ditty floats
To the turtle-dove that listens while she gloats On the moon! POE. The Bells. St. 2.
Ring out, wild bells, to the wild sky !
Ring out the old, ring in the new, Ring, happy hells, across the snow !

Ring out, ring out my mournful rhymes,
But ring the fuller minstrel in!
Ring out old shapes of foul disease;
Ring out the narrowing lust of gold;
Ring out the thousand wars of old, Ring in the thousand years of peace.
Ring in the valiant man and free,
The larger heart, the kindlier hand;
Ring out tlie darkness of the land,
Ring in the Christ that is to be. Tennyson. In Memoriam. Pt. cvi.
The bells themselves are the best of preachers;
Their brazen lips are learned teachers,
From their pulpits of stone in the upper air,
Sounding aloft, without crack or flaw,
Shriller than trumpets under the Law,
Now a sermon, and now a prayer.
The clangorous hammer is the tongue,
This way, that way, beaten and swung,
That from mouth of brass, as from mouth of gold
May he tanght the Testaments, New and old.

He was of that stubborn crew Of errant saints, whom all men grant To be the true church militant: Such as do build their faith upon The holy text of pike and gun; Decide all controversy by Infallible artillery;
And prove their doctrine orthodox
By apostolic blows and knocks.
Butier. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto i. l 192.
Bigotry murders religion, to frighten fools with her ghost.

Colton. Lacon. ei.
A quiet conscience makes one so serene!
Christians have burnt each other, quite persuaded
That all the Apostles would have done as they did.
Byron. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 83.
I think that friars and their hoods,
Their doctrines and their maggots,
Have lighted up too many feuds,
And far too many faggots;
I think, while zealots fast and frown,
And fight for two or seven,
That there are fifty roads to town,
And rather more to heaven.
Praed. Chant of Brazen Head. St. 8.
And when religious sects ran mad,
He held, in spite of all his learning,
That if a man's belief is bad
It will not be improved by burning. Ibid. Every Day Christian.
Shall I ask the brave soldier, who fights by my side
In the cause of mankind, if our creeds agree?
Shall I give up the friend I have valued and tried,
If he kneel not before the same altar with me?
From the heretic girl of my soul should I fly,
To seek somewhere else a more orthodox kiss?
No I perish the hearts and the laws that try
Truth, valor, or love, by a standard like this.

Moore.

But Faith, fanatic Faith, once wedded fast
To some dear falsehood, hugs it to the last.
Moore. Veiled Prophet of Khorassan.

BIRTH.

And when I was born I drew in the common air, and fell upon the earth, which is of like nature ; and the first voice which I uttered was crying, as all others do.

The Wisdom of Solomon. vii. 3.
[It was the custom among the Jews and other ancient races to place a new-born child upou the groundimmediately afterits birth.]

The infant, as soon as Nature with great pangs of travail hath sent it forth from the womb of its mother into the regions of light, lies, like a sailor cast out from the waves, naked upon the earth, in utter want and helplessness, and fills every place around with mournful wailings and piteons lamentations, as is natural for one who has so many.ills of life in store for him, so many evils which he must pass through and suffer.

Bacon. De Rerum Natura. v. 223.
Man alone at the very moment of his birth, cast naked upon the naked earth, does she abandon to cries and lamentations. Burton. Anatomy of Melancholy. Sec. 2.
He is born naked, and falls a whining at the first.

Tbid. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. i. Sec. 2. Mem. 3. Subsec. 10 .

Lear. Thou must be patient: we came crying hither;
Thou know'st the first time that we smell the air
We wawl and cry,-
When we are born, we cry, that we are come
To this great stage of fools.
Shakegpeare. Lear. Act iv. Sc. 6. 1. 182.
What then remains but that we still should cry
For being horn, and, being born, to die? Bacon. The World.
Not to be born, or, being born, to die.
Drommond. Poems. p. 44. Bishop King Poems (1657). p. 145.
It is as natural to die as to be born; and to a little infant, perhaps, the one is as painful as the other.

Bacon. Essay II. Of Death.

On parent knees, a naked new-born child,
Weeping thou sat'st, while all around thee smiled;
So live, that, sinking in thy last long sleep,
Calm thou may'st smile, while all around thee weep. Sir Wm. Jones. From the Persian.
This is the thing that I was born to do. Samoel Danied. Musophilus. St. 10.
Her berth was of the wombe of morning dew,
And her conception of the joyous Prime. Spenser. Fairie Queene. Bk. iii. Canto 6. St. 3.

The dew of thy birth is of the womb of the morning.

Old Testament. Psalm cx. 3. Book of Common Prayer.

Bears when first born are shapeless masses of white tlesh a little larger than mice, their claws alone being prominent. The mother then licks them gradually into proper shape.

Pliny. Sec. 126.
Gloucester. To disproportion me in every part,
Like to a chaos, or an unlicked bear-whelp,
That carries no impression like the dam.
Shakespeare. Henry VI. Pt. iii. Aet iii. Sc. 2. 1. 160.

Not unlike the bear which bringeth forth In the end of thirty dayes a shapeless birth; But after licking, it in shape she drawes, And by degrees she fasbions out the pawes, The head, and neck, and finally doth bring To a perfect beast that first deformed thing. Du Bartas. Divine Weekes and Workes: First Week, Fïrst Day.
So watchful Bruin forms, with plastic care, Each growing lump, and brings it to a bear. Pope. Duneiad. i. 101.

Arts and sciences are not cast in a mould, but are formed and perfected by degrees, by often handling and polishing, as bears leisurely lick their cubs into form. MONTAIGNE. Apology for Raimond Sebond. Bk. ii. Ch. xii.
Believing, hear what you deserve to hear:
Your birthday as my own to me is dear. Blest and distinguish'd days ! which we should prize
The first, the kindest bounty of the skies.

But yours gives most ; for mine did only lend
Me to the world; yours gave to me a friend.
Martial. Epigrams. Bk.ix. Ep. 53.
My birthday !-what a different sound
That word had in my youthful ears;
And how each time the day comes round,
Less and less white its mark appears. Moore. My Birthday.
Death borders upon our birth, and our cradle stands in the grave.
Bishop Hall. Epistes. Doc. iii. Epis. 2.
While man is growing, life is in decrease; And cradies rock us nearer to the tomb.
Our birth is nothing but our death begon. Young. Night Thoughts. v. 1. 717 .
Our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting;
The soul that rises with us, our life's star,
Hath had elsewhere its setting,
And cometh from afar:
Not in entire forgetfulness,
And not in atter nakedness,
But trailing clouds of glory do we come From God, who is our home:
Heaven lies about us in our infancy !
Shades of the prison-house begin to close
Upon the growing boy,
But he beholds the light, and whence it fows;
He sees it in his joy.
Wordsworti. Ode on Immortality. St. 5.
Not only around our infancy
Doth heaven with all its splendors lie;
Daily, with souls that cringe and plot,
We Sinais climb and know it not.
Lowell. The Vision of Sir Launfal. Prelude to Part First.
Let the day perish wherein I was born, and the night in which it was said, There is a man-child conceived. old Testament. Job iii. 3.
Who breathes must suffer, and who thinks must mourn;
And he alone is blessed who ne'er was born.

Prior. Solomon. Bk. iii. l. 240.
I came up stairs into the world, for I was born in a cellar.

CONGREVE. Love for Love. Act ii. Sc. 7.
Born in a cellar, and living in a garret.
Foote. The Author. Act 2.

Born in the garret, in the kitchen bred,
Byron. A Sketch.
Begot by butchers, but by bishops bred, How high his honor holds his haughty head!

ANON. Epigram on Wolsey.
Everybody likes and respects selfmade men. It is a great deal better to be made in that way than not to be made at all.

Holmes. Autocrat of the Breakfast Table.

BLACKSMITH.

Hubert. I saw a smith stand with his hammer, thus,
The whilst his iron did on the anvil cool.
With open mouth swallowing a tailor's news.
Shakespeare. King John. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 193.

Under a spreading chestnut tree The village smithy stands:
The smith, a mighty man is he,
With large and sinewy hands;
And the muscles of his brawny arms
Are strong as iron bands.
Lonofellow, The Village Blacksmilh.
The paynefull smith, with force of fervent heat,
The hardest yron soone doth mollify,
That with his heavy sledge he can it beat,
And fashion it to what he it list apply. Spenser. Sonnet XXXii.
Curs'd be that wretch (Death's factor sure) who brought Dire swords into the peaceful world, and tanght
Smiths (who before could only make
The spade, the plough-share, and the rake)
Arts, in most cruel wise
Man's left to epitomize!
Abraham Cowley. In Commendation of the Time we live under the Reign of . our gracious King, Charles II.
Old Tubal Cain was a man of might
In the days when earth was young.
And he sang " Hurrah for my handiwork !
Hurrah for the spear and the sword!

Hurrah for the hand that shall wield them well,
For he shall be king and lord."
And he sang: "Hurrah for my handiwork!"
And the red sparks lit the air;
"Not alone for the blade was the bright steel made;"
And he fashioned the first plonghshare.

Chas. Mackay. Tubal Cain. St. 4.
In other part stood one who, at the furge
Labouring, two massy clods of iron and hrass
Had melted.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. xi. 1.564.
Come see the Dolphin's anchor forged; 'tis at a white heat now :
The billows ceased, the flames decreased; though on the forge's brow
The little flames still fitfully play through the sable mound;
And fitfully you still may see the grim smiths ranking round,
All clad in leathern panoply, their broad hands only bare;
Some rest upon their sledges here, some work the windlass there. Sam'l Febguson, The Forging of the Anchor. St. 1.

BLESSINGS.

Multa ferunt anni venientes commoda secum,
Multa recedentes adimunt.
Years, as they come, bring blessings in their train;
Years, as they go, take blessings back again.
Horace. De Arte Poetica. 175. (ConingTon, trans.)
Like birds, whose beauties languish half concealed,
Till, mounted on the wing, their glossy plumes
Expanded, shine with azure, green and gold;
How blessings brighten as they take their flight.
Young. Night Thoughts. Night 2. 1. 589.
(See also under Possession.)

Bless the hand that gave the blow.
Dryden. The Spanish Friar. Act ii. Sc. 1.
We bear it calmly, though a ponderous woe. And still adore the hand that gives the blow. Pomfret. Verses to his Friend under Affiction.

Pleas'd to the last be crops the Howery food, And licks the hand just rais'd to shed his blood.

Pope. Essay on Man. Ep. i. 1. 83.
As half in sliade and half in sun
This world along its path advances, May that side the sun's upon

Beall that e'er shall meet thy glances! Moore. Peace be around Thee.

Blessed is he who expects nothing, for he sliall never be disappointed.

Pope. Letter to Gay. Oct. 6, 1727.

Laertes. A double blessing is a double grace,
Occasion smiles upon a second leave. Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 53.

Imogen.
Blest be those,
How mean soe'er, that have their honest wills.
Ibid. Cymbeline. Act i. Sc. 6. 1. 7.
Alphonso. For blessings ever wait on virtuous deeds,
And though a late, a sure reward succeeds.
Congreve. The Mourning Bride. Act v. Sc. 3.
A spring of love gushed from my heart, And I bless'd them unaware.

Coleridge. The Ancient Mariner. Pt. iv. St. 14.

BLINDNESS.

I was eyes to the blind, and feet was I to the lame.

Old Testament. Job xxix. 15.

If the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch.

New Testament. St. Matthew xv. 14.
Opinion governs all mankind,
Like tbe blind's leading of the blind.
Butler. Miscellaneous Thoughts. 1. 269.
Who is so deafe or so blinde as is he That wilfully will neither hear nor see? Haywood. Proverbs. Pt.ii. Ch. ix.
None so deaf as those that will not hear. Matthew Henry. Commentaries. Psalm lviii.

None so blind as those that will not see.
Ibid. Commentaries. Jeremiah xx.
There is none so blind as they that won't see.
Swift. Polite Conversation. Dialogue iii.
Dispel the cloud, the light of heaven restore.
Give me to see, and Ajax asks no more. Homer. Miad. Bk. xvii. l. 730. (Pope, trans.)

He that is strucken blind cannot forget
The precious treasure of his eyesight lost.
Shakespeare. Romeo and Juliet. Acti. Sc. 1. 1. 230.
O, loss of sight, of thee I most complain !
Blind among enemies, $O$ worse than chains,
Dungeons, or beggary, or decrepit age ! Light, the prime work of God, to me's extinct,
And all her various objects of delight
Annul'd, which might in part my grief have eas'd.

Miluton. Samson Agonistes. 1.67.
O dark, dark, dark, amid the blaze of noon,
Irrecoverably dark ! total eclipse,
Without all hope of day.
Ibid. Samson Agonistes. 1. 80.
Thus with the year
Seasons return, but not to me returns
Day, or the sweet approach of even or morn,
Or sight of vernal bloom, or summer's rose,
Or flocks, or herds, or human face divine;
But cloud instead, and ever-during dark Surrounds me, from the cheerful ways of men

Cat off, and for the book of knowledge fair
Presented with a universal blank
Of Nature's works to me expunged and rased,
And wisdom at one entrance quite shut out.
So much the rather then, Celestial Light,
Shine in ward, and the mind thro' all her powers
Irradiate; there plant eyes; all mist from them
Purge and disperse, that I may see and tell
Of things invisible to mortal sight. Mruron. Paradise Lost. Bk. iii. 1. 41 .
When I consider how my light is spent
Ere half my days, in this dark world and wide;
And that one talent which is death to hide
Lodged with me useless, though my soul more bent
To serve therewith my Maker and present
My true account, lest He, returning, chide;
"Doth God exact day-labour, light denied ${ }^{\prime \prime}$
I fondly ask : but Patience, to prevent
That murmur, soon replies, "God doth not need
Either man's work, or his own gifts; who best
Bear his mild yoke, they serve him best: his state
Is kingly; thousands at his bidding speed,
And post o'er land and oceau without rest;
They also serve who only stand and wait.

Ibid. Sonnet on His Blindness.
Cyriack, this three years' day these eyes, though clear,
To outward view, of blemish or of spot,
Bereft of light, their seeing have forgot,
Nor to their idle orbs doth siglt appear
Of sun, or moon, or star throughout the year,
Or man, or woman. Yet I argue not Against Heaven's hand or will, nor bate a jot

Of heart or hope; but still bear up and steer
Right onward. What supports me, dost thou ask ?
The conscience, friend, to have lost them overplied
In liberty's defence, my noble task,
Of which all Europe rings from side to side.
This thought mightlead me through the world's vain mask
Content though blind, had I no better guide.

Miluton. To Cyriack Skinner.
He pass'd the flaming bounds of place and time:
The living throne, the sapphire blaze, Where angels tremble while they gaze, He saw; but, blasted with excess of light,
Closed his eyes in endless night.
Gray. The Progress of Poesy. iii. 2. 1. 98.

Buy my flowers,-oh buy I pray !
The blind girl comes from afar. Bulwer lytton. Buy My Flowers (Nydia's song in The Last Days of Pompecii).

BLUSHING.

Blushing is the colour of virtue.
MAXTHEW HENRY. Commentaries. Jeremiah iii.
Once Diogenes saw a youth blushing, and addressed him, "Courage, my boy ! that is the complexion of virtue." Diogenes Laertivs. Diogenes. vi.
Ernbuit: salva res est.
He blushes: all is safe.
terence. Adelphi. iv. 5. 9.
Better a blush in the face than a blot in the heart.

Cervantes. Don Quixote. Pt. ii. Bk.iii. Ch. xliv. (JaRvis, trans.)
The man that blushes is not quite a brute.
Youno. Night Thoughts. Night 7. 1.496.
I pity bashful men, who feel the pain
Of fancied scorn, and undeserved disdain,
And bear the marks upon a blushing face
Of needless shame, and self-imposed disgrace.

COWPER. Conversation. 1. 347.

I always take blushing either for a sign of guilt or ill-breeding.

Congreve. The Way of the World. Act i. Sc. 9 .

Blushes are badges of imperfection.
Wycherley. Love in a Wood. Act i. Sc. 1.
Angelo. Lay by all nicety and prolixious blushes,
That banish what they sue for.
Shakespeare. Measure for Measure. Act ii. Sc. 4. l. 162.
To get thine ends, lay bashfulnesse aside;
Who feares to aske, doth teach to be deny'd.
Herrick. No Bashfulnesse in Begging.
Friar.
I liave mark'd

To start into ber face, a thousand innocent shames
In angel whiteness beat away those blushes.
Shakespeare. Much Ado About Nothing. Act iv. Sc. 1. l. 157.
From every hlush that kindles in thy cheeks,
Ten thousand little loves and graces spring
To revel in the roses.
Rowe. Tamerlane. Act i. Sc. 1.
The rising blushes which her cheek o'erspread,
Are opening roses in the lily's bed.
Gay. Dione. Äctii. Sc. 3.
Bello è il rossore, ma è incơmmodo qualche volta.

The blush is beautiful, but it is sometimes inconvenient.

Goldoni. Pamela. i. 3.
L'innocence à rougir n'est point accoutumée.

Innocence is not accustomed to blush.
Moliere. Don Garcie de Navarre. ii. 5.
Les hommes rougissent moins de leurs crimes que de leurs faiblesses et de leur vanité.

Men blush less for their crimes than for their weaknesses and vanity. La Bruyere. Les Caractères. ii.

While mantling on the maiden's cheek Young roses kindled into thought.

Moore. Evenings in Greece. Evening Song.

But hark! a rap comes gently to the door ;
Jenny, wha kens the meaning o' the same,
Telis how a neebor lad came o'er the moor,
To do some errands, and convoy her hame.
The wily Mother sees the conscious flame
Sparkle in Jenny's e'e, and flush her cheek,
With heart-struck, anxious care enquires his name,
While Jenny hafflins is afraid to speak;
Weel-pleas'd the mother hears, it's nae wild, worthless Rake.
Burns. Cotter's Saturday Night. St. 7.
Girls blush, sometimes, because they are alive,
Half wishing they were dead to save the shame.
The sudden blush devours tliem, neck and brow ;
They have drawn too near the fire of life, like gnats,
And fiare up boldly, wings and all.
What then?
Who's sorry for a gnat . . . or girl? Mrs. Browning. Aurora Leigh. Bl. ii. 1. 692.

We griev'd, we sigh'd, we wept ; we never blush'd before.
Cowley. Discourse concerning the Government of Oliver Cromwelt.
A blush is no language : only a dubious flag-signal which may mean either of two contradictories.

George Eliot. Daniel Deronda. Bk. v. Ch. xxxy.
Unde ruhor vestris, et non sua purpura, lymphis?
Quæ rosa mirantes tam nova mutat aquas?
Numen (convivæ) præsens agnoscite Numen;
Nympha pudica Deum vidit et erubuit. Richard Crashaw. Epigrammationa Sacra. xevi. p. 299.
When Christ, at Cana's feast, by power divine,
Inspired cold water with the warmth of wine,
"See," cried they, while in reddening tide it gushed,
"The bashful stream hath seen its God, and blushed."

Translated by Aaron Hill.
The last line of Crashaw's epigram has been translated in many ways, the most popnlar heing the one that is found in Heber, where it appears without credit or quotation marks :
The conscious water saw its God and blnshed.
Other versions occasionally met with are: The conscious water blnsh'd its God to see. The shy nymph saw her god and blush'd.
For the chaste nymph had seen her God and blush'd.

Quod non imber edax, non aquilo impotens
Possit diruere aut innumerabilis
Annorum series, et fuga temporum.
I have completed a monument more lasting than brass, and more sublime than the regal elevation of pyramids, which neither the wasting slower, the unavailing north-wind, or an innumerable succession of years, and the flight of seasons, shall be able to demolish.

Horace. Bk. iii. Ode xxx. (Smart, trans.)

Abrahari Coles's poetical translation in his Memorial Tributes is often quoted:
I're reared a monument alone
More durable than brass or stone;
Whose cloudy summit is more hid
Than regal height of pyramid.
Tamque opus exegi quod nec Jovis ira nec igñes
Nec poterit ferrum, nec edax abolere vetustas.
Cum volet illa dies quæ nil nisi corporis hujus

And now lave I finished a work which neither the wrath of Jove, nor fire, nor steel, nor all-consuming time can destroy. Welcome the day which can destroy only my physical man in ending my uncertain life. In my better part I shall be raised to immortality above the lofty stars, and my name shall never die.

Ovid. Metamorphoses. $\mathbf{x r} .871$.
Thy lord shall never die, the whiles this verse
Shall live, and surely it shall live for ever:
For ever it shall live, and shall rehearse
His worthie praise, and vertues dying never,
Though death his soule doo from his bodie sever:
And thon thyselfe herein shalt also live:
Such grace the heavens doo to my verses give. Spenser. The Ruines of Time. 1. 253.
Your monument shall be my gentle verse,
Which eyes not yet created shall o'erread,
And tongues to he your being shall rehearse
When all the breathers of this world are dead;
You still shall live-such virtue hath my pen-
Where breath most breathes, even in the mouths of men.

SHAKESPEARE. Sonnet Ixxxi.
Not marble, nor the gilded monuments
Of princes, shall outlive this powerful rhyme.

Ibid. Sonnet Iv.
Or if Sion hill

Ivid. Of Studies.
A good book is the precious life-blood of a master-spirit, embalmed and treasured up on purpose to a life beyond life. Milton. Areopagitica.
It is of greatest concernment in the church and commonwealth to have a vigilant eye how books demean themselves, as well as men, and therefore to confine, imprison, and do sharpest justice ou them as malefactors, for books are not absolutely dead things, but do contain a potency of life in them, to be as active as that soul whose progeny they are ; nay, they do preserve, as in a phial, the purest efficacy and extraction of that living intellect that bred them.

I know they are as lively, as vigorously productive as those fabulous dragon's teeth, and, being sown up and down, may chance to spring up armed men; and yet, on the other hand, unless wariness be used, as good almost kill a man as kill a good book: who kills a man kills a reasonable creature, God's image ; but he who destroys a good book, kills reason itself, kills the image of God, as it were, in the eye.

Miltos. Areopagitica.

Studious let me sit,

And hold high converse with the mighty Dead.

THOMSON. Seasons. Winter. 1. 431. That place that does contain My books, the best companions, is to me A glorions court, where hourly I converse With the old sages aud philosophers;
And sometimes, for variety, I confer
With kings and emperors, and weigh their counsels ;
Calling their' victories, if unjustly got, Unto a strict account, and, in my fancy, Deface their ill-placed statues. Beaumont and Fletcher. The Etder Brother. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 177.
Sephardo.
Wise books
For half the truths they hold are honoured tombs.

George Eliot. The Spanish Gipsy.
Books are sepulchres of thought.
LONGFELLOW. The Wind over the Chimney.
What a place to he in is an old library. It seems as though all the souls of all the writers, that have bequeathed their labors to these Bodleians, were reposing here, as in some dormitory or middle state. J do not want to handle, to profane the leaves, their winding-sheets. 1 could as soon dislodge a shade. I seem to inhale learning, walking amid their foliage, and the odor of their old moth-scented coverings is fragrant as the first bloom of those scieutial apples which grew amid the happy orchard.

Lamb. Esscys of Elia. Oxford in the Vacation.

The debt which he owes to them is incalculable; they have guided him to truth; they have filled his mind with noble and graceful images ; they have stood by him in all vicissitudes, comforters in sorrow, nurses in sickness, companions in solitude. These friendships are exposed to no danger from the occurrences by which other attachments are weakened or dissolved. Time glides on ; fortune is inconstant; tempers are soured ; bonds which seemed indissoluble are daily sundered by interest, by emulation, or by caprice. But no such cause can affect the silent converse which we hold with the bighest of human intellects.

Macaulay. Essays. Lord Bacon.
Consider what you havein the smallest chosen library. A company of the wisest and wittiest men that could be picked out of all civil countries, in a thousand years, have set in best order the results of their learning and wisdom. The men themselves were hid and inaccessible, solitary, impatient of interruption, fenced by etiquette; but the thought which they did not uncover to their bosom friend is here written out in transparent words to us, the strangers of another age.

Emerson. Sociely and Solitude. Books.
Have you ever righily considered what the mere ability to read means? That it is the key which admits us to the whole world of thought and fancy and imagination? to the company of saint and sage, of the wisest and the wittiest at their wisest and wittiest moment? That it enables us to see with the keenest eyes, hear with the finest ears, and listen to the sweetest voices of all time? More than that, it annihilates time and space for us.

Lownil. Democracy and Other Addresses. Address, Chelsea, Mass., Dec. 22, 1885. Books and Libraries.

In books lies the soul of the whole Past Time : the articulate audible voice of the Past, when the body and material substance of it has altogether vanished like a dream.

Carlyle. Heroes and Hero-Worship. The Hero as a Man of Letters.
The true University of these days is a Collection of Books.

Ibid. Heroes and Hero Worship. The Hero as a Man of Letters.
There is no Past, so long as Books shall live!

BULWER-LYTTON. The Souls of Books. St. 4. 1. 9.
We enter our studies, and enjoy a society which we alone can bring together, We raise no jealousy by conversing with one in preference to another; we give no offence to the most illustrious by questioning him as long as we will, and leaving him as abruptly. Diversity of opinion raises no tumult in our presence; each interlocutor stands before us, speaks or is silent, and we adjourn or decide the business at our leisure.

Landor. Imaginary Conversations. Milton and Andrew Marvell.
Books should to one of these four ends conduce
For wisdom, piety, delight, ar use. Sir Joikn Deniam. Of Prudence.
Dreams, books, are each a world; and books, we know,
Are a substantial world, both pure and good;
Round these, with tendrils strong as flesh and blood,
Our pastime and our happiness will grow.

Chiefs of elder Art!
Teachers of wisdom, who could once beguile
My tedious hours, and lighten every toil,
I now resign you. William Roscoe. Poetical Works. To my Books on Parting with Them.
Books cannot always please, however good;
Minds are not ever craving for their food.
Cbabbe. The Borough. Letter xxiv. Schoots.
'Tis the good reader that makes the good book.
Emerson. Society and Solitude. Suceess.
We get no good
By being ungenerous, even to a book, And calculating profits,-so much help By so much reading. It is rather when We gloriously forget ourselves and plunge
Soul-forward, headlong, into a book's profound,
Impassioned for its beanty and salt of truth-
'Tis then we get the right good from a book.
Mrs. Rrownino. Aurora Leigh. Bk. i. l. 702.

Some books are drenchèd sands,
On which a great soul's wealth lies all in heaps,
Like a wrecked argosy.
Alexanner Smiti. A Life Drama. Sc. 2.
Worthy books
Are not companions--they are solitudes;
We lose ourselves in them and all our cares.
Bailey. Festus. Sc. A Village Feast. Evening.
"There is no book so bad," said the bachelor, "but something good may be found in it."
Cervantes. Don Quixote. Pt. ii. Ch. iii.
Learning hath gained most by those books by which the printers have lost.

Thos. Fuller. The Virtuous Lady. Of Books.
Now as the Paradisiacal pleasures of the Mahometans consist in playing upon the flute and lying with Houris, be mine to read eternal new romances of Marivaux and Crebillon.

Sherinan. School for Scandal. Act i. Sc. 1. 1.352.

But every page baving an ample marge, And every marge enclosing in the midst A square of text that looks a little blot. Tennyson. Merlin and Vivien. 1. 667.
Books, like metals, require to be stamped with some valuable effigies before they become popular and current.
Farquhar. The Twin Rivals. Preface.
Books, like proverbs, receive their chief value from the stamp and esteem of ages through which they have passed.

Temple. Ancient and Modern Learning.
Often have I sighed to measure
By myself a lonely pleasure,
Sighed to think I read a book
Only read, perhaps, by me.
Wordswortr. To the Small Celandine.
Beware of a man of one book.
Proverb.
When St. Thomas Aquinas was asked in what manner a man might best become lcarned, he answered, "By reading one book."' The homo unius libri is indeed proverbially formidable to all conversational figurantes.

Southey. the Doctor. p. 164.

BORE.

Hotspur. $\quad O$, he's as tedious
As is a tir'd horse, a railing wife;
Worse than a smoky house;-I had rather live
With cheese and garlic, in a windmill, far,
Than feed on cates, and have him talk to me,
In any summer-house in Christendom.
Shakespeare. I. Henry IV. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 159.

Tons les genres sont bons, hors le genre ennuyeux.

All styles are good except the tiresome kind.
Voltaire. L'Enfant Prodigue. Préface.

Society is now one polished horde,
Formed of two mighty tribes, the Bores and Bored.
Byron. Don Juan. Canto xiii. St. 95.
Ennui is a growth of English root,
Though nameless in our language: we retort
The fact for words, and let the French translate
That awful yawn which sleep cannot abate.
Ibid. Don Juan. Canto xiii. St. 101.
Again I hear that creaking step :He's rapping at the door!-
Too well I know the boding sound That ushers in a bore.
I do not tremble when I meet
The stoutest of my foes,
But Heaven defend me from the friend Who comes-but never goes.
J. G. Saxe. My Familiar.

Emerson. Representative Men. Uses of Great Men.

BORROWING.

Polonius. Neither a borrower nor a

 lender be:For loan oft loses both itself and friend,
And borrowing dulls the edge of husbandry.
SHAKespeare. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 75.
The Old Testament recognizes that the position of a borrower is hnmiliating; "The borrower is servant to the lender"; (Proverbs Xxii. 7). "He that goes a-borrowing goes a-sorrowing," says Franklin, in Poor Richard's Almanac for 1757-a phrase that he cribbed from Thomas Tusser:

Who goeth a-borrowing
Goeth a-sorrowing.
Five Hundred Points: June.
But Tusser bimself was only remoulding a proverb familiar long before his day:
Who quick be to borrow, and slow be to pay, Their credit is naught, go they never so gay. Tusser. Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandry: Good Husbandry Lessons, 33.

BOSTON.

The hub of the universe.
Hnb is provincial English for a knob, a boss. In the United States it survives as the name for the center of a spoked wheel. The jest about Boston's being the hub of the universe, or simply the hub, had its origin with Oliver Wendell Holmes:
A jaunty-looking person $;$ said that there was one more wise saying that he had heard. It was about our place, but be didn't know who said it:
"Boston State-house is the hub of the solar system. You couldn't pry that ont of a Boston man if you bad the tire of all creation straightened out for a cross-bar."
"Sir," said I, "I am gratified with your remark. It expresses with pleasing vivacity that which I have sometimes heard uttered with malignant dulness. The satire of the remark is essentially true of Boston, and of all other considerable and inconsiderable places with which I have bad the privilege of being acquainted."
Autocrat of the Breakfast Tabte. vi. (1859).
A few sentences further down in the same book Dr. Holmes adds:
The axis of the earth sticks ont visibly througb the center of each and every town or city.

The hub, in America, is the nave or centerpiece of the wheel from which the spokes radiate, and on which the wheel turns. . . Massachusetts has been the wheel within New England, and Boston the wheel within Massachusetts. Boston, therefore, is often called the "hub of the world," since it has heen the source and fountain of the ideas that have reared and made America.

Rep. F. B. Zincke. Last Winter in the United States (1868).
Solid men of Boston, banish long potations !
Solid men of Boston, make no long orations !
Charles Morris. Pitt and Dundas's Relurn to London from Wimbledon.
Charles Morris, soldier, wit, and songwriter, served in America in the (British) Seventeenth Foot, but was politically a member of Fox's party, for which he wrote many popular ballads. In 1840 a posthumous collection of these ballads was published under the title of Lyra Urbanica, in which the couplet appears as above. The song was more popularly known as "Billy Pitt and the Farmer,' and is so called in Debretl's Asylum for Fugitive Pieces, where the couplet takes a slightly different form, viz.:
Solid men of Boston, make no long orations! Solid men of Boston, banish strong potations.

BRAGGART.

(See also Boasting.)

Parolles. Who knows himself a braggart,
Let him fear this, for it will come to pass That every braggart shall be found an ass. Shakespeare. All's Welt That Ends Well. Act iv. Sc. 3. I. 370.
Antonio. I know them, yea,
And what they weigh, even to the utmost scruple:
Scambling, outfacing, fashion-mong'ring boys,
That lie, and cog, and flout, deprave, and slander,
Go anticly, and show outward hideousness,
And speak off half a dozen dangerous words,
How they might hurt their enemies if they durst ;
And this is all.
Ibid. Much Ado Alout Nothing. Act $\nabla$. Sc.1.1.93.
Austria. What cracker is this same, that deafs our ears
With this abundance of superfluous breath?
Ibid. King John. Act 1i. Sc. 1. 1. 147.

Bastard. Here's a large mouth, indeed, That spits forth death, and mountains, rocks, and seas ;
Talks as familiarly of roaring lions,
As maids of thirteen do of puppy dogs.
What cannoneer begot this lusty blood?
He speaks plain cannon, fire, and smoke, and bounce ;
He gives the bastinado with his tongue; Our ears are cudgel'd; not a word of his,
But buffets better than a fist of France.
Zounds I I was never so bethump'd with words,
Since I first call'd my brother's father, dad.
Sharespeare. King John. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 457.

The empty vessel makes the greatest sound.
Ibid. Henry V. Act iv. Sc. 4. l. 73.
King Henry. The man that once did sell the lion's skin,
While the beast lived, was killed with hunting him.
Ibid. Henry V. Act iv. Sc. 3. 1. 93.
Prince Henry. I am not yet of Percy's mind, the Hotspur of the North; he that kills me some six or seven dozen of Scots at a breakfast, washes his hands, and says to his wife,-Fye upon this quiet life! I want work. Oh! my sweet Harry, says she, how many hast thou kill'd to-day? Give my roan horse $u$ drench, says be; and answers, Some fourteen, an hour after; a trifle, a trifle.
Ibid. I. Henry 1V. Act ii. Sc. 4. 1. 114.

To compare Demosthenes to me is like comparing a sow to Minerva.

Demades. Plutarch, Demosthenes. xi.
Go on, my friend, and fear nothing; you carry Cæsar and his fortunes in your boat.

Plutarce. Cesar.
You are uneasy; you never sailed with me before, I see.
Life of Jackson (Parton). Vol. iii. p. 493.
[A remark made to an elderly gentleman who was sailing with Jackson down Chesapeake bay in an old steamboat, and whoexhibited a little fear.]

Hamlet. It out-Herods Herod.
SHakespeare. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 16.
[For context see Hamlet's speech to the actors quoted under Actor. The phrase is an allusion to the rant and raving of the old stage king of Jewry in the Mystery Plays. Though it has now lost well-nigh all its pith, and is often most ridiculously misapplied, it still retained abundant meaning in Shakespeare's day. The graybeards among the great playwright's audience might well remember to have heard their grandfathers repeat such fustian as this, from Herod's mode of Heroding it in the Miracle Play entitled "The Offering of the Three Kings":

I am the greatest above degree
That is, or was, or ever shall be;
The sun it dare not shine on me
And I hid him go down.
Elsewhere be claims to be the maker of heaven and bell, to wield the thunderbolts, and kill all his enemies by one wink of his eye : and he calls the infant Cbrist "a misbegotten marmoset." This is speaking in character with such a vengeance that to out-Herod Herod must have been well-nigh impossible.]
We rise in glory, as we sink in pride:
Where boasting ends, there dignity begins.
Yodng. Night Thoughts. Night 8. 1. 508.

BREVITY.

A short saying often carries much wisdom.

SopHocles. Aletes. Fragment 99.
Polonius. Brevity is the soul of wit, And tediousness its outer flourishes. Shakespeare. Hambet. Actii. Sc. 2. 1.90.

Lysander. Brief as the lightning in the collied night,
That, in a spleen, infolds both heaven and earth,
And, ere a man hath power to say, Behold!
The jaws of darkness do devour it up:
So quick bright things come to confusion. Ibid. Midsummer Night's Dream. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 145. (See also under Lightining.)
Ham. Is this a prologue, or the posy of a ring?
Oph. 'Tis brief, my lord?
Ham. As woman's love. Ibid. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 162.
First Murderer. 'Tis better to be brief, than tedious.
Ibid. Richard III. Act i. Sc. 4. 1. 88.

Brevis esse laboro, obscurus fio.
In laboring to be concise, I become obscure.

Horace. Ars Poetica. xxv.

BRIBERY.

A king that setteth to sale seats of justice oppresseth the people; for be teacheth his judges to sell justice, and " pretio parata pretio venditur justitia."

BACON. Essays. Of a King.
Brutus. You yourself
Are much condemn'd to have an itching palm;
To sell and mart your offices for gold, To undeservers.

Shakegpeare. Julius Cæsar. Act iv. Sc. 3. 1. 10.
Brutus. What ! shall one of us,
That struck the foremost man of all this world,
But for supporting robbers;-shall we now
Contaminate our fingers with base brikes?
And sell the mighty space of our large honors
For so much trash as may be grasped thns?
I'd rather be a dog, and bay the moon, Than such a Roman.
Ibid. Julius Cxsar. Activ. Sc. 3. 1. 21.
Alas! the small discredit of a bribe
Scarce hurts the lawyer, but undoes the scribe.
Pope. Epilogue to Satire. Dialogue ii. 1. 46.

Judges and senates have been bought for gold;
Esteem and love were never to be sold. Ibid. Essay on Man. Ep. iv. 1. 187.
Too poor for a bribe, and too proud to importune,
He had not the method of making a fortune.

Gray. On His Own Character.
Flowery oratory be despised. He ascribed to the interested views of themselves or their relatives the declarations of pretended patriots, of whom he said, "All those men have their price."

Coxs. Memoirs of Sir Robert Watpole. Vol. iv. p. 369.

This phrase of Walpole's has been turned by persistent misquotation into the brutal cynicism, "All men have their prices," a sentiment which Byron, probably under the impression that he was following Walpole, has made his own:
'Tis pleasant purchasing our fellow-creatures;
And all are to be sold, if you consider
Their passions, and are dext'rons; some by features
Are bought up, others by a warlike leader ;
Some by a place-as tend their years or natures;
The most by ready cash-but all have prices, From crowns to kicks, according to their vices. Byron. Don Juan. Canto v. St. 27.

BUD.
Romeo. This bud of love, by summer's ripening breath,
May prove a beauteous flower when next we meet.
Good-night, good-night! As sweet repose and rest
Come to thy heart, as that within my breast!
Shakespeare. Romeo and Juliet. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 121.

Loathsome canker lies in sweetest bud. Ibid. Sonnet xxxy.
Montagu. So secret and so close.
So far from sounding and discovery,
As is the bud bit with an envious worm
Ere he can spread his sweet leaves to the air,
Or dedicate his beauty to the sun.
Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 117.

As though a rose should shut, and be a bud again.

Keats. Eve of St. Agnes. St. 27.
A rosebud set with little wilful thorns, And sweet as English air conld make her.
Tennyson. The Princess.: Prologue.

EDMUND BURKE.

I was not swaddled and rocked and dawdled into a legislator.

Buris. Letter to a Noble Lord.
Burke, sir, is such a man that if you met him for the first time in the street,
when you were stopped by a drove of oxen, and you and be stepped aside to take shelter but for five minutes, he'd talk to you in such a manner that when you parted you would say, "This is an extraordinary man."

Johnson. Boswell's Life of Johnson.
And the final event to himself has been that, as he rose like a rocket, be fell like a stick.
Thomas Paine. Letter to the Addressers.
Lockhart, in a review of the "Pickwick Papers" in the Quarlerly Review, applied Pajne's phrase to Dickens, predicting that "he has risen like a rocket and he will come down like the stick." The author meeting the critic shortly afterward retorted, " 1 will watch for thatstick, Mr. Lockhart, and when it does come down I will break it across your back."
Here lies our good Edmund, whose genius was such,
We scarcely can praise it or blame it too much;
Who, born for the universe, narrowed his mind,
And to party gave up what was meant for mankind.
Though fraught with all learning, yet straining his throat
To persuade Tommy Townshend to lend him a vote;
Who, too deep for his bearers, still went on refining,
And thought of convincing while they thought of dining: ${ }^{1}$
Though equal to all things, for all things unfit;
Too nice for a statesman; too proud for a wit;
For a patriot too cool ; for a drudge disobedient;
And too fond of the right to pursue the expedient.
In short, 'twas his fate, unemployed or in place, sir,
To eat mutton cold, and cut blocks with a razor.

Goldsmith. Retaliation. 1. 29.

[^7]
ROBERT BURNS.

Misled by Fancy's meteor ray, By Passion driven;
But yet the light that led astray, Was light from Heaven.

Bubns. The Vision.
[In his address "to the Sons of Burns,"
Wordsworth characteristically takes occasion to combat Burns's attempt at selfexcuse:
But ne'er to a seductive lay
Let faith be given,
Nor deem that " ligh't which leads astray Is light from heaven."
Fitzgerald's Omar Khayyam has a stanza closely analogous to Burns:
And this I know: whether the one True Light
Kindle to Love, or wrath-consume mequite,
One Flash of it within the Tavern caught
Better than in the Temple lost outright.
Rubáiyât. 1xxvii.
I mourned with thousands, but as one
More deeply grieved, for he was gone
Whose light I hailed when first it shone, And showed my youth
How verse may build a princely throne On humble truth.
Wordsworth. Al the Grave of Burns.

GEORGE GORDON (LORD BYRON).

No more-no more-mh! never more on me
The freshness of the heart can fall like dew.
Byron. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 214.
Even I, - albeit I'm sure I did not know it,
Nor sought of foolscap subjects to be king,-
Was reckoned, a considerable time,
The grand Napoleon of the realms of rhyme.
Ibid. Don Juan. Canto ix. St. 55.
He had a head which statuaries loved to copy, and a foot the deformity of which the beggars in the street mimicked.
Macaulay. Essays. Moore's Life of Byron.
From the poetry of Lord Byron they drew a system of ethics compounded of misanthropy and voluptuousness,-a system in which the two great commandments were to hate your neighbor and to love your neighbor's wife.

Ibid. Essays. Moore's Lifc of Byron.

CæSAR.

 каӨapàv とival.

Cæsar's wife should be above suspicion.
Julius Censar. (Plutarch, Cwsaris Apophthegmata, 3.) (206, в.)
Meos tam suspicione quam crimine judico carere oportere.
In my judgment the members of my household should be free not from crime only, but from the suspicion of crime.

Ibid. Suetonius. i. 74.
You have Cæsar and his fortunes among your passengers.

Ibid. Plutarch, Cæsar. xxxviii.
Aut Cæsar, aut nihil.
Either Cæsar or nothing. Motto of Cæsar Borgia.
Aut nihil aut Cæsar vult dici Borgia. Quidni?
Cum simul et Cessar possit et esse nihil.
Cæsar or nothing? We are nothing loath
Thus to acclaim him ; Cæsar Borgia's both.
Jacopo Sannazaro. De Cesare Borgia Carmina Poetarum Italorum. Vol. viii. p. 444.

Brutus. Not that I loved Cæsar less, but that I loved Rome more.

Shakespeare. Julius Cæsar. Act iil. Sc. 2. 1. 22.

CALENDAR.

It fell in the ancient periods
Which the brooding Soul surveys,
Or ever the wild Time coined itself
Into calendar month and days.
Junius, Aprilis, Septémq; Nouemq; tricenos,
Vnum plus reliqui, Februs tenet octo vicenos,
At si bissextns fuerit superadditur vnus. William Harrison. Description of Britain (prefixed to Holinshed's Chronicle, 1577).
Thirty dayes hath Nouember, Aprill, June, and September, February hath xxviii alone,
And all the rest have xxxi.
Richard Grafton. Chronicles of Engtand. (1590.)
Thirty days hath September, April, June, and November, February has twenty-eight alone, All the rest bave thirty-one;
Excepting leap-year,-that's the time
When February's days are twenty-nine.
The Return from Parnassus. (London, 1606.)

Thirty days hath September,
April, June, and November;
All the rest have thirty-one,
Excepting February alone,
Which hath but twenty-eight, in fine,
Till leap-year gives it twenty-nine.
A New England Variant.
Fourth, eleventh, ninth, and sixth,
Thirty days to each affix;
Every other thirty-one
Except the second month alone.
A Quaker Variant, common in Pennsytvania.
That gems the starry girdle of the year. Thomas Campbell. Pleasures of Hope. Pt. ii. l. 194.

Perceiv'st thou not the process of the year,
How the four seasons in four forms appear,
Resembling human life in ev'ry shape they wear?
Spring first, like infancy, shoots out her head,
With milky juice requiring to be fed :
Proceeding onward whence the year began,
The Summer grows adult, and ripens into man. . . .
Autumn succeeds, a sober, tepid age,
Not froze with fear, nor boiling into rage; . . .
Last, Winter creeps along with tardy pace.
Sour is his front, and furrowed is his face.
Drynen. Of Pythagorean Phil. From Fifteenth Book Ovid's Metamorphoses. l. 296.

These, as they change, Almighty Father, these
Are but the varied God. The rolling year
Is full of Thee. Forth in the pleasing Spring
Thy beauty walks, thy tenderness and love.

Then comes Thy glory in the Summer months,
With light and heat refulgent. Then Thy sun
Shoots full perfection through the swelling year;

Thy bounty shines in Autumn anconfined,
And spreads a common feast for all that live.
In Winter awful Thou! with clouds and storms
Around Thee thrown, tempest o'er tempest roll'd,
Majestic darkness ! on the whirlwind's wing,
Riding sublime.
Thomson. Hymn. 1. 1.
CALM.
Any one can hold the helm when the sea is calm.

Syrus. Maxim 358.
Why does pouring Oil on the Sea make it Clear and Calm? Is it for that the winds, slipping the smooth oil, have no force, nor canse any waves?

Plutabce. Morale. Nalural Questions. xii.

And that all seas are made calme and still with oile; and therefore the Divers under the water doe spirt and sprinkle it abroad with their mouthes because it dulceth and allaieth the unpleasant nature thereof, and carrieth a light with it.

Upon her patient breast.
Shakesprare. Troilus and Cressida. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 34.
And join with thee calm Peace and Quiet,
Spare Fast, that oft with gods doth diet. Milton. It Penseroso. 1. 45.

Gloomy calm of idle vacancy.
Joinson. Letter to Boswell. Dec. 8, 1763.
Quiet to quick bosoms is a hell.
Byron. Ohilde Harold. Canto iii. St. 42.
No stir of air was there, Not so much life as on a summer's day Robs not one light seed from the feather'd grass,
But where the dead leaf fell, there did it rest.

Keats. Hyperion. Bk. 1. 1.7.

The days of peace and slumberous calm are fled.

Keats. Hyperion. Bk. ii. 1. 335.
Like ships that have gone down at sea
When heaven was all tranguillity.
Moore. Lalla Rookh. The Light of the Harem. 1. 189.
Ne'er saw I, never felt, a calm so deep !
The river glideth at his own sweet will;
Dear God 1 the very houses seem asleep;
And all that mighty heart is lying still!
Wornsworth. Earth has not Anything to Show more Fair.
Large elements in order brought,
And tracts of calm from tempest made, And world-wide fluctuation sway'd,
In vassal tides that follow'd thought.
Tennyson. In Memoriam. cxii. St. 4.

CALUMNY.

(See rlso Scandal; Slander.)
Hamlet. If thou dost marry, I'll give thee this plague for thy dowry : he thou as chaste as ice, as pure as snow, thou shalt not escape calumny.

Shakespeare. Hamiet. Act iii. Sc. 1.

1. 139.

Leontes. Calumny will sear
Virtue itself: these shrugs, these hums, and ha's.
Ibid. Winter's Tale. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 73.
Laertes. Virtue itself 'scapes not calumnious strokes.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 38.
Duke. No might nor greatness in mortality
Can censure 'scape; hack-wounding calumny
The whitest virtue strikes: what king so strong,
Can tie the gall up in the slanderous tongue?
Ibid. Measure for Measure. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 173.

Wolsey.
If T'm
Traduced by ignorant tongues, which neither know
My faculties nor person, yet will he
The chronicles of my doing-let mesay,
'Tis but the fate of place, and the rough brake
That virtue must go through.
Ibid. Henry VIII. Act i. Sc. 2. 1.71.

If a cherub in the shape of woman
Should walk this world, yet defamation would,
Like a vile cur, lark at the angel's train. Home. Douglas. Actiii.

CANNON.

King John. The cannons have their bowels full of wrath;
And ready mounted are they, to spit forth
Their iron indignation.
Shakebreare. King John. Actii, Sc. 1. 1. 210.

Immediate in a flame,
From those deep-throated engines belched,
. . . . Chained thunderholts and hail
Of iron glohes: which on the victor host
Levelled, with such impetuous fury smote,
That whom they hit none on their feet might stand,
Though standing else as rocks, but down they fell
By thousands, angel on archangel rolled. Milton. Paradise Lost.

CANT.
(See Hypocrisy.)
Clear your mind of cant.
Johnson. Boswell's Life. May 15, 1783.
Till Cant cease, nothing else can begin. Carlyle. The French Revolution. Pt. ii. Bk. iii. Ch. vii.

Yes, rather plunge me hack in pagan night,
And take my chance with Socrates for bliss,
Than he the Christian of a faith like this,
Which huilds on heavenly cant its earthly sway,
And in a convert mourns to lose a prey. Moore. Intolerance. 1. 68 .

Begone, dull Care! I prithee begone from me 1
Begone, dull Care! thou and I shall never agree.
Playford. Musical Companion. (1687.)

Begone, old Care, and I prithee begone from me;
For i' faith, old Care, thee and I shall never agree.
Playford. Musical Companion. Catch 13.
Cast away care ; he that loves sorrow
Lengthens not day, nor can buy tomorrow;
Money is trash; and he that will spend it,
Let him drink merrily, Fortune will send it.
Ford and Dekger. The Sun's Darling.
Ye banks and braes ó bonny Doon,
How can ye bloom sae fresh and fair?
How can ye chant, ye little birds,
And I sae weary fu' o' care ?
Burns. The Banks of Doon.
Le chagrin monte en croupe et galope avec lui.

Care jumps up behind and gallops with him.

Boileau. Epitre. v. 44.
Care lives with all; no rules, no precepts save
The wise from woe, no fortitude the brave:
Grief is to man as certain as the grave:
Tempests and storms in life's whole progress rise,
And hope shines dimly through o'erclouded skies ;
Some drops of comfort on the favour'd fall,
But showers of sorrow are the lot of all. Crabbe. The Libraty.
I could lie down like a tired child, And weep away the life of care
Which I have borne, and yet must bear. Shelley. Stanzas written in Dejection, near Naples.
And the night shall be filled with music, And the cares that infest the day
Shall fold their tents like the Arabs,
And as silently steal away.
Lonopellow. The Day is Done.
How often, oh how often,
I had wished that the ebbing tide
Would bear me away on its bosom
O'er the ocean wild and wide!
For my heart was hot and restless,
And my life was full of care,
And the hurden laid upon me
Seemed greater than I could bear. Ibid. The Bridge.

CAT.

It has been the providence of nature to give this creature nine lives instead of one.

Pilpay. Fable iii.

CAUSE.

Causa latet: vis est notissima.
The canse is hidden, but the result is known.

Ovid. Metamorphoses. iv. 287.
Polonius. Find out the cause of this effect,
Or rather say, the cause of this defect, For this effect defective comes by cause.

Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 101.

The universal cause
Acts to one end, but acts by various laws.
Pope. Essay on Man. Ep. iii. 1. 1.
The Unlversal Canse
Acts not by partial, but by gen'ral laws; And makes what happiness we jnstly call, Subsist not in the good of one, but all.

Ibia. Essay on Man. Ep. iv. 1. 35.

CENSORIOUSNESS.

Why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, let me pull ont the mote out of thine eye, and behold a beam is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine own eye, and then shalt thon see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye.

New Testament. Sermon on the Mount. Matthew vii. 3; Luke vi. 41.

In other men we faults can spy,
And blame the mote that dims their eye;
Each little speck and blemish find:
To our own stronger errors blind.
Gay. Fables. Pt. i. Fable xxxviii. The Turkey and the Ant.
We would willingly have others perfect, and yet we amend not our own faults. We would have others severely corrected, and will not be corrected ourselves. The large liberty of others displeaseth us, and yet we will not have our own desires denied us. We will have others kept under by strict laws, but in no sort will ourselves be restrained. And thns it appcarcth howseldom we weigh our neighbor in the same balance with onrselves.

Thomas a Kempis. Imitation of Christ.
The pot calls the kettle black.
English Proverb.
He that is withont sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her.

The rigid saint, by whom no mercy's shown,
To saints whose lives are better than his own.
Churchill. Epistle lo Hogarth. 1. 25.
The raven said to the crow, "Avaunt, blackamoor !"

Spanish Proverb.

We all are wise when others we'd admonish,
And yet we know not when we trip ourselves.

Euripides. Fragment 862.

When that thy neighbour's faults thou wouldst arraign,
Think first upon thine own delinquencies.
Menander. Fabulæ Incertæ. Fragment 162.

Non soles respicere te, cum dicas injuste alteri?

Do you never look at yourself when you ahuse another person?

Pladtus. Pseudolus II. 2, 18.
Men's faults do seldom to themselves appear.
Shakespeare. Rape of Luerece. 1. 633.
Sulas quoque attributus est error:
Sed non videmus, manticæ quid in tergo est.
Every one has his faults: but we do not see the wallet on our own backs.

Catullus. Carmina. xxii. 20.
Jupiter has loaded us with a couple of wallets: the one, filled with our own vices, he has placed at our backs; the other, heavy with those of others, he has hung hefore. Phedrus. Fablex. 1.
From our necks, when life's journey hegins
Two sacks Jove the Father suspends,
The one holds our own proper sins,
The other the sins of our friends:
The first, man immediately throws
Out of sight, out of mind, at his hack ;
The last is so under his nose,
He sees every grain in the sack.
Ibid. Paraphrase by Bulwer.
Two urns hy Jove's high throne have ever stood,-
The source of evil one, and one of good.
The Iliad of Homer. Bk. xxiv. 1. 63.
Ulysses. Time hath, my lord, a wailet at his hack,
Wherein he puts alms for obiivion,
A great-sized monster of ingratitudes;
These scraps are good deeds past; which are devoured
As fast as they are made, forgot as soon As done.

Shakespeare. Troilus and Oressida. Act ii1. Sc. 3. 1. 145.
The same vices which are huge and insupportable in others we do not feel in ourselves.

CHAOS.

For he being dead, with him is beauty slain;
And beauty dead, black chaos comes again.
Shafespeare. Venus and adonis. 1. 1019.
Before their eyes in sudden view appear
The secrets of the hoary deep, a dark
Illimitable ocean, without bound,
Without dimension; where length, breadth, and height,
And time and place are lost; where eldest Night
And Chaos, ancestors of Nature, hold
Eternal anarchy amidst the noise
Of endless wass, and by confusion stand;
For hot, cold, moist, and dry, four champions fierce,
Strive here for mast'ry.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk.ii. 1. 890.
No arts, no letters, no society, and which is worst of all, continual fear and danger of violent death, and the life of man solitary, poor, nasty, brutish, and short.

Hоввes. The Leviathan. Ch. xviii.
Religion, blushing, veils her sacred fires, And unawares Morality expires,
Nor public flame, nor private, dares to shine;
Nor human spark is left, nor glimpse divine !

Lo $!$ thy dread empire, Chaos, is restored;
Light dies before thy uncreating word: Thy hand, great Anarch, lets the curtain fall;
And universal darkness buries all.
Pore. Dunciad. Bk. iv. 1. 649.
The world was void,
The populous and the powerful was a lump,
Seasonless, herbless, treeless, manless, lifeless-
A lump of death-a chaos of hard clay. Byron. Darkness. 1.69.

CHARACTER.

Every man has three characters: that which he exhibits, that which he has, and that which he thinks he has.
A. KARR.

This is a curious anticipation of Dr. Holmes's paradox, wherein he makes his Autocrat announce to the startled breals-fast-table that when John and Thomas, for instance, are talking together, "it is natural enough that among the six there should be more or less confosion and misapprehension." He calms all suspicion as to his sanity by enumerating the six, as follows:

1. The reul John; known only to his Maler.
2. John's ideal John; never the real one, and often Three Johns.
3. Thomas's ideal John; never the real John, nor John's John, but often very unlike either.
Three Thomases. $\left\{\begin{array}{l}\text { 1. The real Thomas. } \\ \text { 2. Thomas's ideal } \\ \text { 3. John's ideal Thomas. }\end{array}\right.$
Intererit multum, Divusne loquatur, an heros.
'Twill matter much if Davus 'tis who's spealking, or a hero.

Horace. De Arte Poetica. 114.
[This line is generally quoted as above, but the more correct reading is probably "Divus." Conington adopts this, and translates the line, "Gods should not talk like heroes."]

A very unclubable man.
Sam'l Johnson. Boswell's Life of Johnson. 1764. Note.
Character,--a reserved force which acts directly by presence and withont means.

Emerson, Character.

Character must be kept bright, as well as clean.

He's tough, ma'am,-tough is J. B. ; tough and de-vilish sly.

Dickens. Dombey and Son. Ch. vii.

CHARITY.

Charity shall cover the multitude of sins.

New Testament. I. Peter iv. 8.
Go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come and follow Me.

Ibid. St. Matthew xix. 21.
Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal.
2 And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing.
3 And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.
4 Charity suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up,

5 Doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil;

6 Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth;
7 Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.

> Ibid. I. Corinthians xiii. 1-7.

The desire of power in excess caused the angels to fall; the desire of knowledge in excess caused man to fall; but in charity there is no excess; neither can angel or man come in danger by it.
bacon. Essays. xiii. Of Goodness.
Biron. Charity itself fulfils the law, And who can sever love from charity?

Shakespeare. Love's Labour's Lost. Act iv. Sc. 3. I. 364 .

King. He hath a tear for pity, and a hand
Open as day for melting charity.
Shakespeare. II. Henry IV. Act iv. Sc. 4, 1. 31.
In faith and hope the world will disagree,
But all mankind's concern is charity :
All must be false that thwart this one great end ;
And all of God, that bless mankind, or mend.
Pope. Essay on Man. Ep. iii. 1. 307.
Pity the sorrows of a poor old man,
Whose trembling limbs have borne him to your door,
Whose days are dwindled to the shortest span;
Ob give relief, and Heaven will bless your store.

Be to her virtues very kind :
Let all her ways be unconfin'd,
And clap your padlock on her mind.
Bickerstaff, The Padlock. Act ii. Sc. 3.
Then gently scan your brother man,
Still gentler sister woman ;
Though they may gang a kennin' wrang,
To step aside is human.
Burns. Address to the Onco Guid. St. 7.

What's done we partly may compute, But know not what's resisted.
Burns. Address to the Unco Guid. St. 8.
Soft peace she brings; wherever she arrives
She builds our quiet as she forms our lives;
Lays the rough paths of peevish Nature even,
And opens in each heart a little heaven.
Prior. Charity.
Meek and lowly, pure and boly,
Chief among the "blessed three." Charles Jefferys. Charity.

Did universal charity prevail, earth would be a heaven, and hell a fable. Colton. Lacon.

The primal duties shine aloft-like stars;
The charities that soothe and heal and bless
Are scattered at the feet of Man-like flowers.

In charity to all mankind, bearing no malice or ill-will to any human being, and even compassionating those who hold in bondage their fellow-men, not knowing what they do.

John quincy adams. Letter to A. Bronson. July 30, 1838.
With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds; to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow, and his orphan--to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves, and with all nations. Lincoln. Second Inaugural Address. March 4, 1865.
For the gift without the giver is bare;
Who gives himself with his alms feeds three,- Himself, his hungering neighbor, and me.

Leve fit quod bene fertur onus.
That load becomes light which is cheerfully borne.

Ovin. Art of Love. i. 2. 10.
Katharine. Had she been light, like you
Of such a merry, nimble, stirring spirit,
She might ha' been a grandam ere she died:
And so may you; for a light heart lives long.
Sharespeare. Love's Labour's Lobt. Act v. Sc. 2. 1. 15.

Rosaline. Biron they call him; but a merrier man,
Within the limit of becoming mirth,
I never spent an hour's talk withal :
His eye begets occasion for his wit;
For every ohject that the one doth catch,
The other turns to a mirth-moving jest,
Which his fair tongue (conceit's expositor)
Delivers in such apt and gracious words,
That aged ears play truant at his tales,
And younger hearings are quite ravished;
So sweet and voluble is his discourse.

Lowell. Legend of Brittany. Pt. i. St. 35.
You hear that boy laughing? You think he's all fun;
But the angels laugh, too, at the good he has done;
The children laugh loud as they troop to his call,
And the poor man that knows him laughs loudest of all!
O. W. Holmes. The Boys. St. 9.

CHILDHOOD, CHILDREN.

(See also Youtr.)
Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven. New Testament. St. Matthew xviii. 4.

Children sweeten labours, but they make misfortunes more bitter: they increase the cares of life, but they mitigate the remembrance of death.

Bacon. Essay VII.: Of Parents and Children.
How many troubles are with children born!
Yet he that wants them counts himself forlorn.
drummond of Hawthornden. Thanslation of Verses of S. John Scot.
I am all the daughters of my father's house,
And all the brothers too.
Shakespeare. Twelfth Night. Actii. Sc. 4. 1. 123.
Oh would I were a boy again,
When life seemed formed of sunny years,
And all the heart then knew of pain
Was wept away in transient tears.
Mark Lemon. Oh Would I Were a Boy Again.
I remember, I remember
The fir-trees dark and high;
I used to think their slender tops
Were close against the sky:
It was a childish ignorance,
But now 'tis little joy
To know I'm farther off from heaven
Than when I was a boy.
Hood. I Remember, I Remember.
Pointing to such, well might Cornelia say,
When the rich casket shone in bright array,
"These are my Jewels!" Well of such as he,
When Jesus spake, well might the language be,
"Suffer these little ones to come to me!" Sam'l Rogers. Human Life. 1. 202.
[The Biblical reference is to Matthew xix. 14: "But Jesus said, Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me; for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Cornelia, the mother of the Roman Gracchi, when asked where her jewels were, pointed to her children and said, "These are my jewels."]
A little child, a limber elf, Singing, dancing to itself,
A fairy thing with red round cheeks
That always finds and never seeks,

Makes such a vision to the sight
As fills a father's eyes with light.
Coleridge. Christabel. Conclusion to Part i.
Dear Babe, that sleepest cradled by my side,
Whose gentle breathings, heard in this deep calm,
Fill up the interspersed vacancies
And momentary pauses of the thought!
My babe so beautiful! it thrills my heart
With tender gladness, thus to look at thee,
And think that thou shalt learn far other lore
And in far other scenes !
Ibid. Frost at Midnight.
O little feet! that such long years
Must wander on through hopes and fears,

Gray. On a Distant Prospect of Eton college. 1.51.
And when with envy Time, transported,
Shall think to rob us of our joys,
You'll in your girls again be courted,
And I'll go wooing in my boys.
Thomas Percy. Winifreda. 1720.
Come to me, O ye children !
For I hear you at your play,
And the questions that perplexed me
Have vanished quite away.
Ye are better than all the ballads,
That ever were sung or said;
For ye are living poems,
And all the rest are dead.
LONGFELLOW. Childreh. St. 1,9.
Ah! what would the world be to us,
If the children were no more?
We should dread the desert behind us Worse than the dark before.

Ibid. Children. St. 4.

I had a little daughter,
And she was given to me
To lead me gently backward

Davin Lloyd.

Nations, like men, have their infancy. Lord Bouinobrore. Of the Study of History. Letter iv.

Behold the child, by nature's kindly law,
Pleased with a rattle, tickled with a straw :
Some livelier plaything gives his youth delight,
A little louder, but as empty quite:
Scarfs, garters, gold, amuse his ripe stage,
And beads and prayer-books are the toys of age:
Pleased with this bauble still, as that before;
Till tired he sleeps, and life's poor play is o'er.

CHIVALRY.

I saw young Harry, with his beaver on,
His cuisses on his thighs, gallantly arm'd,
Rise from the ground like feather'd Mercury,
And vaulted with such ease into his seat,
As if an angel dropp'd down from the clouds,
To turn and wind a fiery Pegasus,
And witch the world with noble horsemanship.
Shakespeare. Henry IV. Pt. i. Act iv. Sc. 1. I. 104.

Ulysses. The youngest son of Priam, a true knight:
Not yet mature, yet matchless; firm of word;
Speaking in deeds, and deedless in his tongue;
Not soon provoked, nor being provoked soon calm'd ;
His heart and hand both open, and both free;
For what he has he gives; what thinks he shews;
Yet gives he not till judgment guide his bounty,
Nor dignifies an impair thought with breath.
Shafrbpeare. Troilus and Oressida. Act iv. Sc. 5. 1. 96.
A knight there was, and that a worthy man,
That from the time that he first began
To riden out, he loved chivalry,
Truth and honour, freedom and conrtesy.
And though that he was worthy, he was wise,
And of his port as meek as is a maid.
He never yet no villainy ne said
In all his life, unto no manner wight.
He was a very parit gentle knight.
Chatcer. Canterbury Tales. Prologue.
It is now sixteen or seventeen years since I saw the Queen of France, then the Dauphiness, at Versailles; and surely never lighted on this orb, which she hardly seemed to touch, a more delightful vision. I saw her just above the horizon, decorating and clieering the elevated sphere she just began to move in,-glittering like the morning star full of life and splendour and joy. . . . Little did I dream that I should have lived to see such disasters fallen npon her in a nation of gallant men,in a nation of men of honour and of cavaliers. I thought ten thousand swords must have leaped from their scabbards to avenge even a look that threatened her with insult. But the age of chivalry is gone; that of sophisters, economists, and calculators has succeeded.

CITY.

God made the country, and man made the town.

Cowper. The Task. Bk. i. 1. 749.
Divina natura dedit agros, ars humana aedificavit urbes.
Divine Nature gave us fields; man's art built cities.

Varro. De Re Rustica. iii. 1.

Cowley. Stanzas addressed to J. Evelyn, Esq. 3, last line.
God Almighty first planted a garden. bacon. Essay. xlvi. Of Gardens.
The Bible shows how the world progresses. It begins with a garden, but ends with a holy city.

Phillips Brooks. Life and Letters, by alexander V. G. Allen.

Towered cities please us then,
And the hasy hum of men.
Milton. L'Allegro. 1. 117.
O give me the sweet, shady side of Pall Mall!
Cearles Morris. Town and Country.
To cities and to courts repair,
Flattery and falsehood flourish there;
There all thy wretched arts employ,
Where riches triumph over joy,
Where passions do with interest barter,
And Hymen holds by Mammon's charter;
Where truth hy point of law is parried,
And knaves and prudes are six times married.
Prior. The Turtle and the Sparrow. 1.432.
Let me move slowly through the street, Filled with an ever-shifting train,
Amid the sound of steps that beat
The murmuring walks like autumn rain.
How fast the flitting figures come!
The mild, the fierce, the stony face;
Some hright with thoughtless smiles, and some
Where secret tears have left their trace.
They pass-to toil, to strife, to rest;
To halls in which the feast is spread ;
To chambers where the funeral guest In silence sits beside the dead.

Bryant. The Crowded Street.
From cities humming with a restless crowd,
Sordid as active, ignorant as loud,
Whose highest praise is that they live in vain,
The dupes of pleasure or the slaves of gain;
Where works of man are clustered close around,
And works of God are hardly to be found.

Cowper. Retirement. 1. 21.
I live not in myself, but I become
Portion of that around me; and to me
High mountains are a feeling, but the hum
Of human cities torture.
Byron. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 72.
I am a part of all that I have met.
Tennyson. Ulysses. 1. 18.

As one who long in populous city pent
Where honses thick and sewers annoy the air,
Forth issuing on a summer's morn to breathe
Among the pleasant villages and farms
Adjoined, from each thing met conceives delight;
The smell of grain, or tedded grass, or kine,
Or dairy, each rural sight, each rural sound.
Milion. Paradise Lost. Bk. ix. I. 445.

CLEANLINESS.

Cleanness of body was ever deemed to proceed from a due reverence to God.
Bacon. Advancement of Learning. Bk. ii.
Slovenliness is no part of religion; neither this [1 Pet. iii. 3, 4], nor any text of Scripture, condemns neatness of apparel. Certainly this is a duty, not a sin; "cleanliness is, indeed, next to godliness."

John Wesley. Sermons. On Dress.
[Wesley puts the last sentence into quotation marks, giving no indication as to its source. It may have been a popular proverb in his day as in ours. Dr. A. S. Bettelheim, a Jewish rabbi, traces the saying to the Talmud, where Phinehas-ben-Jair says: "The doctrines of religion are resolved into carefulness; carefulness into vigorousness; vigorousness into guiltlessuess; guiltlessness into abstemionsness; abstemiousness into , cleanliness ; cleanliness into godli-ness,"-literally, next to godliness.

CLERGY.

Men who attend the altar, and should most Endeavor peace.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. xii. 1. 354.
The proud he tam'd, the penitent he cheer'd:
Nor to rebuke the rich offender fear'd.
His preaching much, but more his practice wrought ;
(A living sermon of the truths he taught;)
For this by rules severe his life he squar'd:
That all might see the doctrines which they heard.
Dryden. Character of a Good Parson. 1.75.

Near yonder copse, where once the garden smiled,
And still where many a garden flower grows wild,
There, where a few torn shrubs the place disclose,
The village preacher's modest mansion rose.
A man he was to all the country dear,
And passing rich with forty pounds a year.
Goidsmith. The Deserted Village. 1. 137.
Careless their merits or their faults to scan,
His pity gave ere charity began.
Thus to relieve the wretched was his pride,
And even his failings lean'd to virtue's side.
But in his duty prompt at every call,
He watch'd and wept, he pray'd and felt for all.

Ibid. The Deserted village. 1. 161.
At church, with meek and unaffected grace,
His looks adorn'd the venerable place;
Truth from his lips prevailed with double sway,
And fools, who came to scoff, remain'd to pray.

1bid. The Deserted Village. 1. 177.
And sent us back to praise, who came to pray.

Dryden. Brittania Redevivg. 1. 4.
He that negotiates between God and man,
As God's ambassador, the grand concerns
Of judgment and of mercy, should beware
Of lightness in his speech.
Cowper. Task. Bk. ii. 1. 463.
I venerate the man, whose heart is warm,
Whose hands are pure, whose doctrine and whose life
Coincident, exhibit lucid proof
That he is honest in the sacred cause. 1bid. Task. Bk. 1i. 1. 372.
A little, round, fat, oily man of God. THOMsON. Castle of Indolence. Canto 1. St. 69.

Wi' rattlin' an' wi' thumpin' !
Now meekly calm, now wild in wrath He's stampin', an' he's jumpin' !

Burns. The Holy Fair. St. 13.

CLOISTER.

Hamlet. Get thee to a nunnery, go; . . . farewell. Or, if thou wilt needs marry, marry a fool ; for wise men know well enough, what monsters you make of them. To a nunnery, go ; and quickly too. Farewell.

Oph. Ye heavenly powers, restore him!

Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 122.

I cannot praise a fugitive and cloistered virtue unexercised and unbreathed, that never sallies out and seeks her adversary, but slinks out of the race where that immortal garland is to be run for, not without heat and dust.

Milton. Areopagitica.
But let my due feet never fail
To walk the studious cloisters pale, And love the high embowed roof, With antic pillars massy proof And storied windows richly dight, Casting a dim religious light.

Emerson, The Problem.

CLOUD.

Ham. Do you see yonder clond that 's almost in shape of a camel?
Pol. By the mass, and 't is like a camel, indeed.
Ham. Methinks, it is like a weasel.
Pol. It is backed like a weasel.
Ham. Or like a whale?
Pol. Very like a whale.
Ham. They fool me to the top of my bent.
Shakesprare. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 398.

Ant. Sometime we see a clond that's dragonish,
A vapour, sometime, like a bear or lion,
A tower'd citadel, a pendant rock,
A forked monntain, or blue promontory
With trees upon't, that nod unto the world
And mock our eyes with air: thou hast seen these signs;
They are black vesper's pageants.
Eros. Ay, my lord.
Ant. That which is now a horse, even with a thought
The rack dislimns and makes it indistinct
As water is in water.

If chance the radiant sun with farewell sweet
Extend his evening beam, the fields revive,
The birds their notes renew, and bleating herds
Attest their joy, that hill and valley rings.

Longrellow. Midnight Mass for the Dying Man.

There does a sable clond
Turn forth her silver lining on the night. And casts a gleam over this tufted grove. Milion. Comus. 1. 223.
[This may possibly be the origin of the, phrase, "A cloud with a silver lining," meaning misfortune in which there is" a gleam of hope. See under HoPe.]

Nature is always kind enough to give even her clouds a humorous lining. Lowell. My Study Windows. Thoreau.

We often praise the evening clouds,
And tints so gay and bold,
But seldom think upon our God,
Who tinged these clouds with gold.
Scotr. The Setting Sun.

A clond lay cradled near the setting sun,
A gleam of crimson tinged its braided snow;

Tranquil its spirit seemed and floated slow!
Even in its very motion there was rest;
While every breath of eve that chanced to blow
Wafted the traveller to the beanteous west.
John Wilson. Isle of Palms and other Poems. The Evening Cloud.

The sweet buds every one,
When rocked to rest on their mother's breast,
As she dances abont the sum.
I wield the flail of the lashing lail, And whiten the green plains under
And then again I dissolve it in rain, And laugh as I pass in thunder.

Ibid. The Cloud. 1.5.
I sift the snow on the mountains below, And their great pines groan aghast;
And all the night 'tis my pillow white,
While I sleep in the arms of the blast.
Sublime on the towers of my skyey bowers
Lightning my pilot sits;
In a cavern under is fettered the thunder,
It struggles and howls at fits ;

Over earth and ocean with gentle motion This pilot is guiding me,
Lured by the love of the genii that move In the depths of the purple sea;
Over the rills, and the crags, and the hills, Over the lakes and the plains,
Wherever he dream, under mountain or stream,
The Spirit he loves remains;
And I all the while bask in heaven's blue smile,
Whilst he is dissolving in rains. Shelley. The Cloud. 1. 13.

Ber. It was about to speak, when the cock crew.
Hor. And then it started like a guilty thing
Upon a fearful summons. I have heard,
The cock, that is the trumpet to the morn,
Doth with his lofty and shrill-sounding throat
Awake the God of Day; and, at his warning,
Whether in sea or fire, in earth or air,
The extravagant and erring spirit hies
To his confine; and of the truth herein

Which may more literally be rendered:
Captious, yet complaisant, sweet and bitter too,
I cannot with thee live, nor yet without thee
Martial was imitating Ovid, who had already said:
Sic ego non sine te, nee tecum vivere possum.
Thus neither with thee, nor without thee, can I live.

COMPARISONS.

Comparisons are odious.
old Proverb.
Is it possible your pragmatical worship should not know that the comparisons made between wit and wit, courage and courage, beanty and beauty, birth and birth, are always odious and ill taken?

Cervantes. Don Quixote. Pt. ii. Ch. 1.
In English literature the proverb, "Comparisons are odious," is found in John Fortescue's De Laudibus Leges Angtix, ch. xix.; in Marlowe's Lust's Domznion, act iii. sc. 4; in Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy, pt. iii sec. 3, and in many others. John Lydgate has it in this form:
Comparisons do oftime great grievance.
Bochas. Bk. iil. Ch. viii.
Shakespeare makes his Dogberry misquote the proverb in this form:
Comparisons are odorous.
Much Ado Aboul Nothing. Act iii. Sc. 5. 1. 19.

Sheridan's Mrs. Malaprop follows suit in this wise:
No caparisons, miss, If you please. Caparisons don't become a young woman.

The Rivals. Act iv. Sc. 2.
 Comparisons make enemies of our friends. Philemon. Fabula Incerta. Fragment 17.

To compare

Great things with small.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. ii. 1. 921.
Sic canibus catulos similes, sic matrihus hædos.
Nôram ; sic parvis componere magna solebam.
Thus I knew that pups are like dogs, and kids like goats; so 1 used to compare great things with small.

Virgil. Eclogæ. i. 23.
[Virgil uses the same phrase in his Georgics. iv. 176. It may be found in numerous other ancient and modern authors.]

Where, where was Roderick then?
One blast upon his bugle horn
Were worth a thousand men.
Scott. Lady of the Lake. Canto vi. St. 18.
The pilot, telling Antigonns the enemy outnumbered him in ships, he said, "But bow many ships do you reckon my presence to be worth ?"

Plutarch. Apothegms of Kings and Greal Commanders. (Antigonus II.)
We must have your name, if you will permit us to use it. There will be more efficacy in it than in many an army.

Johi Avams. Letter to Washington (1798).
[Written when war with France seemed imminent.]

It is very true that I have said that I considered Napoleon's presence in the field equal to forty thonsand men in the halance. This is a very loose way of talking; but the idea is a very different one from that of his presence at a battle being equal to a reinforcement of forty thousand men.

STANHOPE. Conversations with the Duke of Wellengton. p. 81.
The crow may bathe his coal-black wings in mire,
And unperceiv'd fly wilh the filth away;
But if the like the snow-white swan desire,
The stain upon his silver down will stay;

Old Testament. Proverbs xi. 22.
As a lyke to compare in taste, chalk and cheese.
John Heywood. Proverbs. Bk. ii. Ch. iv.
Amicus Plato sed magis amica veritas.
Plato is my friend, but a greater friend is truth.

Latin Proverb.

The phrase is a gradual evolution from Plato's report of a favorite saying of Socrates to his disciples:

I would ask you to be thinking of the truth, and not of Socrates; agree with me if I seem to you to be speaking the truth; or, if not, withstand me might and main, that I may not deceive yon as well as myself in my enthusiasm.

Phædo. Ch. xci.
Paraphrasing this saying, Aristotle was wont to say:
Socrates is my friend, but a greater friend is truth.

Ammonius. Life of Socrates.
Ammonius wrote in Latin, not Greek. It was his Latinized version which became proverbial. In course of time "Plato" came to be substituted for "Socrates," and so the phrase comes down to us. Cicero rejects the lesson of the maxim, for he expressly says:
Errare mehercule malo cum Platone . . quam cum istis vera sentire.
In very truth I would rather be wrong with Plato than right with such men as these.
Cicero. Thisculanæ Disputationes. i. 17, 39.
Now the "istis," the "such men," to whom Cicero contemptuously refers are the Pythagoreans. Curiously enongh, however, he indorsed a Pythagorean, not & Platonic method. For while Plato evidently approved of Socrates's preference of the truth over the individual, the disciples of Pythagoras adopted as their motto, "The master has said it," or simply "he has said it," whence we get the Latin, "Ipse dixit."

Cicero's sentiment finds an echo in Byron's line:
Better to err with Pope than shine with Pye.
Engtish Bards and Scotch Reviewers. 1. 102.

Fool, again the dream, the fancy ! but I know my words are wild,
But I count the gray barbarian lower than the Christian child.

Through the shadow of the globe we sweep into the younger day:
Better fifty years of Europe than a cycle of Cathay.

Tennyson. Locksley Hall. 1. 173.
I know not whether others share in my feelings on this point: but I have often thought that if I werc compelled to forego England, and to live in China, and among Chinese manners and modes of life and scenery, I should go mad.

Cato. A day, an hour of virtuous liberty Is worth a whole eternity in bondage.

Adnison. Cato. Act ii. Sc. 1.
A day in such serene enjoyment spent
Were worth an age of splendid discontent!
J. Montgomery. Greenland. Cantoii. l. 224.

The life of a man of virtue and talent, who should die in his thirtieth year, is, with regard to his own feelings, longer than that of a miserable priest-ridden slave who dreams out a century of goodness.

Shelley. Notes to "Queen Mab."
Perhaps the perishing ephemeron enjoys a longer life than the tortoise.

Ibid. Notes to "Queen Mab."
The duration of the freedom and the glory of Greece was short. But a few such years are worth myriads of ages of monkish slumber, and one such victory as Salamis or Bannockburn is of more value than the innumerable triumphs of the vulyar herds of conquerors.

Quæris Alcidæ parem?

Nemo est nisi ipse.
Do you seek Alcides equal? None is, except himself.

Seneca. Hercules Furens. i. 1, 84.
And but herself admits no parallel.
Massinger. Duke of Milan. Act iv. Sc. 3.
Adam, the goodliest man of men since born
His sons, the fairest of her daughters Eve.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. 1. 323.
Half-happy, by comparison of bliss, Is miserable.

Keats. Endymion. ii. 1. 371.

COMPENSATION.

Ye who listen with credulity to the whispers of fancy, and pursue with eagerness the phantoms of hope; who expect that age will perform the promises of youth, and that the deficiencies of the present day will be supplied by the morrow,-attend to the bistory of Rasselas, Prince of Abyssinia.

Johnson. Rasselas. Ch. i.
I called the New World into existence to redress the balance of the OId.
gbobor Canninv. The King's Message. Dec. 12, 1826.
Time still, as he flies, brings increase to her truth,
And gives to her mind what he steals from ber youth.
Edward Moore, The Happy Marriage.

COMPROMISE.

All government,-indeed, every human benefit and enjoyment, every virtue and every prudent act,-is founded on compromise and barter.

Burke. Speech on the Conciliation of America. Vol. ii. p. 169.
The concessions of the weak are the concessions of fear.

Ibid. Speech on the Conciliation of America. Vol. ii. p. 108.
Life cannot subsist in society but by reciprocal concessions.
Johinson. Letter to J. Boswell, Esq. 1766.

CONCEALMENT.

When you try to conceal your wrinkles, Polla, with paste made from beans, you deceive yourself, not me. Let a defect, which is possibly but small, appear undisguised. A fault concealed is presumed to be great.

Martial. Epigrams. Bk. iii. Ep. 42.
Viola. She never told her love,
But let concealment, like a worm i' th' bud,
Feed on her damask cheek; she pin'd in thought;
And with a green and yellow melancholy,
She sat like patience on a monument, Smiling at grief.

Shakespeare. Thelfih Night. Act ii. Sc. 4. 1. 113.

Lucetta. They love least, that let men know their love.
Shakrspeare. Two Gentlemen of Verona. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 32.

In many ways doth the full heart reveal The presence of the love it would conceal.
COLEridee. Motto to Poems written in Later Life.

There is no den in the whole world to hide a rogue: commit a crime and the earth is made of glass.

Emerson. Compensation.

CONCEIT.

(See Bragoart, Egotigm, Vantty.)

- Seest thou a man wise in his own conceit? There is more hope of a fool than of him.
otd Testament. Proverbs xxvi. 12.
Wiser in his own conceit than twelve men who can render a reason.

Ibid. Proverbs xxvi. 16.
Be not wise in your own conceits. New Testament. Romans xii. 16.

Ghost. But look, amazement on thy mother sits:
0 , step between her and her fighting soul!
Conceit in weakest bodies strongest works.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 4. l. 110.

Juliet. Conceit, more rich in matter than in words,
Brags of his substance, not of ornament:
They are but beggars that can count their worth.
Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act ii. Sc. 6. 1. 29.
[In both of the above Shakespearean excerpts, as, indeed, generally in Shakespeare, "conceit" is used in the sense of "conception " or "imagination." But in both cases the lines are frequently quoted as if the word meant " vanity " or "egotism."]

Conceit may puff a man up, but never prop him up.

Ruskin. True and Beautiful. Function of the Artist.

CONFESSION.

Confiteor, si quid prodest delicta fateri.

I will confess; if it advantages
In aught to own one's faults.
Ovid. Amores. ii. 4, 3.
Sit erranti medecina confessio.
May confession be a medicine to the erring.

Cicero. Ad Octavium.
[This is probably the original of the familiar proverb:
An open confession is good for the soul.]
Confession of our faults is the next thing to innocency.

Syrus. Maxim 1060.
He's half absolv'd who has confessed.
Priob. Alma. Canto ii. 1. 22.
Hamlet. Confess yourself to heaven:
Repent what's past; avoid what is to come.
Shakespeare. Hamtet. Act iii. Sc. 4. 1. 149.

Come, now again thy woes impart, Tell all thy sorrows, all thy sin;
We cannot heal the throbbing heart, Till we discern the wounds within.

Cranbe. Hall of Justice. Pt. ii.

CONFIDENCE.

Confidence is a plant of slow growth in an aged bosom.
Earl of Chatean. Speech. Jan. 14, 1766.
I see before me the statue of a celebrated minister, who said that confidence was a plant of slow growth. But I believe, however gradual may be the growth of confidence, that of credit requires still more time to arrive at maturity.

Disraeli. Speech. Not. 9, 1867.
Confidence is a thing not to be produced by compulsion. Men cannot be forced into trust.

Daniel Wergter. Speech, United States Senate, Session of 1833-34. The Removal of the Deposits.
I see my way as birds their trackless way.
I shall arrive,-what time, what circuit first,

I ask not ; but unless God send his hail Or blinding fire-balls, sleet, or stifling snow,
In some time, his good time, I shall arrive:
He guides me and the bird. In his good time.
Browning. Paracelsus. Pt. i. 1. 561.

CONQUEST.

He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty: and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a citv.
old Testament. Proverbs X̌vi. 32.
Bis vincit qui se vincit in victoria.
He conquers twice who conquers himself in victory.

SyRus. Maxims.
I count him braver who overcomes his desires than him who conquers his enemies; for the hardest victory is the victory over self.

Akistotle. (Stobaeus, Frobenius ed. p. 223.)

There is a victory and defeat--the first and best of victories, the lowest and worst of defeats-which each man gains or sustains at the hands not of another, but of himself.

Jowett. Ptato. Laws. i. 3.

The enemy is within the gates; it is with our own luxury, our own folly, our own criminality that we have to contend.

Cicero. In Catilinam. ii. 5, 11.
Quis habet fortius certamen quam qui nititur vincere seipsum?

Who has a harder fight than he who is striving to overcome himself?

Conquest has explored more than ever curiosity has done; and the path of science has been commonly opened by the sword.

Sydney Smith.
Conquest pursues where courage leads the way. Garta. The Dispensary. Canto iv. 1. 99.

CONSCIENCE.

Hamlet. Thus conscience does make cowards of us all;
And thus the native hue of resolution
Is sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought;
And enterprises of great pith and moment,
With this regard, their currents turn awry,
And lose the name of action.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 1. I. 83.

Guilty consciences always make people cowards. Pllpay. Fables: The Prince and his Minister. Ch. iii. Fable iii.

Gloster. Suspicion always haunts the guilty mind;
The thief doth fear each bush an officer.

Ibid. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 56.

First Murderer. So when he opens his purse to give us our reward, thy conscience flies out.

Second Murderer. Let it go; there's few or none will entertain it.

First Murderer. How if it come to thee again?

Second Murderer. I'll not meddle with it. It is a dangerous thing. It makes a man a coward. A man cannot steal but it accuseth him: he cannot swear but it checks him: 'tis a blushing shame-faced spirit that mutinies in a man's bosom; it fills one full of obstacles; it made me once restore a purse of gold that I found: it beggars any man that keeps it; it is turned out of all towns and cities for a dangerous thing.

First Murderer. Zounds ! it is even now at my elbow.

Shakespeare. Richard III. Act i. Sc. 4. 1. 132.

Richard. By the apostle Paul, shadows

 to-nightHave struck more terror to the soul of Richard
Than can the substance of ten thousand soldiers.

Richard. Perish that thought! No, never be it said
That Fate itself could awe the soul of Richard.
Hence, babbling dreams! you threaten here in vain!
Conscience, avaunt! Richard's himself again 1
Hark 1 the shrill trumpet sounds to horse! away!
My soul's in arms, and eager for the fray.

Colley Cibber.
[Cibber interpolates these lines in Act $V$.
Sc. 3. of his altered version of Shakespeare's Richard III.]

Hamlet.
I have heard,
That guilty, creatures, sitting at a play, Have, by the very cunning of the scene, Been struck so to the soul, that presently They have proclaim'd their malefactions;

For Murder, though it have no tongue, will speak
With most miraculous organ. I'll have these players
Play something like the murder of my father,
Before mine uncle; I'll observe his looks;
I'll tent him to the quick: if he but blench,
I know my course.
The play's the thing,
Wherein I'll catch the conscience of the King.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 584.

A woman that hath made away her husband, And sitting to behold a tragedy,
At Lynn, a town in Norfolk,
Acted hy players travelling that way,-
Wherein a woman that had murdered hers
Was ever haunted by her husband's ghost;
The passion written by a feeling hand,
And acted by a good tragedian, -
She was so moved with the sight thereof
As she cried out, " The play was made by her,"
And openly confessed her husband's murder.

CONSERVATISM.

The Atlantic Ocean beat Mrs. Partington.

Sydney Smith.
[In a speech at Taunton, in the year 1831, Sydney Smith satirized the Conservative attempts in the House of Lords to stay the progress of reform, by likening that august body to "the excellent Mrs. Partington" on the occasion of the great storm at Sidmouth in 1824. "In the midst of this sublime and terrible storm," said Smith, "Dame Partington, who lived upon the beach, was seen at the door of her house with mop and pattens, trundling her mop, squeezing out the sea water, and vigorously pushing away the Atlantic Ocean. The Atlantic was roused; Mrs. Partington's spirit was up; but I need not tell you that the contest was unequal. The Atlantic beat Mrs. Partington. She was excellent at A -slop or a puddle, but should never have meddled with a tempest."

This little apologue had immense success, and, ever since, Mrs. Partington has been a synonym for a bigoted, fussy, and incorrigible conservative. When the present Duke of Devonshire, then the Marquess of Hartington, was in this country in 1862 he wore a secession badge in his buttonhole. Lincoln, when the two met, persisted in calling him Mr. Partington. "Surely," says Lowell in his essay, on a Certain Condescension in Foreigners, "the refinement of good breeding could go no further."]

A conservative government is an organized hypocrisy.

Disraeli. Speech, March 17, 1845.

CONSISTENCY.

Consistency's a jewel.
Olid Proverb.
This is one of a number of popular sayings in which this or that virtue is compared to this or that jewel, or, geuerally, to a jewel. Thus Shakespeare says:

Unless experience he a jewel.
Merry Wives of Windsor. Act ii. Sc. 2.
In 1867 a newspaper wag succeeded for a time in hoaxing the unwary into accepting his statement that the following lines appeared in a ballad entitled Jolly Robin Roughead, in "Murtagh's Collection of Ballads," puhlished in 1754 (both ballad and book heing figments of his imagination):
Tush, tush, my lass, such thoughts resign,
Comparisons are cruell;
Fine pictures suit to frames as fine,-
Consistencie's a jewell.
With consistency a great soul has simply nothing to do. . . . Speak what you think to-day in hard words, and to-morrow speak what to-morrow thinks in hard words again, though it contradict everything you said to-day.

Emprson. Essays. Self-Reliance.
A foolish consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds, adored by little statesmen and philosophers and divines.

CONTENT.

Sufficient 'tis to pray
To Jove for what he gives and takes away:
Grant life, grant fortune, for myself I'll find
That best of blessings, a contented mind. Horace. Epistolæ. i. 18, 111. (ConingTON, trans.)

The noblest mind the best contentment has.
Spenger. Faerie queene. Bk. i. Canto i. St. 35.
I would do what I pleased, and doing what I pleased, I should have my will, and having my will, I should be contented; and when one is contented, there is no more to be desired; and when there is no more to be desired, there is an end of it.

Cervantes. Don quixote. Pt.i. Bk.iv. Ch. 1. (Jarvis, trans.)
There is a jewel whicl no Indian mines can buy,
No chymic art can counterfeit;
It makes men rich in greatest poverty,
Makes water wine; turns wooden cups to gold;
The homely whistle to sweet music's strain,
Seldom it comes; to few from Heaven sent,
That much in little, all in naught, Content.

Sense of pleasure we may well
Spare out of life, perhaps, and not repine
But live content, which is the calmest life:
But pain is perfect misery, the worst
Of evils, and excessive, overturns
All patience.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. vi. 1. 459.
King Henry. My crown is in my heart, not on my head;
Not deck'd with diamonds and Indian stones,
Nor to be seen: my crown is called content ;
A crown it is that seldom kings enjoy. Shakespeare. Henry VI. Pt. iii. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 62.

Sweet are the thoughts that savour of content;
The quiet mind is richer than a crown;
Sweet are the nights in careless slumber spent;
The poor estate scorns fortune's angry frown:
Such sweet coutent, such minds, such sleep, such bliss,
Beggars enjoy when princes oft do miss. rbid. Content.
Content thyself to be obscurely good.
When vice prevails and impious men bear sway,
The post of honor is a private station. Addison. Cato. Activ. Sc. 4.

Give me, kind Heaven, a private station, A mind serene for contemplation:
Title and profit I resigu;
The post of honour shall be mine.
Gay. Fables. Pt. ii. The Vulture, the Sparrow and other Birds. 1. 69.
The villager, born humbly and bred hard,
Content his wealth, and poverty his guard,
In action simply just, in conscience clear, By guilt untainted, undisturb'd by fear, His means but scanty, and his wants but few,

That man lives happy and in command of himself, who from day to day can say I have lived. Whether clouds obscure, or the sun illumines the following day, that which is past is heyond recall.

Horace. Carmina. iii. 29, 41.
Happy the man, and happy he alone,
He, who can call to-day his own:
He who, secure within, can say,
To-morrow, do thy worst, for I have liv'd to-day.
Dryden. Imitation of Horace. Bk. iii. Ode xxix. 1. 65.

To-morrow let my sun his beams display, Or in clouds hide them; I have lived to-day. Cowley. of Myself.
Serenely full, the epicure would say:
Fate cannot harm me, I haye dined to-day. Symney Smith. Recipe for a Satad.
Happy the man, of mortals happiest he,
Whose quiet mind from vain desires is free;
Whom neither hopes deceive, nor fears torment,
But lives at peace, within himself content;
In thought, or act, accountable to none
But to himself, and to the gods alone.
groree Granville (Lord Lansdowne). Epistle to Mrs. Higgons. 1690. 1. 79.

There was a jolly miller once,
Lived on the River Dee;
He worked and sung, from morn till night;
No lark more blithe than he;
And this the burden of his song,
Forever used to be,-
"I care for nobody, no, not I,
If no one cares for ne."

Tusser. Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandry.

We may live without poetry, music, and art;
We may live without conscience, and live without heart;
We may live without friends; we may live without books;
But civilized man cannot live without cooks.

He may live without books,-what is knowledge but grieving ?
He may live without hope,-what is hope but deceiving?
He may live without love,-what is passion but pining?
But where is the man that can live without dining?
Owen Meredith (Lord Lytton). Lucile. Pt. i. Canto ii. St. 19.

COPYRIGHT.

If I were asked what book is better than a cheap book, I should answer that there is one book better than a cheap book, -and that is a book honestly come by.

Lowell. Before the United States Senate Committee on Patents, January 29, 1886.

In vain we call old notions fudge, And bend our conscience to our dealing;
The Ten Commandments will not budge. And stealing will continue stealing. Ibid. Motto of the American Copyright League (written November 20, 1885).

COQUETTE.

(See also Flirt.)
See how the world its veterans rewards! A youth of frolics, an old age of cards;
Fair to no purpose, artful to no end,
Young without lovers, old without a friend;
A fop their passion, but their prize a sot.
Pope. Moral Essays. Epistle ii. 1. 243.
It is a species of coquetry to make a parade of never practising it.
la Rocheroucauld. Maxims and Moral Sentences. No. 110.

Coquetry is the essential characteristic, and the prevalent humor of women; but they do not all practise it, because the coquetry of some is restrained by fear or by reason.

Ibid. Maxims and Moral Sentences. No. 252.

Women know not the whole of their coquetry.

Ibid. Maxims and Moral Sentences. No. 342.

How happy could I be with either,

Like a lovely tree
So grew to womanhood, and between whiles
Rejected several suitors, just to learn
How to accept a better in his turn.
Byron. Don Juan. Canto ii. St. 128.
Such is your cold coquette, who can't say "No,"
And won't say "Yes," and keeps you on and off-ing
On a lee-shore, till it begins to blow,
Then sees your heart wrecked, with an inward scoffing.
Ibid. Don Juan. Canto xii. St. 63.

Their accents firm and loud in conversation
Their eyes and gestures eager, sharp and quick
Showed them prepared on proper provocation
To give the lie, pull noses, stab and kick !
And for that very reason it is said
They were so very courteous and wellbred.
John Hookham Frere. Prospectus and Specimen of an Intended National Work.
Life is not so short but that there is always time enough for courtesy.

Emenson. Letters and Social Aims. Social Aims.

The mildest manners, and the gentlest heart.
Homer. Iliad. Bk. xvii. 1. 756. (Pope, trans.)

The mildest manners with the bravest mind.

Ibid. Bk. xxiv. 1. 963.

He was the mildest manner'd man That ever scuttled ship or cut a throat.

Byron. Don Juan. Canto iii. St. 41.

COWARD.

The wicked flee when no man pursueth, but the righteous are bold as a lion.
old Testament. Proverbs xxviii. 1.
The thing in the world I am most afraid of is fear, and with good reason; that passion alone, in the trouble of it, exceeding all other accidents.

Montaigne. . Essays. Fear.
Bastard. You are the hare of whom the proverb goes,
Whose valor plucks dead lions by the beard.
Shakespeare. Kïng John. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 137.

Constance. Thou slave, thou wretch, thou coward ;
Thou little valiant, great in villainy!
Thou ever strong upon the stronger sidet
Thou Fortune's champion, that durst never fight
But when her humorous ladyship is by
To teach thee safety! thou art perjur'd too,
And sooth'st up greatness. What a fool art thou,
A ramping fool, to hrag, and stamp, and swear,
Upon my party! Thou cold-blooded slave,
Hast thou not spokelike thunder on my side?
Been sworn my soldier? hidding me depend
Upon thy stars, thy fortune, and thy strength?
And dost thou now fall over to my foes?
Thou wear a lion's hide! doff it for shame,
And hang a calf's skin on those recreant limbs.
Ibid. King John. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 115
Fal. A plague of all cowards, I say, and a vengeance, too! marry, and amen! -Give me a cup of sack, boy.-Ere I lead this life long, I'll sew nether-stocks, and mend them, and foot them too. A plague of all cowards !-Give me a cup of sack, rogue.-Is there no virtue extant?

Shakespeare. Henty IV. Pt. i. Act ii. Sc. 4. 1. 127.
Bassanio. How many cowards, whose hearts are all as false
As stairs of sand, wear yet upon their chins
The beards of Hercules and frowning Mars,
Who, inward search'd, have livers white as milk.

A cowardly cur barks more fiercely than it bites.

Quntus Curtius Rofus. De Rebis Gestis Alexandri Magni. vii. 4, 13.
Necessity makes even the coward brave.

Proverb.
Clifford. So cowards fight when they can fly no further;
So doves do peck the falcon's piercing talons;
So desperate thieves, all hopeless of their lives,
Breathe out invectives 'gainst the officers.

Who hast not in thy brows an eye discerning
Thine honor from thy suffering.
Shaikespeare. King Lear. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1.50.

Northumberland. How doth my son and brother?
Thou tremblest: and the whiteness in thy cheek
Is apter than thy tongue to tell thine errand.
Even such a man, so faint, so spiritless,
So dull, so dead in look, so woe-begone,
Drew Priam's curtain in the dead of night,
And would have told him half his Troy was binrnt.

Talbot. So bees with smoke and doves with noisome stench
Are from their hives and houses driven away.
They call'd us for our fierceness English dogs;
Now, like to whelps, we crying run away. Ibid. Henry VI. Pt. i. Act i. Sc. 5. 1. 23.

Lady Macbeth. Art thou afeard
To be the same in thine own act and valour,
As thou art in desire? Would'st thou have that
Which thou esteem'st the ornament of life,
And live a coward in thine own esteem; Letting I dare not wait upon I would, Like the poor cat $i$ ' the adage?

Ibid. Macbeth. Act i. Sc. 7. 1. 39.
[The adage is thus given by Heywood :
"The cat would eat fish, and would not wet her feet." Proverbs. Pt. i. ch. xi.]
Lady Macduff. His flight was madness: when our actions do not,
Our fears do make us traitors.
Ibid. Macbeth. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 3.
Acres. My valor is certainly going ! It is sneaking off! I feel it oozing out, as it were, at the palms of my hands! Sheridan. The Rivals. Act v. Sc. 3.

The coward never on himself relies,
But to an equal for assistance flies. Cbabbe. Tale iii. 1. 84.

The man that lays his hand upon a woman,
Save in the way of kindness, is a wretch Whom 'twere gross flattery to name a coward.
Tobin. The Honeymoon. Act ii. Sc. 1.
That all men would be cowards, if they dare,
Some men have had the courage to declare.
Crabre. Tale i. The Dumb Orators. 1.1.
Ay, down to the dust with them, slaves as they are!
From this hour let the blood in their dastardly veins,
That shrunk at the first touch of Liberty's war,
Be wasted for tyrants or stagnate in chains.
Moore. On the Entry of the Austrians into Naples, 1821.
They are slaves who fear to speak
For the fallen and the weak.
Low Ell. Stanzais on Freedom.
They are slaves who dare not be
In the right with two or three.

GEORGE CRABBE.

Yet truth will sometimes lend her noblest fires,
And decorate the verse herself inspires: This fact, in virtue's name, let Crabbe attest,-
Though Nature's sternest painter, yet the best.
Byron. Engtish Bards and Scotch Reviewers. 1. 839.

CREATION.

Had I been present at tbe creation, I would have given some useful hints for the better ordering of the universe.

Alfonso of Castile.
[Carlyle says, in his History of Frederick the Great, Bk. ii., ch. vii., that this saying of Alphonso ahout Ptolemy's astronomy, "that it seemed a crank machine; that it was pity the Creator had not taken advice," is still rememhered hy mankind,-this and no other of his many sayings.]

O me! for why is all around us here
As if some lesser God had made the world,
But had not force to shape it as he would?

Tennyson. The Passing of Arthur.
"Open, ye everlasting gates" they sung,
"Open, ye heavens, your living doors ! let in
The great Creator from his work returned
Magnificent, his six days' work, a world. Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. vii. 565 .

To build from matter is sublimely great,
But gods and poets only can create.
William Pitt. To the Unknown Author of the Battle of the sexes.
All heaven and earth are still : From the high host
Of stars, to the lull'd lake and moun-tain-coast,
All is concenter'd in a life intense,
Where not a beam, nor air, nor leaf is lost,
But hath a part of being, and a sense Of that which is of all Creator and defence.
Byron. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 89.
A man is the whole encyclopædia of facts. The creation of a thousand forests is in one acorn, and Egypt, Greece, Rome, Gaul, Britain, America, lie folded already in the first man.

Emerson. Essays. History.

CREDIT.

Private credit is wealth; public honor is security; the feather that adorns the royal bird supports its flight; strip him of his plumage, and you fix him to the earth.

Jonves. Aflair of the Falkland Islands. Voi. i. Letter xlii.

Blest paper-credit! last and best supply ! That lends corruption lighter wings to fly.
Pope. Moral Essays. Epistle iii. 1. 39.
He smote the rock of the national resources, and abundant streams of revenue gushed forth. He touched the dead corpse of Public Credit, and it sprung upon its feet.

Dandel Webster. Speech on Hamilton. March 10, 1831. Vol. i. p. 200.

CREDULITY.
Incrédules les plus crédnles. Ils croient les miracles de Vespasien, pour ne pas croire ceux de Moise.
The incredulous are the most credulous. They believe the miracles of Vespasian that they may not believe those of Moses.

Pascal. Pensées. ii. xvii. 120.
CREED.
(See Relugion.)
Slave to no sect, who takes no private road,
But looks through Nature up to Nature's God.

POPR. Essay on Man. iv. 1.331.
Sapping a solemn creed with solemn sneer.
Byron. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 107.
The Athanasian Creed is the most splendid ecclesiastical lyric ever poured forth by the genius of man.
benj. Dibrael. Endymion. Ch. liv.
He who receives
Light from above, from the Fountain of Light,
No other doctrine needs, though granted true.
Milion. Paradise Regained. Bk. iv. 1. 288.
For his religion it was fit
To match his learning and his wit ;
'Twas Presbyterian true blue;
For he was of that stubborn crew
Of errant saints, whom all men grant
To be the true Church Militant ;
Such as do build their faith upon
The holy text of pike and gun;
Decide all controversies by
Infallible artillery;
And prove their doctrine orthodox, By Apostolic blows and knocks.
Butler. Hudibras. Pt.i. Canto 1. 1. 189.
What makes all doctrines plain and clear? -
About two hundred pounds a year. And that which was prov'd true before Prove false again? Two hundred more.
Ibid. Hudibras. Pt. iii. Canto i. 1. 1277.

As long as words a different sense will bear,
And each may be his own interpreter,
Our airy faith will no foundation find;
The word's a weathercock for every wind.
Dryden. The Hind and lhe Panther. Pt. i. 1. 462.

For forms of government let fools contest;
Whate'er is best administer'd is best ;
For modes of faith let graceless zealots fight;
His can't be wrong whose life is in the right.
Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle iii. 1. 303.
His faith, perhaps, in some nice tenets might
Be wrong; his life, I'm sure, was in the right.
Cowley. On the Death of Crashaw. 1. 55.

CRIME.

Macbeth. There shall be done
A deed of dreadful note.
Sharegreare. Macbeth. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 43.

Brutus. Between the acting of a dreadful thing
And the first motion, all the interim is
Like a phantasma, or a hideous dream.
The Genius and the mortal instruments
Are then in council; and the state of a man,
Like to a little kingdom, suffers then
The nature of an insurrection.
Ibid. Julius Casar. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1.63.
Nor florid prose, nor honeyed lines of rhyme,
Can blazon evil deeds, or consecrate a crime.
byron. Childe Harold. Canto i. St. 3.
Giacomo. O that the vain remorse which must chastise
Crimes done, had but as loud a voice to warn,
As its keen sting is mortal to avenge.
Shelley. The Cenci. Act v. Sc. 1. i. 2.
'Tis no sin love's fruits to steal;
But the sweet thefts to reveal ;
To be taken, to be seen,
These have crimes accounted been. Ben Jonson. Volpone. Act iii. Sc. 6.

Le crime fait la honte et non pas l'échafaud.

The crime and not the scaffold makes the shame.

Thos. Corneilue. Essex. iv. 3. (Quoted by Charlotte corday.)
Non nella pena,
Nel delitto è la infamia.
Disgrace does not consist in the punishment, but in the crime.

ALFIERI. Antigone. i. 3.
Let no guilty man escape, if it can be avoided. No personal consideration should stand in the way of performing a public duty.

ULysses S. Grant. Indorsement of a Letter relating to the Whiskey Ring, July 29, 1875.

C'est plus qu'un crime, c'est une fante.
It is worse than a crime, it is a blunder.
Attributed to Talleyrand, also to Fouche.

CRITICS.

The readers and the hearers like my books:
And yet some writers cannot them digest;
But what care I? For when I make a feast,
I would my guests should praise it, not the cooks.
Martial. Epigrams. ix. 82. (Sir John Harrington, trans.)
Sir Henry Wotton used to say that critics are like brushers of noblemen's clothes.

Bacon. Apothegms. 64.
Iago. I am nothing, if not critical.
Shakesperare. Othello. act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 120.

Numbers err in this-
Ten censure wrong for one who writes amiss.
POPE. Essay on Criticism. Pt. i. 1. 5.
Be thou the first true merit to hefriend;
His praise is lost, who stays till all commend.
Ibid. Essay on Criticism. Pt. ii. l. 274.
In every work regard the writer's end,
Since none can compass more than they intend;

And if the means be just, the conduct true,
Applause, in spite of trivial faults, is due.
Pope. Essay on Oriticizm. Pt. ii. 1. 255.
Blame where you must, be candid where you can,
And be each critic the good-natured man. Goldsmith. The Good-natured Man. Epilogue.
Of all the cants which are canted in this canting world, though the cant of hypocrites may be the worst, the cant of criticism is the most tormenting.

Sterne. Tristram Shandy. Vol. iil. Ch. xii.

A servile race

Who in mere want of fault, all merit place;
Who blind obedience pay to ancient schools,
Bigots to Greece and slaves to musty rules.

Chubchill. The Rosciad. 1. 183.
Which not even critics criticise. Cowper. The Task. Bk. iv. 1. 51.
A man must serve his time to ev'ry trade,
Save censure ; critics all are ready made :
Take hackney'd jokes from Miller, got by rote,
With just enough of learning to misquote ;
A mind well skill'd to find or forge a fault,
A turn for punning-call it Attic salt-
Fear not to lie-'twill seem a lucky hit;
Shrink not from blasphemy-'twill pass for wit;
Care not for feeling, pass your proper jest;-
And stand a critic, hated yet caress'd. Byron. English Bards and Scolch Reviewers. 1. 63.

As soon
Seek roses in December, ice in June;
Hope constancy in wind, or corn in chaff:
Believe a woman or an epitaph,
Or any other thing that's false, before
You trust in crities.
Ibid. English Bards and Scotch Reviewers. 1. 75.

The muse shall tell
How science dwindles and how volumes swell.
How commentators each dark passage shun,
And hold their farthing candle to the sun.
Young. Love of Fame. Satire ii. 1. 88.
Oh, rather give me commentators plain.
Who with no deep researches vex the hrain;
Who from the dark and douhtful love to run,
And hold the glimmering tapers to the sun.
Crabse. Introduction to the Parish Register. 1. 89.
(See also under Sun.)
You know who critics are ?-the men who have failed in literature and art.

Disraell. Lothair. Ch. xexv.
[Disraeli puts this witticisrn into the mouth of Lord Aldegonde. The thonght is an old one, and may be found even in the classics. Here are a few prominent examples from English literrature:

As a bankrupt thief torns thief-taker in despair, so an unsuccessful author turns critic.

Shelley. Fragments of Adonais.
Reviewers are usually people who would have been poets, historians, biographers, if they could; they have tried their talents at one or the other, and have failed; therefore they turn critics.

Coleridge. Lectures on Shakespeare and Milton. p. 36.
Some have at first for wits, then poets pass'd
Turn'd critics next, and proved plain fools at last.
Pope. Essay on Criticism. Bk. i. 1. 36.
The corruption of a poet is the generation of a critic.
Dryden. Miscellany Poems (1693). Vol. iii. Preface.

Nature fits all her children with something to do,
He who would write and can't write, can surely review;
Can set up a small hooth as critic and sells us his
Petty conceit and his pettier jealousies. Lowell. A Fable for Critics.
A brisk little somebody,
Critic and whippersnapper, in a rage
To set things right.
Browning. Balaustion's Adventure. iv. 1. 270.

CROSS.

With crosses, relics, crucifixes,
Beads, pictures, rosaries, and pixes,
The tools of working our salvation
By mere mechanic operation.
Butier. Hudibras. Pt. iii. Canto i. 1. 1495.

The moon of Mahomet
A rose, and it shall set;
While, blazoned as on heaven's immortal noon,
The cross leads generations on.
Shelley. Hellas. 1. 221.

CRUELTY.

Antonio. I pray you, think, you question with the Jew:
You may as well go stand upon the beach,
And bid the main flood bate his usual height;
You may as well use question with the wolf,
Why he hath made the ewe bleat for the lamb;
You may as well forbid the mountain pines
To wag their high tops, and to make no noise,
When they are fretten with the gusts of heaven;
You may as well do anything most hard,
As seek to soften that (than which what's harder?)
His Jewish heart.
Shakespeare. The Merchant of Venice. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1.68.
Oh, 'tis cruelty to beat a cripple with his own crutches.
Fuller. Holy and Profane States: Holy State: Of Jesting.
Hamlet. I must be cruel only to be kind;
Thus bad begins, and worse remains behind.
Skakespeare. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 4. 1. 176.

Contre les rebelles c'est cruaute que d'estre humain, et humanité d'estre cruel.
It is cruelty to be humane to rebels, and it is humanity to be cruel.

Corneiles Muts.
[This sentence has heen made memorable because Catherine de Medecis quoted it to still the scruples of her son, King Charles IX., and nerve him for the massacre of Saint Bartholomew. According to Fournier ( $L^{\prime}$ Esprit dans $L^{\prime}$ Histoire), the sentiment was expressed in a sermon by Corneille Muis, Bishop of Bitoute.]
Man's inhumanity to man
Makes countless thousands mourn I
Bubns. Man Was Made to Mourn. St. 7.

Inhumanity is caught from man,
From smiling man.
Young. Night Thoughts. Night 5. 1. 158.
Detested sport,
That owes its pleasures to another's pain.
Cowper. The Task. Bk. iii. 1. 326.
The Puritan hated bear-baiting, not because it gave pain to the bear, but because it gave pleasure to the spectators.

Macadlay. History of England. Vol. i. Ch. ii.

сискоо.

The bird of passage known to us as the cuckoo.

Pliny the Elder. Natural History. Bk. xviii. Sec. 249.

The merry cuckow, messenger of Spring, His trumpet shrill hath thrice already sounded.

SPENSER. Sonnet Xix.
When daisies pied and violets blue,
And Iady-smocks all silver-white, And cuckoo-buds of yellow-hue

Do paint the meadows with delight, The cuckoo then on every tree,
Mocks married men; for thus sings he, Cuckoo!
Cuckoo! Cuckoo! O word of fear, Unpleasing to a married ear.

Shakespeare. Love's Labour's Lost. Act V. Sc. 2. 1. 904.

Pompey. The cuckoo builds not for himself.
Ibid. Antony and Cleopatra. Act ii. Sc. 6. 1. 31.

Fool. The hedge-sparrow fed the cuckoo so long,
That it had it head bit off by it young. Ibid. King Lear. Act i. Sc. 4. 1. 235.
Worcester. And being fed by us you used us so
As that ungentle gull, the cuckoo's bird,
Useth the sparrow.
Ibid. Henry IV. Pt. i. Act v. Sc. 1. 1.59.
O blithe new-comer ! I have heard,
I hear thee and rejoice.
O Cuckool shall I call thee bird,
Or but a wandering voice?

Thrice welcome, darling of the spring! Even yet thou art to me
No bird, but an invisible thing, A voice, a mystery.

Wordsworth. To the Cuckoo.
Thou hast no sorrow in thy song,
No winter in thy year.
Oh could I fly, I'd fly with thee!
We'd make with joyful wing
Our annual visit o'er the globe,
Companions of the spring.
John Logan. To the Cuckoo.
The tell-tale cuckoo: spring's his confidant,
And he lets out ber April purposes.
R. Browning. Pippa Passes. i. 355.

CULTURE.

Culture is then properly described not as having its origin in curiosity, but as having its origin in the love of perfection: it is a study of perfection.

Matthew arnold. Culture and Anarchy. Ch. i. Sweetness and Light.

The foundation of culture, as of character, is at last the moral sentiment.

Emerson. Letters and Social Aims. Progress of Cullure.

CUPID.

Mercutio. Young Adam Cupid, he that shot so trim,
When King Cophetua loved the beggarmaid!
Shakespeare. Romeo and Juliet. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 13.

The blinded boy that shootes so trim, From heaven downe did hie.

King Cophetua and the Beggar-maid.
[This ancient ballad, to which Mercutio undoubtedly alludes, is preserved in Percy's Reliques of Ancient Poetry.]

Patroclus. Sweet, rouse yourself; and the weak wanton Cupid
Shall from your neck unloose his amorous fold,
And, like a dewdrop from the lion's mane,
Be shook to airy air.
SHakespeare. Troilus and Cressida. Act iii. Sc. 3. 1. 222.

Biron. This senior-junior, giant-dwarf, Dan Cupid;
Regent of love-rhymes, lord of folded arms,
The anointed sovereign of sighs and groans,
Liege of all loiterers and malcontents.
Shakespeare. Love's Labour's Lost. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 132.

Hero. Loving goes by haps;
Some Cupid kills with arrows, some with traps.
Ibid. Much Ado About Nothing. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 106.

Cupid and my Campaspe play'd
At cards for kisses: Cupid paid.
He stakes his quiver, bow, and arrows,
His mother's doves, and team of sparrows:
Loses them too. Then down he throws The coral of his lip, the rose
Growing on 's cheek (but none knows how) ;
With these, the crystal of his brow,
And then the dimple on his chin :
All these did my Campaspe win.
At last he set her both his eyes:
She won, and Cupid blind did rise.
O Love! has she done this to thee?
What shall, alas! become of me?
Lixly. Cupid and Campaspe. Act iii. Sc. 5.
Helena. Things base and vile, holding no quality,
Love can transpose to form and dignity.
Love looks not with the eyes, but with the mind;
And therefore is wing'd Cupid painted blind.
Nor hath Love's mind of any judgment taste;
Wings, and no eyes, figure unheedy haste:
And therefore is love said to be a child,
Because in choice he is so oft beguil'd.
Shakespeare. Midsummer Night's Dream. Act i. Sc. i. 1. 234.

Julia. But love is blind, and lovers cannot see
The pretty follies that themselves commit.
Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Act ii. Sc. 6. 1. 36.

I have heard of reasons manifold
Why Love must needs be blind, But this the best of all I hold,-

His eyes are in his mind.
What outward form and feature are
He guesseth but in part;
But what within is good and fair
He seeth with the heart.
Coleringe. To a Lady, Offended by a Sportive Observation.

CURIOSITY.

Lear. I have perceived a most faint neglect of late, which I have rather blamed as mine own jealous curiosity than as a very pretence and purpose of unkindness.

Shakespeare. King Leat. Act i. Sc. 4. 1. 73.

Curiosity

Does, no less than devotion, pilgrims make.
Cowley. ode on Chair made of Sir F. Drake's Ship. iv.

I saw and heard, for we sometimes, Who dwell this wild, constrained by want, come forth
To town or village nigh, nighest is far,
Where aught we hear, and curious are to hear,
What happens new ; fame also finds us ollt.
Mildon. Paradise Regained. Bk. i. 1. 330.
Each window like a pill'ry appears,
With heads tlirust through nail'd by the ears.
Botler. Hudibras. Pt. ii. Canto iii. 1. 391.

Zaccheus, he
Did climb the tree,
His Lord to see.
From the New England Primer. 1814.
Tony. Ask me no questions, and I'll tell you no hibs.

I loathe that low vice-curiosity.
Byron. Don Juan. Canto í. St. 23.

CURSE.

As he loved cursing, so let it come unto him: as he delighted not in blessing, so let it be far from him.

As he clothed himself with cursing like as with his garment, so let it come into his bowels like water, and like oil into his bones.

Old Testament. Psalm cix. 17.
Things past recovery
Are hardly cured with exclamations.
Mariowe. The Jew of Malta. Act i. Sc. 2.
Lady Macbeth. Out, damned spot! out, I say.
Shakespeare. Macbeth. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 39.

Out! out! . . . accursed spot! Southey. All for Love. vi. St. 16.

Caliban. You taught me language; and my profit on't
Is, I know how to curse. The red plague rid you
For learning me your language !
Sharespeare. Tempest. Act i. Sc. 2. I. 363.

Mercutio. A plague $o^{\prime}$ both your houses.
Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 94.

Macbeth. Lay on, Macduff!
And damn'd be him that first cries, Hold, enough.

Ibid. Macbeth. Act v. Sc. 8. 1. 34.
Curses, like young chickens, come home to roost.

Southey. The Curse of Kehama.
Damas. Curse away!
And let me tell thee, Beausant, a wise proverb
The Arabs have,-"Curses are like young chickens,
And still come home to roost."
bulwer Lytton. The Lady of Lyons. Act V . Sc. 2.
Blessings star forth forever; but a curse Is like a cloud-it passes.

Bailey. Festus. Sc. Hades.
King Richard. O villains, vipers, damn'd withnut redemption;
Dogs, easily won to fawn on any man ;

Snakes in my heart-blood warm'd, that sting my heart;
Three Judases, each one thrice worse than Judas.
Seakespeare. Richard II. Act iii. sć. 2. 1. 129.

Suffolk. A plague upon them! wherefore should I curse them?
Would curses kill as doth the mandrake's groan,
I would invent as bitter-searching terms,
As curst, as harsh, and horrible to hear,
Delivered strongly through my fixed teeth,
With full as many signs of deadly hate,
As lean-faced Envy in herloathsome cave:
My tongue should stumble in mine earnest words;
Mine eyes should sparkle like the beaten flint:
My hair be fix'd on end, as one distract ;
Ay, every joint should seem to curse-and ban:
And even now my burthened heart would break,
Should I not curse them. Poison be their drink !
Gall, worse than gall, the daintiest that they taste !
Their sweetest shade, a grove of cypress trees!
Their chiefest prospect, murd'ring basilisks !
Their softest touch, as smart as lizards' stings!
Their music, frightful as the serpent's hiss ;
And boding screech-owls make the concert full!
Ibid. Henry VI. Pt. ii. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 309.

Hamlet. Bloody, bawdy villain !
Remorseless, treacherous, lecherous, kindless villain!
Why, what an ass am I! This is most brave,
That $I$, the son of a dear father murder'd,
Prompted to my revenge by heaven and hell,
Must, like a whore, unpack my heart with words,
And fall a cursing, like a very drab,
A scullion!

Off to Hell, a Manichee ?
Browning. Soliloquy in a Spanish Cloister.
The cardinal rose with a dignified look,
He called for his candle, his bell, and his book!
In holy anger, and pious grief,
He solemnly cursed that rascally thief!
He cursed him at board, he cursed him in bed:
From the sole of his foot to the crown of his head.
He cursed him in sleeping, that every night
He should dream of the devil, and wake in a fright;
He cursed him in eating, he cursed him in drinking,
He cursed him in coughing, in sneezing, in winking,
He cursed him in sitting, in standing, in lying;
He cursed him in walking, in riding, in flying;
He cursed him living, he cursed him in dying !
Never was heard such a terrible curse !

But, what gave rise
To no little surprise,
Nobody seemed a penny the worse!
Barbaim. Ingoldsby Legends: Jackdaw of Rheims.
[The allnsion is to the ancient mode of excommunication "by bell, book, and eandle," practised in the Catholic Church. The closing lines of the formula were as follows: "Cursed be they from the crown of the head to the sole of the font. Out be they taken from the book of life [here the priest closed the book], and as this candle is cast from the sight of men, so be their souls cast from the sight of God into the deepest pit of hell [here the attendant cast to the ground a lighted candle he had held in his hand]. Amen." Then the hells were rung in harsh dissonance, to signify the disorder aud going out of grace in the souls of the persons excommunicated.]

DARKNESS.

Darkness which may be felt. Old Testament. Exodus x. 21.
Cloun. There is no darkness but ignorance.
Shakespeare. Twelfth Night. Act if. Sc. 2. 1. 47.
A dungeon horrible on all sides round
As one great furnace flamed, yet from these flames
No light but rather darkness visible Served only to discover sights of woe, Regions of sorrow, doleful shades. Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. 1. 61.
The fine expression, "Darkness visible," offended the critical ear of Dr. Bentley, who in his famous (orinfamous) edition of Milton made this conjectural emendation:
No light, but rather a transpicuous gloom.
To poets, however, the expression has appealed as worthy of imitation. Thus, Theophile de Viau, a younger contem porary of Milton's, seems to have had him in mind when he wrote:
On n'oit que le silence, on ne voit rien que l'ombre.
One hears nothing but silence, one sees nothing but darkness.
Here are some more examples:
He sees enough who doth his darkness see. Lord Herbert of Cherbdry. To his Mistress for her True Picture.
Of darkness visible so much be lent.
Pope. The Dunciad. Bk. iv. l. 3.
The evil is null, is naught, is silence implying sound.
Robert Browning, abt Vogler. St. 9.
Milton, it may be added, anticipated himself in these lines.
Where glowing embers through the room
Teach light to counterfeit a gloom.
milton. Il Penseroso. 1. 79.

And when night
Darkens the streets, then wander forth the sons
Of Belial, flown with insolence and wine. Mılon. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. 1. 507.
The waves were dead; the tides were in their grave,
The Moon, their Mistress, had expired before;
The winds were wither'd in the stagnant air,
And the clouds perish'd ; darkness had no need
Of aid from them-she was the Universe. Byron. Darknes. Concluding lines.

DAUGHTER.

Have you not heard these many years ago
Jeptha was judge of Israel?
He had one only daughter and no mo', The which he loved passing well!

And as by lott,
God wot,
It so came to pass,
As God's will was
Jeptha, Judge of Israel.
An ancient ballad preserved in this form in Percy's Retiques of Ancient Poetry. Hamlet quotes a slightly different version:
Ham. O Jephthah, judge of Israel,-what a treasure hadst thou!
Pol. What a treasure had he, my lord? Ham. Why-

One fair daughter, and no more, The which he loved passing well. Pol. Still on my davaghter.
Ham. Am I not i' the right, old Jephide. Ham. Am I not $i$ the right, old Jephthah? Pol. If you call me Jephthah, my lord, I have a daughter, that I love passing well.
Ham. Nay, that follows not.
Pol. What follows then, my lord?
Ham. Why,
"As by lot, God wot,"
and then you know,
"It came to pass, As most like it was." Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 422.

Is thy face like thy mother's, my fair child!
Ada! sole daughter of my house and heart?
Byron. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. I.
Some feelings are to mortals given,
With less of earth in them than heaven;
And if there be a human tear
From passion's dross refined and clear,

A tear so limpid and so meek, It would not stain an angel's cheek, 'Tis that which pious fathers shed Upon a duteous daughter's head.
Scort. Lady of the Lake. Canto ii. St. 22.
Oh, I see thee old and formal, fitted to thy petty part,
With a little hoard of maxims preaching down a daughter's heart ! Tennyson. Locksley Hall. St. 47.

DAY.

Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge.

Old Testament. Psalm xix. 2.
Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thouglt for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.

Quarles. Emblems. Bk. i. Emblem 14.
King John. The sun is in the heaven, and the proud day,
Attended with the pleasures of the world,
Is all too wanton, and too full of gauds
To give me audience.
Shakespeare. King John. Act iii. Sc. 3. 1. 34.

It was Apelles' constant habit never to allow a day to be so fully occupied that be had not time for the exercise of his art, if only to the extent of one stroke of the brush.

Pliny the Elder, Nafural History. XXxv. 36 (10).
[Hence the phrase, "Nulla dies sine linea."]

Nor e'er let sleep fall gently on thine eyes Till thou hast made a threefold inventory of the day's doings; wherethou hast transgressed;
Where rightly done; where fallen short of duty.

Six hours in sleep, in law's grave study six,
Four spend in prayer, the rest on Nature fix.
[These lines are quoted by Coke in his
Institutes. Sir William Joues sought to improve upon them, as follows:
Seven hours to law, to soothing slumber seven,
Ten to the world allot, and all to heaven.
Possibly through a confused remembrance of the earlier lines, the beginning of Sir William's couplet has frequently heen misquoted as "six hours to law," etc. John Wilson Croker in his notes to Boswell's Johnson was led astray by this misquotation. "Sir William," said he, " has shortened his day to twenty-three hours, and the general advice of 'all to heaven' destroys the peculiar appropriation of a certain period to religious exercise." Macaulay, in his slashing review of Croker, was, in his turn, betrayed into an explanation: "Sir Williarn distributes twenty-three hours among various employments. One hour is thus left for devotion. The reader expects that the verse will end with-' and one to heaven.' The whole point of the lines consists in the unexpected substitution of 'all' for ' one.' The conceit is wretched enough; but it is perfectly intelligible, and never, we will venture to say perplexed man, woman, or child before.', ${ }^{\text {h }}$

An allusion to his blindness may or may not be involved in it; but the sense of returning shadow on the mind is true to nature, and must have been experienced by every one who has lost a person dear to him. There is a beantifnl sonnet by Camoens on a similar occasion, and a small canzone by Sanazzaro, which ends with saying that although he waked and missed his lady's hand in his, he still tried to cheat himself by keeping his eyes shut.'.]

Fear death ?-to feel the fog in my throat,
The mist in my face,

When the snows begio and the blasts denote
I am nearing the place,
The power of the night and the press of the storm,
The post of the foe;
I would hate that death bandaged my eyes, and forebore,
And bade me creep past.
No! let me taste the whole of it, fare like my peers,
The heroes of old,
Bear the brunt, in a minute pay glad life's arrears
Of pain, darkness, and cold.
R. Browning. Prospice.

Young. Night Thoughts. Night ii. 1.51.
Gaunt. O, but they say, the tongues of dying men
Enforce attention like deep harmony:

Where words are scarce, they're seldom spent in vain:
For they breathe truth, that breathe their words in pain:
He , that no more may say, is listen'd more
Than they whom youth and ease have taught to gloze;
More are men's ends mark'd than their lives before:
The setting sun, and music at the close,
As the last taste of sweets, is sweetest last;
Writ in remembrance, more than things long past.
Shakespeare. Richard II. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 5.

Of no distemper, of no blast he died,
But fell like autumn fruit that mellow'd long,-
Even wonder'd at, because he dropp'd no sooner.
Fate seem'd to wind him up for fourscore years,
Yet freshly ran he on ten winters more;
Till like a clock worn out with eating time,
The wheels of weary life at last stood still.

Dryden. Edipus. Activ. Sc. 1.
Malcolm. Nothing in his life
Became him like the leaving it; he died
As one that had been studied in his death,
To throw away the dearest thing he owed,
As 'twere a careless trifle.
Shakespeare. Macbeth. Act i. Sc. 4. 1.7.
Fine tamen laudandus erit, qui morte decora
Hoc solum fecit nobile, quod periit.
Yet must we praise him in his end; for this Alone he nobly did: he nobly died. Ausonius. Tetrasticha. viii. (Of Otho.)

Animula vagula, blandula, Hospes comesque corporis, Quae nunc abibis in loca;
Pallidula, rigidula, nudula,

Little, gentle, wandering soul,
Guest and comrade of the body,
Who departest into space,
Naked, stiff, and colourless,
All thy wonted jests are done.
Emperor Hadrian. (Aelius Spartianus, Hadriani Vita.)
Poor little pretty fluttering thing,
Must we no longer live together?
And dost thou prune thy trembling wing
To take thy flight, thou know'st not whither?
Thy humorous vein, thy pleasing folly,
Lies all neglected, all forgot;
And pensive, wavering, melancholy,
Thou dread'st and hop'st thou know'st not what.
The above is Prior'sexpansion of Hadrian. Pope has made a still freer paraphrase of Hadrian's lines, informing them with a Christian spirit, in the first stanza of The Dying Christian to His Soul:
Vital spark of heavenly flame, Quit, oh quit, this mortal frame!
Trembling, hoping lingering, fying,
Oh, the pain, the hliss of dying!
Other lines in Pope's poem are :
Hark! they whisper; angels say,
Sister spirit, come away!
Tell me, my soul, can this be death?
Lend, lend your wings! I mount! I fly!
Oh grave! where is thy victory?
Oh death! where is thy sting?
Pope borrowed likewise from an obscure poet of the seveateenth century :
When on my sick-bed I languish,
Full of sorrow, full of anguish ;
Fainting, gasping, trembling. crying,
Panting, groauing, speechless, dying,
Methinks I hear some gentle spirit say,
Be not fearful, come away.
Thomas Flatman (1632-1672).
As full-blown poppies, overcharg'd with rain,
Decline the head, and drooping kiss the plain,-
So sinks the youth ; his beauteous lead, deprest
Beneath his helmet, drops upon his breast.

O morte ipsa mortis tempus indignius !
More cruel than death itself was the moment of death.

Pliny the Younger, Epistolæ. v. 16.

Hustess. A' made a finer end, and went away an it had been any christom child; a' parted just between twelve and one ;-e'en at the turning of the tide: for after I saw him fumble with the sheets, and play with flowers, and smile npon his fingers' ends, I knew there was but one way; for lis nose was as sharp as a pen, and a' babbled of green fields. ${ }^{1}$ How now, Sir John, quoth I: what, man ! be of good cheer. So a' cried out, God l -three or four times: now 1 , to comfort him, bid him a' should not think of God; I hoped there was no need to trouble himself with any such thoughts yet.

Shakespeare. Henty V. Act ii. Sc. 3. 1. 7.

Grifith. At last, with easy roads, he came to Leicester,
Lodg'd in the abbey; where the reverend abbot,
With all his convent, honourably receiv'd him;
To whom he gave these words, -0 , father $a b b o t$,
An old man, broken with the storms of state,
Is come to lay his weary bones among ye; Give him a little earth for charity!
So went to bed: where eagerly his sickness
Pursued him still; and, three days after this,
About the hour of eight (which he himself
Foretold should be his last,) full of repentance,
Continual meditations, tears, and sorrows,
He gave his honours to the world again, His blessed part to heaven,-and slept in peace.

And it being low water, he went out with the tide.

Dickens. David Copperfield. Ch. xxx.
While Enoch slumber'd motionless and pale,
And Miriam watch'd and dozed at intervals,

There came so loud a calling of the sea, That all the houses in the haven rang.
He woke, he rose, he spread his arms abroad
Crying with a loud voice, " A sail! A saill
I am saved!" and so fell back and spoke no more.

Tennyson. Enoch Arden.

Sunset and evening star, And one clear call for mel

Ibid. Orossing the Bar.
[The " calling of the sea "'is an old English term for a ground-swell. When this occurs on a windless night, the sound not only echoes through the houses standing near the beach, but is heard many miles inland. The superstitious look upon it as a summons to death. In "Enoch Arden" the old sailor is lying at the point of death when to him comes the one clear call, which Tennyson, looking forward to his own death-hour, represents in Crossing the Bar as coming to himself. This explanation of the second line of the latter poem is obviously in harnony with its whole imagery, and gives pnint and significance to an otherwise somewhat vague expression.]

I am going a long way
With these thou seëst-if indeed I go
(For all my mind is clouded with a doubt)-
To the island-valley of Avilion,
Where falls not hail or rain or any snow, Nor ever wind blows loudly; but it lies Deep-meadow'd, happy, fair with orchard lawns
And bowery hollows crown'd with summer sea,
Where I will heal me of my grievous wound.

The Directory refused to receive bim, but intimated that a money payment might settle the dispute. It was then, according to report, that Pinckney made his famous answer. But Pinckney is said to have denied the story: "No, my answer was not a flourish like that, but simply 'Not a penny; not a penny.'"]

DEFIANCE.

Norfolk. I do defy hin, and I spit at him;
Call him a slanderons coward, and a villain:
Which to maintain, I would allow him odds;
And meet him, were I tied to run a-foot, Even to the frozen ridges of the Alps.

Shakfspeare. Richard II. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 60.

Warwick. I had rather chop this hand off at a blow,
And with the other fling it at thy face,
Than bear so low a sail, to strike to thee. Shakespeare. III. Henry VI. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 50.
Fitzwater. If thou deny'st it, twenty times thou liest;
And I will curn thy falsehood to thy heart,
Where it was forged, with my rapier's point.
Ibid. Richard II. Aet iv. Sc. 1. 1. 38.
Aumerle. Who sets me else? by heaven, I'll throw at all;
I have a thousand spirits in one breast, To answer twenty thousand such as you. Ibid. Richard 11. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 55.
Pandulph. France, thou may'st hold a serpent by the tongue,
A chafed lion by the mortal paw,
A fasting tiger safer by the tooth,
Than keep in peace that hand which thon dost hold.
Ibid. King John. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 258.
And dar'st thou then
To beard the lion in his den,
The Douglas in his hall?

DEMOCRACY.

To one that advised him [Lycurgus] to set up a democracy in Sparta, "Pray," said Lycurgus, "do you first set up a democracy in your own house."

Pluta $\mathrm{chch}^{2}$ Apothegms of Kings and Great Commanders. Lycurgus.
Dr. Johnson. It is better that some should be unhappy, than that none should be happy, which would be the case in a general state of equality.
Boswell. Life of Johnson. April 7, 1776.

Dr. Johnson. Sir, your levellers wish to level down as far as themselves; but they cannot bear levelling up to themselves.

Boswell. Life of Johnzon. July 21, 1763.

The trappings of a monarcliy would set up an ordinary conmonwealth.

Johnson. Life of Milton.
Democracy is the healthful life-blood which circulates through the veins and arteries, which supports the system, but which ought never to appear externally, and as the mere blood itself.

Coleridge. Table Talk. Sept. 19, 1830.
The republican is the only form of government which is not eternally at open or secret war with the rights of mankind.

Thomas Jefferson. Reply to Address. 1790.

Equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever state or persuasion, religious or political ; peace, commerce, and honest friendship with all nations, -entangling alliances with none; the support of the State governments in all their rights, as the most competent administrations for our domestic concerns, are the surest bulwarks against anti-republican tendencies.

1bid. First Inaugural Address, March 4, 1801.

There was a state withont king or nobles; there was a church withont a bishop; there was a people governed by grave magistrates which it had selected, and by equal laws which it had framed.

Rufus Choate. Speech before the New England Society, Dec. 22, 1843.
Democracy gives every man
The right to be his own oppressor ;
But a loose Gov'ment ain't the plan,
Helpless ez spilled beans on a dresser.

DESERT.
(See also Wilmerness.)
The desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose.

Old Testament. Isaiah xxxy. 1.

In the desert a fountain is springing,
In the wide waste there still is a tree, And a bird in the solitude singing,

Which speaks to my spirit of thee.
Byron. Stanzas to Augusta. Concluding lines.

DESERTER; DESERTION.

Fallen, fallen, fallen, fallen,
Fallen from bis high estate,
And welt'ring in his blood;
Deserted, at his utmost need,
By those his former bounty fed,
On the bare earth expos'd he lies,
With not a friend to close his eyes.
Dryden. Alexander's Feast. 1. 77.
When a building is about to fall down, all the mice desert it.

Pliny. Natural History. Bk. viii. Sec. 103.

Rats leave a sinking ship.
English Proverb.
The nation looked upon him as a deserter, and he shrunk into insignificancy and an earldom.

Chesterfield. Character of Pulteney.
Even God's providence
Seeming estranged.
Hood. Bridge of Sighs.
Thou hast wounded the spirit that loved thee
And cherish'd thine image for years ;
Thou hast taught me at last to forget thee,
In secret, in silence, and tears.
Mrs. David Porter. Thou hast Wounded the Spirit.
King John. Poisoned,-ill fare; dead, forsook, cast off;
And none of you will bid the Winter come,
To thrust his icy fingers in my maw;
Nor let my kingdom's rivers take their course
Through my burn'd bosom; nor entreat the North
To make his bleak winds kiss my parched lips,
And comfort me with cold. I do not ask you much,
I beg cold comfort ; and you are so strait, And so ingrateful, you deny me that.

Shatespeare. King John. Act v. Sc. 7. 1. 36.

Just for a handful of silver he left us,
Just for a ribhon to stick in his coat ;
Found the one gift of which Fortune bereft us,
Lost all the others she lets us devote. Robert Brownino. The Lost Leader.

We that had loved him so, followed him, honored him,
Lived in his mild and magnificent eye,
Learned his great language, canght his clear accents,
Made him our pattern to live and to die!
Shakespeare was of us, Milton was for us,
Burns, Shelley, were with us,-they watch from their graves!
He alone breaks from the van and the freemen,
He alone sinks to the rear and the slaves.

Ibid. The Lost Leader.
Blot out his name, then, record one lost sonl more,
One task more declined, one more footpath untrod,
One more triumph for devils and sorrow for angels,
One wrong more to man, one more insult to God!
Life's night begins: let him never come back to us!
There would be doubt, hesitation, and pain;
Forced praise on our part-the glimmer of twilight,
Never glad confident morning again. Ibid. The Lost Leader.
[Browning acknowledged that in The Lost Leader he had Wordsworth in mind, though he used him only as a painter might use a model. Wordsworth's acceptance of the lanreateship and a pension had seemed a defection from the Liberal causc. Whittier's Ichabod is a more open attack upon Daniel Webster for his speech of March 7, 1850, which, among many of his former Northern worshippers, stamped him as a recreant, bidding for Southern presidential votes.]
So fallen ! so lost I the light withdrawn Which once he wore 1
The glory from his gray hairs gone For evermore! Whittier. Ichabod. St. 1.

Of all we loved and honored, nought Save power remains-
A fallen angel's power of thought, Still strong in chains.
All else is gone: from those great eyes The soul has fled:
When faith is lost, when honor dies, The man is dead!
Then pay the reverence of old days To his dead fame;
Walk backward, with averted gaze And hide the shame!

Whitrier. Ichabod. St. 7-9.

DESPAIR.

Second Murderer. I am one, my liege, Whom the vile blows and buffets of the world

Have so incens'd, that I am reckless what
I do to spite the world.
First Murderer. And I another,
So weary with disasters, tugg'd with fortune,
That I would set my life on any chance,
To mend it, or be rid on 't.
Shak espeare. Macbeth. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 108.

Edgar. The lowest and most dejected thing of fortune.

Ibid. King Lear. Activ. Sc. 1. 1. 3.
Caught from some unhappy master, whom unmerciful disaster
Followed fast and followed faster, till his songs one burden bore.
Tinl the dirges of his hope that melancholy burden bore,

Of "Never-never more."
PoE. The Raven.
Hamlet. O , that this too too solid flesh would melt,
Thaw, and resolve itself into a dew !
Or that the Everlasting had not fix'd
His canon 'gainst self-slaughter! 0 God 10 God!

Macbeth. Had I but dy'd an hour hefore this chance
I had liv'd a blessed time: for, from this instant,
There's nothing serious in mortality :

All is but toys : renown, and grace, is dead
The wine of life is drawn, and the mere Iees
Is left this vanlt to brag of. Shakespeare. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc. 3. 1. 96.

The strongest and the fiercest spirit
That fought in heaven, now fiercer by despair.
Milton. Paradise Losl. Bk, ii. 1. 44.
Me miserable! which way shall I fly
Infinite wrath and infinite despair?
Which way I fly is hell; myself am hell ;
And in the lowest deep a lower deep
Still threatening to devour me opens wide,
To which the hell I suffer seems a heaven.

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. 1. 73.

Hood. The Bridge of Sighs.

Hark ! to the hurried question of Despair:
"Where is my child?" an Echo answers-" Where?"
byron. The Bride of Abydos. Canto ii. St. xxvi.

Despair defies even despotism; there is
That in my heart would make its way thro' hosts
With levell'd spears.
Ibid. Two Foscari. Act i. Sc. 1.
There is no despair so absolute as that which comes with the first moments of our first great sorrow, when we have not yet known what it is to have suffered and be healed, to have despaired and have recovered hope.

George Eliot. Adam Bede. Ch. xxxi.

DESTINY.

(See Fate.)
The Moving Finger writes; and, having writ,
Moves on : nor all your Piety nor Wit
Shall Iure it back to cancel half a Line,
Nor all your Tears wash out a Word of it.
Fitzgerald. Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam. St. 77.
Che l'uomo il suo destin fugge di raro.
For rarely man escapes his destiny. Ariosto. Orlando Furioso. xviii. 58.
That each thing, both in small and in great, fulfilleth the task which destiny hath set down.

Hippocrates.

King John. Think you I bear the shears of destiny?
Have I commandment on the pulse of life?
Shakespeare. King John. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 91.

Ner. The ancient saying is no heresy ;-
Hanging and wiving goes by destiny.
Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Act ii. Sc. 9. 1. 83.

Marriage and hanging go by destiny; matches are made in heaven.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt.iii. Sec. 2. Mem. 5. Subs. 5.
(See under Marriage.)

All has its date below; the fatal hour
Was register'd in Heav'n ere time began,
We turn to dust, and all our mightiest works
Die too.
Cowper. The Task. Bk. v. The Winter Morning Walk. 1. 540.
No one can be more wise than destiny. Tennvson. A Dream of Fair Women. St. 24.

Ere Suns and Moons could wax and wane,
Ere stars were thundergirt, or piled
The hearens, God thought on me His child :
Ordained a life for me, arrayed
Its circumstances every one
To the minutest.
Robert Browning. Johannes Agricola.

DEVIL.

Vade retro, Satanas.
Get thee behind me, Satan.
The Volgate. St. Matthew iv. 10.
Page. No man means evil but the devil, and we shall know him by his horns.

Herbert. Jacula Prudentium.
We paint the devil foul, yet he
Hath some good in him, all agree.
Ibid. The Temple, The Church, Sin.
The devil is not so black as he is painted.
English Proverb.
Neither do the Spirits damned
Lose all their virtue, lest had men should boast
Their specious deeds on earth, which glory excites,
Or close ambition varnished.o'er with zeal. Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. ii. 1. 485.

Polonius. 'Tis too much prov'd, that, with devotion's visage,
And pious action, we do sugar o'er
The devil himself.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 46.

Be soher, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour.

The infernal serpent ; he it was, whose guile,
Stirred up with envy and revenge, deceived
The mother of mankind, what time his pride
Had cast him out from Heaven, with all his host
Of rebel angels, by whose aid, aspiring
To set himself in glory above bis peers,
He trusted to have equalled the Most High,
If he opposed; and with ambitious aim
Against the throne and monarchy of God
Raised impious war in Heaven and battle proud,
With vain attempt. Him the almighty Power
Hurled headlong flaming from the ethereal sky,
With hideous ruin and combustion, down
To bottomless perdition, there to dwell
In adamantine chains and penal fire,
Who durst defy the Omnipotent toarms. Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. l. 34.

Satan (so call him now, his former name
Is heard no more in Heaven); he of the first,
If not the first archangel, great in power,
In favor and preëminence, yet fraught
With envy against the Son of God.

Beyond thus high, insatiate to pursue
Vain war with Heaven, and by success untaught
His proud imaginations thus displayed. Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. ii. 1.1.

Their dread commander: he, above the rest
In shape and gesture proudly eminent,
Stood like a tower; his form had not yet lost
All her original brightness, nor appeared
Less tlian Archangel ruined and the excess
Of glory obscured : as when the sun new risen
Looks throngh the horizontal misty air,
Shorn of his beams; or from behind the moon,
In dim eclipse, disastrous twilight sheds
On half the nations, and with fear of change
Perplexes monarchs ; darkened so, yet shone
Ahove them all the Archangel. Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. l. 589.
Nathless he so endured, till on the beach Of that inflamèd sea he stood, and call'd
His legions, angel forms, who lay entranced
Thick as autumnal leaves that strew the brooks
In Vallombrosa, where the Etrurian shades

Facilius crescit dignitas quam incipit.
Dignity increases more easily than it begins.

Seneca. Epistolz Ad Lucilium. ci.
Remember this,-that there is a proper dignity and proportion to be observed in the performance of every act of life.
Marcus Adrelitos. Meditadions. iv. 32.
A certain dignity of manners is absolutely necessary to make even the most valuable character either respected or respectable in the world.

Lord Chrsterfield. Advice to his Son.

DILEMMA.

Launcelot. When I shun Scylla, your father, I fall into Charybdis, your mother.

Shakespeare. Merchant of Venice. Act iii. Sc. 5. 1. 19.
[The allusion is to the Homeric fable of Scylla and Charybdis: the first a rock, the second a whirlpool, in the straits of Messina, Sicily, and each the habitat of an eponymous sea-monster who lured sailors to their destruction.]

Nescis, heu ! perdite, nescis
Quem fugias: hostes incurris dum fugis hostem;
Incidis in Scyllam cupiens vitare Charybdim.
Thou knowest not, 0 lost one, whereto thon fliest! Thou wilt run into an enemy while fleeing from an enemy. Thou wilt fall upon Scylla in seeking to shun Charybdis.

Philippe Gaultier. Alexandreis. Bk. v. 1. 301 (written about 1300).

Between the devil and the deep sea. English Proverb.
[At least as old as the early part of the seventeenth century, for it is found in Colonel Munro's Expedition with Mackay's Regiment (1637). Munro served under Gustavus Adolphus. In an engagement with the Austrians at Werben, Munro found his own men exposed to the fire of Swedish gunners who had not given their pieces a proper elevation. As he says, they were "betwixt the devil and the deep sea"-i.e., threatened by friend and foe alike. A passage in Shakespeare seems to have reference to some earlier form of the phrase:

King Lear. Thon 'dst shun a bear:
But if thy flight lay towards the raging sea, Thou 'dst meet the bear $i$ ' the mouth.

King Lear. Act iii. Sc. 4. 1. 10.]

DINNER.

What, did you not know, then, that to-day Lncullus dines with Lucullus.

Plutarce. Lives. Life of Luculur. Vol. iii. p. 280.

Then from the mint walks forth the man of rhyme,
Happy to catch me, just at dinner-time. POPE. Epistle to Arbuthnot. 1. 13.

Judicious drank, and greatly daring din'd.

Ibid. Dunciad. Bk. iv. 1. 318.
A dinner lubricates business.
Lord Stowell. Boswell's Life of Johnson. Vol. viii. p. 67, note.
This was a good dinner enough, to be sure, but it was not a dinner to ask a man to.

Dr. Johnson. Boswell's Life. Ch. Ix,
So, if unprejudiced you scan
The goings of this clock-work, man,
You find a hundred movements made
By fine devices in his head;
But 'tis the stomach's solid stroke
That tells his being what's o'clock. Prior, Alma; or, the Progress of the Mind. Pt. iii.' l. 272.
Method's more sure at moments to take hold
Of the best feelings of mankind, which grow
More tender, as we every day behold,
Than that all-softening, overpowering knell,
The tocsin of the soul-the dinner bell! Byron. Don Juan. Canto v. St. 49.

All human history attests
That happiness for man-the hungry sinner-
Since Eve ate apples, much depends on dinner!
Ibid. Don Juan. Canto xiii. St. 99.

For a man seldom thinks with more earnestness of anything than he does of his dinner.

Jonnson. Piozzi's Anecdotes of Johnson.
Every investigation which is guided by priuciples of nature fixes its ultimate aim on gratifying the stomach.

Ye diners-out from whom we guard our spoons.

Macaulay. Political Georgics.
Johnson. If he does really think that there is no distinction between virtue and vice, why, sir, when he leaves our houses let us connt our spoons.

Boswell. Life of Dr. Johnson. Ch. v.

DIPLOMACY.

Socrates. The rulers of the state are the only persons who ought to have the privilege of lying, either at home or abroad; they may be allowed to lie for the good of the state.
Plato. Republic. iii. 3. (Jowett, trans.)
An Ambassador is an honest man sent to lie abroad for the commonwealth. Sir Henry Wotton. Relique Wottomianz.
[In a letter to Velserus (1612), Wotton says, "This merry definition of au ambassador I had chanced to set down at my friend's, Mr. Christopher Fleckamore, in his Album." The unauthorized publication of it by the scurrilous controversialist Scioppius raised a storm of disapproval in Europe and for a period lost Wotton the favor of King James 1. Another of Wotton's famons jests was his advice to a young diplomatist to tell the truth and so confound and puzzle his adversaries. Bismarck avowedly put this advice into practice.]

Men, like bullets, go farthest when they are smoothest.

Richter. Titan. Cycle 26. (Brooks, trans.)

If you wish to preserve your secret, wrap it up in frankness.
alexander Smith. Dreamthorp. On the Writing of Essays.
Cornwall. This is some fellow,
Who, having been prais'd for bluntness, doth affect
A saucy roughness; and constrains the garb
Quite from his nature. He cannot flatter, he!-
An honest mind and plain,-he must speak truth :

And they will take it, so ; if not, he's plain.
This kind of knaves I know, which in this plainness,
Harbour more craft, and more corrupter ends
Than twenty silly ducking ohservants,
That stretch their duties nicely.
Shakespeare. King Lear. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 101.

Antony. I am no orator as Brutus is:
But, as you know me all, a plain blunt man, That love my friend; and that they know full well
That gave me public leave to speak of him. For 1 have neither wit, nor words, nor worth,
Action, nor utterance, nor the power of speech,
To stir meu's blood: I only speak right on. Ibid. Julius Cæsar. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 222.
The congress of Vienna does not walk, but it dances.

Prince de Lione.

DISAPPOINTMENT.

Gaunt. Things sweet to taste prove in digestion sour.

Shakespeare. Richard I1. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 236.

Many go out for wool, and come home shorn themselves.

Cervantes. Don Quixote. Pt.ii. Ch. xxxvii.

The best-laid schemes o' mice an' men, Gang aft a-gley,
And leave us nought but grief and pain,
For promised joy.
Burns. To a Mouse. St. 7.
Impell'd with steps unceasing to pursue Some fleeting good, that mocks me wilh the view,
That, like the circle bounding earth and skies,
Allures from far, yet, as I follow, flies.
Golnsmitr. Traveller. 1. 25.
With more capacity for love, than earth
Bestows on most of mortal mould and birth,
His early dreams of good outstripp'd the truth,
And troubled manhood follow'd haffled youth.

Byron. Lata. Canto i. St. 18.
Oh! that a dream so sweet, so long enjoyed,
Should be so sadly, cruelly destroy'd !
Moore. Lalla Rookh: Veiled Prophet of Khorassan.

I knew, I knew it could not last:
'Twas bright, 'twas heavenly, but 'tis past.
Oh, ever thus, from childhood's hour,
I've seen my fondest hopes decay;
I never loved a tree or flower But 'twas the first to fade away.
I never nursed a dear gazelle, To glad me with its soft black eye, But wheu it came to know me well And love me, it was sure to die.
Moore. Lalla Rookh: The Fire-Worshippers.
Like Dead-Sea fruits that tempt the eye
But turn to ashes on the lips.
Ibid. Lalla Rookh: The Fire-Worshippers.
[Dead-Sea fruit is a common metaphor for disappointed hope. The reference is to the so-called apples of Sodom, a yellow fruit which grows on the shores of the Dead Sea. Beautiful to the eye, it is bitter to the taste and filled with minute black grains not unlike ashes. Hence a widespread, though erroneous, belief that nothing can flourish in the neighborhood of the Dead Sea.]

Greedily they plucked
The fruitage, fair to sight, like that which grew
Near that bituminous lake where Sodom flamed:
This more delusive not the tonch, but taste Deceived; they fondly thinking to allay Their appetite with gust, instead of fruit Chewed bitter ashes, which th' offended taste
With spattering noise rejected.
Milton. Paradise Lost.
Like to the apples on the Dead-Sea shore, All ashes to the taste.

Bitron. Childe Harold. iii. 34.

DISCONTENT.

Qui fit, Mæcenas, ut nemo quam sibi sortem,

Seu ratio dederit, seu fors objecerit, illâ
Contentus vivat? laudet diversa sequentes.

How does it happen, Mrecenas, that no one is content with that lot in life which he has chosen, or which chance has thrown in his way, but praises those who follow a different course?

DISCRETION.

Othello. Let's teach ourselves that honourable stop,
Not to outsport discretion.
Shakespeare. Othello. Actii. Sc. 3. 1.2.
Armado. I have seen the day of wrong through the little hole of discretion.

Ibid. Love's Labour's Lost. Act v. Sc. 2. 1. 734.

Hamlet. Let your own discretion be your tutor.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 19.

Ibid. I. Henry IV. Act v. Sc. 4. 1. 121.
It' showed discretion, the best part of valour.
BEAUMONT AND Fletcher. A King and No King. Act iv, Sc. 3.
Even in a hero's heart
Discretion is the better part.
CHURCHILL. The Ghost. Pt. i. 1. 233.
F'or he who fights and runs away
May live to fight another day;
But he who is in battle slain
Can never rise and fight again.
Anon. Art of Poetry on a New Plan (1761). Vol. ii. p. 147.

This hook was compiled by Newbery, the children's publisher, and revised by Goldsmith. The quatrain is given with no ascription of auth orship. Twelve years previous, in 1749, a variant had already appeared, avowedly as a quotation from Butler's Hudibras, in Ray's History of the Rebellion:
He that fights and runs away
May turn and fight another day;
But he that is in battle slain
Will wever rise to fight again.
These lines are not to he found in Hudibras, though the thought is one of which Butler was particularly fond. He repeatedly rung the changes on it, as for instance: In all the trade of war, no feat
Is nobler than a brave retreat;
For those that run away, and fly,
Take place at least of the enemy.
Butler. Fudibras. Pt. i. Canto iii. - 1. 607.

For those that fly may fight again,
Which he can never do that's slain.
Ibid. Hudibras. Pt. iii. Canto iii. 1. 243.

For those that save themselves and fly Go halves at least i' th' victory.

Butler. Mudibras. Pt. iii. Canto iii. 1. 269.

It has been suggested that Ray may have thought he was quoting Butler, preserving some hazy and indistinct reconection of lines read long ago, and putting their meaning unwittingly and unconsciously into a new and unauthorized form. This, however, is mere conjecture. What we do know, however, is that even Butler could lay no claim to ine thought. A long series of predecessors had said something similar, dating as far back as Menander.
He that fights and runs away
May live to fight another day.
SIr John Mennis. Musarum Delicix.
That same man that runnith awaie

A better buckler I can soon regain ;
But who can get another life again?
Archilochos. Fragment 6. (Quoted by Plutarch. Customs of the Lacedrmonians.)

He who flees will live to fight again.
Menander. Monosticha. 45.

DISEASE.

(See Siciknesb.)
Diseases crucify the soul of man, attenuate onr bodies, dry them, wither them, shrivel them up like old apples, make them as so many anatomies.

Before his eyes appeared, sad, noisome, dark;
A lazar-house it seemed, wherein were laid
Numbers of all diseased, all maladies
Of ghastly spasm or racking torture, qualms
Of heart-sick agony, all feverous kinds,
Convulsions, epilepsies, fierce catarrhs,
Intestine stone and ulcer, colic pangs,
Demoniac phrenzy, moping melancholy,
And moon-struck madness, pining atrophy,
Marasmus, and wide-wasting pestilence,
Dropsies, and asthmas, and joint-racking rheums.
Dire was the tossing, deep the groans; Despair
Tended the sick, busiest from couch to conch;
And over them triumphant Death his dart
Shook, but delayed to strike, though oft invoked
With vows, as their chief good and final hope.
Milion. Paradise Lost. Bk. xi. 1. 477.

DISGRACE ; DISHONOR.

And in that town a dog was found,
As many dogs there be,
Both mongrel, puppy, whelp, and hound,
And curs of low degree.
The dog, to gain his private ends,
Went mad, and bit the man.
The man recovered of the bite,
The dog it was that died.

DRAMA.

Philostrate. A play this is, my lord, some ten words long,
Which is as brief as I have known a play;
But by ten words, my lord, it is too long, Which makes it tedions.
Shakespeare. Midsummer Night's Dream. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 61.

To wake the soul by tender strokes of art,
To raise the genius and to mend the heart,

To make mankind in conscious virtue bold,
Live o'er each scene, and be what they behold;
For this the tragic muse first trod the stage.
Pope. Prologue to Addison's Cato. 1. 1.
Your scene precariously subsists too long
On French translation and Italian song.
Dare to have sense yourselves; assert the stage;
Be justly warm'd with your own native rage.

DREAM.

Sunt geminae Somni portae, quarum altera fertur
Cornea, qua veris facilis datur exitus Umbris;
Altera candenti perfecta nitens elephanto,
Sed falsa ad coelum mittunt insomnia Manes.
Sleep gives his name to portals twain:
One all of horn they say,
Through which authentic spectres gain Quick exit into day,
And one which bright with ivory gleams,
Whence Pluto sends delusive dreams. Viroil. Emeid. vi. 893. (Coninoton, trans.)
Two diverse gates there are of bodiless dreams,
These of sawn ivory, and those of horn.
Such dreams as issue where the ivory gleams
Fly without fate, and turn our hopes to scorn.
But dreams which issue througl the burnished horn,

What man soe'er beholds them on his bed,
These work with virtue and of truth are born.

Hamlet. A dream itself is but a shadow.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act ii. Sc. 2.1.259.
Mercutio. O then, I see Queen Mab hath heen with you,
She is the fairies midwife; and she comes
In shape no bigger than an agate-stone
On the forefinger of an alderman,
Drawn with a team of little atomies
Athwart men's noses as they lie asleep:
Her waggon-spokes made of long spinner's legs;
The cover, of the wings of grasshoppers ;
Her traces, of the smallest spider's web;
Her collars, of the moonshine's watery beams;
Her whip, of cricket's bone ; the lash of film :
Her waggoner, a small, grey-coated gnat,
Not half so big as a round little worm
Pricked from the lazy finger of a maid;
Her chariot is an empty hazel-nut,
Made by the joiner squirrel, or old grab,
Time out of mind the fairies' coachmakers.
Sharespeare. Romeo and Juliet. act i. Sc. 4. 1. 53 .
Mercutio.
I talk of dreams,
Which are the children of an idle brain,
Begot of nothing but vain fantasy;
Which is as thin of substance as the air; And more inconstant than the wind. Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act i. Sc. 4. 1. 96 .

Romeo. If I may trust the flattering truth ${ }^{\mathbf{3}}$ of sleep,
My dreams presage some joyful news at hand:
My bosom's lord sits lightly in his throne;

Clarence. Lord, Lord I methought, what pain it was to drown!
What dreadful noise of waters in mine ears !
What ugly sights of death within mine eyes!
Methought I saw a thousand fearful wrecks,
Ten thousand men that fishes gnawed upon;
Wedges of gold, great anchors, heaps of pearl,
Inestimable stones, unvalued jewels, All scattered in the bottom of the sea:

Some lay in dead men's skulls; and in those holes
Where eyes did once inhahit, there were crept,
As 't were in s.urn of eyes, reflecting gems.

Dryden. The Cock and the Fox. 1. 140.
Dreams are but interludes which fancy makes.
When monarch reason sleeps, this mimic wakes:
Compounds a medley of disjointed things,
A mob of cobblers, and a court of kings:
Light fumes are merry, grosser fumes are sad;
Both are the reasonable soul run mad.
And many monstrous forms in sleep we see,
That neither were, nor are, nor e'er can be.

A vest as admired Vortiger had on,
Which from this Island's foes his grandsire won,
Whose artful colour pass'd the Tyrian dye,
Obliged to triumph in this legacy.
Edward Howard. The British Princes. (1669.) p. 96.
[These lines have had a curious history. Some wag burlesqued them in the following couplet:
A painted vest Prince Vortiger had on,
Which from a naked Pict his grandsire won.
Later the parody was, by the enemies of Sir Richard Blackmore, attributed to him as being a seriously intended couplet in his epic of The Creation. On October 29, 1769, we find Boswell and Johnson discussing

Blackmore, and Boswell defending " Blackmore's supposed lines, which have been ridiculed as absolute nonsense," in this fashion: "I maintained it to be a poetical conceit. A Pict being painted, if he is slain in battle, and a vest is made of his skin, it is a painted vest won from him, though he was naked." A note added in the second edition of the Life of Johnson by Boswell himself makes this acknowledgment: "dn acute correspondent of the European Magazine, April, 1792, has completely exposed a mistake which has been unaccountably frequent in ascribing these lines to Blackmore, notwithstanding that Sir Richard Steele, in that very popular work, the Spectator, mentions them as written by the author of The British Princes, the Hon. Edward Howard. The correspondent above mentioned shows this mistake to be so inveterate, that not only $I$ defended the lines as Blackmore's in the preseuce of Dr. Johnson, without any cbntradiction or donbt of their authenticity, but that the Reverend Mr. Whitaker has asserted in print that he understands they were suppressed in the late edition or editions of Blackmore."]

Man, being reasonable, must get drunk;
The best of life is but intoxication:
Glory, the grape, love, gold, in these are sunk
The hopes of all men and of every nation;
Without their sap, how branchless were the trunk
Of life's strange tree, so fruitful on occasion :
But to return,-Get very drunk; and when
You wake with headache, you shall see what then.

Gray. Ode on the Progress of Poesy.
A curious error has been fallen into by the careless, and is repeated, strangely enough, in the Primer of English Literature (p. 127) by that careful scholar Stopford Brooke. This is to confound Pope and Gray, and make line 269 in the Imitations of Horcce read:
The long resounding march and energy divine.
I told him (Jolnson) that Voltaire, in a conversation with me, had distinguished Pope and Dryden thus: "Pope drives a handsome chariot, with a couple of neat trim nags; Dryden, a coach and six stately horses.
Johnson.-"Why, sir, the truth is, they both drive coaches and six; but Dryden's horses are either galloping or stumbling: Pope's go at a steady even trot."

DULNESS; DUNCES.

Shadwell alone my perfect image bears, Mature in dulness from his early years: Shadwell alone, of all my sons, is he,
Who stands confirm'd in full stupidity.
The rest to some faint meaning make pretence,
But Shadwell never deviates into sense. Some beams of wit on other souls may fall,
Strike through, and make a lucid interval;
But Shadwell's genuine night admits no ray.

And 'tis an added grief that with my own feathers I am slain.]

That eagle's fate and mine are one,
Which on the shaft that made him die,
Espied a feather of his own, Wherewith he wont to soar so high. Waller. To a Lady Singing a Song of his Composing.
So the struck eagle, stretched upon the plain,
No more through rolling clouds to soar again,
Viewed his own feather on the fatal dart,
And winged the shaft that quivered in his heart:
Keen were his pangs, but keener far to feel
He nursed the pinion which impelled the steel,
While the same plumage that had warmed his nest
Drank the last life-drop of his bleeding breast. Byron. On the Death of Kirke White.

ENGLAND.

Gaunt. This royal throne of kings, this scepter'd isle,
This earth of majesty, this seat of Mars, This other Eden, demi-paradise,
This fortress built by Nature for herself Against infection and the hand of war ; This happy breed of men, this little world;
This precions stone set in the silver sea, Which serves it in the office of a wall, Or as a moat defensive to a house,
Against the envy of less happy lands;
This blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England,
This nurse, this teeming womb of royal kings,
Fear'd by their breed, and famous by their birth,
Renowned for their deeds as far from home,
For Christian service, and true chivalry,
As is the sepulchre in stubborn Jewry,

Of the world's ransom, blessed Mary's Son:
This land of such dear souls, this dear, dear land,
Dear for her reputation through the world,
Is now leased out, I die pronouncing it. Like to a tenement, or pelting farm:
England, bound in with the triumphant sea,
Whose rocky shore beats back the envious siege
Of watery Neptune, is now bound in with shame,
With inky blots and rotten parchment bonds;
That England, that was wont to conquer others,
Hath made a shameful conquest of itself. Shakegpeare. Richatd II. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 40.

Chorus. O England!-model to thy inward greatness,
Like little body with a mighty heart,-
What mightst thou do, that honor would thee do,
Were all thy children kind and natural!
Ibid. Henry V. Act ii. Prologue.
Bastard. This England never did, nor never shall,
Lie at the proud foot of a conqueror,
But when it first did help to wound itself.

Come the three corners of the world in arms,
And we shall shock them: nought shall make us rue,
If England to itself do rest but true. 1bid. King John. Act v. Sc. 7. 1. 112.

England, with all thy faults, I love thee still-
My country! and while yet a nook is left

Where English minds and manners may he found,
Shall be constrain'd to love thee. Though thy clime
Be fickle and thy year most part deform'd
With dripping rains, or wither'd by a frost-
I would not yet exchange thy sullen skies
And fields without a flower for warmer France
With all her vines; nor for Ausonia's groves
Of golden fruitage and her myrtle bowers.
To shake thy senate and from heights sublime
Of patriot eloquence to flash down fire
Upon thy foes, was never meant my task:
But I can feel thy fortunes and partake Thy joys and sorrows with as true a heart as any thunderer there. Cowper. The Task. Bk. ii. 1. 206.
[The frst of Cowper's lines is quoted by Byron in Beppo. St. 47.]

Be England what she will,
With all her faults, she is my country still. Churchill. The Farewell. 1. 27.
Milton ! thou should'st he living at this hour:
England hath need of thee : she is a fen
Of stagnant waters: altar, sword, and pen,
Fireside, the heroic wealth of hall and bower,
Have forfeited their ancient English dower
Of inward happiness. We are selfish men;
Oh ! raise us up, return to us again;
And give us manners, virtue, freedom, power.
Wordsworry. Sonnet. Written in London, 1802 .
An old, blind, mad, despised, and dying king,
Princes, the dregs of their dull race, who flow
Through public scorn-mud from a muddy spring,-
Rulers who neither see nor feel nor know,

But, leech-like, to their fainting country cling,
Till they drop, blind in blood, without a blow,-
A people starved and stabbed in the untilled field,-
An army which liberticide and prey
Makes as a two-edged sword to all who wield,-
Golden and sanguine laws, which tempt and slay,-
Religion Christless, Godless-a book sealed;
A Senate-Time's worst statute unre-pealed-
Are graves from which a glorious phantom may
Burst to illumine our tempestuous day. Shelley. England in 1819.

[The authorship, as well as the date, of this song is in dispute. An American variant, beginning Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean, introduces a further element of confusion. But the probabilities are that it was written by Sbaw (1813-90), an English singer and entertainer, some time before the Crimean War (when it first sprang into popularity), and that it was adapted to American use by another hand. Here is the first stanza of the latter adaptation :-

- Columbia, the gem of tbe ocean,

The home of the brave and the free, The shrine of eacb patriot's devotion, A world offers bomage to thee.
Thy mandates make heroes assemble
When Liberty's form stands in view;
Thy banners make tyranny tremble
When borne by the red, white, and blue.]

Disraeli (Earl of Beaconsfield). Speech, House of Commons. March 15, 1838.

England is a nation of shopkeepers.
[The phrase is currently attributed to Napoleon. But if he ever used it, he did not originate it. In 1775 Adam Smith had said in a general way and with no special application to England:
To found a great empire for the sole purpose of raising up a people of customers may, at first sight, appear a project fit only for a nation of shopkeepers. It is, however, a project altogether unfit for a nation of shopkeepers, but extremely fit for a nation whose government is influenced by shopkeepers. Such statesmen, and such statesmen only, are capable of funcying that they will find some advantage in employing the blood and treasure of their fellow-citizens to found and maintain such an empire.

Wealth of Nations. Vol. ii. Bk. 4. Ch. 7.
In a speech purporting to have been delivercd in Philadelphia, August 1, 1776, Samuel Adams specifically callied the English "a nation of shopkeepers." This speech may be apocryphal. It exists only in a professed reprint published in London in 1776. Barere, speaking in the Convention of June 11, 1794, called the English a "shopkeeping nation" (nation boutiquière).]

That I spent, that I had;
That I gave, that I have;
That I left, that I lost.
A. D. 1579.

Epitoph of Robert Byrkes.
[According to Richard Gough (Sepulchral Monuments of Great Britain), these are the concluding lines of an epitaph in Doncester Church. The verses are very popular among mortuary inscriptions, and variants are frequent. This is how they appear on the tomb of Edward Courtenay, Earl of Devonshire:

What we gave, we have;

What we spent, we had;
What we left, we Iast.
A somewhat similar sentiment may he found in Martial :

Who gives to friends so much from fate secnres,
That is the only wealth forever yours.
Still another change is rung on this thought in the following anecdote from the Gesta Romanorum:

We read of a certain Roman emperor who built a magnificent palace. In digging the foundation, the workmen discovered a golden sarcophagus ornamented with three circlets, on which were inscrihed, "I have expended; I have given; I have kept; I have possessed; I do possess ; I have lost; I am puished. What i formerly expended, I have; what I gave way, I have."'

[These lines are rudely engraved on his monument at Stratford-on-Avon. The last line is imitated from the damnation clauses of old Roman sepulchral inscriptions, of which this is a fair instance: "If any one shall disfigure this sepulchre, or shall open it, or move anything from it, to him let there be no earth to walk, no sea to sail, but may he be rooted ont with all his race. May he feel all diseases, shuddering, and fever, and madness, and whatsoever ills exist for beasts or men, may these light on him who dares move aught from this tomb."]

Underneath this marble hearse

Lies the subject of all verse:
Sidney's sister, Pembroke's mother.
Death, ere thou hast killed another:
Wise and virtuous, good as she, Time will throw his dart at thee. Epitaph on the Countess of Pembroke.
[This is how the epitaph reads on the lady's tomb. In many anthologies and in editions of Ben Jonson, to whom it has been constantly, but, in ail likelihood, erroneously attributed, the lines are usually given as follows:

Underneath this sable hearse
Lies the suhject of all verse,
Sidney's sister, Pembroke's mother;
Death. ere thon hast slain another
Fair, and learned, and good as she,
Time shall throw a dart at thee.
There seems good reason to believe that the poem was written, not by Ben Jonson, but by William Browne, the anthor of Britannia's Pastorals. Goodwin, the latest editor of Browne, has found a passage in which Browne himself seems to claim the epitaph as his. This occurs in his Elegy on Charles, Lord Herbert, a grandson of the Countess:
And since my weak and saddest verse
Was worthy thought to grace thy grandam's hearse,
Accept of this.

[^12]opinion among critics is that the Earl wrote only a second and inferior verse tacked on to it in this collection:

Marble piles let no man raise To her name; in after days Some kind woman born as she, Reading this, like Niobe,
Shall turn marble, and become
Both her mourner and her tomb.
Nevertheless, there is a possihility that Browne wrote this verse also, the concluding conceit being quite in his manner. Indeed, Browne employs a very similar conceit in one of the poems that is certainly his, au epitaph On One Drowned in the Snow:
Within a fleece of silent waters drowned
Before I met with death a grave I found;
That which exiled my life from her sweet home
For grief straight froze itself into a Tomb.
The first publication of the famous epitaph was in Osborne's Traditional Memoirs of the Reign of King James, 1658, but with no ascripion of authorship. It was first claimed for Ben Jonson by Peter Whalley, who published a collected edition of his works in 1756, but who only alleges popular tradition as his authority.]
Underneath this stone doth lie As much beauty as could die;
Which in life did harbour give
To more virtue than doth live.

The best may slip, and the most cantions fall;
He's more than mortal that ne'er err'd at all.
Pompret. Love Triumphant over Reason. 1. 145.

Good nature and good sense must ever join ; To err is human, to forgive divine.

Pope. Essay on Criticism Pt. ii. 1. 525.
Man-like it is to fall into sin,
Fiend-like it is to dwell therein;
Christ-like it is for sin to grieve,
God-like it is all sin to leave.
Fr. von Logad. Sinnegedichte.
Es irrt der Mensch so lang er strebt.
While man's desires and aspirations stir, He cannot choose hut err.

Goethe. Faust, Prolog im Himmel. Der Herr. 1. 77.
[The translation is Bayard Taylor's, who confesses himself dissatisfied with his own as well as with all other reuderings of a difficult line: "It has seemed to me impossibie to give the full meaning of these words-that error is a natural accompaniment of the struggles and aspirations of man-in a single line.']

Messala. O bateful error, melancholy's child!
Why dost thou shew to the apt thoughts of men
The things that are not? O error, soon conceiv'd,
Thou never com'st unto a happy birth,
But kill'st the mother that engender'd thee.
Shakespfare. Julius Cæsar. Act v. Sc. 3. 1. 67.

Errors, like straws, upon the surface flow;
He who would search for pearls, must dive below.

Dryden. All for Love. Prologue.
Some positive, persisting fops we know,
Who, if once wrong, will needs be always so;
But you with pleasure own your errors past,
And make each day a critique on the last.
Pope. Essay on Criticism. Pt. iii. 1. 9.
Ignorance is a blank sheet on which we may write; but error is a scribbled one on which we must first erase.

Colton. Lacon. i.
Quand tout le monde a tort, tout le monde a raison.

When every one is in the wrong, every one is in the right.

La Craussee. La Gouvernante. i. 3.
Better to err with Pope than shine with Pye.

> BYons. English Bards and Scotch Reviewers. 1. 102.

Errare mehercule malo cum Platone, quem tu quanti facias, scio quam cum istis vera sentire.
By Hercules! I prefer to err with Plato, whom I know how much you value, than to be right in the company of such men.

Cicero. Tusculanarum Disputationum. I. 17.

ESTRANGEMENT.

Brutus. Thou hast describ'd
A hot friend cooling: Ever note, Lucilius,
When love begins to sicken and decay,
It useth an entorced ceremony.
There are no tricks in plain and simple faith :
But hollow men, like horses hot at hand, Make gallant show and promise of their mettle:
But when they should endure the bloody spur,
They fall their crests, and, like deceitful jades,
Sink in the trial.
Shakespeare. Julius Cwar. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 18.

Dissensions, like small streams at first begun,
Unseen they rise, but gather as they run. Garth. Dispensary. Canto iii. l. 184.

Alas! they had been friends in youth;
But whispering tongues can poison truth,
And constancy lives in realms above ;
And life is thorny, and youth is vain,
And to be wroth with one we love
Doth work like madness in the brain.
And thus it chanced as I divine
With Roland and Sir Leoline,
Each spake words of high disdain
And insult to his heart's best brother.
They parted-ne'er to meet again!
But never either found another
To free the hollow heart from paining,
They stood aloof, the scars remaining, -
Like cliffs which had been rent asunder:
A dreary sea now flows between.
Coleridge. Christabel. Pt.ii. l. 97.
Now, where the swift Rhone cleaves his way between Heights which appear as lovers who have parted
In hate, whose mining depths so intervene
That they can meet no more, though broken-hearted;
Though in their souls, which thus each other thwarted,
Love was the very root of the fond rage
Which blighted their life's bloom, and then departed:
Itself expired, but leaving them an age
Of years all winters,-war within themselves to wage.
Byron. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 94.

Alas-how light a cause may move
Dissension between hearts that lovel
Hearts that the world in vain had tried, And sorrow but more closely tied;
That stood the storm when waves were rough,
Yet in a sunny hour fall off
Like ships that have gone down at sea,
When heaven was all tranquillity.
Moore. Lalla Rookh: Light of the Harem. l. 183.

Our love was like most other loves ;
A little glow, a little shiver,
A rose bud, and a pair of gloves,
And "Fly not yet"-upon the river;
Some jealousy of some one's heir, Some hopes of dying broken-hearted,
A miniature, a lock of hair,
The usual vows,-and then we parted. William Mackworte Pbaed. The Belle of the Bati.

We parted; months and years rolled by;
We met again four summers after;
Our parting was all sob and sigh; Our meeting was all mirth and laughter:
For in my heart's most secret cell There had been many other lodgers;
And she was not the ball-room's belle;
But only-Mrs. Something Rogers ! Ibid. The Belle of the Ball.

Zara. Heaven has no rage like love to hatred turned,
Nor hell a fury like a woman scorned. Congreye. The Mourning Bride. Act iii. Sc. 8.

In the extract already quoted from Col eridge's. Christabel, two lines ("But to be wroth," etc.) may be a reminiscence of Congreve's first line. But Congreve himself had been anticipated, noticeably by Colley Cibber:
Flareit. He sball find no Fiend in Hell can match the fury of a disappointed woman.

Colley Cibber. Lowe's Last Shift. Act iv. Sc. 1.

Leonora. A slighted woman knows no bounds.

Vanbrdgr. The Mistake. Act ii. Sc. 1.
Cassander. Is any Panther's, Lioness's rage
So furious, any Torrent's fall so swift
As a wrong'd woman's hate?
Nath. Lee. Alexander the Great. Act 1. Sc. 1.

ETERNITY.

(See Immortality.)
This is the promise that He hath promised us, evin eternal life. New 'lestament. I. John ii. 25.
Esto perpetual
Be thou perpetual!
Pietro Sarpi. Dying apostrophe to Venice. January 15, 1623.
Nothing is there to come, and nothing past,
But an eternal now does always last.
Cowley. Davideis. Bk. i. 1. 25.
One of our poets-which is it?-speaks of an everlasting now. If such a condition of existence were oftered to us in this world, and it were put to the vote whether we should accept the offer and fix all things immutably as they are, who are they whose votes would be given in the affirmative? Southey. The Doctor. Ch. xxy. p. 1.
The time will come when every change shall cease,
This quick revolving wheel shall rest in peace:
No summer then shall glow, nor winter freeze;
Nothing shall be to come, and uothing;past, But an eternal now shall ever last.

Petrapich. The Triumph of Eternity. 1. 117.

The poorest day that passes over us is the conflux of two Eternities; it is made up of currents that issue from the remotest Past and flow onwards into the remotest Future. Carlyle. Essays: Signs of the Times.
One life,-a little gleam of time between two Eternities.

Ibid. Hero-worship. The Hero as Man of Letters
This speck of life in time's great wilderness, This narrow isthmus 'twixt two boundless seas,
The past, the future, two eternities!
Moore. Lalla Rookh: The Veiled Prophet of Khorassan. St. 42.
Placed on this isthmus of a middle state, A being darkly wise and rudely great. Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle ii. l. 3.
Vain, weak-built isthmus which dost proudly rise
Up between two eternities.
Cowley. Ode on Life and Fame.
Think not thy time short in this world, since the world itself is not long. The created world is but a small parenthesis in eternity, and a short interposition, for a time, between such a state of duration as was before it and may be after it.

Sir Thomas Browne. Christian Morals. Pt. iii. $x$ xix.

A Moment's Halt,-a momentary taste Of BeINg from the Well amid the Waste,And, Lol the phantom Caravan has reached  The Nothing it set out from. Oh, make haste!  Omar Khayyam. Rubaiyat. St. Xlviii.

Remember that man's life lies all within this present, as 't were but a hair's-breadth of time; as for the rest, the past is gone, the future yet unseen. Short, therefore, is man's life, and narrow is the corner of the earth wherein he dwells.

Marcus Aurelius, Meditations. 10.
'Tis the divinity that stirs within us;
'Tis heaven itself, that points out an hereafter,
And intimates eternity to man. Addison. Cato. Act v. Sc. 1.

That golden key,
That opes the palace of eternity. Milton. Comus. 1. 13.

Eternity! How know we but we stand On the precipitous and crumbling verge Of Time e'en now, Eternity below?

Arrabam Coles. The Microcosm and Other Poems. 1841. p. 125.

Eternity, thou pleasing, dreadful thought!
Through what variety of untried beings,
Through what new scenes and changes must we pass!
The wide, th $^{3}$ unbounded prospect lies before me,
But shadows, clouds, and darkness rest upon it.

Addison. Cato. Act v. Sc. 1.
Beyond the stars, and all this passing scene,
Where change shall cease, and Time shall be no more.

- Kirie White. Time. 1. 726.

A sudden thought strikes me,--let us swear an eternal friendship.

Frere. The Rovers. Act i. Sc. 1.
[The Rovers is a parody on Goethe's Stella. The particular scene in mind is that where Stella, after her paramour has shot himself in her presence and in that of the injured Wdfe, cries out to the latter, "Madam, Ihaye an inspiration! We will remain together!your hand on it! From this moment on I will never leave you."
In Otway's The Orphan occur these lines: Let us embrace, and from this very moment Vow an eternal misery together. (Act iv. sc. 2.)]

Eternity bids thee to forget.
Bybon. Lara. Canto 1. St. 23.
The thought of life that ne'er shall cease
Has something in it like despair.
Longfrilow. The Golden Legend. i. 1. 42.

EUPHEMISM.

Falstaff: Marry, then, sweet wag, when thou art King, let not us, that are squires of the Night's body, be called thieves of the Day's beauty ; let us be Diana's foresters, gentlemen of the shade, minions of the Moon; and let men say, we be men of good government, being governed as the sea is, by our noble and chaste mistress the Moon, under whose countenance we-steal.

Shakespeare. I. Henry IV. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 18.

Pistol. "Convey," the wise it call. "Steal P" foh ! a fico for the phrase. Ibid. Merry Wives of Windsor. Act i. sc. 3. l. 32.

EVENING.

(See also Sunset.)
First Murderer. Then stand with us. The west yet glimmers with some streaks of day:
Now spurs the lated traveller apace,
To gain the timely inn; and near approaches
The subject of our watch.
Sthakespeare. Macbeth. Act iii. sc. 3. 1. 4.

Armodo. In the posteriors of this day, which the rude multitude call the afternoon.

Ibid. Love's Labour's Lost. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 76.

Now came still evening on, and twilight gray
Had in her sober livery all things clad;
Silence accompany'd; for beast and bird,
They to their grassy coucl, these to their nests,
Were slunk, all but the wakeful nightingale;
She all night long her amorous descant sung;

Silence was pleas'd. Now glow'd the firmament
With living sapphires; Hesperus, that led
The starry host, rode brightest, till the monn,
Rising in clouded majesty, at length
Apparent queen unveil'd her peerless light,
And o'er the dark her silver mantle threw.
Milton. Paradise Lost: Bkiv. 1. 598.
When the gray-hooded Even,
Like a sad votarist in palmer's weed,
Rose from the hindmost wheel of Phœebus' wain.

Ibid. Comus. 1. 188.
And hie him home, at evening's close,
To sweet repast and calm repose.
Gray. Ode to Vicissitude. 1. 87.
The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd winds slowly o'er the lea, ${ }^{1}$
The ploughman homeward plods his weary way.
And leaves the world to darkness and to me.
Ibid. Elegy in a Country Churchyard. 1.1.
Now fades the glimmering landscape on the sight,
And all the air a solemn stillness holds,
Save where the beetle wheels his droning flight,
And drowsy tinklings lull the distant folds.
Ibid. Elegy in a Country Churchyard. 1.5.
The dews of the evening most carefully shon,-
Those tears of the sky for the loss of the sun.
Chesterfield. Advice to a Lady in Autumn.
Sweet was the sound, when oft, at evening's close,
Up yonder hill the village murmur rose;

[^13]There as I passed, with careless steps and slow,
The mingling notes came soften'd from below;
The swain responsive as the milkmaid sung,
The sober herd that low'd to meet their young;
The noisy geese that gabbled o'er the pool,
The playful children just let loose from school;
The watch-dog's voice that bay'd the whispering wind,
And the lond laugh that spoke the vacant mind;
These all in sweet confusion sought the shade,
And fill'd each pause the nightingale had made.
GoLDsmith. The Deserted Village. 1. 113.

At the close of the day when the hamlet - is still,

And mortals the sweets of forgetfulness prove,
When naught but the torrent is heard on the hill,
And naught but the nightingale's song in the grove.

Beatite. The Hermit. 1. 1.
Come to the sunset tree $]$
The day is past and gone;
The wondman's axe lies free,
And the reaper's work is done. Mrs. Hemans. Evening Song of the Tyrolese Peasants.

Evening came on;
The beams of sunset hung their rainbow hues
High 'mid the shifting domes of sheeted spray
That canopied his path o'er the waste deep;
Twilight, ascending slowly from the east,
Entwined in duskier wreathes her braided locks
O'er the fair front and radiant eyes of day:
Night followed, clad with stars.
Shelley. Alastor.

It is the hour when from the boughs
The nightingale's high note is heard;
It is the hour when lovers' yows
Seem sweet in every whispered word:
And gentle winds, and waters near,
Make music to the lonely ear.
Each flower the dews have lightly wet,
And in the sky the stars are met,
And on the wave is deeper blue,
And on the leaf a browner hue,
And in the heaven that clear obscure,
So sottly dark, and darkly pure,
Which follows the decline of day,
Astwilightmelts beneath the moon away. Byron. Parisina. St. 1.
The holy time is quiet as a Non
Breathless with adoration.
Wordsworth. It is a Beauteous Evening.
When the sun's last rays are fading
Into twilight soft and dim.
Theonore L. Bareer. Thou Wilt Think of Me Again.
To me at least was never evening yet
But seemed far beautifullerthan its day. Robert Browning. The Ring and the Book. Pompilia. 1. 357.
The day is done, and the darkness
Falls from the wings of Night,
As a feather is wafted downward
From an eagle in his flight.
Longrellow. The Day is Done.
And the night shall be filled with music,
And the cares that infest the day
Shall fold their tents like the Arabs,
And as silently steal away.
Ibid. The Day is Done.

EVIDENCE.

Things true and evident must of necessity be recognized by those who would contradict them.

Epicteros. Concerning the Epicureans.
Waruick. Who finds the heifer dead and bleeding fresh
And sees fast by a butcher with an axe, But will suspect 'twas he that made the slaughter?
Who finds the partridge in the puttock's nest,
But may imagine how the bird was dead, Although the kite soar with unbloodied beak?
Shakespeare. II. Henry VI. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 188.

Smith. Sir, he made a chimney in my father's house, and the bricks are alive at this day to testify it; therefore deny it not.

Shakespeare. II. Henty VI. Activ. Sc. 2. 1.156.
Othello. Be sure of it; give me the ocular proof.

Ibid. Othello. Act iii. Sc. 3. 1. 360.
The proof of the pudding is in the eating.

Cervantes. Don Quixote. Ch. xxiv.
"Can this be true 9 " an arch observer cries, -
"Yes," rather moved, " I saw it with these eyes.
Sir 1 I believe it on that ground alone; I could not had I seen it with my own." Cowper. Conversation. 1. 231.

EVIL.

Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.

New Testament. Romans xii. 21.
Woe unto them that call evil good and good evil.

Old Testament. Isaiah $\mathbf{~} .20$.
All good to me is lost;
Evil, be thou my good.
Mllton. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 109.
Honi soit qui mal y pense.
Evil to him who evil thinks.
Motto of the Order of the Garter and of Great Britain.
Hamlet. And makes ns rather bear those ills we have
Than fly to others that we know not of. Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 81.

Habeas, ut nactus : nota mala res optuma 'st.
Keep what you have. The evil that we know is the better of the two.

Pladtus. Trinummus. i. $2,25$.
Hoc sustinete majus ne veniat malum.
Bear the ills ye have, lest worse befall ye. Phaedrus. Fables. i. 2, 31.
The oldest and best known evil was ever more supportable than one that was new and untried.

Montaigne. Essays. Of Vanaty.
But as the flounder dooth,
Leape out of the frying pan into the fyre.
John Heywoon. Proverbs. Bk. ii. Ch. v .

Unruly blasts wait on the tender spring ; Unwholesome weeds take root with precious flowers;
The adder hisses where the sweet birds sing ;
What virtue breeds, iniquity devours:
We have no good that we can say is ours,
But ill-annexed opportunity
O'er kills his life, or else his quality. Shakespeare. The Rape of Lucrece. 1. 869.

And out of good still to find means of evil.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. l. 165.

Prometheus. Evil minds

Change good to their own nature.
Shelley. Prometheus Unbound. Act i.
Oft hath even a whole city reaped the evil fruit of a bad man.

Hesiod. Works and Days. 1. 240.
One man's wickedness may easily become all men's curse.

Publilius Syrus. Maxim 463.
For himself doth a man work evil in working evils for another.

Hesiod. Works and Days. 1. 265.
When to mischief mortals bend their will,
How soon they find fit instruments of ill!
Pope. Rape of the Lock. Canto iii. St. 125.

He who is bent on doing evil can never want occasion.

Publilius Syrus. Maxim 459.
That evil is half cured whose cause we know.

Churchill. Gotham. Bk. iii. 1. 652.
But evil is wrought by want of Thought, As well as want of Heart!

Hood. The Lady's Dream. St. 16.
Time to me this truth has taught
('Tis a treasure worth revealing),
More offend by want of thought
Than from any want of feeling. Charles SWain. Want of Thought.
King. There is some soul of goodness in things evil,
Would men observingly distil it out ;
For our bad neighbour makes us early stirrers,
Which is both healthful and good husbandry:
Besides, they are our outward consciences,

And preachers to us all; admonishing
That we should dress us fairly for our end.
Thus may we gather honey from the weed,
And make a moral of the devil himself. Shakespeare. Henry V. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 4.

Friar. O, mickle is the powerful grace that lies
In herbs, plants, stones, and their true qualities:
For nought so vile that on the earth doth live
But to the earth some special good doth give,
Nor aught so good but strain'd from that fair use
Revolts from true birth, stumbling on abuse:
Virtue itself turns vice, being misapplied;
And vice sometimes by action dignified.
Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act ii. Sc. 3. 1. 15.

From seeming evil still educing good.
Thomson. Hymn. 1. 114.
First Lord. The web of our life is of a mingled yarn, good and ill together; our virtues would be proud if our faults whipped them not; and our crimes would despair if they were not cherished by our virtues.

Ibid. All's Well that Ends Well. Activ. Sc. 3. 1. 82.
Virtuous and vicious ev'ry man must be,
Few in th' extreme, hut all in the degree.
Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle ii. 1. 231.
Spirit. What we all love is good touched up with evil-
Religion's self must have a spice of devil.
A. H. Clovoh. Dipsychus. Sc. 3.

Known yet ignored, nor divined, nor unguessed,
Such is Man's law of life. Do we strive to declare
What is ill, what is good in our spinning? worst, best,
Change hues of a sudden; now here and now there
Flits the sign which decides; all about yet nowhere.
Browning. Parleyings with Certain People. Song of the Fates.
Evil is only good perverted. Longreliow. The Golden Legend. ii.
In men whom men denounce as ill
I see so much of goodness still;
In men whom men pronounce divine I see so much of sin and hlot;
I hesitate to draw the line
Between the two-where God has not.
Joaquin Miller. Bums.
I find that the best virtue I bave has in it some tincture of vice.

Montaione. Essays. That We Taste Nothing Pure.

He knows a baseness in his blood
At such strange war with something good, He may not do the thiug he would.

Tennyson. The Two Voices.
Antony. The evil that men do lives after them;
The good is often interred with their bones.
Shakespeare. Julius Cæsar. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 80.
Grifith. Men's evil manners live in brass; their virtues
We write in water.
Ibid. Henry VIII. Act iv. Sc. 2. I. 45.
Francisco. Injuries are writ in brass, kind Graccho,
And not to be forgotten.
Massingee. The Duke of Milan. Act v . Sc. 1.

All your better deeds
Shall be in water writ, but this in marble. Beaumont and Fletcher. Philaster. Act v . Sc. 3.
Linjure se grave en métal; et le bienfait s'escrit en l'onde.
An injury graves itself in metal, but a benefit writes itself in water.

Jean Bertaut. Circa 1611.
On adamant our wrongs we all engrave, But write our benefits upon the wave. King. The Art of Love. 1. 971.
For men use, if they have an evil tourne, to write it in marble; and whoso doth us a good tourne we write it in duste.

SIr Thomas More. Richard III. and his miserable End.
Some write their wrongs in marble: he more just,
Stoop'd down serene and wrote them in the dust,-
Trod under foot, the sport of every wind,
Swept from the earth and blotted from his mind.
Therc, secret in the grave, he bade tbem lie, And grieved they could not scape the Almighty eye.
Samuel Madden. Boulter's Monument.
Here lies one whose name was writ in water.

Keats. Epitaph engraved at his request on his tomb in Rome.
Lo! in the moonlight gleams a marble white,
On which I read: "Here lieth one whose name
Was writ in water." And was this the meed
Of his sweet singing? Rather let me write:
"The smoking flax before it burst to flame
Was quenched by death, and broken the bruised reed."

Longrellow. Keats.

But one sad losel soils a name for aye,
However mighty in the olden time;
Nor all that heralds rake from coffin'd clay,
Nor florid prose, nor honied lies of rhyme,
Can blazon evil deeds, or consecrate a crime.
Byron. Childe Harold. Cauto i. St. 3.

EVOLUTION.

A prima descendit origine mundi
Causarun series.
Even from the first beginnings of the world
Descends a chain of causes. Lucan. Pharsalia. vi. 608.
Anaximander says that men were first produced in fishes, and when they were grown up and able to help themselves were thrown up, and so lived upon the land.
Plutarch. Symposiacs. Bk. viii. Q. viii. So from the root
Springs lighter the green stalk, from thence the leaves
More aery, last the bright consummate flower
Spirits odorous breathes: flowers and their fruit,
Man's nourishment, by gradual scale sublimed,
To vital spirits aspire, to animal, To intellectual ; give both life and sense, Fancy and understanding; whence the soul
Reason receives, and reason is her being, Discursive or intuitive; discourse
Is oftest yours, the latter most is ours,
Differing but in degree, of kind the same.
Wonder not, then, what God for you saw good
If I refuse not, but convert, as yon,
To proper substance: time may come, when men
With angels may participate. Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. จ. l. 479.
A subtle chain of countless rings
The next unto the farthest brings:
The eye reads omens where it goes,
And speaks all languages the rose;
And, striving to be Man, the worm
Mounts through all the spires of form.
Emerson. Mayday.

From lower to the higher next, Not to the top, is Nature's text ; And embryo Good, to reach full stature, Absorbs the Evil in its nature. Lowell. Festina Lente. Moral.

Yet I doubt not through the ages one increasing purpose runs,
And the thoughts of men are widen'd with the process of the suns.

TENNYSon. Locksley Hall. 1. 137.
Therefore I summon age
To grant youth's heritage,
Life's struggle having so far reached its term:
Thence shall I pass, approved
A man, for aye removed
From the developed brute; a God though in the germ.

> Browning. Rabbi Ben Ezra.

I have called this principle, by which each slight variation, if useful, is preserved, by the term of Natural Selection.

Charles Darwin. The Origin of Species. Ch. iii.
We will now discuss in a little more detail the Struggle for Existence. Ibid. The origin of Species. Ch. iii.
The expression often used by Mr Herbert Spencer of the Survival of the Fittest is more accurate, and is sometimes equally convenient.

Ibid. The Origin of Species. Ch. iii.
This survival of the fittest, which I have here sought to express in mechanical terms, is that which Mr. Darwin has called "natural selection, or the preservation of favoured races in the struggle for life."

Herbert Spencer. Principles of Biology. Indirect Equilibration.
The perpetual struggle for room and food.

For nature is one with rapine, a harm no preacher can heal;
The Mayfly is torn by the swallow, the sparrow spear'd by the shrike,
And the whole little wood where I sit is a world of plunder and prey. TENYYSON. Maud. Iv. 4.

A man is the whole encyclopedia of facts. The creation of a thousand forests is in one acorn, and Egypt, Greece, Rome, Ganl, Britain, America, lie folded already in the first man. Emerson. Essayg. History.

There was an ape in the days that were earlier,
Centuries passed and his hair became curlier;
Centuries more gave a thumb to his wrist-
Then he was man and a Positivist. Mortimer Collins. The British Birds. St. 5.

EXAMPLE.

Duke. Thyself and thy belongings Are not thine own so proper as to waste Thyself upon thy virtues, they on thee.
Heaven doth with us as we with torches do,
Not light them for themselves; for if our virtues
Did not go forth of us, 'twere all alike
As if we had them not. Spirits are not finely touch'd
But to fine issues, nor Nature never lends
The smallest scruple of her excellence
But, like a thrifty goddess, she determines
Herself the glory of a creditor,
Both thauks and use.
Shakespeare. Measure for Meabure. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 29.

Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.

New Testament. Mathew v. 16.
Examples draw when precept fails, And sermons are less read than tales.
Prior. The Turtle and the Sparrow. 1.102.
Example is always more efficacious than precept.

Dr. Jonnson. Rasselas. Ch. Xxx.
Since truth and constancy are vain, Since neither love, nor sense of pain, Nor force of reason, can persuade,
Then let exanıple be obey'd.
George Granville (Lord Lansdowne). To Myra.

I do not give you to posterity as a pattern to imitate, but as an example to deter.

Junius. Letter xii. To the Duke of Grafton.
Example is the school of mankind, and they will learn at no other.

Burke. Letter i. On a Regicide. Peace. Vol. v. p. 331.
These taught us how to live; and (oh, too high
The price for knowledge I) taught us how to die.
Thomas Ticielll. On the Death of Mrr. Addison. 1. 81.

He who should teach men to die, would at the same time teach them to live.

Montaigne. Essays. Bk. i. Ch. xix.

Beilby Porteus, Death. 1. 316.
They that yet never learn'd to live and die, Will scarcely teach it others feelingly.
R. Baxter. Love Breathing Thanks and Praise. Pt. ii.
Those who have endeavoured to teach to die well, have tanght few to die willingly.

Dr. Jounson. Letter to Mr. Jos. Baretti. 10th June, 1761.
If from society we learn to live,
'Tis solitude should teach us how to die. Byron. Childe Harold. Canto iv. 33.
Allured to brighter worlds, and led the way.
Goldsmitr. Deserted Village. 1. 170.
(See Practice and Precept.)
Content to follow when we lead the way.
Homer. The Iliad. Bk. x. l.141. (POPE, trans.)
Be noble! and the nobleness that lies
In other men, sleeping, but never dead,
Will rise in majesty to meet thine own.
Loweld. Sonnet IV.
So our lives
In acts exemplarie, not only winne
Ourselves good Names, hut doth to others give Matter for virtuous Deedes, by which wee live.
George Chapman. Bubsy D'Ambois. Act i. Sc. I.
Princes that would their people should do well
Must at themselves begin, as at the head ;
For men, by their example, pattern out

Their imitations, and regard of laws:
A virtnous court a world to virtue draws.
Ben Jonson. Cynthia's Revels. Act v. Sc. 3.

Examples lead us, and we likely see;
Such as the prince is, will his people be.

Herrick. Hesperides. 761.
Virtue is not left to stand alone. He who practices it will have neighbors.

Confuclus. Analects. Bk. iv. Ch. xxv.
Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time. Longfellow. A Psalm of Life.
So when a great man dies,
For years beyond our ken,
The light he leaves behind him lies
Upon the paths of men.
Ibid. Charles Sumner. St. 9.

EXCESS.

Pelion imposuisse Olympo.
To pile Pelion on Olympus.
Horace. Odes. iii. 4, 52.
Ossa on Pelion thrice they strive to pile,
And upon Ossa leafy Olympus roll.

Horace. Satires. i. 3, 23.
Ignoscito saepe alteri; nunquam tibi.
Yon may often make excuses for another, never for yourself.

Públilites Syrds. 208.

Pembroke. When workmen strive to do better than well,
They do confound their skill in covetousness;
And, oftentimes, excusing of a fault
Doth make the fault the worse by the excuse,
As patches set upon a little breach
Discredit more in hiding of the fault
Than did the fault before it was so patched. Shakespeare. King John. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 30.

Qui s'excuse, s'accuse.

All are pleas'd, by partial passion led, To shift their follies on another's head.

Parnell. Elysium. 1. 103.
Stoop not then to poor excuse ;
Turn on the accuser roundly; say,
"Here am I, here will I abide
Forever to myself soothfast;
Go thon, sweet Heaven, or at thy pleasure stay!"
Already Heaven with thee its lot has cast,
For only it can absolutely deal.
Emerson. Sursum Corda.
A pologies only account for that which they do not alter.
Diskakli, Speech. July 28, 1871.

EXILE.

(See Banishment.)
Some natural tears they dropped, but wiped them soon:
The world was all hefore them, where to choose
Their place of rest, and Providence their guide.
They, hand in hand, with wandering steps and slow
Through Eden took their solitary way.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. xii. 1. 645.
Behold the duteous son, the sire decayed,
The modest matron, and the blushing maid,
Forc'd from their homes, a melancholy train,
To traverse climes beyond the Western main.
Where wild Oswego spreads her swamps around,
And Niagara stuns with thundering sound.

Goldsmith. Traveller. 1. 407.
There came to the beach a poor exile of Erin,
The dew on his thin robe was heavy and chill;
For his country he sigh'd, when at twilight repairing
To wander alone by the wind-beaten hill.

Campbell. The Exile of Eriz.
For I am as a weed,
Flung from the rock, on Ocean's foam, to sail,
Where'er the surge may sweep, the tempest's breath prevail.
Byron. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 2.

EXPERIENCE.

Credite experto.
Believe one who has tried it.
Virgil. Ameid. xi. 283.

I know

The past, and thence I will essay to glean A warning for the future, so that man May profit by his errors, and derive Experience from his folly; For, when the power of imparting joy Is equal to the will, the human soul

Requires no other heaven. shelley. Queen Mab. iii. 1. 6.
The only faith that wears well and holds its color in all weathers, is that which is woven of conviction and set with the sharp mordant of experience.

Lowell. My Study Windows. Abraham Lincotn. 1864.
A man used to vicissitudes is not easily dejected.

Johnson. Rasselas. Ch. xii.
In her experience all her friends relied, Hearen was her help and nature was her guide.

> CRABBE. Parish Register. Pt. iii.

To show the world what long experience gains
Requires not courage, though it calls for pains;
But at life's outset to inform mankind Is a bold effort of a valiant mind. Ibid. The Borough. Letter vii. 1.47.

EXPRESSION.

Preserving the sweetness of proportion and expressing itself beyond expression.

Ben Jonson. The Masque of Hymen.

Patience and sorrow strove
Who should express ber goodliest. You have seen
Sunshine and rain at once her smile and tears
Were like a better way.
Shakrspeare. King Leat. Act iv. Sc. 3. 1.18.

Expression is the dress of thought, and still Appears more decent as more suitable;
A vile conceit in pompous words express'd,
Is like a clown in regal purple dress'd.
Pope. Essay on Criticism. 1. 318.

EXTREMES.

The summer's flower is to the summer sweet,
Though to itself it only live and die,
But if that flower with base infection meet,
The basest weed outhraves his dignity;
For sweetest things turn sourest by their deeds;
Lilies that fester smell far worse than weeds.

Shakebpeare. Somnet xciv.
Wit, like tierce claret, when't begins to pall,
Neglected lies, and 's of no use at all, But in its full perfection of decay
Turns vinegar, and comes again in play.

Earl of Rochester.
Everye white will have its blacke, And everye sweet its soure.

Thos. Percy. Reliques. Sir Caarline. Pt. ii. 1. I.
The rose and thorn, the treasure and dragon, joy and sorrow, all mingle into one.

Shadi. The Gulistan. Ch. vii. Apologue
21. (Ross, trans.)

Th' extremes of glory and of shame,
Like east and west, become the same.
No Indian Prince has to his palace
More followers than a thief to the gallows.
Butler. Hudibras. Pt.ii. Canto i. 1. 271.

Thus each extreme to equal danger tends,
Plenty, as well as want, can sep'rate friends.

Cowley. Davideis. Bk. iii. 1. 205.
Extremes in nature equal good produce;
Extremes in man concur to general use.
Pope. Moral Essays. Epistle iii. 1. 161.
The way to rest is pain;
The road to resolution lies by doubt;
The next way home's the farthest way about.

The glorious lamp of heaven, the sun, The higher he's a-getting,
The sooner will his race be run, And nearer he's to setting.

Herrick.
Such huge extremes inhahit thy great mind,
Godlike, unmoved-and yet, like woman, kind.

Waller.
The fate of all extremes is such,
Men may be read, as well as books, too much.
Pope. Moral Essays. Epistle i. 1. 9.
Men are as much blinded by the extremes of misery as by the extremes of poverty.

Burke. Letter to Member of the National Assembly. 1791.

The rose is fairest when 'tis budding new,
And hope is brightest when it dawns from fears;
The rose is sweetest wash'd with morning dew,
And love is loveliest when embalm'd in tears.
Scotr. The Lady of the Lake. Canto iv. st. 1.

EYE.
I was eyes to the blind, and feet was I to the lame.

Old Testament. Job xxix. 15.
Spectatum veniunt, veniunt spectentur ut ipsæ.
The ladies come to see, and to be seen.

Ovin. Art of Love. 1. 99.
[Chaucer, Wyf of Bath, Prol., has:
And for to see, and eke for to be seye.]
Non laudandus est, quoi credit plus qui audit, quam qui videt;
Non placet, cum illi plus laudant, qui audiunt, quam qui vident;
Pluris est oculatus testis unus, quam auriti decem.
Qui audiunt, audita dicunt; qui vident plane sciunt.

I don't commend the man who rather trusts
His ears than eyes.-It discomposes me
When thase are louder in their commendations,
Who've only heard reports, than those who saw
The deeds performed.-And one eyewitness weighs
More than ten hearsays. Seeing is believing
All the world o'er.
Plautus. Truculentus. Act ii. Sc. 6, 6. (BONNELL THORNTON, trans.)
Segnius irritant animos demissa per aurem,
Quam quae sunt oculis subjecta fidelibus, et quae
Ipse sibi tradit spectator.
A thing when heard, remember, strikes less keen
On the spectator's mind than when 'tis seen.

T. Moore. Boat Glee. Song from M. P., or the Blue Stocking.

An eye's an eye, and whether black or blue
Is no great matter, so 'tis in request.
'Tis nonsense to dispute about a hue,
The kindest may be taken as a test.
The fair sex should be always fair ; and no man,
Till thirty, should perceive there's a plain woman.
Byron. Don Juan. Canto xiii. St. 20.
Her eye (I'm very fond of handsome eyes)
Was large and dark, suppressing half its fire
Until she spoke, then tlirough its soft disguise
Flash'd an expression more of pride than ire,
And love than either; and there would arise
A something in them which was not desire,
But would have been, perhaps, but for the soul,
Which struggled through and chasten'd down the whole.

Ibia. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 60.
Alas : how little can a moment show

Should sunder such sweet friends: Here in her hairs
The painter plays the spider; and hath woven
A golden mesh to entrap the hearts of men,
Faster than gnats in cobwebs: But her eyes,-
How could he see to do them? Having made one,
Methinks, it should have power to steal both his,
And leave itself unfurnish'd.
Shakespeare. Merchant of Venice. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 118.

In each cheek appears a pretty dimple:
Love made those hollows; if himself were slain,
He might be buried in a tomb so simple;
Foreknowing well, if there he came to lie,
Why, there Love lived and there he could not die.

Mathew Roydon. An Elegie ; or Friend's Passion for His Astrophill.
[This piece is sometimes ascribed to Spenser. It was first printed anonymously in The Phoenix' Nest, 4to, 1593.]

There is a garden in her face,
Where roses and white lilies show;
A heavenly paradise is that place,
Wherein all pleasant fruits do grow,
There cherries hang that none may buy,
Till cherry ripe themselves do cry.
Those cherries fairly do enclose
Of orient pearl a double row;
Which when her lovely langhter shows,
They look like rosebuds filled with snow.

At once with joy and fear his heart rebounds.
milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. 1.781.
The intelligible forms of ancient poets,
The fair humanities of old religion,
The power, the beauty, and the majesty
That had their haunts in dale or piny mountain,
Or forest by slow stream, or pebbly spring,
Or chasms and watery depths,-all these have vanished;
They live no longer in the faith of reason.
Coleridge. Wallenstein. Pt. i. Ant ii. Sc. 2. (Translated from Schiller.)
[These lines are an expansion of two of Schiller's, which are more literally translated by Ábraham Huyward:

The old fable-existences are no more ;
The fascinating race has emigrated.]
Here, in cool grot and mossy cell,
We rural fays and fairies dwell:
Though rarely seen by mortal eye,
When the pale moon, ascending high,
Darts through yon limes her quivering beams,
We frisk it near these crystal streams.
Shenstone. Lines inscribed on a Tablet in the Gardens at the Poet's residence, "The Leasowes."

Up the airy mountain,

William Allingeam. The Fairies.
I met a lady in the meads,
Full beautiful-a faery's child;
Her hair was long, her foot was light,
And her eyes were wild.
I set her on my pacing steed,
And nothing else saw all day long,
For side-long would she bend, and sing A faery song.

She took me to her elfin grot,
And there she wept, and sighed full sore,
And there I shut her wild, wild eyes
With kisses four.

Wolsey. Farewell, a long farewell, to all my greatness !
This is the state of man : to-day he puts forth
The tender leaves of hope; to-morrow blossoms,
And hears his blushing honours thick upon him :
The third day comes a frost, a killing frost;

And-when he thinks, good easy man, full surely
His greatness is a ripening-nips his root,
And then he falls, as I do. I. have ventured,
Like little wanton boys that swim on bladders.
This many summers in a sea of glory;
But far beyond my depth: my highblown pride
At length broke under me; and now has left me,
Weary and old with service, to the mercy
Of a rude stream, that must for ever hide me.
Vain pomp and glory of this world, I hate ye;
I feel my heart new open'd. $O$, how wretched
Is that poor man that hangs on princes' favours!
There is, betwixt that smile we would aspire to,
That sweet aspect of princes, and their ruin,
More pangs and fears than wars or women have;
And when he falls, he falls like Lucifer, Never to hope again.

Drummond of Hawtifornden. Sonnet.
Fame then was cheap, and the first comer sped;
And they have kept it since, by being dead.
Dryden. The Second Part of the Conquest of Grenada. Epilogue. 1. 11.

Fame's londest trump upon the ear of Time
Leaves but a dying echo; they alone
Are held in everlasting memory,
Whose deeds partake of heaven.
SOUTHEY. Verses spoken at Oxford upon the Installation of Lord Granville.

King. Let fame, that all hunt after in their lives,
Live register'd upon our brazen tombs.
And then grace us in the disgrace of death;
When, spite of cormorant devouring Time,
The endeavour of this present breath may buy
That honour which shall bate his scythe's keen edge,
And make us heirs of all eternity. Shakrgreare. Love's Labour's Lost. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 1.

Nothing can cover his high fame but Heaven:
No pyramids set off his memories
But the eternal substance of his greatness;
To which I leave him. beadmont and Fletcher. The False One. Act ii. Sc. 1.

Sloth views the towers of fame with envious eyes,
Desirous still, still impotent to rise.
Shenstone. Moral Pieces The Judgment of Hercules. 1. 436.

How few are found with real talents blest,
Fewer with nature's gifts contented rest. Man from his sphere eccentric starts astray;
All hant for fame ; but most mistake the way.

King. Then sball our names,
Familiar in his mouth as household words,-
Harry the king, Bedford and Exeter,
Warwick and Talbot, Salisbury and Gloster,-
Be in their flowing cups freshly renember'd:
This story shall the good man teach his son;
And Crispin Crispian shall ne"er go by,
From this day to the ending of the world,
But we in it shall be remembered:
We few, we happy few, we band of brothers.

And free from conscience, is a slave to fame.
Sir John Denham. Caoper's Hill. 1. 129.

Men the most infamous are fond of fame, And those who fear not guilt, yet start at shame.

Churceill. The Author. 1. 233.
I'll make thee glorions by my pen
And famous by my sword.
Marquis of Montrose. My Dear and Only Love.
[Scott, in the Legend of Montrase, quotes the lines as follows:
l'll make thee famous by my pen,
And glorious by my sword.
Scott. Legend of Mantrose. Ch. xv.]
Thus fame shall be achieved, renown on earth,
And what most merits fame in silence hid.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. xi. l. 698.
Fame is the spur that the clear spirit doth raise
(That last infirmity of noble mind)
To scorn delights and live laborions days;
But the fair guerdon when we hope to find,
And think to burst out into sudden blaze,
Comes the blind Fury with the abhorred shears,
And slits the thin-span life.
1bid. Lycidas. 170.
Read but o'er the stories
Of men most famed for courage and for counsel,
And you shall find that the desire for glory
(That last infirmity of noble minds)
Was the last frailty wise men e'er put off. Anon. Sir John van Otden Barnevelt.
This anonymous tragedy was prodnced in 1622, or fifteen years before Lycidas. Swinburne thinks the two respective lines in parentheses form "the most astonishing coineidence in the whole range of literature." But indced the thought seems to have been a classical commonplace of the period. Massinger has it in this form:
Though the desire of fame be the last weakness
Wise men put off.
A Very Woman. Act iii. Sc. 4.
The fountain head appears to be Tacitus:
Erant quihus appetentior famæ videretur, quando etiam sapientibus cupido glorix novissima exuitur.

Some might consider him as too fond of fame, for the desire of glory clings eveu to the wisest men longer than any other passion.

Historia. iv. 6.

The thought is developed a little in Boethius, who was probably more read in those days than Tacitus:

Hoc unum est, quod praestantes quidem natura mentes, sed nondum ad extremam manum virtutum perfectione perductas allicere possit, gloriæ scilicet cupido.

De Consolatione Philosophr. Bk. ii. Ch. 17.

Montaigne, in his essay on the Love of Fome, has the idea and supports it with a quotation from st. Augustine:

And of men's unreasonable humors it seemeth that the best philosophers domore slowly and more unwillingly clear themselves of this [thirst for fame] than of another. lt is the most peevish, the most froward, and the most obstinate of all infirmities: Quia etiam bene proficientes animos tentare non cessat. ${ }^{1}$

What's fame? a fancied life in others' breath.
A thing beyond as, e'en before our death.
Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle iv. 1. 237.
And what is Fame? the Meanest have their Day,
The Greatest can but blaze, and pass away.
rbid. First Book of Horace. Epistle vi. 1, 46.
Who pants for glory finds but short repose,
A breath revives him, or a breath o'erthrows.

Ibid. Satire v. 1. 300.
How vain that second life in others' breath,
The estate which wits inherit after death;

sir George Mackenzie. Essay on Preferring Solitude. (1665.)
Hudibras preceded this essay by two years.

Nor fame I slight, nor for her favors - call;

She comes unlooked for, if she comes at all.

Pope. Temple of Fame. 1.513.
Fame usually comes to those who are thinking about something else,--very rarely to those who say to themselves, "Go to, now let us be a celebrated individual!"' The struggle for fame, as such, commonly ends in notoriety ;-that ladder is easy to climb. but it leads to the pillory whicb is crowded with fools who conld not hold their tongues, and rogues who conld not hide their tricks. Holmes. The Autucrat of the Brealfasttalle. Ch. 12.

Then teach me, Heaven! to scorn the guilty bays,
Drive from my breast that wretched lust of praise;
Unblemish'd let me live, or die unknown :
Oh! grant an honest Fame, or gmant me none!
Pope. The Temple of Fame. Last lines.
Low ambition and the thirst of praise.
Cowrer. Table Talk. 1. 591.
If parts allure thee, think how Bacon shined,
The wisest, brightest, meanest of mankind:
Or, ravish'd with the whistling of a name,
See Cromwell, damn'd to everlasting fame.
Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle iv. 1. 281.
Charmed with the foolish whistling of a name.

As loss or guerdon of a glorious lot;
I stood and stand alone remember'd or forgot.
Byron. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 112.

Folly loves the martyrdom of fame.
Ibid. Monody on the Death of Sheridan. 1. 68.

What is the end of Fame? 'tis but to fill
A certain portion of uncertain paper :
Some liken it to climbing up a hill,
Whose summit, like all hills, is lost in vapour:
For this men write, speak, preach, and heroes kill,
And bards burn what they call their " midnight taper,"
To have, when the original is dust,
A name, a wretched picture, and worse bust.

FAMINE.

Romeo. Famine is in thy cheeks.
Sharespeare. Romeo and Juliet. Act $\mathbf{v}$. Sc. 1. 1. 67.
(For context see Apothecary.)
They that die by famine die by inches. Matriew heney. Commentaries. Psalm tix.

Famine can smile
On him who brings it food, and pass, with guile
Of thankful falsehood, like a courtier grey,
The house-dog of the throne; but many a mile
Comes Plague, a winged wolf, who loathes alway
The garbage and the scum that strangers make her prey.
Shelley. The Revolt of Islam. Canto x. St. Xxiv.

He is one of those wise philanthropists who in a time of famine would vote for nothing but a supply of toothpicks.

Douglas Jerrold's Wit.

FANCY.

Duke. So full of shapes is fancy,
That it alone is high-fantastical.
Shakespeare. Twelfth Night. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 14.

Sebastian. Let fancy still my sense in Lethe steep;
If it be thus to dream, still let me sleep ! Ibid. Tweltith Night. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1 61.

Oliver. Pacing through the forest,
Chewing the food of sweet and bitter fancy.
Ibid. As You Like It. Act iv. Sc. 3. 1. 101.
[Dyce and Staunton substitute "cud" for "food," and it is in this form that the line is most frequently quoted.]

Chew on fair fancy's food, nordeem unmeet
I will not with a bitter chase the sweet.
Ariosto. Orlando Furioso. Canto iii. St. 62. (Rose, trans.)

Tell me where is fancy bred,
Or in the heart or in the head?
How begot, how nourished? Reply, reply.
It is engenderd in the eyes,
With gazing fed; and fancy dies
In the cradle where it lies.
SHakespeare. Merchant of Venice. Actiii. Sc. 2. 1. 63. (Sung behind the scenes.)
For as by basill the scorpion is engendered, and by means of the same herb is destroyed : solove which by time and fancie is bred in an idle head, is hy time and fancie hanished from the heart: or, as the salamander, which heing a long space nourished in the fire, at the last quencheth it, so affection having taken hold of the fancie, and living, as it were, in the minde of the lover, in tract of time altereth and changeth the heate, and turneth it to chilnesse.

LYLY. Euphues.
While fancy, like the finger of a clock,
Runs the great circuit, and is still at home.

Cowper. The Task. Bk. iv. 1. 118.
We figure to ourselves
The thing we like, and then we build it up
As chance will have it, on the rock or sand:
For Thought is tired of wandering o'er the world,
And homebound Fancy runs her bark ashore.

Ever let the Fancy roam,
Pleasure never is at home.
KEATg. Fancy.
Fancy restores what vengeance snatcli'd away. Pope. Eloisa to Abelard. 1. 225,
Woe to the youth whom Fancy gains,
Winning from Reason's hand the reins,
Pity and woe! for such a mind
Is soft, contemplative, and kind. Scotr. Rokeby. Canto i. St. 31.
Ingenious Fancy, never better pleased
Than when employ'd $t$ ' accommodate the fair,
Heard the sweet moan with pity, and devised
The soft settee; one elbow at each end,
And in the midst an elbow it received,
United yet divided, twain at once.
Cowper. The Task. Bk. i. 1. 71.

It boots not to resist both wind and tide. Shasespeare. III. Henry VI. act iv. Sc. 3. l. 58.

Cosar. Let determined things to destiny Hold unbewail'd their way.

Ibid. Antony and Cteopatra. Act iii. Sc. 6. 1. 84.
'Tis vain to quarrel with our destiny.
Midoleton. A Trick to Catch the old One. Activ. Sc. 4.

Things are where things are, and, as fate
has willed,
So shall tbey be fulfilled.
Robert Browning. Agamemnon.
It lies not in our power to love or hate, For will in us is oper-rul'd by fate.

Marlowe, Hero and Leander. First Sestiad. 1. 167.

Othetlo. But, O vain boast!
Who can control his fate?
Shakespeare, Othello. Act v. Sc. 2. 1. 267.

Cassius. Men at some time are masters of their fates.

Ibid. Julius Cæsar. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 139.
Big with the fate of Rome.
Otway. Venice Preserved. Act iii. Sc. 1.
The dawn is overcast, the morning lowers, And heavily in clouds brings on the day, The great, the important day, big with the fate
Of Cato, and of Rome.
Admison. Cato. Act i. Sc. 1.

Big with the fate of Europe.
Tickell. Ode on Earl Stanhope's Voyage to France. St. 1.

Le présent est gros de l'avenir.
The present is hig with the future.
Leibnitz.
Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute.

Milmon. Paradise Lost. Bk. ii. 1. 560.
God made thee perfect, not immutable;
And good he made thee, but to persevere
He left it in thy power ; ordained thy will
By nature free, not over-rul'd by fate Inextricable, or strict necessity.
Our voluntary service he requires,
Not our necessitated.
Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. v. l. 524.
And sing to those that hold the vital shears;
And turn the adamantine spindle round, On which the fate of gods and men is wound.

Ibid. Arcades. 1.65.
Heaven from all creatures hides the Book of Fate,
All but the page prescribed, their present state:
From brutes what men, from men what spirits know ;
Or who could suffer heing here below?
The lamb thy riot dooms to bleed to-day,
Had he thy reason, would he skip and play?
Pleased to the last he crops the flowery food,
And licks the band just raised to shed his blood.
Oh! blindness to the future! kindly given,
That each may fill the circle mark'd by heaven,
Who sees, with equal eye, as God of all, A hero perish, or a sparrow fall.

Pope. Essay on Man. Eplstle i. 1. 77.
Seek not to know what must not be revealed;
Joys only fow where Fate is most concealed.
Too-busy man would find his sorrows more If future fortunes he should know before; For by that knowledge of his Destiny
He would not live at all, but always die.
dryden. Indian Queen. Actíii. Sc. 2.

Fate steals along with silent tread,
Found oftenest in what least we dread; Frowns in the storm with angry brow, But in the sunshine strikes the blow.

Cowper. A Fable. Moral.
Fate sits on these dark battlements and frowns,
And as the portal opens to receive me,
A voice in hollow murmurs through the courts
Tells of a nameless deed.
AnN RadCliffe.
[These lines, presumed to be Mrs. Radcliffe's, form the motto to her novel, The Mysteries of Udalpho.]

Though the mills of God grind slowly, yet they grind exceeding small;
Though with patience stands He waiting, with exactness grinds He all.
Frederick von logau. Retribution.
(Longfellow, trans.)
God's mills grind slow, but sure.
Herbert. Jacula Prudentum.
Fate is unpenetrated causes.
Emerson. Conduct of Life. Fate.
To bear is to conquer our fate.
Wornsworth. On Visiting a Scene in Argyleshire.

They who await
No gifts from chance, have conquered fate. Matthew Arnold. Resignation.

Nor learn that tempted Fate will leave the loftiest star.
Byron. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 38.

FATHER.

Servare cives major (virtus) est patrix patri.
'Tis more virtuous in the father of his country to toil for the well-being of its citizens.

Seneca. Octavia. 456.

Roma parentem,

Roma patrem patriæ Ciceronem libera dixit.
Rome, free Rome, hailed him with loud acclaim,
The father of his country-glorious name.
Juvenal. Satires. viii. 243. (Gifford,
[Literally, "Free Rome hailed Cicero as the parent, as the father of his country." This title was bestowed upon Cicero for his services in unmasking the conspiracy of Cataline. It has since been given either officially or affectiouately to many monarchs and rulers, to none more rightly than to George Washington.]

Brabantio. Who would be a father!
Shakespeare. Othello. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 165.

Launcelot. It is a wise father that knows his own child.

I bid. The Merchant of Venice. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 69.
Mother's wag, prettie hoy,
Father's sorrow, father's joy ;
When thy father first did see
Such a boy by him and me,
He was glad, I was woe;
Fortune changed made him so,
When he left his prettie boy,
Last his sorrow, first his joy.
B. Greene. Sephestia's Song to Her Child in Menaphon.
Theseus. To you your father should be as a god;
One that composed your beauties ; yea, and one
To whom you are but as a form in wax By him imprinted and within his power To leave the figure, or disfigure it.

Shakespeare. Midsummer Night's Dream. Act 1. Sc. 1. 1. 47.

FAULTS.

If lovers should mark everything a fault,
Affection would be like an ill-set book,
Whose faults might prove as big as half a volume.
Midnleton and Rowley. The Changeling. Act ii. Sc. 1.
Duke. That we were all, as some would seem to be,
Free from our faults, as faults from seeming, free!
Shakespeare. Measure for Measure. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 35.

Antony. Read not my blemishes in the world's report.

Ibid. Antony and Cleopatra. Act ii. Sc. 3. 1. 5.
Timon. Faults that are rich are fair. Ibid. Timon of Athens. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 13.

Rosalind. Every one fault seeming monstrous till his fellow-fault came to match it.

Shakespeare. As You Like It. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 330.
Roses have thorns, and silver fountains mud;
Clouds and eclipses stain both moon and sun;
And loathsome canker lives in sweetest bud.
All men make faults.
Ibid. Sonnet Xxxy.
Mariana. They say, best men are moulded out of faults;
And, for the most, become much more the better
For being a little bad. Ibid. Measure for Measure. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 437.

Ask me not, friend, what I approve or blame;
Perhaps I know not what I like or damn;
I can be pleased, and I dare own I am.
I read thee over with a lover's eye;
Thou hast no faults, or I no faults can spy;
Thou art all beauty, or all blindness I.
[This epigram, according to Leigh Hunt, was written by Lord Chesterfield in praise of David Mallet's Truth in Rhyme (1761), a detestable bit of flattery of Lord Bute, prime minister under George 111., but the better opinion is that it was addressed by Christopher Coddington to Samuel Garth in praise of The Dispensary (1696).]
'Tis a meaner part of sense
To find a fault than taste an excellence. Rochester. An Epilogue. 1. 6.
Careless their merits or their faults to scan,
His pity gave ere charity began.
Thus to relieve the wretched was his pride,
And e'en his failings leaned to virtue's side.

Goldsmith. Deserted Village.
All his faults are such that one loves him still the better for them. Ibid. The Good-natured Man. Act i.
There are some faults so nearly allied to excellence that we can scarce weed out the vice without eradicating the virtue. Ibid. The Good-natured Man. Act i.

Amiable weaknesses of human nature. Gibbon. Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. Ch. xiv.
Amiable weakness.
Fielding. Tom Jones. Bk. x. Ch. viii.
Is she not a wilderness of faults and follies?

Sherinan. The Duenna. Act i. Sc. 2.
No further seek his merits to disclose,
Or draw his frailties from their dread abode,
(There they alike in trembling hope repose,
The bosom of his Father and his God. Gray. Elegy in a Country Churchyard. Last stanza.

He is all fault, who hath no fault at all.

Tennyson. Launcelot and Elaine.
The greatest of faults, 1 should say, is to be conscions of noue.

Carlyle. Heroes and Hero Worship. The Hero as Prophel.

Faultily faultless, icily regular, splendidly null.

Tennyson. Maud. Pt.i. 2.
He has not a single redeeming defect. Disraeli. Said of Gladstone.

Nihil peccat, nisi quod nihil peccat.
He has no faults, except that he is faultless.
Pliny the Younger. Bk. ix. Epistolæ 26.
Addison has put the same thought in another form :
Curse all his virtues! they've undone his country.

Cato. Act iv. Sc. 4.
Whoever thinks a faultless piece to see, Thinks what ne'er was, nor is, nor e'er shall be.
Pope. Essay on Criticism. Pt. ii. 1. 53.
These lines are imitated partly from Sir John Suckling, in the epilogue to The Goblins,-
" High characters," cries one, and he would see Things that ne'er were, nor are, nor e'cr will be,- partly from Sheffield, Duke of Buckingham, in his Essay on Poetry:
There's no such thingin Nature; and you'll draw
A faultless monster which the world ne'er saw.

FEAR.

There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear.

Suffolk. True nobility is exempt from fear.

Shakespeare. 1I. Henry VI. Act iv. sc.1. 1. 129.
No one loves the man whom he fears. Aristotle.
Charmion: In time we hate that which we often fear.

Shakespeare. Antony and Cleopatra. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 12.

Necesse est multos timeat, quem multi timent.

He must necessarily fear many, whom many fear.

Seneca. De Ira. ii. 11.
Mnltis terribilis caveto multos.
If you are a terror to many, then heware of many.

Ausonius. Septem Sapientium Sententix, Periander. iv. 5.

The man who fears nothing is not less powerful than he who is feared by every one.

Schiller. Die Räuber. i. 1.
If you wish to fear nothing, consider that everything is to be feared.
SENECA. Quæstionum Naturalium. vi. 2.
Lady Macduff. When our actions do not,
Our fears do make us traitors.
Shakespeare. Macbeth. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1.3.

Immoderate valour swells into a vault, And fear, admitted into public councils, Betrays like treason.

Admison. Cato. Act ii. Sc. 1.
Laidy Macbeth. Infirm of purpose!
Give me the daggers. The sleeping and the dead
Are hut as pictures; 'tis the eye of childhood
That fears a painted devil. Shakespeare. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 52.

Macbeth. Then comes my fit again: I had else been perfect;
Whole as the marble, founded as the rock,
As broad and general as the casing air :

But now, I am cabin'd, cribb'd, confin'd, bound in
To saucy doubts and fears.
SHAKESPEARE. Macbeth. Act iii. Sc. 4. 1. 21.

Macbeth. I have almost forgot the taste of fears.
The time has been, my senses would bave cool'd
To hear a night-shriek; and my fell of hair
Would at a dismal treatise rouse, and stir
As life were in't. I have supp'd full with horrors;
Direness, familiar to my slaughterous thoughts,
Cannot once start me.-Wherefore was that cry?

1bid. Macbeth. Act V. Sc. 5. 1. 9.
Chessida. Blind fear, that seeming reason leads, finds safer footing than blind reason stumbling without fear: To fear the worst, oft cures the worst.

Let them fear bondage who are slaves to fear,
The sweetest freedom is an honest heart.
Ford. The Lady's Trial. Act i. Sc. 3.
The clouds dispelled, the sky resum'd her light,
And Nature stood recover'd of her fright, But fear, the last of ills, remain'd behind,
And horror heavy sat on every mind.
Dryden. Theodore and Honoria. 1. 336.

Nothing is so rash as fear; and the counsels of pusillanimity very rarely put off, whilst they are always sure to aggravate, the evils from which they would fly.

Burke. Letters an the Regicide Peace. i.

Sonvent la peur d'un mal nous conduit dans un pire.
Often the fear of one evil leads us into a worse.

Boileav. L'Art Poétique. i. 64.
Like one, that on a lonesome road
Doth walk in fear and dread,
And having once turned round walks on,
And turns no more his head;
Because he knows a frightful fiend
Doth close behind him tread.
Colerivoe. The Ancient Mariner. Pt. vi.
The fear of some divine and supreme powers keeps men in obedience.

Burton. Anatomy of Melanchaly. Pt. iii. Sec. 4. Memb. 1. Subsec. 2.
The fear o' hell 's a hangman's whip
To haud the wretch in order :
But where ye feel your honour grip,
Let that aye be your border.
BURNs. Epistle to a Young Friend. St. 8.
Full twenty times was Peter feared,
For once that Peter was respected.
Wordsworth. Peter Bell. Pt. i. St. 3.
Fear hath a hundred eyes that all agree To playue her beating heart.

Ibid. Ecclesiastical Sonnets. Pt. ii. 38.

Of Attic taste?
Milion. Sonnet. To Mr. Lawrence.
When the Sultan Shah-Zaman
Goes to the city Ispahan,
Even before he gets so far
As the place where the clustered palmtrees are,
At the last of the thirty palace-gates,
The pet of the harem, Rose-in-Bloom, Orders a feast in his favorite room-
Glittering square of colored ice,
Sweetened with syrup, tinctured with spice,
Creams, and cordials, and sugared dates,
Syrian apples, Othmanee quinces,
Limes and citrons and apricots,
And wines that are known to Eastern princes.
T. B. Aidrich. When the Sultan Goes to Ispahan.

FIDELITY.

(See Constangy; Loyalty.)
Ligarius. Set on your foot,
And with a heart new-fir'd I follow yon,
To do I know not what: but it sufficetli
That Brutus leads me on.
Shakespeare. Jutias Cærar. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 351.

Helena. You draw me, you hardhearted adamant;
But yet you draw not iron, for my heart
Is true as steel.
Seakespeare. Midsummer Night's Dream. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 195.
I mean not to run with the Hare and holde with the Hounde.

Lydy. Euphues: Euphues to Philautus.
To God, thy countrie, and thy friend be true.

Vaughan. Rules and Lessons. St. 8.
So spake the seraph Abdiel, faithful found
Among the faithless, faithful only he;
Among innumerable false, unmoved,
Unshaken, unseduced, unterrified,
His loyalty he kept, his love, his zeal ;
Nor number nor example with him wrought
To swerve from truth, or change his constant mind,
Though single.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. v. l. 896.
Is this he whom once, alone of many, I found faithful?

Sophocles. Electra.
Servant of God, well done; well hast thou fought
The better fight, who single hast maintained
Against revolted multitudes the cause
Of truth, in word mightier than they in arms;
And for the testimony of truth hast borne
Universal reproach, far worse to bear
Than violence; for this was all thy care,
To stand approved in sight of God, though worlds
Judged thee perverse.
Well done.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. vi. 1. 29.
Abra was ready ere I called her name;
And though I called another, Abra came.
Prior. Solomon: On the Vanity of the World. Bk. ii. 1. 364.
No man can mortgage his injustice as a pawn for his fidelity.

Burke. Reflections on the Revolution in France.
Fidelity's a virtue that ennobles
E'en servitude itself.
Mason. Elfrida.

FIRMAMENT.

(See Stars.)
The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handiwork.

Old Testament. Psalm xix. 1.
The spacious firmament on high,
With all the blue ethereal sky, And spangled heavens, a shining frame, Their great Original proclaim.

> ADDIson. Ode.

Soon as the evening shades prevail,
The moon takes up the wondrous tale, And nightly to the listening earth
Repeats the story of her birth;
While all the stars that round her burn,
And all the planets in their turn,
Confirm the tidings as they roll,
And spread the truth from pole to pole.
Ibia. Ode. St. 2.
Hamlet. Look you, this brave o'er-hanging firmament, this majestical roof
fretted with golden fire, why it appears no other thing to me than a foul and pestilent collection of vapors.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 312.
Now glow'd the firmament
With living sapphires; Hesperus, that led
The starry host, rode brightest, till the Moon,
Rising in clouded majesty, at length,
Apparent queen, unveil'd her peerless light,
And o'er the dark her silver mantle threw.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. 1. 604. The starry cope
Of heaven.
Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. 1. 992.
Heaven's ebon vault
Studded with stars unutterably bright,
Through which the moon's unclouded grandeur rolls,
Seems like a canopy which love has spread
To curtain her sleeping world.
Shelley. Queen Mab. iv.
FISH.
(See Angling.)
Gratiano. But fish not, with this melancholy bait,
For this fool gudgeon, this opinion.
Shakespeare. Merchant of Venice. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 101.

To fish in troubled waters.
Matthew Henry. Commentaries. Psalm $l x$.
All is fish that cometh to net.
J. Hexwoon. Proverbs. Pt. i. Ch. ii. [The same proverb is quoted in Gascoigne's Steele Glas (1575) and Tusser's Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandry. February Abstract.

Cato wondered how that city was preserved wherein a fish was sold for more than an ox.

Plutarch. Roman Apothegms. Cato the Etder.

Fishes that tipple in the deep
Know no such liberty.
Richard Lovelace. To Althea from Prison. St. 2.

Hamlet. A man may fish with the worm that hath eat of a king; and eat of the fish that hath fed of that worm.

Shakespeare. Hamtet. Act iv. Sc. 3. 1. 28.

Third Fisherman. Master, I marvel how the fishes live in the sea.

First Fisherman. Marry, as men do a-land: the great ones eat up the little ones.

Ibid. Pericles. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 26.
Mcn lived like fishes; the greater ones devoured the small.

Algernon Sidney. Discourses on Gowernment. Ch. ii. Sec. 18.

A fishing rod is an instrument with a worm at one end and a fool at the other.
[This jest has been varionsly ascribed to Dr. Jobnson and to Dean Swift, but it antedates both. A French writer of the seventeenth century, Gnyet by name, has these lines:
La ligne avec sa canne est un long instrument.
Dont le plus mince bout tient un petit reptile,
Et dont l'autre est tenu par un grand imbecile.
The line with its rod is a long instrument whose lesser end holds a small reptile, while the other is held by a great fool.]

FLAG.

Romeo. Beauty's ensign yet
Is crimson in thy lips, and in thy cheeks,
And death's pale flag is not advanced there.
Shakespeare. Romeo and Juliet. Act v. Sc. 3. 1. 94.

Who forthwith from the glittering staff unfurled
The imperial ensign, which, full high advanced,
Shone like a meteor streaming to the wind. ${ }^{1}$
Mrlton. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. 1. 535. (See under Halr.)

With gems and golden lnstre rich emhlazed,
Seraphic arms and trophies; all the while
Sonorous metal hlowing martial sounds : At which the universal host up sent
A shout that tore Hell's concave, and heyond
Frighted the reign of Chaos and old Night.

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. 1. 1. 538.
The meteor flag of England

Never with mightier glory than when we had rear'd thee on high,
Flying at top of the roofs in the ghastly siege of Lucknow-
Shot thro' the staff or the halyard, but ever we raised thee anew,
And ever upon the topmost roof our banner of England blew. Tennyson. The Defence of Lucknow.
'Tis the star-spangled banner, oh long may it wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave !
F. S. Kex. The Star-spangled Banner. St. 2.
${ }^{1}$ Loose his beard and hoary hair
Streamed like a meteor to the troubled air.

Gray. The Bard. i. 1. 19.

Praise the Power that hath made and preserved us a nation!
Then conquer we must when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto, "In God is our trust!"
And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the bome of the hrave.
F. S. Key. The Star-apangled Banner. St. 4.
"A song for our banner ?"-The watchword recall
Which gave the Republic her station ;
"United we stand-divided we fall ""
It made and preserves us a nation 1 George P. Morris. The Flag of Our Union.
The flag of our Union forever! Ibid. The Flag of Our Union.
Fling out, fling out, with cheer and shout,
To all the winds Our Country's Banner!
Be every har, and every star,
Displayed in full and glorious manner!
Blow, zephyrs, blow, keep the dear ensign flying!
Blow, zephyrs, sweetly mournful, sighing, sighing, sighing!
Abratham Cours. The Microcosm and Other Poems. p. 191.
When Freedom from her mountain height
Unfurled her standard to the air,
She tore the azure robe of night,
And set the stars of glory there.
She mingled with its gorgeous dyes
The milky haldric of the skies,
And striped its pure, celestial white,
With streakings of the morning light.
Flag of the free beart's hope and home 1
By angel hands to valor given;
Thy stars have lit the welkin dome,
And all thy hues were horn in heaven.
Forever float that standard sheet!
Where breathes the foe but falls before us,
With Freedom's soil beneath our feet,
And Freedom's banner streaming o'er us?
Josepf Rodman Draze. The American Flag.

A star for every State, and a State for every star.

Robert C. Winthrop. Address on Boston Common. 1862.

Ay, tear her tattered ensign down !
Long has it waved on high,
And many an eye has danced to see
That banner in the sky.
Holmes. Old Ironsides. St. 1.
Nail to the mast her holy flag,
Set every threadbare sail,
And give her to the god of storms,
The lightning and the gale!
Ibid. Old Ironsides. St. S.
If any one attempts to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot.

John A. Dix. Tetegram from Washington, January 29,1861 , ordering the arrest, at New Orteans, of Capt. Brishwood. commander of the revenue cutter McClennand, which it was feared he would turn over to the Confederates.

FLATTERY.

Flatterers looke like friends, as wolves, like doges.
G. Chapman. Byron's Conspiracie. Act iii. Sc. i.

Flattery

Is monstrous in a true friend.

He would not flatter Neptune for his trident,
Or Jove for's power to thunder.
Ibid. Coriolanus. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 255.
Hotspur. I cannot flatter: I do defy
The tongues of soothers; but a braver place
In my heart's love hath no man than yourself;
Nay, task me to my word ; approve me, Iord.
Ibid. I. Henry IV. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1.6.
Gloster. Because I cannot flatter, and speak fair,
Smile in men's faces, smooth, deceive, and cog,
Duck with French nods and apish courtesy,
I must be lield a rancorous enemy.
Ibid. Richard III. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 47.
Hamlet. Nay, do not think I flatter;
For what advancement nay I hope from thee,
That no revenue hast but thy good spirits,
To feed and clothe thee? Why should the poor be flatter'd?

No, let the candied tongue lick absurd pomp,
And crook the pregnant hinges of the knee,
Where thrift may follow fawning.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act iil. Sc. 2. 1. 54.

FLIRT.

(See Coquette.)

I assisted at the hirth of that most significant word "flirtation," which dropped from the most beautiful mouth in the world.

Lord Chesterfield. The World. No. 101.
(The owner of " the most beautiful mouth in the world" was Lady Frances Shirley.)
She who trifles with all
Is less likely to fall
Than she who but trifles with one.
Gsy. The Coquette, Mother and Daughler. St. iv.

Never wedding, ever wouing,
Still a lovelorn heart pursuing,
Read you not the wrong you're doing
In my cheeks pale hue?
All my life with sorrow strewing ;
Wed, or cease to woo.
Campbell. The Maid's Remonstrance.
At first I enchant a fair Sensitive plant,
Then I flirt with the Pink of perfection :
Then I seek a sweet Pea, and I whispcr, "For thee
I lave long felt a fond predilection."
A Lily I kiss, and exult in my bliss,
But I very soon search for a new lip;
And I pause in my flight to exclaim with delight,
"Oh I how dearly I love you, my Tulip!"
In short, you must know, I'm the Butterfly Beau.
T. Haynes Bayley. The Butterfly Beau.

A worthless woman! mere cold clay
As all false things are! but so fair,
She takes the breath of men away
Who gaze upon her unaware:
I would not play her larcenous tricks To have her looks !
E. B. Browning. Bianca Among the Nightingales. St. 12.

Or light or dark, or short or tall,
She sets a springe to snare them all;
All's one to her-above her fan
She'd make sweet eves at Caliban.

Oberon. Yet mark'd I where the bolt of Cupid fell:
It fell upon a little western flower,-
Before, milk-white; now purple with love's wound,-
And maidens call it love-in-idleness.
Fetch me that flower; the herb I show'd thee once;
The juice of it, on sleeping eyelids laid,
Will make or man or woman madly dote
Upon the next live creature that it sees.

Scort. Rokeby. Canto iii. St. 16.
The windflower and the violet, they perished long ago,
And the brier-rose and the orchis died amid the summer glow;
But on the hill the golden-rod, and the aster in the wood,
And the yellow sunflower by the brook, in autumn beauty stood,
Till fell the frost from the clear cold heaven, as falls the plague on men,
And the brightness of their smile was gone, from upland glade and glen.

Bryant. The Death of the Flowers.
Spake full well, in language quaint and olden,
One who dwelleth by the castled Rhine,
When he called the flowers, so blue and golden,
Stars, that in earth's firmament do shine.

LONGFELLOW. Flowers. St. 1.
[The poet alluded to is Frederick Wilhelm Carove, a citizen of Coblentz, on the Rhine, in Whose Story Without an End a water-drop is represented as relating her personal experiences, when suddenly "the root of a forget-me-not caught the drop of water by the hair and sucked her in, that she might become a floweret, and twinkle as brightly as a hlue star on the green firmament of earth."]

Elsewhere Longfellow has used the same idea in another form:
Blossomed the lovely stars, the forget-menots of the angels.

Evangeline. Pt. i. 3. 1. 857.
But here also he was anticipated by Erasmus Darwin, who addresses the stars as:

Flowers of the sky! ye, too, to age must yield,
Frail as your silken sisters of the field.
Economy of Nature. Canto iv.
(See Stars.)
Dear common flower, that grow'st beside the way,
Fringing the dusty road with harmless gold,

Thou art my tropics and mine Italy ;
To look at thee unlocks a warmer clime;
The eyes thou givest me
Are in the heart, and heed not space or time:
Not in mid June the golden cuirassed bee
Feels a more summer-like warm ravishment
In the white lily's breezy tent,
His fragrant Sybaris, than I, when first
From the dark green thy yellow circles burst.

Busy, curious, thirsty fly,
Drink with me and drink as I;
Freely welcome to my cup,
Conld'st thou sip and sip it up;
Make the most of life you may ;
Life is short and wears away.
William Oldys (1696-1761). On a Fly Drinking Out of a Cup of Ale.
Sterne imitated Oldys when he made his Uncle Toby release a fly he had caught with the words:
"Go, poor devil, get thee gone! Why should I hurt thee? This world surely is wide enough to hold both thee and me."

He was a wise pope that, when one that used to be merry with him before he was advanced to the popedom refrained afterwards to come at him (presuming he was busy in governing the Christian world), sent for him, bade him come again, and (says he) we will be merry as we were before, for thou little thinkest what a little foolery governs the whole world.

Salden. Table Talk. Pope.
Lord Chatham, writing to Lord Shelburne, says: " 1 t calls to my mind what some pope, Alexander VI. or Leo, said to a son of his afraid to undertake governing-i. $e_{\text {, }}$ con-founding-the Christian world:' Nescis, mi fili, quam parva sapientia hic noster mundus regitur.'" The pope referred to by both Selden and Lord Chatham was neither Alexander nor Leo, but Julius 11I. (1550-55), of whom the story is told that when a Portuguese monk pitied him because he had the weight of the world upon his shoulders, replied, "You would be surprised if you knew with how little expense of understanding the world is ruled."
A reminiscence of this papal phrase may have heen in the mind of Axel, Count Oxenstiern (1583-1654), the chancellor of Sweden, when he encouraged his son to accept an appointment to represent Sweden at the Peace Congress of Westphalia in 1648 : "An nescis, mi fili, quantilla prudentia mundus regitur?" "'Dost thou not know, my son, with how little wisdom the world is governed?')

Shakesppare. Romeo and Juliet. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 133.

The fool of nature stood with stupid eyes And gaping mouth, that testified surprise.
Dbyden. Cymon and Iphigenia. 1. 107.

Alimbo large and broad, since call'd

The Paradise of Fools.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. iii. 1. 495.
Limbus fatuorum (horderland of fools), the name given by the old school-men to that intermediate region between heaven and hell, where dwelt "the praiseless and the blameless dead" (Dantr, Inferno), or, in other words, fools, idiots, and lunatics. In modern usage the term, a Fool's Paradise, has grown to mean imaginary or unstable bliss:
Hence the Fool's Paradise, the statesman's scheme,
The air-built castle and the golden dream;
The maid's romantic wish, the chemist's flame,
And poet's vision of eternal fame.
Pope. Dunciad. Bk. iii. 1.9.
A fool's paradise is better than a wiseacre's purgatory.

George Colman. The Deuce is In Him. Act i. Sc. 1.

In this fool's paradise he drank delight.
Crabbe. The Borough Payers. Letter xii.

Thy fairest prospects, rightly viewed,
The Paradise of Fools.
BLacklock. Ode on the Refinements in Melaphysical Philosophy.

The fools we know have their own paradise, The wicked also have their proper Hell.

James Thomson. The City of Dreadful Night. xi.
Prince Henry. Thus we play the fool with the time; and the spirits of the wise sit in the clouds and mock us.

Shafespeare. II. Henty IV. Act ii. sc 2. 1.154.

Celia. For always the dulness of the fool is the whetstone of the wits.
Ibid. As You Like It. Act i. Sc. 2. 1.58.
Jaques. A fool, a fooll I met a fool i' the forest,
A motley fool; a miserable world!
As I do live by food, I met a fool;
Who laid him down and bask'd him in the sun,
And rail'd' on Lady Fortune in good terms,
In good set terms.
Ibid. As You Like It. Act ii. Sc. 7. 1. 12.

Jaques. When I did hear
The motley fool thus moral on the time,
My lungs began to crow like chanticleer,
That fools should be so deep-contemplative;
And I did laugh sans intermission
An hour by his dial.
Shakespeare. As You Like It. Act ii. Sc. 7. 1. 28.

Jaques. Thiere is, sure, another flood toward, and these couples are coming to the ark! Here comes a pair of very strange beasts, which in all tongues are called fools.
Ibid. As You Like It. Act v. Sc. 4. 1. 36.
Jaques. O noble fool!
A worthy fool! Motley's the only wear.
Ibid. As You Like It. Act ii. Sc. 7. 1. 33 .
Touchstone. The more pity, that fools may not speak wisely, what wise men do foolishly.

Celia. By my troth, thou say'st true; for since the little wit that fools have was silenced, the little foolery that wise men have makes a great show. Here comes Monsieur Le Bean.
Ibid. As You Like It. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 79.
Clown. Better a witty fool than a foolish wit.

Ibid. Twelfth Night. Act i. Sc. v. 1. 37.
Duke of Orleans. A fool's bolt is soon shot.

Ibid. Henry V. Act iii. Sc. 7. 1. 118. Sotte's balt is sone shote.

Hendyng. Proverbs.
Jaques. I must have liberty
Withal, as large a charter as the wind
To blow on whom I please ; ${ }^{1}$ for so fools have:
And they that are most galled with my folly,
They most must laugh : And why, sir, must they so?
The why is plain as way to parish church : He , that a fool doth very wisely hit, Doth very foolishly, although he smart,
1 Canterbury. When he speaks
The air, a chartered libertine, is still.
SHAK CiSpeare. Henry $V$. Act i. Sc. 1.

Not to seem senseless of the bob: if not,
The wise man's folly is anatomiz'd
Even by the squand'ring glances of the fool.
Shakespeare. As You Like It. Act ii. Sc. 7. 1. 47.
Hamlet. Let the doors be shut upon him, that he may play the fool nowhere but in's own house.

Ibid. Hambet. Act iii. Sc. 1. l. 134.
Thurio. I hold him but a fool that will endanger
His body for a girl that loves him not.
Ibid. Two Gentlemen of Verona. Act $\mathbf{v}$. Sc. 4. 1. 133.

Painted fools
Are caught with silken shows.
Drayton. The Quest of Cynthia.
Young men think old men are fools; but old men know young men are fools.

George chapman. all Fools. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 292.
Young men think old men fools, and old men know young men to be so. Quoted by Camden as a saying of Dr. metcalf.
We think our fathers fools, so wise we grow;
Our wiser sons, no doubt, will think us so. Pope. Essay on Criticism. Pt. ii. 1. 438.
Every inch that is not fool, is rogue.
Dryden. Absalom and Achitophel. Pt. ii. 1. 463 .

Fools are made for jests to men of sense.
Farquhar. The Beaux stratagem. Prologue.
You'll find at last this maxim true,
Fools are the game which knaves pursue.
Gay. Fables. Pt. ii. 12. Fan and Fortune. 1. 61.

No place so sacred from such fops is barr'd,
Nor is Paul's church more safe than Paul's church yard:
Nay, fly to altars; there they'll talk you dead
For fools rush in where angels fear to tread.
Pope. Essay on Criticism. Pt. iii. 1. 625.
Where men of judgment creepand feel their way,
The positive pronounce without dismay.
COWPER. Conversation. 1. 145.
While timorous knowledge stands considering,
Audacious ignorance hath dane the deed.
Danied.

Gloucester. The world is grown so had
That wrens may prey where eagles dare not perch.
SHaxispeare. Richard III. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 69.

Where Mars might quake to tread.
Byron. Childe Harotd. Canto i. St. 54.
Leave such to trifle with more grace and ease,
Whom Folly pleases, and whose Follies please.
Pope. Second Book of Horace. Epistle ii. Concluding lines.

Just as a blockhead rubs his thoughtless skull,
And thanks his stars he was not born a fool.

Ibid. Epilogue of Jane Shore. 1. 7.
You think this cruel? take it for a rule,
No creature smarts so little as a fool.
Let peals of laughter, Codrus 1 round thee break,
Thou unconcern'd canst hear the mighty crack:
Pit, box, and gallery in convulsions hurl'd,
Thou stand'st unshook amidst a bursting world.
Who shames a scribbler? hreak one cohweb through,
He spins the slight, self-pleasing thread anew:
Destroy his fib, or sophistry, in vain,
The creature's at his dirty work again.
Ibid. Prologue to Satires. Epistle to Dr. Arbuthnol. 1. 88.

Nothing exceeds in ridicule, no douht, A fool in fashion, but a fool that's out;
His passion for absurdity's so strong,
He cannot bear a rival in the wrong.
Young. Love of Fame. Satire iv. 1. 105.
Men may live fools, but fools they cannot die.

Ibid. Night Thoughts. Night iv. Last line.
Oft has good nature been the fool's defence,
And honest meaning gilded want of sense. Shenstone. Ode to a Lady. I. 3.
'Tis hard if all is false that I advance, A fool must now and then be right by chance.

Cowper. Conversation. 1.95.

A shallow brain behind a serious mask, An oracle within an empty cask;

He says bnt little, and that little said
Owes all its weight, like loaded dice, to lead.
His wit invites you by his looks to come,
But when you knock it never is at home. Cowper. Conversation. 1. 297.

You beat your pate and fancy wit will come ;
Knock as you please, there's nobody at home.

POPE. Epigtam.
Fate never wounds more deep the generous heart,
Than when a blockhead's insult points the dart.

Dh. S. Johnson. London. 1. 166.
Fools will prate o' right and wrang,
While knaves laugh in their sleeve. Burns. The Five Carlines. St. 22 ,

A knave an' fool are plants of every soil.

Ibid. Scots Prologue.
Fools are my theme, let satire be my song.

Whilst from off the waters fleet
Thus I set my printless feet
O'er the cowslip's velvet head,
That bends not as I tread.
Militon. Comus. Sabrina's Song. 1. 896.
A foot more light, a step more true,
Ne'er from the heath-flower dashed the dew;
E'en the slight harehell raised its head,
Elastic from her airy tread.
Scotr. The Lady of the Lake. Canto i. St. 18.

The flower she touch'd on, dipt and rose,
And turn'd to look at her.
TENNYSON. The Talking Oak. St. 33.
The grass stoops not, she steps on it so light.
Shakespeare. Venus and Adonis. 1. 1028.
Her treading wonld not bend a blade of grass
Or shake the downy blue-ball from his stalk,
And where she went, the flowers took thickest root.
As she had sow'd them with her odorous foot.
BEN Jonson. The Sad Shepherd. Act i. Sc. 1.

FOP.

Bastard. Shall a beardless boy,
A cocker'd, silken wanton brave our fields,
And flesh his spirit in a warlike soil,
Mocking the air with colours idly spread,
And find no check?
Shak espeare. King John. Act y. Sc. 1. 1. 69.

King. A man in all the world's new fashion planted,
That hath a mint of phrases in his brain :
One whom the music of his own vain tongue
Doth ravish like enchanting harmony ;

A man of compliments, whom right and wrong
Have chose as umpire of their mutiny. Shakespeare. Love's Lobour's Lost. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 162.
Biron. This gallant pins the wenches on his sleeve;
Had he been Adam he had tempted Eve:
He can carve too, and lisp: Wby this is he,
That kiss'd away his hand in courtesy ;
This is the ape of form, monsieur the nice,
That when he plays at tables, chides the dice
In honourable terms.
Ibid. Love's Labour's Lost. Act F . Sc. 2. 1. 321.

Hotspur. When the fight was done,
When I was dry with rage and extreme toil,
Breathless and faint, leaning upon my sword,
Came there a certain lord, neat and trimly dress'd,
Fresh as a bridegroom; and his chin, new reap'd,
Show'd like a stubble-land at harvesthome.
He was perfumed like a milliner ;
And 'twixt his finger and his thamb he held
A pouncet-box, which ever and anon
He gave his nose, and took't away again;
Who therewith angry, when it next came there,
Took it in snuff. And still he smiled and talk ${ }^{2} \mathrm{~d}$;
And as the soldiers bore dead bodies by
He call'd them untaught knaves, unmannerly,
To bring a slovenly unhandsome corse
Betwixt the wind and his nobility.
With many holiday- and lady-terms
He question'd me; among the rest demanded
My prisoners, in your Majesty's behalf.
I then, all smarting, with my wounds being cold,
To be so pester'd with a popinjay,
Out of my grief and my impatience,
Answer'd neglectingly, I know not what,

He should, or he shonld not; for he made me mad,
To see bim shine so brisk, and smell so sweet,
And talk, so like a waiting-gentlewoman,
Of guns, and drums, and wounds-God save the mark!-
And telling me, the sovereign'st thing on earth
Was parmaceti, for an inward bruise;
And that it was great pity, so it was,
This villanous salt-petre should be digg'd
Out of the bowels of the harmless earth,
Which many a good tall fellow had destroy'd
So cowardly; and, but for these vile guns,
He would himself have been a soldier.
Shakespeare. I. Henry IV. Acti. Sc. 3. 1. 30 .

Accustom him to everything, that he may not be a Sir Paris, a carpet-knight, but a sinewy, hardy, and vigorous young man.

Montaigne. Essays: Of the Education of Children. Ch. xxv. (Cotron, trans.)
Soft carpet-knights, all scenting musk and amber.

Du Bartas. Dinine Weekes and Workes. (J. SYLVESTER, trans.)

Sir Fopling is a fool so nicely writ
The ladies would mistake him for a wit;
And, when he sings, talks lond, and cocks would cry,
I vow, methinks, he's pretty company:
So brisk, so gay, so travell'd, so refined,
As he took pains to graff upon his kind.
True fops help nature's work, and go to school,
To file and finish God Almighty's fool,
Yet none Sir Fopling him or him can call;
He's knight of the shire, and represents ye all.
From each he meets he culls whate'er he can;
Legion's his name, a people in a man. Dryden. Sir Fopling Flutter.
Of all the fools that pride can boast,
A Coxcomb claims distinction most.
Gay. Fables: The Bear in a Boat. Pt.
ii. Fable 5. 1, 17.

Sir Plume, of amber snuffi-box justly vain,
And the nice conduct of a clouded cane,
With earnest eyes and round unthinking face,
He first the snuff-box opened, then the case.
Pope. Rape of the Lock. Canto iv. 1. 123.
Squinting upon the lustre
Of the rich Rings which on lis fingers glistre;
And, snuffing with a wrythed nose the A mber,
The Musk and Civet that perfum'd the chamber.
Du Bartas, Divine Weekes and Workes. Second week. Third day. Pt. iii.
Nature made every fop to plague his brother,
Just as one beauty mortifies another.
Pope. Satires. iv. 1. 258.
Who knows a fool must know his brother;
One fop will recommend another. GAY. Fobles: The Lady and the Wasp.

Pt. i. Fable 9. 1. 11.
Pope. Let Sporus tremble.
Arbuthnot. What! that thing of silk,
Sporus-that mere white curd of asses milk.
Satire or sense ; alas ! can Sporus feel?
Who breaks a bitterfly upon a wheel?
Pope. Yet let me flap this bug with gilded wings,
This painted child of dirt, that stinks and stings;
Whose buzz the witty and the fair annoys,
Yet wit ne'er tastes, and beauty ne'er enjoys:
So well-bred spaniels civilly delight
In mumbling of the game they dare not bite.
Eternal smiles his emptiness betray,
As shallow streams run dimpling all the way.
Whether in florid impotence lie speaks,
And as the prompter breathes, the puppet squeaks,
Or at the ear of Eve, familiar toad,
Half froth, half venom, spits himself abroad.
Pope. Prologue to the Salires. 1. 305.
[Sporus, John Lord Hervey (1696-1743), a man of talent and energy, but utterly nuprincipled, drinking asses milk for indigestion, and ronging his face to conceal the ravages of disease.]

How his eyes languish! how his thoughts adore
That painted coat, which Joseph never worel
He shows, on holidays, a sacred pin,
That touch'd the ruff, that touch'd Queen Bess's chin.

A wit with dunces and a dunce with wits.
Pope. Duncind. Bk. iv. 1. 90.
This man [Chesterfield] I thought had been a lord among wits, but I find he is only a wit among lords.

Johnson. Boswell's Life. (1754.)
That dandy-despot, he,
That jewell'd mass of millinery,
That oil'd and curl'd Assyrian Bull Snelling of musk and of insolence. Tennyson. Maud. vi. 6.

But while I past he was humming an air,
Stopt, and then with a riding whip Leisurely tapping a glossy boot, And curving a contumelious lip, Gorgonized me from head to foot With a stony British stare.

Ibid. Maud. xiii. 2.

FORGIVENESS.

And forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us.

Bouk of Common Prayer. The Lord's Prayer.
[This is the version generally in use in English and American churches, both Catholic and Protestant. The original words of Christ as reportcd by two of the evangelists are thus translated in the Authorized Version of the New Testament:

And forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors.

Matthew vi. 12.
And forgive us our sins, for we also forgive everyone that is indebted to us.

Luke xi. 4.]

Shelley. Promelheus Unbound.
To suffer woes which hope thinks infinite;
To forgive wrongs darker than death or night;
To defy power which seems omnipotent;
To love and bear; to hope till hope creates
From its own wreck the thing it contemplates ;
Neither to change nor falter nor repent;
This, like thy glory, Titan, is to be
Good, great, and joyous; beautiful and free;
This alone Life, Joy, Empire, Victory ! Ibid. Prometheus Unbound.
No coward soul is mine,
No trembler in the world's stormtroubled sphere:
I see Heaven's glories shine,
And faith shines equal, arming me from fear.

Emily Bronte. Last Verses.

Out of the night that covers me,
Black as the Pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever gods may be
For my unconquerable soul.
W. E. Henley. Echoes. To R. T. H. B.

It matters not how straight the gate, How charged with punishments the scroll,
I am the master of my fate;
I am the captain of my sonl.
Ibid. Echoes. To R. T. H. B.

FORTUNE.  (See Fate.)

Fortune is like a widow won,
And truckles to the bold alone.
Somerville. The Fortune Hunter, Canto ii.
Fortune's friend is mishap's foe.

Ibid. Cymbetine. Act iv. Sc. 3. 1. 46.
Fortune, who oft proves
The careless wanderer's friend.
Wordsworti. The Excursion. Bk. ii. 1. 185.

Celia. Let us sit and mock the good housewife Fortune from her wheel, that her gifts may henceforth be bestowed equally.

Rosalind. I would we could do so, for her benefits are mightily misplaced; and the bountiful blind woman doth most mistake in her gifts to women.

Shakespeare. As You Like It. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 27.
King Henry. Will Fortune never come with both hands full,
But write her fair words still in foulest letters?
She eitber gives a stomach, and no food;
Such are the poor in health; or else a feast,
And takes away the stomach; such are the rich,
That have abundance and enjoy it not.
Ibid. II. Henry IV. Act iv. Sc. 4. 1. 103 .

Fortune, the great commandress of the world,
Hath divers ways to advance her followers:
To some she gives honor without deserving;
To other some, deserving without honor.
Some wit, some wealth,-and some, wit without wealth ;
Some wealth without wit ; some nor wit nor wealth.
George Ceapman. all Fools. Act v. sc. 1.
The bitter dregs of Fortune's cup to drain.

Homer. Miad. Bk. xxii. l. 85. (Pope, trans.)

Fortune hath in her honey galle. Chaucer. The Monke's Tale. 1. 557.

When Fortune is on our side, popular favour bears her company.

Poblilius Syrets. Maxim 275.
When Fortune flatters, she does it to betray.

Ibid. Maxim 277.
Fortune is like glass,-the brighter the glitter, the more easily broken.

Ibid. Maxim 280.
It is more easy to get a favour from fortune than to keep it.

Ibid. Maxim 282.
Non enim solum ipsa fortuna cæca est, sed eos etiam plerumque efficit (æcos quos complexa est.

Not only is fortune herself blind, but slie generally blinds those on whom she bestows her favours.

Cicero. De Amicitia. xv. 54.
Fluellen. Fortune is painted blind, with a muffer afore her eyes, to signify to you that Fortune is blind.

Seakespeare. Henty V. Act iii. Sc. 6. 1. 29.

Therefore if a man look sharply and attentively he shall see Fortune: for though she be blind, yet she is not invisible.

Bacon. Essays of Fortune.
Fortune makes him a fool, whom she makes her darling.

Ibid. Moral and Historical Works. Ornamenta Ralionalia.

Pistol. Giddy Fortune's furious fickle wheel.

Shakespeare. Henty V. Act iii. Se. 6. 1. 26.

Kent. A good man's fortune may grow out at heels.

Ibid. Kïng Lear. Act i̇. Sc. 2. 1. 152.
The poorest of the sex have still an itch To know their fortunes, equal to the rich.
The dairy-maid inquires, if she shall take
The trusty tailor, and the cook forsake.
Dryden. Sixth Satire of Juvenal. 1. 762.
I can enjoy her while she's kind;
But when she dances in the wind, And shakes the wings, and will not stay, I puff the prostitute away.

Ibid. Imitations of Horace. Bk. i. Ode 29. 1. 81 .

La fortune vend ce qu' ou croit qu'elle donce.

Fortune sells what she is thought to give.
la Fontane. Philemon and Baucis.
Vicissitudes of fortune, which spares neither man nor the proudest of his works, which buries empires and cities in a common grave.

Gibbon. Deciine and Fall of the Roman Empire. Ch. 1 xxi .

Fortune, my friend, I've often thought Is weak, if Art assist her not:
So equally all Arts are vain,
If Fortune help them not again.
Sherinan. Love Epistles of Arislænetus. Epistle xili.

FRANCE; FRENCHMEN.
"They order," said I, "this matter better in France."

Sterne. Sentimental Journey. 1.1.
And Frenche she spake ful fayre and fetisly,
After the scole of Stratford-atte-bowe,
For Frenche of Paris was to hire unknowe.
Chavcer. Canterbury Tales. Prologue. 1. 122.

Much like the French (or like ourselves, their apes),
Who with strange habit do disguise their shapes;

Who loving novels, full of affectation,
Receive the manners of each other nation.
Du Bartas. Divine Weeks and Works. First week. Second day. (JoHn SylvESTER, trans.)

And threatening France, placed like a painted Jove,
Kept idle thunder in his lifted liand. Dryden. Annus Mirabilis. 1. 155.

The Frenchman, easy, debonair, and brisk,
Gives him his lass, his fiddle, and his frisk,
Is always happy, reign whoever may, And laughs the sense of misery far away. COWPER. Table Talk. 1. 237.

Gay, sprightly land of mirth and social ease,
Pleased with thyself, whom all the world can please.

GoLdsmith. The Traveller. 1. 241.
Ye sons of France, awake to glory!
Hark! hark! what myriads bid you rise!
Your clildren, wives, and grandsires hoary,
Behold their tears and hear their cries !
Joseph Rovert De Lisle. Marseilles Hymn.

The King of France went up the hill
With twenty thousand men;
The King of France came down the hill,
And ne'er went up again.
Unknown. Oid Tarleton's Song.
[This ballad was printed in a tract entitled Pigge's Corantol, or News from the North.
Thackeray, in a paraphrase of Beranger's
Le Roi d' Yvetot, which he calls The King of Brentford, imitates the old jingle:
Each year he called his fighting men,
And marched a league from home and then Marched back again.
Beranger's words were:
D'ailleurs il ne levait de ban,
Que pour tirer quatre fois l'an
Au blanc.
In another King of Brentford paraphrase Thackeray came closer to his original:
Each year his mighty armies marched forth
in gallant show,
Their enemies were targets, their bullets they were tow.]

FRANKLIN, BENJAMIN.

Eripuit caelo fulmen, mox sceptra tyrannis.

He snatched the thunderbolt from heaven, the sceptre from tyrants.

> Turgot.
[According to Condorcet (Vic de Monsieur Turgot, p. 200 . London, 1786), this was the form in which Turgot wrote his inscription for the bust of "Franklin by Houdon. The misquotation, " Eripuit coelo fulmen, sceptrumque tyraunis," is more familiar. It is just possible that Turgot had in mind one or the other of the following:
Eripuit fulmenque Jovi, Phoeboque sagittas.

Cardinal de Polignac. Anti-Lucretius. i. 5,96 .

Eripuit Jovem fulmen viresque tonandi.
Manilius. Astronomica. i. 10.
Franklin's criticism of the line is amusing:
Notwithstanding my experiments with electricity, the thunderbolt continues to fall under our noses and beards; and as for the tyrant, there are a million of us still engaged at snatching away his sceptre.

Letter to Nogaret.]
But matchless Franklin! What a few Can hope to rival such as you.
Who seized from kings their sceptred pride
And turned the lightning's darts aside.
Philip Freneau. On the Death of Benjamin Franklin.

FREEDOM.

(See Liberty.)

A! fredome is a noble thing !
Fredome may man to haiff liking :
Fredome all solace to man giffis.
Barbour. The Bruce. Bk. i. 1. 224.
I made him just and right,
Sufficient to have stood, though free to fall.
Such I created all the ethereal Powers
And Spirits, both them who stood, and them who failed;
Freely they stood who stood, and fell who fell.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. iii. 1. 98.
I an as free as nature first made man,
Ere the base laws of servitude began,
When wild in woods the noble savage ran.
Dryden. Conquest of Granada. Act i. Sc. 1.

Freedom, which in no other land will thrive,
Freedom, an English subject's sole prerogative.
Dryden. Threnodia Augustalis. Canto $\mathbf{x}$. 1. 300 .

No, Freedon has a thousand charms to show
That slaves, lowe'er contented, never know.

Cowper. Table Talk. 1. 260.
He is the freeman whom the truth makes free,
And all are slaves besides.
Ibid. A Winter Morning's Walk. To tbose the truth makes free, Sacred as truth itself is luwful liberty.

AUbrey De Vere.
Can art, alas! or genius, guide the head
Where truth and freedom from the heart are fled?
Can lesser wheels repeat their native stroke,
When the prime function of the soul is broke?

AKENSIDE. Epistle to Curio. 1.265.
Hope for a season bade the world farewell,
And Freedom shrieked as Kosciusko fell!

On Prague's proud arch the fires of ruin glow.
CAmpeel. Pleasures of Hope. Pt.i. 1 . 381.

Yes I to this thought I hold with firm persistence;
The last result of wisdom stamps it true;
He only earns his freedom and existence
Who daily conquers them anew.
Goetie. Faust. Act v. Sc. 6. 1. 63.
(BAYARD TAYLOR, trans.)
The cause of Freedom is the cause of God.

Bowles. To Edmund Burke. 1, 78.
Hereditary bondsmen ! know ye not
Who would be free themselves must - strike the blow?

Byron. Childe Harold. Canto ii. St. 86.

For he was Freedom's champion, one of those,
The few in number, who had not o'erstept
The charter to chastise which she bestows On such as wield her weapons; he had kept
The whiteness of his soul, and thus men o'er him wept.
byron. Childe Harold. Canto iij. St. 57.
Yet, Freedom ! yet thy banner, torn, but fying,
Streams like the thunder-storm against the wind.
Ibid. Childe Harotd. Canto iv. St. 98.
For freedom's battle, once begun,
Bequeath' d by bleeding sire to son,
Though baffled oft, is ever won.
Ibid. Giaour. 1. 123.
March to the battlefield,
The foe is now before us;
Each heart is Freedom's shield,
And heaven is shining o'er us.
B. E. O'Meara, March to the Ballefeld.

Ay, call it holy ground,
The soil where first they trod!
They have left unstained what there they found -
Freedom to worship God. Mrs. Hemans. Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers. Concluding lines.
Blandislments will not fascinate us, nor will threats of a "halter" intimidate. For, under God, we are determined that wheresoever, whensoever, or howsoever we shall be called to make our exit, we will die free men. Jobiaf Quincy. Observations on the Boston Port Buil, 1774.
This hand, to tyrants ever sworn the foe,
For Freedom only deals the deadly blow;
Then sheathes in calm repose the vengeful blade,
For gentle peace in Freedom's ballowed shade.
J. Q. Adams. Written in an Album, 1842.

Manus haec inimica tyrannis
Ense petit placidam sub libertate quietam.
This hand is hostile only to tyrants, and draws the sword only to attain placid quiet under liberty.

Aloernon Sidney.
[Sidney inscribed these lines in the alhum of the University of Copenhagen. The first at least is not original. According to Notes and Queries, March 10, 1866 , it may be found in a patent granted in 1616 by Camden.]

Oh, Freedom! thou art not, as poets dream,
A fair young girl, with light and delicate limbs,
And wavy tresses gushing from the cap
With which the Roman master crowned his slave
When he took off the gyves. A bearded man,
Armed to the teeth, art thou; one mailed hand
Grasps the broad shield, and one the sword; thy brow,
Glorious in beauty though it be, is scarred
With tokens of old wars; thy massive limbs
Are strong with struggling.
Bryant. Antiquity of Freedom.
Freedom of religion; freedom of the press; freedom of person under the protection of the habeas corpus.

Thomas Jefferson. First Inaugural Address. March 4, 1801.

Free soil, free men, free speech, Fremont.
The Republican Party's Rallying Cry in 1856.
England may as well dam up the waters of the Nile with bulrushes as to fetter the step of Freedom, more prond and firm in this youthful land than where she treads the sequestered glens of Scotland, or couches herself among the magnificent mountains of Switzerland.

Lydia Maria Child. The Rebels. Ch. iv.
[Mrs. Child puts this flamboyant speech into the mouth of James Otis, one of the historical characters in her romance.]

How does the meadow-flower its bloom unfold?
Because the lovely little flower is free
Down to its root, and in that freedom bold.
Wordsworth. A Poet? He Hath Put His Heart to School.

I intend no modification of my oftexpressed wish that all men everywhere could be free.
abrabam Lincoln. Letter to Horace Greeley. Angust 22, 1862.

In giving freedom to the slave we assure freedom to the free,-honorable alike in what we give and what we preserve.

Ibid. Second Anmual Message to Congress, December 1, 1862.

My angel,-his name is Freedom,-
Choose him to be your king;
He shall cut pathways east and west, And fend you with his wing.

Emerson. Boston Hymn.
For what avail the plough or sail,
Or land or life, if freedom fail?
Ibid. Boston.

FRIEND; FRIENDSHIP.

Ah, youth ! forever dear, forever kind. Homer. The Iliad. Bk. xix. l. 303. (Pope, trans.)

Arcades ambo
Et cantare pares et respondere parati.
Both young Arcadians, both alike inspired
To sing, and answer as the song required.
Viroil. Eclogues. vii. 4. (Dryden, trans.)
[The poet means that their voices were matched so as to sing in duetor alternately. Arcades ambo is said separately of any couple of country folk of simple, unsophisticated ideas.]
That each pull'd different ways with many an oath,
"Arcades ambo," id est--blackguards hoth. Byron. Don Juan. Canto iv. St. 93.

Honest men esteem and value nothing so much in this world as a real friend. Such a one is as it were another self, to whom we impart our most secret thoughts, who partakes of our joy, and comforts us in our affliction; add to this, that his company is an everlasting pleasure to us.

Pilpay. Choice of Friends. Ch. iv.

Treat your friend as if he might become an enemy.

PubliliUS Syrus. Maxim 401.

This was a very common sentiment among the ancients:
Who is my foe, I must but hate as one
Whom I may yet call friend: and him who loves me,
Will I but serve and cherish as a man Whose love is not abiding.
(C. S. Calyerley, trans.)
(See under Enemy.)
Nothing is there more friendly to a man than a friend in need.

Plautus. Epidicus. Aet iii. Sc. 3. 1. 44.
But in deede,
A friend is never knowne till a man have neede.
JoHn Heywood. Proverbes. Pt. i. Ch. 9.
An amplification of the proverb:

\begin{aligned}
& \text { A friend in need } \\
& \text { Is a friend indeed. }
\end{aligned}

Timon. I am not of that feather to shake off
My friend when he must need me.
Shakespeare. Timon of Athens. Act $\mathbf{i}$. Sc. 1. 1. 100.
For friendship, of itself a holy tie,
Is made more sacred by adversity.
Dryden. The Hind and the Panther. Pt. iii. 1. 47.

If we from wealth to poverty descend,
Want gives to know the flatterer from the friend.

Ibia. Wife of Bath. 1. 485.
"Wal'r, my boy," replied the captain; "in the Proverbs of Solomon you will find the following words: ' May we never want a friend in need, nor a bottle to give him!' When found, make a note of."

Dickens. Dombey and Son. Vol. i. Ch. $x y$.

Come slowly to the banquets of thy friends, but swiftly to their misfortunes.
CHilo. (Stobaeus, Florilegium. iii. 79, 7.)
Forsake notan old friend, for the new is not comparable unto him. A new friend is as new wine: when it is old thou shalt drink it with pleasure.

Old Testament. Ecclesiasticus ix. 10.
Friendship's the wine of life: but friendship new $\ldots$. is neither strong nor pure.
Young. Night Thoughts. Night ii. 1. 582.
I'm very lonely now, Mary,
For the poor make no new friends;
But oh they love the better still
The few our Father sends!
Lady Dufferin. Lament of the Irish Emigrant.
Prosperity makes friends and adversity tries them.

PUBLILIUS SyRUS. Maxim 872.

In prosperity it is very easy to find a friend; but in adversity it is the most difficult of all things.

Epictetus. Fragments. cxxvii. (Long, trans.)
Many thy boon companions at the feast,
But few the friends who cleave to thee in trouble.

Theognis. Sententiae. 115.
Buckingham. Where you are liberal of your loves and counsels.
Be sure you be not loose; for those you make friends
And give your hearts to, when they once perceive
The least rub in your fortunes, fall away
Like water from ye, never found again
But where they mean to sink ye.
Shakespeare. Henry VIII. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 126.
P. King The great man down, you mark his favourite flies;
The poor advanced makes friends of enemies,
And hitlierto doth love on fortune tend;
For who not needs shall never lack a friend And who in want a hollow friend doth try, Directly seasons him his enemy.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 199.
O summer friendship,
Whose flattering leaves, that shadow'd us in Onr prosperity, with the least gust drop off In th' autnmin of adversity.

Massinger. Maid of Honour.
Like summer friends,
Flies of estate and sunshine.
George Herbert. The Answer.
Let no masn grumble when his friends fall off,
As they will do like leaves at the first breeze:
When your affairs come round, one way or 'tother,
Go to the coffee-house, and take another. Byron. Don Juan. Canto xiv. St. 48.

In all thy humours, whether grave or mellow,
Thou'rt such a touchy, testy, pleasant fellow,
Hast so much wit and mirth, and spleen about thee,
That there's no living with thee, nor without thee.

Addison. Spectator. No. 68.
(A free translation from Martial. xii. 47. See under Company.)

Friendship is more than is catell;
For frende in courte aie better is
Than peny is in purse certes.
Chaucer. The Romaunt of the Rose. 1. 5542.

No friend's a friend till he shall prove a friend.

Beaumont and Fletcher, Faithful Friends. iii. 3. 1. 50.

Above our life we love a steadfast friend.
Marlowe. Hero and Leander. Sestiad ii.
True happiness
Consists not in the multitude of friends, But in the worth and choice. Nor would I have Virtue a popular regard pursue:
Let them be good that love me, though but few.
Ben Jonson. Cynthia's Revels. Act iii. sc. 2.
I would not enter on my list of friends
(Though graced with polish'd manners and fine sense,
Yet wanting sensibility) the man
Who needlessly sets foot upon a worm. Cowrer. The Task. Bk. vi. 1. 560 .

Countess. Keep thy friend
Under thy own life's key.
Shakespeare. All's Well That Ends Well. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 59.

Timon. For by these
Shall I try friends: you shall perceive how you
Mistake my fortunes; I am wealthy in my friends.
Ibid. Timon of Athens. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 183.

Portia. Is it your dear friend that is thus in tronble?
Bassanio. The dearest friend to me, the kindest man,
The best condition'd and unwearied spirit
In doing courtesies; and one in whom
The ancient Roman honour more appears,
Than any that draws breath in Italy. Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 293.

Bolingbroke. I count myself in nothing else so happy,
As in a soul remembering my good friends.
Ibid. King Richard Il. Act ii. Sc. 3. 1. 46.

Polonius. Those friends thou hast, and their adoption tried,
Grapple them to thy soul with hoops of steel,
But do not dull thy palm with entertainment
Of each new hatched, unfledged comrade.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 62.
Celia. We still have slept together,
Rose at an instant, learn'd, play'd, eat together,
And wheresoe'er we went, like Juno's swans,
Still we went coupled and inseparable.
Ibid. As You Like It. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 69.
He ought not to pretend to friendship's name,
Who reckons not himself and friend the same.
Tuke. The Adventures of Five Hours.
Two friends, two bodies with one soul inspir'd.

Homer. Jiad. Bk. xvi. 1. 267. (Pope, trans.)
(See under Unity.)
Better new friend than an old foe. Spenser. Faerie Queene. Bk. i. Canto ii. St. 27.

King. To wail friends lost
Is not by much so wholesome-profitable,
As to rejoice at friends hut newly found. Shakesprare. Love's Labour's Lost. Act v. Sc. 2. 1. 737.
Cassius. Brutus hath rived my heart: A friend should bear his friend's infirmities,
But Brutus makes mine greater than they are.
Ibid. Julius Casar. Act iv. Sc. s. 1. 86.
Unless you bear with the faults of a friend you betray your own.

Publilius SyRus.

Falstaff. Call you that backing of your friends? A plague upon such backing! give me them that will face me.

Shakespeare. I. Henry IV. Act ii. Sc. 4. 1. 143.

But you, whom every muse and grace adorn,
Whom I foresee to better fortune born,

Be kind to my remains; and, oh! defend,
Against your judgment, your departed friend I

Dryden. Epistle to Congreve. 1. 70,
I have loved my friend as I do virtue, my soul, my God.

Sir Thomas Browne. Religio Medici. Pt. ii. Sec. 5.

To God, thy country, and thy friend be true.

Vaughan. Rules and Lessons. 8.

Great souls by instinct to each other turn,
Demand alliance, and in friendship burn.

Admison. The Campaign. 1. 102.
The friendships of the world are oft
Confederacies in vice, or leagues of pleasure;
Ours has severest virtue for its basis,
And such a friendship ends not but with life.

Ibid. Cato. Act iii. Sc. 1.
Thou wert my guide, philosopher, and friend.

Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle iv. 1. 390.
But it was thou, a man mine equal, my guide, and mine acquaintance.

Old Testament. Psalm 1v. 13.
But it was even thou, my companion, my guide, and mine own familiar friend. -Book of Common Prayer. Psalm lv. 14.
What war could ravish, commerce conld bestow,
And he returned a friend, who came a foe.
Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle iii. 1. 204.

Friendship is only a reciprocal conciliation of interests, and an exchange of good offices; it is a species of commerce out of which self-love always expects to gain som $\cdot$ hing.

La Rochefoucauld. Maxim 83.
Friendship is a disinterested commerce between equals.

Goidemith. The Good-natured Man. Act i. Sc. 1.

Friendship is seldom lasting, but between equals, or where the superiority on one side is reduced by some equivalent advantage on the other.

Dr. S. Johnson. The Rambler. No. 64.
Full of this maxim, often heard in trade, Friendship with none but equals should be made. Chatterton. Fragment. Pub. 1803.
Friendship, like love, is but a name,
Unless to one you stint the flame.
The child, whom many fathers share,
Hath seldom known a father's care.
'Tis thus in friendships; who depend
On many, rarely find a friend.
Gay. Fables: The Hare and Many Friends. Pt. i. Fable 50.
And what is friendship but a name,
A charm that lulls to sleep;
A shade that follows wealth or fame,
But leaves the wretch to weep?

A foe to God was ne'er true friend to man,
Some sinister intent taints all he does.
rbid. Night Thoughts. Night viii. 1.704.
'Tis something to be willing to commend;
But my best praise, is, that I am your friend.
Southerne. To Mr. Congreve on the Old Bachelor. Last line.

Friends I have made, whom envy must commend,
But not one foe whom I would wish a friend. Churchill. Comference. 1. 297.
Should anld acquaintance be forgot,
And never brought to mind?
Should auld acquaintance be forgot,
And days o' auld lang syne?
Burns. Auld Lang Syne.
Friend of my soul! this goblet sip,
'Twill chase that pensive tear;
'Tis not so sweet as woman's lip,
But, oh ! 'tis more sincere.
Like her delusive beam,
'Twill steal away thy mind :
But, truer than love's dream,
It leaves no sting behind.
Thomas Moore. Juvenile Poems. Anacreontique.
Give me th' avow'd, th' erect, the manly foe,
Bold I can meet, perhaps may turn his blow;
But, of all plagues, good Heaven, thy wrath can send,
Save, save, oh, save me from the candid friend!
Canning. New Morality, The Anti-Jacobin.
Most of our misfortunes are more supportable than the comments of our friends upon them.
C. C. Colton. Lacon. p. 238.

Few friendships would survive it each one knew what his friend says of him behind his back.

None named thee hut to praise.
Fitz-Greene Halleck. On the Death of James Rodman Drake.
She was good as she was fair,
None-none on earth above her ;
As pure in thought as angels are
To know her was to love her.
ROGERS. Jacqueline. St. i.

To see her is to love her And love but her forever ;
For Nature made her what; she is, And never made anither !

Burns, Bonny Leslie.
Hand
Grasps hand, eye lights eye in good friendship,
And great hearts expand,
And grow one in the sense of this world's life.

Robert Browning. Saul.
You're my friend-
What a thing friendship is, world without end!
How it gives the heart and sonl a stir-up
As if somehody broached you a glorious runlet,
And poured out, all lovelily, sparkingly sunlit,
Our green Moldavia, the streaky syrup,
Cotnar as old as the time of the Druids-
Friendship may match with that monarch of fluids;
Each supplies a dry brain, fills you its ins-and-outs,
Gives your life's hour-glass a shake when the thin sand doubts
Whether to run on or stop short, and guarantees
Age is not all made of stark sloth and arrant ease.

Carlyle. Sartor Resartus. Bk. i. Ch. 3.
We are puppets, Man in his pride, and Beauty fair in her flower;
Do we move ourselves, or are moved by an unseen hand at a game
That pushes us off from the board, and others ever succeed?
Ah yet, we cannot be kind to each other here for an hour;
We whisper, and hint, and chuckle, and grin at a brother's shame
However we hrave it out, we men are a little breed.

Tennyson. Maud. Pt.iv. St. 5.
We are none other than a moving row Of magic shadow-shapes that come and go Round with the sun-illumined lantern held In midnight by the master of the show; But helpless pieces of the game He plays Upon this checker-hoard of Nights and Days:
Hither and thither moves, and checks, and slays
And one by one back in the closet lays.
Edward Fitzgerald. Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam. Ixviii., lxix.
Themistocles being asked whether he would rather be Achilles or Homer, said, "Which would you rather be,-a conqueror in the Olympic games, or the crier that proclaims who are conquerors?"

Plutarch. Lives. Themistocles.

Panem et circenses.
Bread and the games.

\text { JUVENAL. Satires 10. 1. } 81 .

[According to Juvenal, these were the only two objects that really interested the Roman people. Voltaire writing to Madame Necker in 1770 says: "The Romans cared only for panem et circenses. We have omitted panem, we care only for circenses-that is to say, for comic opera." Had Voltaire lived to see the march of the women of Paris to Versailles (October, 1789), shouting for bread, he would have found a parallel for both parts of the quotation.]
I see before me the Gladiator lie;
He leans upon his hand-his manly brow
Consents to death, but conquers agony,
And his droop'd head sinks gradually low-

And through his side the last drops, ebbing slow
From the red gash, fall heavy, one hy one,
Like the first of a thunder-shower; and now
The arena swims around him-he is gone,
Ere ceased the inhuman shout which hail'd the wretch who won.
Byron. Childe Harold. Canto iv. St. 140.

He reck'd not of the life he lost nor prize,
But where his rude but by the Danube lay,
There were his young barbarians all at play,
There was their Dacian mother,-he, their sire,
Butcher'd to make a Roman holiday.
Ibid. Crilde Harold. Canto iv. St. 141.
And ye vaunted your fathomless power and ye flaunted your iron pride
Ere-ye fawned on the Younger Nations for the men who could shoot and ride!
Then ye returned to your trinkets; then ye contented your souls
With the flannelled fools at the wicket or the muddied oafs at the goals. Kipling. The Islanders.

Lovell. The faith they have in tennis and tall stockings.

Shakespeare. King Henry vill. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 30 .

GARDEN.

God Almighty first planted a garden. And, indeed, it is the purest of human pleasures. It is the greatest refreshment to the spirits of man; without which buildings and palaces are but gross handiwork; and a man shall ever see that when ages grow to civility and elegancy, men come to build stately gardens sooner than to garden finely: as if gardening were the greater perfection.

His gardens next your admiration call, On every side you look, behold the wall!
No pleasing intricacies intervene,
No artful wildness to perplex the scene;
Grove nods at grove, each alley has a brother,
And half the platform just reflects the other;
The suffering eye inverted nature sees,
Trees cut to statues, statues thick as trees;
With here a fountain never to be play'd,
And there a summer-house that knows no shade.
Pope. Moral Essays. Epistie iv. 1. 113.
Who loves a garden loves a greenhouse too.

Come into the garden, Maud,
For the black bat, night, has flown; Come into the garden, Mand,

I am here at the gate alone. Tennyson. Maud. Pt. xxii. St. 1.
With blackest moss the flower-pots
Were thickly crusted, one and all:
The rusted nails fell from the knots
That held the pear to the gable-wall.
The broken sheds look'd sad and strange;
Unlifted was the clinking latch;
Weeded and worn the ancient thatch
Upon the lonely moated grange.

GARRICK, DAVID.

Our Garrick's a salad; for in him we see Oil, vinegar, sugar, and saltness agree! Goldsmith. Retaliation. 1. 11.

Here lies David Garrick-describe me who can,
An abridgment of all that was pleasant in man.
As an actor, confess'd without rival to shine;
As a wit, if not first, in the very first line;
Yet, with talents like these, and an excellent heart,
The man had his failings-a dupe to his art.
Like an ill-judging beauty, his colors he spread,
And beplaster'd with rouge his own natural red.
On the stage he was natural, simple, affecting :
'Twas only that when he was off, he was acting.

Ibid. Retaliation. 1.93.
He cast off his friends, as a huntsman his pack,
For he knew when he pleased he could whistle them back.

Ibid. Retaliation. 1. 107.
His death eclipsed the gayety of nations, and impoverished the public stock of harmless pleasure.

Dr. Joinnson. Life of Edmund Smith (alluding to the death of Garrick).
[Boswell, in his Lije of Johnson, under date of April 24, 1776, gives an amusing conversation between himself and Johnson, in which the latter defended this sentence against the other's not too intelligent criticisms.]

If manly sense; if nature link'd with art;
If thorough knowledge of the human heart;
If powers of acting vast and unconin'd;
If fewest faults with greatest beauties join'd;
If strong expression, and strange powers which lie
Within the magic circle of the eye;

If feelings which few hearts, like his, can know,
And which no face so well as his can show,
Deserve the preference; Garrick ! take the chair,
Nor quil it till thou place an equal there. Churchill. The Rosciad. Concluding lines.

GATES.

Heaven open'd wide
Her ever during gates, harmonious sound,
On golden hinges moving.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. vii. 1. 205.
1 shall defer my visit to Faneuil Hall, the cradle of American liberty, until its doors shall fly open upon golden hinges to lovers of Union as well as lovers of liberty. Daniel Webster. Letter. April, 1851.
[Written in reply to an invitation to speak in Boston extended by his friends, who reported, however, that they had heen refused the use of Fanenil Hall by the mayor and aidermen. This was just after Massachusetts had heen exasperated by Wehster's 7th of March speech. See quotation from Whittier's Ichabod under FALL.]

On a sudden open fly
With impetuous recoil and jarring sound
The infernal doors, and on their hinges grate
Harsh thunder, that the lowest bottom shook

Unblamed through life, lamented in thy end.

Pope. Epitaph on Mr. Gay.
Blest be the great I for those they take away
And those they left me, for they left me Gay:
Left me to see neglected genius bloom,
Neglected die, and tell it on his tomb. Ibid. Prologue to Satires. I. 255.

GENIUS.

Time, place, and action, may with pains be wrought,
But genius must be born, and never can be taught.
Drynen. Epistle to Congreve. 1. 59.
Great wits are sure to madness near allied,
And thin partitions do their bounds divide.

Genius, like all heavenly light,
Can blast as well as bless the sight.

> L. E. LaNDoN. Stanzas to the Author of Mont Blanc.

What an impostor Genius isHow with that strong, mimetic art,

Which forms its life and sonl, it takes All shapes of thought, all hues of heart, Nor feels, itself, one throb it wakes. T. Moore. Rhymes on the Road. viii.

This is the highest miracle of genius, that things which are not should be as though they were, that the imaginations of one mind should become the personal recollections of another.
Macaulay. Essays. The Pilgrim's Progress.
Talent gives all that vulgar critics need From its plain hornbook learn the Dull to read;
Genius, the Pythian of the Beautiful,
Leaves its large truths a riddle to the Dull-
From eyes profane a veil the Isis screens,
And fools on fools still ask what Hamlet means.
Bulwer Lytton. Talent and Genius.
Talk not of genius baffled. Genius is master of man ;
Genius does what it must, and talent does what it can.

Owen Meredith. Last Words.
Talent is that which is in a man's power; genius is that in whose power a man is.

Loweld. Among My Books. Rousseau and the Sentimentalists.

There is no work of genius which has not been the delight of mankind, no word of genius to which the human heart and soul have not sooner or later responded.

Ibid. Rousseau and the Sentimentalists.
It is the privilege of genius that to it life never grows commonplace as to the rest of us.

Horatio. Season your admiration for a while
With an attent ear; till I may deliver, Upon the witness of these gentlemen,
This marvel to you.
Hamlet. For God's love, let me hear.
Horatio. Two nights together had these gentlemen,
Marcellus and Bernardo, on their watch,
In the dead vast and middle of the night,
Been thus encounter'd. A figure like your father,
Armed at point exactly, cap-à-pe,
Appears hefore them, and with solemn march
Goes slow and stately by them: thrice he walk'd
By their oppress'd and fear-surprisèd eyes,
Within his truncheon's length; whilst they, distill'd
Almost to jelly with the act of fear,
Stand dumb and speak not to him.

Bring with thee airs from heaven or blasts from hell,
Be thy intents wicked or charitable,
Thou comest in such a questionable shape
That I will speak to thee: I'll call thee Hamlet,
King, father, royal Dane: O, answer me!
Let me not burst in ignorance, but tell
Why thy canonized bones, hearsed in death,
Have burst their cerements; why the sepulchre,
Wherein we saw thee quietly inurn'd,
Hath oped his ponderous and marble jaws,

To cast thee up again! What may this mean,
That thou, dead corse, again, in complete steel,
Revisit'st this the glimpses of the moon,
Making night hideous; and we fools of nature,
So horridly to shake our disposition,
With thoughts beyond the reaches of our souls?
Say, why is this? wherefore? what should we do? Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 4. 1. 39.

Horatio. What art thou, that usurp'st this time of night,
Together with that fair and warlike form
In which the Majesty of buried Denmark
Did sometimes march? by Heaven I charge thee, speak.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 46.
Ghost. I am thy father's spirit;
Doom'd for a certain term to walk the night,
And for the day confined to fast in fires,
Till the foul crimes done in my days of nature
Are burnt and purged away. But that I am forbid
To tell the secrets of my prison-house,
I could a tale unfold whose lightest word
Would harrow up thy soul, freeze thy young blood,
Make thy two eyes, like stars, start from their spheres,
Thy knotted and combinèd locks to part And each particular hair to stand on end, Like quills upon the fretful porcupine: But this eternal blazon must not be
To ears of flesh and hlood. List, list, O list!

Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 5. l. 9.
Hamlet. Art thou there, truepenny?
Come on-you hear this fellow in the cellarage.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 5. 1. 150.
What gentle ghost, besprent with April dew,
Hails me so solemnly to yonder yew? Ben Jonson. Elegy on the Lady Jane Pawlet.

What beckoning ghost along the moonlight shade
Invites my steps, and points to yonder glade?

POPE. To the Memory of an Unfortunate Lady.
Great Pompey's shade complains that we are slow,
And Scipio's ghost walks unavenged amongst us!

Addison. Cato. Act ii. Sc. 1.
Who gather round, and wonder at the tale
Of horrid apparition, tall and ghastly,
That walks at dead of night, or takes his stand
O'er some new-open'd grave; and (strange to tell!)
Evanishes at crowing of the cock. Robert Blait. The Grave. 1. 67.
The hunter and the deer a shade. Campbell. O'Connor's Child. St. 4.
(This line Campbell appropriated from Philip Frenau's poem, The Indian Buryingground.)
Tell us, ye dead! Will none of you in pity
To those you left behind disclose the secret?
O that some courteous ghost would blab it out,
What 'tis you are and we must shortly be.

Ibid. The Grave. 1. 425.
Oh, Christ, that it were possible,
For one short hour to see
The souls we loved, that they might tell us
What and where they be.
Tennyson. Maud, Pt.xxvi.

GIANTS.

There were giants in the earth in those days.

Otd Testament. Genesis vi. 4.
Strong were our sires, and as they fought they writ,
Conquering with force of arms, and dint of wit:
Theirs was the giant race, before the flood. Dryden. Epistle io Mr. Congreve.
Pigmæi gigantum humeris impositi plusquam ipsi gigantes vident.

Pigmies placed on the shoulders of giants see more than the giants themselves.

Dinacus Stella. Lucan. 10. tom. ii.

Adwarf on a giant's shoulders sees farther of the two.

George Herbert. Jacula Prudentum.
A dwarf sees farther than the giant when he has the giant's shoulders to mount on. Colerides. The Friend. Sec. i. Essay 8.

Pigmies are pigmies still, though perched on Alps,
And pyramids are pyramids in vales.
Young. Night Thoughts. Night vi. 1. 309.
Thus the fable tells us, that the wren mounted as high as the eagle, by getting upon his back.

Steele. Tatler. No. 224.
Agamemnon. A stirring dwarf we do allowance give
Before a sleeping giant.
SHAKEspeare. Thoilus and Cressida. Act ii. Sc. 3. 1. 146.

My Lord St. Albans said that wise nature did never put her precious jewels into a garret four stories high; and therefore that exceeding tall men had ever very empty heads.

Bacon. Apotheoms. No. 17.
Often the cockloft is empty in those whom nature hath built many stories high.
Fulder. Andronicus. Sec. vi. Pt. 18. 1.
Whose cackloft is unfurnished.
Rabelats. The Author's Prologue to the Fifth Book.

Such as take lodgings in a head
That's to be let, unfurnished.
Butler. Hudibras. Pt.i. Canto i. 1. 161.
Angus. Those he commands, move only in command,
Nothing in love: now does he feel his title
Hang loose about him, like a giant's robe
Upon a dwarfish thief.
Shakespeare. Mocbeth. Act v. Sc. 2. 1. 19.

Isubella. O, it is excellent
To have a giant's strength ; but it is tyrannous
To use it like a giant.
Ibid. Measure for Measure. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 107.

Minimum decet liberè cuí multum licet.
He who has great power should use it lightly.

SENECA. Troades. 336.

GIFTS.

Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning. New Testament. James i. 17 .
Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over.

Ibia. St. Luke vi. 38.
It is more blessed to give than to receive.

Better to give than to take.
John Heywood. Proverbs. Pt. i. Ch. v.
Who gives to friends so much from Fate secures,
That is the only wealth forever yours. Martlal. Epigrams. v. 42, 7.
Hoc habeo quodeunque dedi.
Whatever I have given, I still possess.
C. Rabirius. Seneca, de Beneficiis. vi. 3,1 .
What we gave, we have;
What we spent, we had;
What we left, we lost.
Epitaph on Edward, Earl of Devonshire. 1419.

To get by giving, and to lose by keeping, is to be sad in mirth, and glad in weeping.

CERis. Harvie. The Synagogue, The Church Stile.
(See under Epitaph.)
Inopi beneficium bis dat qui dat celeriter.

He gives a double favor to a poor man who gives quickly.

Syrus. Maxims. 235.
[This maxim has been popularly shortened into:
Bis dat qui cito dat.
He gives twice who gives quickly.
In this form Bacon quoted it in his speech on taking his place in Chancery, May 7, 1617.

Per contra, Broome, in his poetical Letter to Lord Cornwallis, has the line:
He gives by halves, who hesitates to give.]
For the will and not the gift makes the giver.

Lessing. Nalhan der Weise. i. 5.
Sæpe dedit quisquis sæpe negata dedit.
He giveth oft who gives what's oft refused.

Crashaw. Epigrammata Sacra. ciii.

Ulysses. His heart and hand both open and both free;
For what he has he gives, what thinks he shows ;
Yet gives he not till judgment guide his bounty.
Shakespeare. Troilus and Cressida. Act iv. Sc. 5. l. 100.
Florizel. She prizes not such trifles as these are:
The gifts she looks from me, are pack'd and lock'd
Up in my heart; which I have given already,
But not deliver'd.
Ibid. Winter's Tale. Act iv. Sc. 4. 1. 349.
Hamlet. I never gave you aught.
Ophelia. My honour'd lord, you know right well you did;
And with them words of so sweet breath composed,
As made the things more rich: their perfume lost,
Take these again; for to the noble mind, Rich gifts wax poor when givers prove unkind.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act lii. Sc. 1. 1. 96.
Acceptissima semper
Munera sunt auctor quae pretiosa facit.
Those gifts are ever most acceptable
Which take their value only from the giver. Ovid. Heroides. xv.

Not what we give, but what we share,-
For the glft without the giver is bare.
Lowell. Vision of Sir Launfal. Pt.li. viii.

To loyal hearts the value of all glfts Must vary as the giver's. TENNYgon. Launcelot and Elaine.
He ne'er consider'd it, as loth
To look a gift-horse in the month, And very wisely would lay forth No more upon it than 'twas worth;
But as he got it freely, so
He spent it frank and freely too:
For saints themselves will sometimes be, Of gifts that cost them nothing, free.
Butlear. Hudibras. Pt.1. Canto i. 1.489.
[The proverb, " Never look a gift-horse in the mouth," is at least as old as St. Jerome (fourth century), who replied to certain unfavorable critics of his writings that they were free-will offerings, and it did not behoove to look a gift-horse in the mouth: "Equi dentes inspicere donati."]

Timeo Danaos et dona ferentes.
I fear the Greeks, even when they bring gifts.

Vireil. Ameid. ii. 49.
Pericles. 'Tis time to fear when tyrants seem to kiss.

Shakespeare. Pericles. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 79.

Thy pompous delicacies 1 contemn -
And count thy precious gifts no gifts, but guiles.
Mrlton. Paradise Regained. Bk. ii. 1. 391.

Les dons d'un ennemi leur semblaient trop a craindre.
To them it seemed that the gifts of an enemy were to be dreaded.

Volitaire. La Henviade. Ch. ii.

M1LTon. Paradise Lost. Bk. v. l. 18.
I have found out a gift for my fair,
I have found where the wood-pigeons breed,
But let me that plunder forbear,
She will say, 'twas a barbarous deed. Shenstone. A Pabtoral Ballad.

A present is provided for my love; for I myself marked the place where the airy wood-pigeons have huilt.
Virgil. Eclogue iii. (Davidson, trans.)
"Presents," I often say, "endear Absents."

Cowprer. The Task. Bk. v. Last line.

Benefits

Too great to be repaid, hang heavy on the soul
Like unrequited wrongs. Mrs. Browning. Aurora Leigh.
Favors are only acceptable where it appears possible to repay them, but when they pass all possibilities of repayment they produce hatred instead of gratitude.

TAcitus. Annals. Bk, iv. Ch. 18.
I give thee all-I can no more,
Though poor the offering be;
My heart and lute are all the store
That I can bring to thee.
Moore. My Heart and Lute.

GIRDLE.

A narrow compass! and yet there Dwelt all that's good, and all that's fair; Give me but what this riband bound, Take all the rest the sun goes round.

Waller. On a Girdle.
Puck. I'll put a girdle round about the earth in forty minutes.

Shakespeare. A Midsummer Night's Dream. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1.175.
[This expression is not original with Shakespeare. Probably derived from the old maps where the zodiac is represented as a girdle about the earth. It was a proverbial expression for a voyage around the world.]

And as great seamen, using all their wealth And skills in Neptune's deep invisible patha,
In tall ships richly built and ribbed with brass,
To put a girdle round about the world.
Chapman. Bussy D'Ambois. Act i. Sc. 1.

GIRL.

Portia. The full sum of me
Is sum of something, which, to term in gross,
Is an unlesson'd girl, unschool'd, unpractised:
Happy in this, she is not yet so old
But she may learn; happier than this,
She is not bred so dull but she can learn;
Happiest of all is that her gentle spirit
Commits itself to yours to be directed.
Shakespeare. The Merchant of Venice. Act iil. Sc. 2. 1. 158.

'Tis true, your budding Miss is very charming,
But shy and awkward at first coming out,
So much alarmed, that she is quite alarming,
All Giggle, Blush; half Pertness and half Pout ;
And glancing at Mamma, for fear there's harm in
What you, she, it, or they may be about.
The nursery still lisps out in all they utter,-
Besides, they always smell of bread and butter.

Byron. Beppo. St. xxxix.
He is piping hot from the university. He smells of buttered loayes yet.

Middleton. Your Five Gallants.
Maidens, like moths, are ever caught by glare,
And Mammon wins his way where Seraphs might despair.
Byron. Childe Harold. Canto i. St. 1.

Womanhood and childhood fleet]
Longrellow. Mfaidenhood.
[Shakespeare describes boyhood in less complimentary but not entirely dissimilar fashion:
Malvolio. Not yet old enough for a man, nor young enough for a boy; as a squash is before 'tis a peas-cod, or a codling when 'tis almost an apple: 'tis with him in standing water, between boy and man. He is very well-fayoured and he speais very shrewishly; one would think his mother's milk were scarce out of him.

Twelfth Night. Act i. Sc. 5. 1. 148.]

GLORY.

(See Fame.)
O quam cito transit gloria mundil
How swiftly passes the glory of the world

Thomas a Kempis. De Imitatione Christi. i. 3,6 .
["Sic transit gloria mundi", ("Thus the glory of this world passes away"), a sequence sung at the enthroning of a new pope, accompanied with the burning of tow, to signify the transitoriness of earthly grandeur, is evidently a reminiscence of A Kempis's phrase.]

Pucelle. Glory is like a circle in the water,
Which never ceaseth to enlarge itself
Till by broad spreading it disperse to nought.
Shakespeare. I. Henty VI. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 133.

Apemantus. Like madness is the glory of this life.

Shakespeare Timon of Athens. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 128.

Some glory in their birth, some in their skill,
Some in their wealth, some in their body's force;
Some in their garments, though newfangled ill;

Prince Bigmarck. In the Reichstag.

He bowed the heavens also, and came down: and darkness was under his feet.

And he rode upon a cherub and did fly: yea, he did fly upon the wings of the wind.

Old Testament. Psalm xviii. 9, 10.
[The Psalter of the English Book of Common Prayer translates the last verse: "He rode upon the cherubim, and did fly: he came flying upon the wings of the wind."]

The Lord desceuded from ahove And bow'd the heavens high;
And underneath his feet he cast The darkness of the sky.
On cherubs and on cheruhims Full royally be rode;
And on the wings of all the winds Came flying all abroad.
Thomas Sternhold. A Metrical Version of Psalm xviiu.
On wings of winds came fiying all abroad.
POPE. Prologue to the Satires. 1. 208.
Who coverest thyself with light as with a garment: who stretchest out the heavens like a curtain.

Who layeth the beams of his chambers in the waters: who maketh the clouds his chariot: who walketh upon the wings of the wind:

Who maketh his angels spirits; his ministers a flaming fire.

> Old Testament. Psalm civ. 2-4.

He maketh kings to sit in soverainty;
He maketh subjects to their powre obey ; He pulleth downe, he setteth up on hy: He gives to this, from that he takes away;
For all we have is his: what he list doe he may.

But vindicate the ways of God to man. Pope. Essay on Man. Epistlc i. l. 16.

These are thy glorious works, Parent of good,
Almighty! thine this universal frame,
Thus wondrous fair; thyself how wondrous then!
Unspeakable, who sitt'st ahove these heavens,
To us invisible, or dimly seen
In these thy lowest works; yet these declare
Thy goodness beyond thought, and power divine.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. v. l. 153.
As ever in my great Taskmaster's eye. Ibid. Sonnet on His Being Arrived to the Age of Twenty-three.

All are but parts of one stupendous whole,
Whose hody Nature is, and God the soul;
That, changed through all, and yet in all the same;
Great in the earth, as in the ethereal frame;
Warms in the sun, refreshes in the breeze,
Glows in the stars, and blossoms in the trees,
Lives through all life, extends through all extent,
Spreads undivided, operates unspent;
Breathes in our soul, informs our mortal part,
As full, as perfect, in a hair as heart;
As full, as perfect, in vile Man that mourns,
As the rapt seraph, that adores and burns:

To Him no high, no low, no great, no small;
He fills, He bounds, connects, and equals all.
Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle i. 1. 269.

Christopher Smart. Song to David.
Hark! a glad voice the lonely desert cheers;
Prepare the way ! a God, a God appears:
A God, a God! the vocal hills reply ;
The rocks proclaim the approaching Deity.
Lo, earth receives him from the bending skies!
Sink down, ye mountains, and, ye valleys, rise;
With heads declined, ye cedars, homage pay;
Be smooth, ye rocks; ye rapid floods, give way;
The Saviour comes! by ancient hards foretold!

Pore. Messiah. 1. 29.

God! sing ye meadow-streams with gladsome voice!
Ye pine-groves, with your soft and soul-like sounds!
And they too have a voice, yon piles of snow,
And in their perilous fall shall thunder, God!
Ye living flowers that skirt the eternal frost!
Ye wild goats sporting round the eagle's nest 1
Ye eagles, playmates of the mountainstorm !
Ye lightnings, the dread arrows of the clouds!
Ye signs and wonders of the elements!
Utter forth God, and fill the hills with praise!

Ibid. Hymn. Concluding lines.
If God did not exist, it would be necessary to invent him.

Voltaire. Epistle to the Author of the Three Impostors.
[The context is as follows:
Consulte Zoroastre, et Minos et Solon,
Et le graud Socrate, et le grand Ciceron,
Ils ont adoré tous un maitre, un juge, un père.
Ce systeme sublime á l'homme est necessaire,
C'est le sacré lien de la societé,
Le premier fondement de la sainte equite,
Le frein au scelérat, l'espetance du juste,
Si les cieux dépouillés de leur empreinte auguste
Pouvaient cesser jamais de le manifester
Si Dieu n' existait pas, il faudrait l'inventer.
Voltaire especially plumed himself upon this line. "Though I am seldom satisfied with my lines," he wrote to Frederick the Great, "I must confess that I feel for this one the tenderness of a father." It is quite likely that he did not know that the idea had been anticipated with more or less closeness. Thus Archbishop Tillotson, who died in 1712, the year of Voltaire's birth, has this:

If Gंod were nota necessary Being of himself, he might almost seem to be made for the use and benefit of men.

Ben Jonson. Sejanus. Actii. Sc. 2.
Primus in orbe deos fecit timor.
Fear in the world first created the gods.
Statius. Thebais. iii. 661.
Man is certainly stark mad; he cannot make a flea, and yet he will be making gods by dozens.

Montaigine. Apology for Raimond Sebond. Bk. ii. Ch. xii.

Wie einer ist, so ist sein Gott,
Darum war Gott so oft zu Spott.
As a man is, so is his God ; therefore God was so often an object of mockery. Goethe. Gedichte.

Blest as the immortal gods is he
The youth who fondly sits by thee, And hears and sees thee all the while Softly speak and sweetly smile.

Great Pan is dead.
Plutarch. De Defectu Oraculorum. xvii.
[Plutarch here chronicles the well-known tradition that at the hour of the Saviour's agony a cry of "Great Pan is dead" swept across the wayes in the hearing of certain mariners, and the oracles ceased.]
And that dismal cry rose slowly And sank slowly through the air,
Full of spirit's melancholy And eternity's despair;
And they heard the words it said, -
Pan is dead! Great Pan is dead. Pan, Pan is dead.
Mrs. Browning. The Dead Pun. St. 26.
(See under Oracle.)
Suddenly there came gasping towards them a pale Jew dripping with blood, a crown of thorns on his head, bearing a great cross of wood on his shoulder, and he cast the cross on the high table of the gods, so that the golden goblets trembled and fell, and the gods grew dumb and pale, and ever paler, till they melted in utter mist.

Heine. Reisebilder. City of Lucca. Ch. vi.

The God from the machine.
Lucian. Hermotimus. 86.

Keats. Hyperion. Bk. i. 1. 51.
By the love He stood alone in,
His sole Godhead rose complete,
And the false gods fell down moaning,
Each from off his golden seat ;
All the false gods with a cry
Rendered up their deity-
Pan, Pan was dead.
Mrs. Browning. The Dead Pan. St. 28.

Let us swear an oath and keep it with an equal mind,
In the hollow Lotos-land to live and lie reclined
On the hills like gods together, careless of mankind.
For they lie beside their nectar, and the bolts are hurled
Far below them in the valleys, and the clouds are lightly curled
Round their golden houses, girdled with the gleaming world.

Tennyson. The Lotos-eaters. viii.
And first the golden race of speaking men
Were by the dwellers in olympus made;
They under Cronos lived, when he was king
In heaven. Like gods were they, with careless mind,
From toil and sorrow free, and nought they knew
Of dread old age.
Hesiod. Works and Days. 109.
I have always said, and will say, that there is a race of Gods,
But I fancy that what men do is to them but little odds.
Envirs. Tetamon. (W. F. H. Kine, trans.)

Thomas Cooper. Some Information Respecting America. (London, 1795.)
In a government like ours, founded by the people, managed by the people.

Josefi Story. On the Constitution. Sec. 304.

The people's government made for the people, made by the people, and answerable to the people. Daniel Webster. Second Speech on Foot's Resalution, January 26, 1830.
There is what I call the American idea. . . This idea demands, as the proximate organization thereof, a demacracy,-that is, a government of all the people, by all the people, for all the people; of course, a government of the principles of eternal justice, the unchanging law of God; for shortness' sake I will call it the idea of Freedom.

Theodore Parker. Speech at the $N$. $E$. Anti-slavery Convention, Baston, May 20, 1850.

1 repeat . . . that all power is a trnst; that we are acconntable for its exercise; that from the people and for the people all springs, and all must exist.
Diskaeli. Vivian Grey. Bk. vi. Ch. vii.
Government arrogates to itself that it alone forms men. . . . Everybody knows that government never began anything. It is the whole world that thinks and governs.

Wendell Peillips. Orations, Speeches, Lectures, and Letters. Lecture, Boston, October 4, 1859. Idols.
Governments exist to protect the rights of minorities. The loved and the rich need no protection,-they have many friends and few enemies.

Ibid. Orations, Speeches, Lectures, and Letters. Address, Boston, December 21, 1860. Mobs and Education.
The greatest happiness of the greatest number is the foundation of morals and legislation.

Jeremy Bentham. Works. Vol. x. p. 142.
[The phrase is identified with Bentham, who is undoubtedly responsible for its general introduction into literature. He never lost an opportunity to enforce it as the touchstone of all jnst legislation and correct morality. But he has acknowledged that it was not original. "Priestley," he says, "was the first (unless it was Beccaria) who taught my lips to pronounce this sacred truth,-that the greatest happiness of the greatest number is the foundation of morals and legislation." Beccaria was probahly the one, for the sentiment may be found in the introduction to his Essays om Crimes and $P_{\text {unishishents }}$ (1764), where he describes "a wise observer of nature" as "occupied in directing the actions of the multitude to this one end,-the greatest happiness divided among the largest number" "La massima bonta divisa nel maggior numero"). None the less the germ of the idea exists in this sentence in Priestley: "The good and happiness of the members, that is, the majority of the members of any State, is the great standard by which everything relating to that state must finally be determined." Before Priestley, however, and before Beccaria, in the year 1720, to wit, Hutcheson, in his Inquiry Concerning Moral Good and Evil (section 3), had said: "The moral evil or vice is as the degree of misery and number of the sufferers, so that that action is best which produces the greatest happiness for the greatest numbers." Bul-wer-Lytton's humorous paraphrase, put into the month of Kenelm Chillingly, in the novel of that name, is well known: "The greatest happiness of the greatest number is best secured by a prudent consideration for Numher One," Analogies more or less remote may be found below:

Our object in the construction of the state is the greatest happiness of the whole, and not that of any one class.
Plato. Republic. iv. 1. (Jowett, trans.)
(Plato puts this phrase into the mouth of Socrates.)
The aggregate happiness of society, which is hest promoted by the practice of a virtuons policy, is, or ought to be, the end of all government.
Georee Washington. Political Maxims.
That is the best government which desires to make the people happy, and knows how to make them happy.

Macadlay. On Mifford's History of Greece. 1824.]

GRACE.

Plato was continually saying to Xenocrates, "Sacrifice to the Graces."

Diogenes Laektius. Xenocrates. iii.
[Chesterfield quotes the saying in his Letters, March 9, 1748. Plutarch, in tne Banquet of the Seven Wise Men, attributes to Solon the saying, "Let us sacrifice to the Mnses.']

York. Grace me no grace, nor uncle me no uncles.

Sharespeare. Richard II. Act 2. Sc. 3. 1. 88.

Sir Andrew Ague-cheel. He does it with a better grace, but I do it more natural.
Ibid. Twelfth Night. Act ii. Sc. 3. 1. 89.
Angelo. When once our grace we have forgot,
Nothing goes right.
Ibid. Measure for Measure. Activ. Sc. 4. 1. 36.

Hung over her enamour'd, and beheld
Beauty, which, whether waking or asleep,
Shot forth peculiar graces. Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. v. 1. 13.
'Cause grace and virtue are within
Prohibited degrees of kin;
And therefore no true saint allows
They shall be suffered to espouse.
Butler. Hudibras. Pt. iii. Canto i. 1. 1293.

Vows with so mucl passion, swears with so much grace,
That'tis a kind of heaven to be deluded by him.
Nateaniel Lee. Alexander the Great. Act i. Sc. 3.

Take time enough: all other graces
Will soon fill up their proper places. John Byrom. Advice to Preach Slow.
Learn to read slow : all other graces
Will follow in their proper places.
William Walkes. The Art of Reading.
O fair undress, best dress! it checks no vein
But every flowing limb in pleasure drowns,
And heightens ease with grace.
Tномson. The Castle of Indolence. St. 26.
Who hath not owned, with rapturesmitten frame,
The power of grace, the magic of a name?
Camprell. Pleasures of Hope. Pt. ii. 1.5.
Born for success he seemed,
With grace to win, with heart to hold,
With shining gifts that took all eyes.
Emerson. In Memoriam.
In this awfully stupendous manner, at which Reason stands aghast, and Faith herself is half-confounded, was the grace of God to man at length manifested.

Richard hurd. Sermons. Vol. ii.
Ye are fallen from grace.
New Testament. Galatians v. 4.
Stately and tall he moves in the hall
The chief of a thousand for grace. kate Franklin. Life at olympus.
Alas! when all the gods assembled around his cradle to present their gifts, the graces were not there, and he to whom the favor of these fair powers is wanting may indeed possess much and be able to confer much, yet on his bosom we can never rest.

Goethe. Tasso. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 197.

GRASS.

All flesh is grass. oid Testament. Isaiah xi. 6.
The bare earth, till then
Desert and bare, unsightly, unadorned,
Brought forth the tender grass, whose verdure clad
Her universal face with pleasant green.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. vii. 1. 313.
And he gave it for his opinion, that wheever could make two ears of corn, or two blades of grass, to grow upon a spot of ground where only one grew before, would deserve better of mankind, and do more essential service to his country, than the whole race of politicians put together.

SWifT. Gulliver's Travels. Pt. ii. Ch. vii. (Voyage to Brobdingnag.)
He who blesses most is blest:
And God and man shall own his worth
Who toils to leave as his bequest
An added beauty to the earth.
WHiTTIER. Lines for the Agricultural Exhibition at Amesbury.
Give fools their gold, and knaves their power;
Let fortune's bubbles rise aud fall;
Who sows a field, or trains a flower,
Or plants a tree, is more than all.
Ibid. Lines for the Agricultural Exhibition at Amesbury.
A child said, What is the grass? fetching it to me with full hands;
How could I answer the child? I do not know what it is any more than he.
I guess it must be the flag of my disposition, out of hopeful green stuff woven.

And now it seems to me the beautiful uncut hair of graves.
Walt Whitman. Leaves of Grass. Song of Myself. 6.

GRATITUDE.

Duncan. The sin of my ingratitude even now
Was heary on me: thou art so far before,
That swiftest wing of recompense is slow To overtake thee. 'Wonld thou hadst less deserved;
That the proportion both of thanks and payment
Might have been mine ! only I have left to say,
More is thy due than more than all can pay.
Macbeth. The service and the loyalty I owe,
In doing it, pays itself. Your highness' part
Is to receive our duties: and our duties
Are to your throne and state children and servants.
Shagrspeare. Macbeth. Act i. Sc. 4. 1. 17.

Antony. Let but the commons hear this testament-
Which, parlon me, I do not mean to read-
And they would go and kiss dead Casar's wounds
And dip their napkins in his sacred blood,
Yea, beg a hair of him for memory,
And, dying, mention it within their wills,
Bequeathing it as a rich legacy
Unto their issue.
Shakespeare. Julius Cæsar. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 130.
A grateful mind
By owing owes not, but still pays, at once
Indebted and discharg'd.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. 1. 55.
The unwilling gratitude of base mankind!

Pope. Second Book of Horace. Epistle i. 1. 14.

Gratitude is a fruit of great cultivation; you do not find it among gross people.

Dr. Johnson. Tour to the Hebrides. September 20, 1773.
The gratitude of place-expectants is a lively sense of future favours.

Sir Robert Walpole. Conversation.
The gratitude of most men is but a secret desire of receiving greater benefits.

La Rociefoucauld. Reflections; on, Sentences and Moral Maxime. No. 298.
He who has once done you a kindness will be more ready to do you another than he whom you yourself have obliged.
benjamin Franklin. Poor Richard's Almanac.
Sweet is the breath of vernal shower, The bee's collected treasures sweet, Sweet music's melting fall, but sweeter yet
The still small voice of gratitude.
Gray. Ode for Music. 1. 61.
I've heard of hearts unkind, kind deeds
With coldness still returning;
Alas ! the gratitude of men
Hath oftener left me mourning.
Wornsworth. Simon Lee. Concluding lines.

Next thing to ingratitude, the most painful thing to bear is gratitude.

Henky Ward Beecher. Proverbs from Plymoulh Pulpit.

GRAVE.

Sit tibi terra levis, mollique tegaris arena.
Light lie the earth upon you, soft be the sands that cover you.

Martial. epigrame. ix. 30, 11.
Requiescat in pace.
May he rest in peace.

Latin phrase.

[The latter phrase and the first four words of the quotation from Martial were so frequently used on Roman tombstones that they came to be intelligibly abbreviated as R. I. P. or S. T. T. L. respectively. Martial has been multitudinously imitated. A few examples from English literature follow:
Lie lightly on my ashes, gentle earth!
beaymont and Fletcher. Bonduca. Activ. Sc. 3 .

Here she lies a pretty bud,

Lately made of flesh and blood;
Who, as soon fell fast asleep,
As her little eyes did peep.
Give her strewings, but not stir
The earth that lightly covers her.
Herrick. Upon a Child that Died.
Naturally the familiar idea led to parody, as in the féigned epitaph on Sir John Vanbrugh, architect as well as playwright:

Lie heavy on him, earth, for he
Laid many a heavy load on thee.]
Katharine. So may be rest, lis faults lie gently on him.

Shakespeare. King Henry VIII. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 31.
[Thus in the quarto. The folio substitutes "lightly" for "gently."]

O Lady, he is dead and gone!  Lady, he's dead and gone!

And at his head a green grass turfe, - And at his heels a stone.

Thomas Percy. The Friar of Orders Gray.
[This ballad, preserved in Percy's Reliques of Ancient Poetry, is a sort of literary mosaic made up of fifteenth and sixteenth century fragments pieced together with original passages by Percy himself. Shakespeare puts the above quatrain into the month of the mad Ophclia (Hamlet, Act iv., Sc. 5) with some slight verbal differences:

He is dead and gone, lady,
He is dead and gone;
At his head a grass-green turf, At his heels a stone.]

GRAVES.

Arthur: I would that I were low laid in my grave;

Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act iii. Sc. 3. 1. 70.

Bishop. Many a time hath banish'd Norfolk fought
For Jesu Christ, in glorious Christian field,
Streaming the ensign of the Christian Cross,
Against black Pagans, Turks, and Saracens:
And, toil'd with works of war, retir'd himself
To Italy; and there, at Venice, gave
His body to that pleasant country's earth,
And his pure soul unto his captain Christ,
Under whose colours he had fought so long.
Ibid. Richard II. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 97.
Griffth. He gave his honours to the world again,
His blessed part to heaven, and slept in peace.

The memory of the just survives in Heaven. WOrdsworth. The Excursion. Bk. vii.
Arviragus. With fairest flowers,
Whilst summer lasts, and I live here, Fidele,
I'll sweeten thy sad grave: thou shalt not lack
The flower that's like thy face, pale primrose ; nor
The azured harebell, like thy veins; no, nor
The leaf of eglantine, whom not to slander,
Out-sweeten'd not thy breath : the ruddock would,
With charitable bill (O bill, sore-shaming
Those rich-left heirs, that let their fathers lie
Without a monument !) bring thee all this;
Yea, and furr'd moss besides, when flowers are none,
To winter-ground thy corse.
Shakespeare. Cymbeline. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 222.

Cloun (sings). Come away, come away, death,
And in sad cypress let me be laid;
Fly away, fly away, breath:
I am slain by a fair cruel maid.
My shroud of white, stuck all with yew, O , prepare it ;
My part of death no one so true

- Did share it.

Ibid. Tweefth Night. Act ii. Sc. 4. 1. 52.
Oh, the grave!-the grave!-It buries every error-covers every defect-extinguishes every resentment ! From its peaceful hosom spring none but fond regrets and tender recollections. Who can look down upon the grave even of an enemy and not feel a compunctious throb, that he should ever have warred with the poor handful of earth that lies mouldering hefore him?

Waseington Irvino. The Sketch-book. Rural Funerals.
When death, the great Reconciler, bas come, it is never our tenderness that we repent of, but our severity. George Eliot. Adam Bede.
Mine be the breezy hill that skirts the down;
Where a green grassy turf is all I crave,
With here and there a violet bestrewn,
Fast by a brook or fountain's murmuring wave;
And many an evening sun shine sweetly on my grave!
Beattie. The Minstrel. Bk. ii. St. 17.
I gazed upon the glorious sky
And the green momntains round,
And thought that when I came to lie
At rest within the ground,
'Twere pleasant that in flowery June
When brooks send up a cheerful tune,
And groves a joyous sound,
The sexton's hand, my grave to make,
The rich, green mountain-turf should break.

Bryant. June.
I would rather sleep in the southern corner of a little country churchyard, than in the tombs of the Capulets.

Burke. Letter to Matthew Smith.
The grave is heaven's golden gate,
And rich and poor around it wait;
O Shepherdess of England's fold,
Behold this gate of pearl and gold!
Wm. Rlake. Dedication of the Designs to Blair's "Grave." To Queen Chartotte.

She lived unknown, and few could know
When Lucy ceased to be;
But she is in her grave, and oh,
The difference to me!
Wordeworti. 'To Lucy.
But oh! the heavy change now thou art gone;
Now thou art gone, and never must return! Milton. Lycidos. 1. 37.

Calm on the bosom of thy God,
Young spirit! rest thee now !

E'en while with us thy footstep trod, His seal was on thy brow.
Dust, to its narrow house beneath ! Soul, to its place on high !-
They that have seen thy look in death, No more may fear to die.

Each in his narrow cell for ever laid, The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep.
Gray. Elegy in a Country Churchyard. St. 4.

How sleep the brave who sink to rest ; By all their country's wishes blest!

William Collins. Ode written in the year 1746.
By fairy hands their knell is rung ;
By forms unseen their dirge is sung;
There Honour comes, a pilgrim gray,
To bless the turf that wraps their elay;
And Freedom shall awhile repair,
To dwell a weeping hermit there !
Ibid. Ode written in the year 1746 .
Few, few shall part where many meet 1 The snow shall be their winding-sheet, And every turf beneath their feet Shall be a soldier's sepulchre.

Campbell. Hohenlinden. St. 8.

Not a drum was heard, not a funeral note,
As his corse to the rampart we lurried;
Not a soldier discharged his farewell shot,
O'er the grave where our hero we buried.
Charles Wolfe. The Burial of Sir John Moore.
No useless coffin enclos'd his breast,
Nor in sheet nor in shrond we wound him:
But he lay like a warrior taking his rest,
With his martial cloak around him. Ibid. The Burial of Sir John Moore.
Slowly and sadly we laid him down,
From the field of his fame fresh and gory;
We carved not a line, and we raised not a stone,
But we left him alone with his glory.

Beatie. The Hermit.
I like that ancient Saxon phrase which calls
The burial-ground, God's Acrel It is just;
It consecrates each grave within its walls,
And breathes a benison o'er the sleeping dust.

Into its furrows shall we all be cast,
In the sure faith, that we shall rise again
At the great harvest, when the archangel's blaw
Shall winnow, like a fan, the chaff and grain.

Longrellow. God's Acre.
I thought of a mound in sweet Auburn Where a little headstone stood; How the flakes were folding it gently, As did robins the babes in the wood.

I remembered the gradual patience
That fell from that cloud like snow,
Flake by flake, healing and hiding
The scar that renewed our woe.
Lowzle. The Changeling.
She is coming, my own, my sweet;
Were it ever so airy a tread,
My heart would hear her and beat,
Were it earth in an earthy hed;
My dust would hear her and beat,
Had I lain for a century dead;
Would start and tremble under her feet
And blossom in purple and red.
Tennyson. Maud. xxii. 11.
Come not, when I am dead,
To drop thy foolish tears upon my grave,
To trample round my fallen head,
And vex the unhappy dust thou wouldst not save.
There let the wind sweep and the plover cry;
But thou, go by.
Ibid. Come Not When I Am Dead.
Sleep till the end, true soul and sweet!
Nothing comes to thee new or strange.
Sleep full of rest from head to feet;
Lie still, dry dust, secure of change.
Ibid. To J. S.
Strew on her roses, roses, And never a spray of yew !
In quiet she reposes;
Ah, would that I did too !
Matthew arnold. Requiescat.

GREAT AND SMALL.

God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things that are mighty.

New Testament. 1. Corinthians i. 27.

And yet are steep'd in favours.
Shardspeare. Cymbeline. Act v. Sc. 4. 1. 130.

Cassius. Why, man, he doth bestride the narrow world,
Like a Colossus; and we petty men
Walk under his huge legs, and peep about
To find ourselves diehonourable graves.
Now, in the names of all the gode at once,
Upon what meat doth this our Cesar feed,
That he is grown so great? Age, thou art shamed:

Rome, thou hast lost the breed of noble bloods !
When went there by ao age, since the great flood,
But it was famed with more than with one man?

Shakespeare. Julius Cxisar. Acti. se. 2. 1. 135.

The mightier man, the mightier is the thing,
That makes him honour'd, or begets him hate;
The greatest scandal waits on greatest state.
The moon being clouded presently is miss'd,
But little stars may hide them when they list.
Ibid. The Rape of Lucrece. 1. 1004.
Great men by small means oft are overthrown;
He's lord of thy life who contemns his own.

Herrice. Hesperides. 488.

He alone is worthy of the appellation who either does great things, or teaches how they may be done, or describes them with a suitable majesty when they have heen done; but those only are great things which tend to render life more happy, which increase the innocent enjoyments and comforts of existence, or which pave the way to a state of future bliss more permanent and more pure.

Milton. The Second Defence of the People of England.

He is at no end of his actions blest
Whose ends will make him greatest, and not best.

Great men too often have greater faults than little men can find room for.

Landor. Imaginary Conversations. Diogenes and Plato.
Great men are the true men, the men in whom nature has succeeded. They are not extraordinary, they are in the true order. It is the other species of men who are not what they ought to be.

Amiel. Journal. Angust 13, 1865. (MRs. Humpery Ward, trans.)

Greatness is a spiritual condition worthy to excite love, interest, and admiration ; and the outward proof of possessing greatness is, that we excite love, interest, and admiration.

Mattiew Arnold. Culture and Anarchy. Sweetness and Light.

Great men are they who see that spiritual is stronger than any material force, that thouglits rule the world.

Lord Houghton. The Men of Old.
Great truths are portions of the soul of man;
Great souls are portions of eternity. Lowell. Sonnet vi.
No man can produce great things who is not thoroughly sincere in dealing with himself.

1bid. Rousseau and the Sentimentalists.

The heights by great men reached and kept
Were not attained by sudden flight, But they, while their companions slept, Were toiling upward in the night.
Lonafellow. The Ladder of St. Augustine.
No great intellectual thing was ever done by great effort; a great thing can ouly be done by a great man, and he does it without effort.

> Ruskin. Pre-Raphaelitism.

Great souls are always loyally submissive, reverent to what is over them; only small, mean souls are otherwise.

Carlyle. Heroes and Hero Worship.
Great men will always pay deference to greater.

LaNDor. Imaginary Conversations. Southey and Porson.
As if misfortune made the throne her seat,
And none could be unhappy but the great.
Rowe. The Fair Penitent (Prologue).
High stations, tumult, hut not bliss, create; None think the great unhappy but the great. Youna. Love of Fame. Satire i. 1. 237.
That pompous misery of being great !
Broome. On the Seat of War in Flanders.
None are completely wretched but the great. Superior woes, superior stations bring.

Ibid. Episile to Mr. Fenton.
O, happy they that never saw the court, Nor ever knew great men but by report!

John Webster. The White Devil; or, Vittoria Corombona. Act v. Sc. 6.
Great let me call him, for he conquered me.

Young. The Revenge. i. 1.
Les grands ne sont grands que parceque nous sommes à genoux; relevons nous.

The great are only great because we are on our knees. Let us rise up.
Prud'homme. Revolutionsde Paris. Motto.
The great are only great hecause we carry them on our shoulders; when we throw them off they sprawl on the ground. MONTANDRe. Point de $l$ 'Ovale.
I never could believe that Providence had sent a few men into the world ready booted and spurred to ride, and millions ready saddled and bridled to be ridden.

Richard Rumbold, on the scaffold, 1685. History of England (Macaulay). Ch. v.

The heart ran o'er
With silent worship of the great of old!-
The dead, but sceptred sovereigas, who still rule
Our spirits from their urns.
Byron. Manfred. Aet iii. Sc. 4.
GREECE; GREEK.
Græcum est, non potest legi.
It is Greek, it cannot be read.
Francis accursius.
[The origin of the Boar's head served every Christmas at Queen's College, Oxon., is traced to a remote period, when a scholar of the college, encountering a wild hoar in Bagley Wood, thrust the volume of Aristotle which he was reading into the savage brute's jaws, crying out, "Græcurn est!", and so hoth choked his assailant and saved his own life.]

Cassius. Did Cicero say anything?
Casca. Ay, he spoke Greek.
Cassius. To what effect?
Casca. Nay, an I tell you that, I'll ne'er look you i' the face again: but those that understood him smiled at one another, and shook their heads; but, for mine own part, it was Greek to me.

Shakespeare. Julius Casar. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 281.

Accipe nunc Danaûm insidias, et crimine ab uno
Disce omnes.
Recognize now the treachery of the Greeks, and from one example learn the character of all.

Virgil. Eneid. ii. 65.
When Greeks joined Greeks then was the tug of war,
The labored battle sweat, and conquest bled

Philip fought men, but Alexander women.
Nathaniel Lee. Alexander the Great. Act iv. Sc. 2.
[The first line is constantly misquoted as When Greek meets Greek then comes the tug of war.
Lee puts the saying into the mouth of Clytus (Kleitos) in the heated dispute with Alexander, which goaded the conqueror to murder his old friend. Clytus is comparing Alexander disadvantageously with his father, Philip. In the second line, with its strained personification of hattle and conquest, sweat ( $=$ sweated) is the old past tense.]

Athens, the eye of Greece, mother of arts
And eloquence.
Milton. Paradise Regained. Bk. iv. 1. 240.

My faithful scene from true records shall tell,
How Trojan valour did the Greek excel ;
Your great forefathers shall their fame regain,
And Homer's angry ghost repine in vain.
Dryden. Prologue to Troilus and Cressida. Concluding lines.
Again to the battle, Achaians !
Our hearts bid the tyrants defiance!
Our land, the first garden of Liberty's tree,
It has been, and shall yet be, the land of the free.

Campbell. Song of the Greeks.
Ancient of days! august Athena! where,
Where are thy men of might, thy grand in soul?
Gone-glimmering through the dream of things that were:
First in the race that led to glory's goal,
They won, and pass'd away.
Byron. Childe Harold. Canto ii. St. 2.
And yet how lovely in thine age of woe,
Land of lost gods and godlike men ! art thou!
Ibid. Childe Harold. Canto ii. St. 85.
The isles of Greece, the isles of Greece I Where burning Sappho loved and sung.
Where grew the arts of war and peace, -
Where Delos rose, and Phœbus sprung!
Eternal summer gilds them yet,
But all, except their sun, is set. Ibid. Don Juan. Canto iii. St. 86. 1.
The mountains look on Marathnn,
And Marathon looks on the sea;
And musing there an hour alone,
I dreamed that Greece night still be free.
Ibid. Don Juan. Canto iii. St. 86. 3.
Earth! render back from out thy breast
A remaant of our Spartan dead I
Of the three hundred grant but three
To make a new Thermopylæ.
Ibid. Don Juan. Canto iii. St. 86. 7.

Such is the aspect of this shore;
'Tis Greece, but living Greece no more! So coldly sweet, so deadly fair,
We start, for soul is wanting there.
Byron. The Giaour. 1. 90.
Clime of the unforgotten brave !
Whose land, from plain to mountaincave,
Was Freedom's home, or Glory's grave; Shrine of the mighty ! can it be,
That this is all remains of thee?
Ibid. The Giaour. 1. 104.
Wherever literature consoles sorrow or assuages pain; wherever it brings gladness to eyes which fail with wakefulness and tears, and ache for the dark house and the long sleep,-there is exhibited in its noblest form the immortal influence of Athens.

Macaulay. Essays. Milford's Greece.

GRIEF.

(See Sorrow.)
De profundis clamavi ad te, Domine. Domine exaude vocem meam.

Out of the depths have I cried unto thee, $O$ Lord. Lord, hear my voice. old Testament (Vulgate). Psalm exxx. 1, 2.
[This is the funeral psalm chanted in the mass for the dead. From its first words it is known as the De Profundis.]

The iron entered into his soul.
The Book of Common Prayer. Psalm cv. 18.
[In the Authorized Version of the Bible this is translated, "He was laid in iron.']

Lady' Capulel. Some grief shews much of love;
But much of grief shews still some want of wit.
Shakespeare. Romeo and Jubiet. Act iii. Sc. 5. 1. 73.

Bushy. Each substance of a grief hath twenty shadows,
Which show like grief itself, but is not so;
For sorrow's eye, glazèd with blinding tears,
Divides one thing entire to many objects;

Like perspectives, which, rightly gazed upon,
Show nothing but confusion,-eyed awry, Distinguish form.

Shakespeare. Richard II. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 14.

Constance. I will instruct my Sorrows to be proud;
For Grief is proud, and makes his owner stoop.
To me, and to the state of my great Grief,
Let kings assemble; for my Grief's so great,
That no supporter but the buge firm earth
Can hold it up.-Here I and Sorrows sit;
Here is my throne, bid kings come bow to it.
Ibid. King John. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 69.
Belarius. Great griefs, I see, medicine the less.

Ibid. Cymbeline. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 243.
Brabantio. Nor doth the general care Take hold on me, for my particular grief
Is of so flood-gate and o'erbearing nature That it engluts and swallows other sorrows
And it is still itself.
Ibid. Othello. Act i. Sc. 3. 1.54.
Great joys, like griefs, are silent.
Shakerley Marmion. Holland's Leaguer. Act v. Sc. 1.
In all the silent manliness of grief. GoLDemitr. Deserted Village. 1. 384.
I tell you, hopeless grief is passionless; That only men incredulous of despair, Half-taught in anguish, through the midnight air
Beat upward to God's throne in loud access of shrieking and reproach.

Mrs. Browning. Sonnets: Grief.
The flood of grief decreaseth when it can swell no longer.

Bacon. Moral and Historical Works. Ornamenta Rationalia.
With woful measures wan Despair,
Low, sullen sounds his grief beguiled;
A solemn, strange, and mingled air;
'Twas sad by fits, by starts was wild.
william Collins. The Passions. 1. 25.
There is a solemn luxury in grief. William Mason. The English Garden.

Weep on ! and as thy sorrows flow, I'll taste the luxury of woe.

MOORE. Anacreontic.
It is dangerous to abandon one's self to the lnxnry of grief: it deprives one of courage, and even of the wish for recovery. AMEL. Journal, Dec. 29, 1871. (Mrs. Humphry Ward, trans.)
Antheming a lonely grief. Keats. Hyperion. iii. O brothers! let us leave the shame and sin Of taking vainly, in a plaintive mood, The holy name of Grief !-holy herein, That, by the grief of One, came all our good.
Mrs. Browning. Sonnets: Exaggeration.

GUILT.

(See Conscience; Crime; Sin.)
In flagranti crimine comprehensi.
Taken in flagrant violation of the law. Justinian. Corpus Juris Civilis Romani. Codex ix. Tit. xiii. 1.
[Generally quoted, "In flagrante delicto." A similar saying is "Caught red-handed," which, originally applied to murderers, has now extended its meaning to all offenders caught in the act.]

Queen. So full of artless jealousy is guilt,
It spills itself in fearing to he spilt.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act iv. Sc. 5. 1. 20.

I know not, I ask not, if guilt's in that heart,
I but know that I love thee, whatever thou art.

Moore. Come Rest in This Bosom.
Thy fanlts, my Lesbia, have such charm for me,
So far in love of thee I've lost myself,
Wert tholl a saint, I could not wish thee well,
Nor cease to worship thee whate'er thy sins.
Catullus. Odes. Ixxiii. 1. (W. M. F. Kine, trans.)
Let no guilty man escape, if it can be avoided. No personal consideration should stand in the way of performing a public duty.

President Grant. Indorsement of a Letter from W. D. W. Barnard relating to the Whiskey Ring, July 19, 1875.
(See "Sir Oracle," in The Era, August, 1903.)

HABIT.

(See Custom.)

That to which we have been accustomed becomes, as it were, a part of our nature.

Aristotle. Rhetorica. i. 11.

Habit is a second nature.
Montaigne. Essays. Bk. iii. Ch. x.
Mihi, qui ornnem aetatem in optimis artibus egi, bene facere jam ex consuetudine in naturam vertit.

In my own case, who have spent my whole life in the practice of virtue, right conduct from habitual life has become natural.

SAllust. Jugurtha. lxxxv.
This restless world
Is full of chances, which by habit's power
To learn to bear is easier than to shun. armstrong. Act of Preserving Health. Bk. 2. 1. 474.

Ease leads to habit, as success to ease,
He lives by rule who lives himself to please.

Crabbe. Tales. ii.
The glorious habit by which sense is made
Subservient still to moral purposes, Auxiliar to divine.

Wordsworth. The Excursion. Bk. iv. 1. 1246.

Habit is the approximation of the animal system to the organic. It is a confession of failure in the highest function of being, which involves a perpetinal self-determination, in full view of all existing circumstances.

Holmes. The Autocrat of the Breakfasttable.

HAIR AND BEARD.

The very bairs of your head are all numbered.

New Testament. Matthew x. 30.
Then shall ye bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave.

Old Testament. Genesis xlii. 38.
The hoary head is a crown of glory.
Ibid. Proverbs xvi. 31 .

Fancy grows colder as the creeps on, der as the silvery hair

Sin W. Scotr. Maeduff's Cross, Prelude. 1. 38.

My hair is gray, but not with years,
Nor grew it white
In a single night,
As men's have grown with sudden fears.
Byron. Prisoner of Chillon. 1. 1.
Beauty, for confiding yonth
Those shocks of passion can prepare
That kill the bloom before its time,
And blanch, without the owner's crime,
The most resplendent hair.
Wordsworti. Lament of Mary Queen of Scots. St. 6.
Tarry at Jericho until your beards be grown.

Old Testament. II. Samnel x. 5.
[King David's advice to his servants when Hanum, mistaking them for spies, sent them back from the land of Ammon with onehalf of their beards shaved off.]
Her long loose yellow locks lyke golden wyre,
Sprinckled with perle, and perling flowres atweene,
Doe lyke a golden mantle her attyre. Spenser. Epithalamion. 1. 154.

King Philip. Bind up those tresses. O, what love I note
In the fair multitude of those her hairs !
Where but by chance a silver drop hath fallen
Even to that drop ten thousand wiry friends
Do glue themselves in sociable grief,
Like true, inseparable, faithful loves,
Sticking together in calamity.
Shakespeare. King John. Actiii. Sc. 4. 1. 61.

Clown. Now Jove, in his next commodity of hair, send thee a beard! Ibid. Twelfth Night. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 50.

Cressida. Alas, poor chin! many a wart is richer.
1bid. Troilus and Cressida. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 152.

Hamlet. His beard was grizzled,-no?
Horatio. It was, as I have seen it in his life,
A sable silver'd,
Ibid. Hamlel. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 240.

His hair just grizzled
As in a green old age. DRYDEN. EEdipus, Act 1il. Sc. 1.

Ophelia (sings). His beard was as white as snow,
All flaxen was his poll.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act iv. sc. 5. 1. 195.

Beatrice. He that hath a beard is more than a youth, and he that hath no beard is less than a man.

Ibid. Much Ado About Nothing. Act ii. sc. 1. 1. 38.

To sport with Amaryllis in the shade
Or with the tangles of Neaera's hair.
Milton. Lycidas. 1.68.
Sabrina fair,
Listen where thou art sitting
Under the glassy, cool, translucent wave,
In twisted braids of lilies knitting
The loose train of thy amber-dropping hair.

Ibid. Comus. 1. 859.
No stealth of time has thinned my flowing hair.

Hammond. Elegy iv. St. 5.
Preferring sense, from chin that's bare,
To nonsense thron'd in whisker'd hair.
M. Green. The Spleen. 1. 750.

This nymph, to the destruction of mankind,
Nourish'd two locks, which graceful hung behind
In equal curls, and well conspired to deck,
With shining ringlets, the smooth ivory neck.
Love in these labyrinths his slaves detains,
And mighty hearts are held in slender chains.
With hairy springes we the birds betray;
Slight lines of hair surprise the finny prey,
Fair tresses man's imperial race insnare, And beauty draws us with a single hair.

Pope. Rape of the Lock. Canto ii. l. 19.
Those cnrious locks so aptly twin'd,
Whose every hair a sonl doth bind.
Carew. Think Not'Cause Men Flattering Say.

[^15]No cord nor cable can so forcibly draw, or hold so fast, as love can do with a twined thread.

Burton. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. iii. Sec. 2. Memh, 1. Suhsec. 2.

Beware of her fair hair, for she excels All women in the magic of her locks ;
And when she winds them round a young man's neck,
She will not ever set him free again.
GOETHE. Scenes from Faust. Sc. The Hartz Mountain. 1. 335. (SHelley, trans.)

Not ten yoke of oxen
Have the power to draw ns
Like a woman's hair.
Longrellow. The Saga of King Olaf. xvi. St. 23.

The meeting points the sacred hair dissever
From the fair head, forever, and forever!
Pope. Rape of the Lock. Canto iii. 1. 153.
Shakes his ambrosial curls, and gives the nod,--
The stamp of fate, and sanction of the god.

Ibid. Iliad. Bk. i. l. 684.
Ghost. Thy knotted and combined locks to part
And each particular hair to stand on end,
Like quills upon the fretful porcupine.
Shakegpeabe. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 5. 1. 19.

Macbeth. My fell of hair
Would at a dismal treatise rouse and stir
As life were in't.
Ibid. Macbeth. Act v. Sc. 5. 1. 11.
Anastasio having heard all this discourse his hair stood upright like porcupine's quills.

Boccaccio. Decameron. Fifth day. Novel 8 .
Katerfelto, with his hair on end.
At his own wonders, wondering for his bread.
Cowpre. The Task. Bk. iv. Winter Evening. 1. 86.

Loose his beard, and hoary hair
Stream'd like a meteor to the troubled air.

Gray. The Bard. Pt.i. l. 19.
An harmless flaming meteor stood for hair, And fell adown his shoulders with loose care.
abraham Cowley. Davideis. Bk. ii. 1. 95.

Yet, Freedom ! yet thy hanner, torn, hut flying,
Streams like the thunder-storm against the wind.
Bynon. Childe Harold. Canto iv. St. 98.
Like a red naeteor on the troubled air.
J. Heywoon. Four Prentices of London.

The smallest hair throws its shadow. Goethe. Maxims. Vol. iii. p. 159.

Even a single hair casts its shadow.
Publilius Syrue. Maxim 288.

HALLUCINATION.

(See Apparition.)
Lady Macbeth. Oh, proper stuff !
This is the very painting of your fear;
This is the air-drawn dagger, which, you said,
Led you to Duncan. Oh! these flaws and starts
-Impostors to true fear-would well become
A woman's story at a winter's fire,
Authoriz'd by her grandam.
Shakespeare. Macbeth. Act iii. Sc. 4. 1. 61.

Macbeth. Hence, horrible shadow !
Unreal mockery, hence!
Ibid. Macbeth. Act iii. Sc. 4. 1. 107.
Macbeth. Can such things be,
And overcome us, like a summer's cloud
Without our special wonder?
Ibid. Macbeth. Act iii. Sc. 4. 1. 111.
Queen. Alas! How is't with you, That you do bend your eye on vacancy And with the incorporal air do hold discourse?
Ibid. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 4. 1. 117.
Queen. This is the very cuinage of your brain:
This bodiless creation ecstasy
Is very cunning in.
Ibid. Hamlel. Act lii. Sc. 4. 1. 137.

Imogene. 'Twas but a bolt of nothing, shot at nothing,
Which the brain makes of fumes: our very eyes
Are sometimes like our judgments, blind.
Shakespeark. Cymbeline. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 300.

Shakespeare. As You Like It. Act $\mathbf{v}$. Sc. 2. 1. 48.
Salisbury. When we were happy we had other names.

Ibid. King John. Act v. Sc. 4. 1. 8.
The way to bliss lies not on beds of down,
And he that had no cross deserves no crown.

Quarles. Esther.
O happiness ! our being's end and aim ! Good, pleasure, ease, content ! whate'er thy name:

That something still which prompts the eternal sigh,
For which we bear to live, or dare to die.
Pope. Essay on Man. Epistlc iv. 1. I.
Some place the bliss in action, some in ease,
Those call it pleasure, and contentment these.
lbid. Essay on Man. Epistle iv. 1. 21.
The spider's most attenuated thread
Is cord, is cable, to man's tender tie
On earthly bliss; it breaks at „every breeze.

And e'en while fashion's brightest arts decoy,
The heart distrusting asks if this be joy. Goldsmith. Deserted Village. 1. 263.

There comes
For ever something between us and what We deem our happiness.

ByRon. Sardanapalus. Acti. Sc. 2.

It is a flaw

In happiness, to see beyond our bourn,1tiforces ns in summer skies to monrn, It spoils the singing of the nightingale.

Keats. Reminiscence of Claude's Enchanted Castle.
If happiness hae not her seat
And center in the breast,
We may be wise or rich or great,
But never can be blest.
Burng. Epistte to Davie. St. 5.
Sad fancies do we then affect,
In luxury of disrespect
To our own prodigal excess
Of too familiar happiness.
WORDSWORth. Ode to Lycoris. St. 2. (See under Pleasure ; Pain.)
Joys too exquisite to last,
And yet more exquisite when past.
James Montgomery. The Lillte Cloud. 1. 159.

A man too happy for mortality.
WORDSWORTH. Vaudracour and Julia. 1. 53.

And there is even a happiness,
That makes the heart afraid.
Hoon. Ode to Melancholy. 1. 90.
Now the heart is so fill that a drop overfills it;
We are happy now because God wills it.
LowErL. Vision of Sir Launfal. Prelude to Pt. 1. 1. 61.

How small of all that human hearts endure,
That part which kings or laws can cause or cure!
Still to oursel ves in every place consign'd,
Our own felicity we make or find;
With secret course, which no loud storms annoy,
Glides the smooth current of domestic joy :
The lifted axe, the agonizing wheel,
Luke's iron crown, and Damien's bed of steel,
To men remote from power, but rarely known,
Leave reason, faith, and conscience, all our own.
Dr. Johnson and Goldsmith. The Traveller.
[These are the concluding ten lines of the poem. Dr. Johnson, at Boswell's request, marked with a pencil the lincs which be had furnished to Goldsmith, "which are only," says Boswell, " line 420th:
"To stop too fcarful, and too faint to go;
and the concluding ten lines except the last couplet bnt one." Boswell. Life of Johnson. Fehruary, 1766.]

Happiness depends, as Nature shows,
Less on exterior things than most suppose. CowPer. Table Talk. 1. 246.

Man is the artificer of his own happincss. henry d. Thoread. Winter. Journal, January 21, 1838.
On n'est jamais si heureux, ni si malheureux, qu'on se l'imagine.

We are never so happy, nor so unhappy, as we suppose ourselves to be. la Rochefoucauld. Maxims.
And feel that 1 am happier than 1 know.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. viii. 1. 282.
She was a soft landscape of mild earth,
Where all was harmony, and calm, and quiet,
Luxuriant, budding; cheerful without mirth,
Which, if not happiness, is much more nigh it
Than are your mighty passions.

- Byroñ. Don Juan. Canto vi. St. 53.

All who joy would win
Must share.it,-Happiness was born a twin.

How soon a smile of God can change the world !
How we are made for happiness-how work
Grows play, adversity a winning fight! R. Browning. In a Balcony.

HARMONY.

(See Music; Optimism.)
From harmony, from heavenly harmony,
This universal frame began:
From harmony to harmony
Through all the compass of the notes it ran,
The diapason closing full in Man. Dryden. A Song for St. Cecilia's Day. 1. 11.

By harmony our souls are sway'd;
By harmony the world was made. Granvilie. The British Enchantress. Act i. Sc. 1.
Untwisting all the chains that tie
The hidden soul of harmony.
Milton. L'Allegro. 1.143.
All nature is but art, unknown to thee;
All chance, direction, which thou canst not see;
All discord, harmony not understood ;
All partial evil, universal good;
And spite of pride, in erring reason's spite,
One truth is clear, Whatever is, is right. Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle i. 1. 289.
Quid verit et possit rerum concordia discors.
What the discordant harmony of circumstances would and could effect.
Horace. Epistles. Bk. i. Epistle 12. 1. i9.
Dischord ofte in music makes the sweeter lay.

For discords make the sweetest airs, And curses are a sort of prayers.

Butles. Hudibras. Pt. iii. Cunto i. 1. 919.

Hippolyta. I never heard
So musical a discord, such sweet thunder.
Shakespeare. Midsummer Night's Dream. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 122.
You had that action and counteraction which, in the natural and in the political world, from the reciprocal struggle of discordant powers draws out the harmony of the universe.

Burke. Reffections on the Revolution in France. Works. Vol. iii.

Here earth and water seem to strive again;
Not chaos-like together crush'd and bruised,
But, as the world, harmoniously confused;
Where order in variety we see,
And where, though all things differ, all agree.

Pope. Windsor Forest. 1. 12.
There shall never be one lost good! What was, shall live as before;
The evil is null, is nought, is silence implying sound;
What was good shall be good, with for evil so much good more;
On the earth the broken arcs; in the heaven, a perfect round.

Browning. Abt Vogler. ix.

HARVEST.

Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.

New Testament. Galatians vi. 7.
Ut sementem feceris ita metes.
As thou hast sown, so shalt thou reap. Pinarius Ruyus. (Quoted by Cicero in De Oratore. 1i. 65, 261.)
They have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind.

Accerima proximorum odia.
The hatred of relatives is the most violent.

Tacites. Annals. iv. 70.
Odi et amo. Quare id faciam, fortasse requiris.
Nescio, sed fieri sentio et excrucior.
I hate and I love. Perchance you ask why I do that. I know not, but I feel that I do and I am tortured.

Catullus. Carmina. lixxy. I.
Who love too much, hate in the like extreme.

Homer. Odyssey. Bk. xv. l. 79. (Pope, trans.)
The more we love a mistress, the nearer we are to hating her.

La Rochrfoucauld. Maxims. 114.
What medicine then can such disease remove,
Where love draws hate, and hate engendercth love?

Sir P. Sidney. Arcadia. Bk. iii.
Once when I loved, I would enlace
Breast, cyelids, hands, feet, form and face of her I loved in one embrace-
As if by mere love I could love immensely !
and when I hated I would plunge
My sword and wipe with the first lunge
My foe's whole life out like a sponge-
As if by mere hate I could hate intensely!
But now I am wiser, know hetter the fashion
How passion seeks aid from its opposite passion.
Browning. Pippa Passes. ii. 1. 207.

When I love most, Love is disguised
In Hate ; and when Hate is surprised In Love, then I hate most.

Browning. Pippa Passes. ii. 227.
Aut amat aut odit mulier; nil est tertium.

A woman either loves or hates; there is no third course.

But I do hate him as I hate the devil. Ben Jonbon. Every Man Out of His Humour. Act i. Sc. 1.

Shylock. How like a fawning publican he looks!
I hate him, for he is a Christian :
But more, for that, in low simplicity
He lends out money gratis and brings down
The rate of usance bere with us in Venice.
If I can catch him once upon the hip,
I will feed fat the ancient grudge I bear him.
He hates our sacred nation; and he rails,
Even there where merchants most do congregate,
On me, my bargains, and my well won thrift,
Which he calls interest. Cursed be my tribe,
If I forgive him!
Shakespeare. Merchant of Venice. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 42.

Bassanio. Do all men kill the things they do not love?
Shylock. Hates any man the thing he would not kill?
Bassanio. Every offence is not a hate at first.
Shylock. What, would'st thou have a serpent sting thee twice?
Shakespeare. Merchant of Venice. act iv. sc. 1. 1. 67 .

Helena. If you were men, as you are men in show,
You would not use a gentle lady so ;
To vow, and swear, and superpraise my parts,
When, I am sure, you hate me with your hearts.
Ibid. Midsummer Night's Dream. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 152.

It is a greater grief

To bear love's wrong, than hate's known injury.

A bealthy mind in a healthy body.
Juvenal. Satires. x. 356.

Safeguard the bealth both of body and sonl.

Cleobulus. (Stobaeus, Florilegium. iii. 79.)

A sound Mind in a sound Body, is a short but full description of a bappy State in this World.

LOcke. Thoughts Concerning Education.
Non est vivere, sed valere vita.
Life is not mere living, but the enjoyment of health.

Martial. Epigrammata. vi. 70, 13.
Health is the first good lent to men;
A gentle disposition then;
Next, to be rich by no by-ways;
Lastly, with friends t' enjoy our days.
Herrick. Hesperides. Four Things Make Us Happy Here. 121.

Reason's whole pleasure, all the joys of sense,
Lie in three words-health, peace, and competence.
Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle iv. l. 79.

Oh health! health! the blessing of the rich ! the riches of the poor! who can buy thee at too dear a rate, since there is no enjoying the world without thee. Be then not so sparing of your purses, bonorable gentlemen.
ben Jonson. Volpone. Act ii.
Health is the second blessing that we mortals are capable of-a blessing that money cannot buy.
Waliton. Complete Angler. Pt. i. Ch. xxi.
Ah! what avail the largest gifts of Heaven,
When drooping health and spirits go amiss?
How tasteless then whatever can be given!
Health is the vital principle of bliss, And exercise, of health.

What know we of the blest ahove
But that they sing and that they love? Wordsworth. Scene on the Lake of Brientz. 1. 1.
[Wordsworth puts this couplet in quotation marks as an acknowledgement of his indehtedness to Waller.]
There is a land of pure delight,
Where saints immortal reign;
Infinite day excludes the night,
And pleasures banish pain.
Watts. Hymn 66.
There's nae sorrow there, Jean,
There's neither cauld nor care, Jean,
The day is aye fair,
In the land o' the leal.
Lady Nairne. The Land o' the Leal.

A passage broad, Smooth, easy, inoffensive, down to Hell. Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. x. 1. 304.

Long is the way

And hard, that out of hell leads up to light. Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. î. 1. 432.

Porter. I had thought to have let in some of all professions that go the primrose way to the everlasting bonfire.

Shafespeare. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc. 3. 1. 21.

Horror and doubt distract
His troubled thoughts, and from the bottom stir
The hell within him; for within him hell
He brings, and round about him, nor from hell
One step, no more than from himself, can Hy
By change of place: now conscience wakes despair
That slumbered, wakes the bitter memory
Of what he was, what is, and what must be
Worse ; of worse deeds worse sufferings must ensue.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 18.
The mind is its own place, and in itself Can make a heaven of hell, a hell of heaven.

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. 1. 253.

> Myselfam hell;

And in the lowest deep $a$ lower deep, Still threat'ning to devour me, opens wide; To which the hell I suffer seems a heaven.

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. 1. 75.
Hell hath no limits, nor is circumserib'd
In one self-place; for where we are is Hell ;
And where Hell is, there must we ever be;
And to conclude, when all the world dissolves,
And every creature shall he purified,
All places shall be Hell that are not Heaven. Marlowe. Faustus. 1. 540.

The heart of man is the place the Devil dwells iu: I feel sometimes a hell within myself.

Sir Thomas Browne. Reitigio Medici. Pt. i. Sec. 51.

I sent my Soul through the Invisible, Some letter of that After-life to spell :

And by and by my Soul return'd to me,
And answerd, "I Myself am Heav'n and Hell."

A dungeon horrible, on all sides round, As one great furnace, flamed; yet from those flames
No light, but rather darkness visible
Serv'd only to discover sights of woe,
Regions of sorrow, doleful shades, where peace
And rest can never dwell, hope never comes
That comes to all ; but torture without end.
Milion. Paradise Lost. Bk, i. 1.61.
Hail, horrors, hail,
Infernal world I and thou profoundest hell,
Receive thy new possessor.
Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. 1. 250.
This huge convex of fire,
Outrageous to devour, immures us round
Ninefold, and gates of burning adamant
Barred over us prohibit all egress.
1bid. Paradise Lost. Bk. ii. 1. 434.
Beyond this flood a frozen continent
Lies dark and wild, beat with perpetual storms
Of whirlwind and dire hail, which on firm land
Thaws not, but gathers heap, and ruin seems
Of ancient pile : all else, deep snow and ice,
A gulf profound, as that Serbonian bog
Betwixt Damiata and Mount Casius old,
Where armies whole have sunk: the parching air
Burns frore, and cold performs the effect of fire.
Thither, by harpy-footed Furies haled,
At certain revolutions all the damned
Are brought; and feel by turns the bitter change
Of fierce extremes, extremes by change more fierce,
From beds of raging fire to starve in ice
Their soft ethereal warmth, and there to pine
Immovable, infixed, and frozen round,
Periods of time; thence hurried back to fire.

Ibid. Paradise Lort. Bk. ii. 1. 587.

Wherefore with thee
Came not all hell broke loose.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. 1. 917.
Here we may reign secure ; and in my choice
To reign is worth ambition, though in hell. Better to reign in liell than serve in heaven.

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. l. 261.
[The devil of Stafford's Niobe (published in 1611) anticipated the devil of Milton's Paradise Lost :

Now forasmuch as $I$ was an Angel of Light, it was the Will of Wisdom to confine me to Darkness, and make me Prince thereof; so that 1 , that could not obey in Heaven, might command in Hell; and believe me, I had rather rule within my dark domain than to rehabit Coelum Imperium, and there live in subjection under check, a slave of the Most High.
There is also a parallel passage in Fletcher's Purple Island, Canto vii.:
In heaven they scorn to serve, so now in hell they reign.]

Belarius. O thou goddess,
Thou divine Nature, how thyself thou blazon'st
In these two princely boys! They are as gentle
As zephyrs, blowing below the violet,
Not wagging his sweet head; and yet as rough,
Their royal blood enchafed, as the rudest wind,
That by the top doth take the mountain pine,
And make him stoop to the vale. 'Tis wonderful,
That an invisible instinct should frame them
To royalty unlearn'd; honour untaught;
Civility not seen from other; valour,
That wildly grows in them, but yields a crop
As if it had heen sow'd! Yet still it's strange,
What Cloten's being here to us portends,
Or what his death will bring us.

I look upon you as gem of the old rock. Sir Thomas Browne. Urn-burial. Dedication.

HERMIT.

Shall I, like an hermit, dwell
On a rock or in a cell? Sir Walter Ralelgh. Poem. (Quoted in Cayley's Life of Raleigh. Vol. i.)
Far in a wild, unknown to public view, From youth to age a reverend hermit grew;
The moss his bed, the cave his humble cell,
His food the fruits, his drink the crystal well:
Remote from man, with God he pass'd the days;
Prayer all his business, all his pleasure praise.

Parnell. The Hermit. St. 1.
Turn, gentle Hermit of the Dale, And guide my lonely way
To where yon taper cheers the vale With hospitable ray.

Goldemith. The Hermit.
Hermit hoar, in solemn cell
Wearing out life's evening gray ;
Smite thy bosom, sage, and tell
What is bliss, and which the way?
Thus I spoke, and speaking sighed :-
Scarce repressed the starting tear ;
When the smiling sage replied,
"Come, my lad, and drink some beer." Dr. Johnson. Boswell's Life. September 18, 1777.

Deep in yon cave Honorius long did dwell,
In hope to merit heaven by making earth a hell.
Byron. Childe Harold's Pilgrimage. Canto 1. St. 20.

HERO.

Heroes as great have died, and yet shall fall.

POPE. The Miad of Homer. Bk. xp. 1. 157.

But when religion does with virtue join,
It makes a hero like an angel shine.
Waller. a Fragment on Ovid.
See the conquering hero comes!
Sound the trumpet, beat the drums !
Dr. Thomas Morell.
[Dr. Morell wrote the text for Handel's oratorios, Joshua and Judas Maccabeus, in both of which this song was used. It was also interpolated into the later stage versions of Lee's Rival Queens.]
Hail to the chief who in triumph advances.
Scotr. Lady of the Lake. Canto ii. St. 19.
Il n'ya pas de héros pour son valet-de-chambre.

No man is a hero to his valet-dechambre.

Mme. Cornuel. (According to Mdlle.
Aisste, Lettres. p. 166.)
[Marshal Catinat had already said, "A man must indeed be a hero to appear such to his valet." Other remoter anticipations of the thought may be quoted:
The nearer one approaches to great persons, the more one sees that they are but men. Rarely are they great in the eyes of their valets.

La Broyére. Caracteres.
Many a man has seemed to the world to be a miracle, in whom his wife and his valet have not seen anything remarkable. Few men have been admired by their servants.

Montalone. Essays. Bk. iii. Ch. ii.
When Hermodorus in his poems described Antigonns as the son of Helios, "my bodyservant," said he, "is not aware of this,"

Plutargh. Of Isis and Osiris.]
Combien de héros, glorieux, magnanimes, ont vécu trop d'un jour!

How many illustrious and noble heroes have lived too long by one day! J. B. Rousseau.

These are Clan-Alpine's warriors true, And, Saxon, I am Roderick Dhu!
Scott. Lady of the Lake. Canto 7 . St. 9.
Heroes, it would seem, exist always, and a certain worship of them! We will also take the liberty to deny altogether that saying of the witty Frenchman, that no man is a hero to his valet-de-chambre. Or, if so, it is not the hero's blame, but the valet's: that his soul, namely, is a mean valet-soul.

Carlyle. Hero Worship. The Hero as Man of Letters.
No one, it is said, is a hero to his own servant; but that arises simply from the circumstance that a hero can only be known by heroes. The servant would prohably be able to appreciate those like himself.

Goethe. Maxims. Vol. iii. p. 204.
Heroes are much the same, the point's agreed,
From Macedonia's madman to the Swede;
The whole strange purpose of their lives, to find
Or make an enemy of all mankind !
Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle iv. 1. 219.
Whoe'er excels in what we prize,
Appears a hero in our eyes.
Swift. Cadenus and Vanessa. 1. 729.
Toll for the brave :-
The brave that are no more!
All sunk beneath the wave,
Fast by their native shore! Cowper. On the Loss of the Royal George.
I want a hero: an uncommon want, When every year and month sends forth a new one.

Byron. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 1.
Earth ! render back from out thy breast A remnant of our Spartan dead!
Of the three hundred grant but three, To make a new Thermopylæ.

Ibid. Don Juan. Canto iii.
Is it for this the Spanish maid, aroused, Hangs on the willow her unstrung guitar,
And, all unsex'd, the anlace hath espoused,
Sung the loud song, and dared the deed of war?

And she, whom once the semblance of a scar
Appall'd, an owlet's 'larum chill'd with dread,
Now views the column-scattering bay'net jar,
The falchion flash, and o'er the yet warm dead,
Stalks with Minerva's step where Mars might quake to tread.
Byron. Childe Harold's Pilgrimage. Canto i. St. 54.
The boy stood on the burning deck,
Whence all but him had fled;
The flume that lit the battle's wreck Shone round him o'er the dead. Mrs. Hemans. Cassabianca.
But to the hero, when his sword
Has won the battle for the free,
Thy voice sounds like a prophei's word,
And in its hollow tones are heard
The thanks of millons yet to he. Fitz-Greene Halleck. Marco Bozzaris. St. 6.
In the world's broad field of battle,
In the bivonac of Life,
Be not like dumb, driven cattlel
Be a hero in the strifel
Longfellow. A Psalm of Life. St. 5.
There needs not a great soul to make a hero ; there needs a God-created soul which will be true to its origin ; that will be a great soul.

Carlyle. Heroes and Hero Worship. The Hero as Priest.
Vain, mightiest fleets of iron framed;
Vain, those all-shattering guns;
Uuless proud England keep, untamed,
The strong heart of her sons.
So let his nanie through Europe ring -
A man of mean estate,
Who died, as firm as Sparta's king,
Because his soul was great.
Sir Francis hastings doyle. The Private of the Buffs. St. 5 .
Hurrah, hurrah for Sheridan !
Hurrah, hurrah for horse and manl
And when their statues are placed on high,
Under the dome of the Uniou sky, -
The American soldier's Temple of Fame,
There with the glorious General's name

Be it said in letters both bold and bright:
"Here is the steed that saved the day
By carrying Sheridan into the fight, From Winchester-twenty miles away!"

Thomas Buchanan Read. Sheridans' Ride. Concluding lines.
The characteristic of genuine heroism is its persistency. All men have wandering iopulses, fits and starts of generosity. But when you have resolved to be great, abide by yourself, and do not weakly try to reconcile yourself with the world. The heroic cannot be the common, nor the common the heroic.

Emerson. Essays: Heroism.
Go with mean people and you think life is mean. Then read Plutarch, and the world is a proud place, peopled with men of positive quality, with heroes and demigods standing around us, who will not let us sleep.

Ibid. Representative Mcn. Plutarch.

HESITATION.

How long halt ye between two opinions.
old Testament. I. Kings xpiii. 21.
Deliberando sæpe perit occasio.
Opportunity is often lost through deliberation.

Publilios Syrus. Maxim 185.
Cf. Dum deliberamus quando incipiendum, incipere jam serum fit.
While we are considering when to begin, it becomes already too late to do so.
(See Opportunity.)
Deliberandum est sæpe, statuendum est semel.

Deliberate as often as you please, but when you decide it is once for all.

Publilius Syrus. Maxim 132.
And while I at length debate and beate the bush

John Heywood. Proverbes. Pt. i. Ch. iii.
While betweene two stooles my taile goe to the ground.

Ibid. Proverbes. Pt. i. Ch, iii.
[In a French MS. In the Bodecian Library, Les Proverbes del Vilain (circa 1303), the proverb appears in this form, "Entre deux arcouns chet cul a terra."]

King. That we would do,
We should do when we would; for this would changes,
And hath abatements and delays as many,
As there are tongues, are hands, are accidents;
And then this should is like a spendthrift sigh,
That hurts by easing.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act iv. Sc. 7. 1. 119.

Hamlet: Now whether it be
Bestial oblivion, or some craven scruple
Of thinking too precisely on the event,-
A thought which, quartered, liath but one part wisdom,

The illness should attend it. What thou would'st highly,
That would'st thou holily; would'st not play false,
And yet wonld'st wrongly win; thon'dst have, great Glamis,
That which cries, Thus thou must do, if thou'dst have it ;
And that which rather thon dost fear to do,
Than wishest should be undone. Ibid. Marbeth. Act i. Sc. 5. 1. 16.

Macbeth. If it were done, when 'tis done, then 'twere well
It were done quickly: if the assassination

Could trammel up the consequence, and catch
With his surcease, success; that but this blow
Might be the be-all and the end-all here,
But here, upon this bank and shoal of time,-
We'd jump the life to come. But, in these cases,
We still have judgment here; that we but teach
Bloody instructions, which, being taught, return
To plague the inventor: This evenhanded justice
Commend the ingredients of our poison'd chalice
To our own lips.

And fear of doing ill, does nothing well.
Etienne Pasquier (Paschasius). Epigrammata, ii. 63.

Time was, I shrank from what was right
For fear of what was wrong:
I would not brave the sacred fight, Because the foe was strong.
But now I cast that finer sense And sorer shame aside:
Such dread of sin was indolence, Such aim at heaven was pride.

Cardinal Newman.
When love once pleads admission to our hearts.
In spite of all the virtue we can boast, The woman that deliberates is lost.

Addison. Cato. Activ. Sc. 1.

While vain coquettes affect to be pursued,

Wordsworth. The Prelude, Book First. 1. 255.

He who dallies is a dastard, He who doubts is damned.

Unknown.
[These lines are said to have been quoted by James Hamilton, of South Carolina, at a banquet in Charleston when he was Governor of the state (between 1830 and 1832) and during the excitement of the nullification period. They were again quoted by J. S. Blackburn, of Kentucky, in a speech made in Congress in the winter of 1876-77. The whole country was on fire over the question of the Hayes-Tilden disputed election. Henry Watterson had offered his inflammatory proposition that 100,000 unarmed Keutuckians should march on Washington and seat Mr. Tilden. Mr. Blackburn seconded him by summoning every Democrat to the deadly breach and repeating the couplet.]

HISTORY.

The long historian of my country's woes.

Homer. Odyseey. Bk. iii. 1.142. (Pope, trans.)

I have read somewhere or other-in Dionysius of Halicarnassus I thinkthat History is Philosophy teaching by examples.

Bolingrroke. On the Study and Use of History. Letter ii.
[Dionysius' words are "'Iqтopia фı入oaoфía which, literally translated, would be "History is Philosophy learned from examples.", He credits the phrase to Thucydides. It is, in fact, a paraphrase of a passage from Thucydides. Bk. i. 22.]
Before philosophy can teach by experience, the philosophy has to be in readiness, the experience must be gathered and intelligibly recorded.

Carlyle. Esbays. On History.
I shall be content if those shall pronounce my History useful who desire to give a view of events as they did really happen, and as they are very likely, in accordance with human nature, to repeat themselves at some future time-if not exactly the same, yet very similar.

Thucydides. Historia. i. $2,2$.
[Hence the phrase, "History repeats itself.' ${ }^{\prime}$ ]
It is no great wonder if in long process of time, while fortune takes her course hither and thither, numerous coincidences should spontaneously occur. If the number and variety of subjects to be wrought upon be infinite, it is all the more easy for fortune, with such an abundance of material, to effect this similarity of results.

Plutarch. Life of Sertorius.
'Tis one and the same Nature that rolls on her course, and whoever has sufficiently considered the present state of things might certainly conclude as to both the future and the past.

Many heroes lived before agamemnon, hut they are all unmourned and consigned to a long night of oblivion, because they lacked a sacred bard.

Horace. Odes. Bk. iv. Ode 9, 1. 25.
Brave men were living before Agamemnon, And since, exceeding valorous and sage,
A good deal like him too, though quite the same, none;
But then they shome not on the poet's page, And so have been forgotten.

Byron. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 5.
There is a saying among men, that a noble deed ought not to he buried in the silent grave. It is the divine power of song that is suited to it.

Pindar. Epinicia. ix. 13.
The love of history seems inseparable from human nature because it seems inseparable from self-love.

Carlyle. The French Revotution. Pt. i. Bk. vii. Ch. v.
All those instances to be found in history, whether real or fabulous, of a donbtful public spirit, at which morality is perplexed, reason is staggered, and from which affrighted Nature recoils, are their chosen and almost sole examples for the instruction of their youth. Burke. On a Regicide Peace.
The reign of Antoninus is marked by the rare advantage of furnishing very few materials for history, which is indeed little more than the register of the crimes, follies, and misfortunes of mankind.

Gibbon. Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire (1776). Ch. iii.

L'histoire n'est que le tableau des crimes et des malheurs.

History is only the register of crimes and misfortunes.

HOLIDAYS.

Prince. If all the year were playing holidays,
To sport would be as tedious as to work. Shazempeare. I. Henry IV. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 228.

Iris. Yon sunburnt sicklemen, of August weary,
Come bither from the furrow and be merry:
Make holiday ; your rye-straw hats put on
And these fresh nymphs encounter every one
In country footing.
Ibid. Tempesi. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 134.

Rosalind. For now am I in a holiday humor.

Sharegpeare. As You Like In. Act iv. Sc.1. 1. 69.
The red-letter days now become, to all intents and purposes, dead-letter days.

Lamb. Oxford in the Vacation.
There were his young barbarians all at play,
There was their Dacian mother-he, their sire,
Butcher'd to make a Roman holiday. byron. Childe Harold. Canto iv. St. 141.

HOLLAND.

A country that draws fifty foot of water,
In which men live as in the hold of nature;
And when the sea does in upon them break,
And drowns a province, does but spring a leak.

That feed, like cannibals, on other fishes,
And serve their cousin-germans up in dishes.
A land that rides at anchor, and is moored,
In which they do not live, but go aboard.
Samuel Butler. Description of Holland.
Holland, that scarce deserves the name of land,
As but the off-scouring of the British sand;
And so much earth as was contributed
By English pilots, when they leaved the lead.
andrew Marvell. The Character of Holland. 1. 1.
How did they rivet with gigantic piles
Through the centre their new-catcled miles;
And to the stake a struggling country bound,
Where barking waves still bait the forced ground.
Ibid. The Character of Holland. 1. 17.
Who best could know to pump an earth so leak,
Him they their lord and country's father speak;

To make a bank was a great plot of state ;-
Invent a shovel, and be a magistrate.
andrew Marvel. The Character of Holland. 1. 45.
We do not know, and perhaps it would be impossible to discover, whether Butler wrote his minor pieces before those of the great patriot Andrew Maryell, who rivalled him in wit and excelled him in poetry. Marvell, though born later, seems to have been known earlier as an author. He was certainly known publicly before him. But in the political poems of Marvell there is a ludicrous character of Holland, which might be pronounced to be either the copy or the original of Butler's, if in those antiBatavian times the Hollander had not been baited by all the wits; and were it not probable that the unwieldy monotony of his character gave rise to much the same ludicrous imagery in many of their fancies.

Leigh Hunt. The Indicator. Ludicrous Exaggeration.
Embosomed on the deep where Holland lies,
Methinks her patient sons before me stand,
Where the broad ocean leans against the land.

Goldsmite. The Traveller. 1. 282.
Then we upon our globe's last verge shall go And see the ocean leaning on the sky. Dryden. On the Royal Society.

Much have I travell'd in the realms of gold,
And many goodly states and kingdoms seen;
Round many western islands have I been
Which bards in fealty to Apollo hold.
Oft of one wide expanse had I been told
That deep-brow'd Homer ruled as his demesne,
Yet did I never breathe its pure serene
Till I heard Chapman speak out loud and bold:
Then felt I like some watcher of the skies
When a new planet swims into his ken;
Or like stout Cortez when with eagle eyes
He stared at the Pacific, and all his men
Look'd at each other with a wild surmise,
Silent, upon a peak in Darien.

I conld not love thee, dear, so much, Loved I not honour more.
R. Lovelace. To Lucasta, on Going to the Wars. Concluding lines.
Honour alone we cannot, must not lose; Honour, that spark of the celestial fire, That above nature makes mankind aspire;
Ennobles the rude passions of our frame With thirst of glory, and desire of fame:
The richest treasure of a generons breast, That gives the stamp and standard to the rest.

Halifax. The Man of Honour.
Honour and shame from no condition rise;
Act well your part, there all the honour lies.
Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle iv. l. 193.
King. From lowest place when virtnous things proceed,
The place is dignified by the doer's deed :
Where great additions swell, and virtue none,
It is a dropsied honour: good alone
Is good, without a name: vileness is so;
The property by what it is should go,
Not by the title.

Where peace
And rest can never dwell, hope never comes
That comes to all. Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. 1. 65.

All hope is lost
Of my reception into grace; what worse?
For where no hope is left, is left no fear. lbid. Paradise Regained. Bk. ili. 1. 204.

The darkest hour is just before dawn.
[An old English proverb which finds its analogue in every language. It is based on physical fact, for, as a rule, the darkest hour in the night is when the moon has reached far on to the western horizon, while the sun is still below the eastern horizon.]
But the nearer the dawn the darker the night,
And by going wrong all things come right; Things have been mended that were worse, And the worse, the nearer they are to mend.

'Umble we are, 'umble we have been, 'umble we shall ever be.
Ibid. David Copperfeld. Vol. i. Ch. xvii.
Ay, do despise me! I'm the pronder for it ; I like to be despised.

Isaac Bickerstaff. The Hypocrite. Act F . Sc. 1.

HUNTING.

Theseus. We will, fair queen, up to the mountain's top
And mark the musical confusion
Of hounds and echo in conjunction.

Hippolyta. I was with Hercules and Cadmus once,
When in a wood of Crete they bay'd the bear
With hounds of Sparta: never did I hear
Such gallant cbiding; for, besides the groves,
The skies, the fountains, every region near
Seem'd all one mutual cry: I never heard
So musical a discord, such sweet thunder. Shakispeare. Midsummer Night's Dream. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 114.
Duke Senior. Come, shall we go and kill us venison?
And yet it irks me, the poor dappled fools,--
Being uative burghers of this desert cily,-
Should, in their own confines, with forked heads
Have their round haunches gored.
Ibid. As You Like It. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 22.
First Lord. To the which place a poor sequester'd stag,
That from the hunter's aim had ta'en a hurt,
Did come to languish ; and, indeed, my lord,
The wretched animal heaved forth such groans,
That their discharge did stretch his leathern coat
Almost to bursting; and the big round tears
Coursed one another down his innocent nose
In piteous chase.
Ibid. As You Like Il Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 35.
Hamlet. Wby, let the stricken deer go weep!

Ibid. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc 2. 1. 282.
I was a stricken deer that left the herd
Long since: with many an arrow deep infixed
My panting side was charged, when I withdrew
To seek a tranquil death in distant shades. Cowper. The Task. Bk. iii. 1. 108.

A herd-abandoned deer, struck by the hunter's dart.

Sheliey. Adonais. St. xxxili.

Fainting breathless toil, Sick, seizes on his heart, - he stands at bay : The big round tears run down his dappled face:
He groans in anguish.
Thomsin. Autumn. ष. 451.
So have 1 seen some fearful hare maintain A course, till tired before the dog she lay; Who, stretched behind her, pants upon the plain,
Past power to kill, as she to get away.
With his loll'd tongue he faintly licks his prey,
His warm breath blows her flix up as she lies;
She, trembling, creeps upon the ground away,
And looks back to him with beseeching eyes.

Dryden. Annus Mirabilis 1. 521.
A mighty honter, and his prey was man.
Pope. Windsor Forest. 1. 62.
He was a mighty hunter before the Lord; wherefore it is said, even as Nimrod the mighty hunter before the Lord.

Otd Testament. Genesis x. 9.
Hunting was the labor of the savages of North America, but the amisement of the gentlemen of England.

Johnson. Johnsoniana.
The hunter and the deer a shade.
Philif Frenpau. The Indian BuryingGround.
[Campbell appropriated this line in $O^{\prime}$ Connor's Child, St. 5.]
Kathleen Mavourneen! the grey dawn is breaking,
The horn of the hunter is heard on the hill.
ANNE Crawford. Katheen Mavourneen.
Though the fox he follows may be tamed,
A mere fox-follower never is reclaimed. Cowprr. Conversation. 1. 409.

HUSBAND.

(See Marriage; Wife.)
Katherine. Thy husband is thy lord, thy life, thy keeper,
Thy head, thy sovereign : one that cares for thee,
And for thy maintenance commits his body
To painful labor, both by sea and land;

To watch the night in storms, the day in cold,
While thon liest warm at home, secure and sate ;
And craves no other tribute at thy hands,
But love, fair looks, and true obedience;
Too little payment for so great a debt. Shakesparare. Traming of the Shrew. Act v. Se. 2. 1. 146.

Katherine. Such duty as the subject owes the prince,
Even such a woman oweth to her husband;
And, when she's froward, peevish, sullen, sour,
And, not obedient to his honest will,
What is she, but a foul contending rebel,
And graceless traitor to her loving lord?
I am asham'd that women are so simple
To offer war where they should kneel for peace;
Or seek for rule, supremacy, and sway,
When they are hound to serve, love, and obey.
Why are our bodies soft, and weak, and smooth,
Unapt to toil and tronble in the world,
But that our soft conditions and our hearts,
Should well agree with our external parts?
1bid. Taming of the Shrew. Act v. Sc. 2. 1. 155.

Lueiana. Men, more divine, the masters of all these,
Lords of the wide world, and wild watery seas,
Indued with intellectual sense and souls,
Of more pre-eminence than fish and fowls,
Are masters to their females and their lords.
Ibid. Comedy of Errors. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 20.

Agrippa. No worse a husband than the best of men. Ibid. Antony and Cleopalra. Act ii. Se. 2. 1. 131 .

And to thy husband's will
Thine shall submit; he over thee shall rule.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. x. 1. 195.

God is thy law, thou mine.
Milton. P Patadise Lost. Bk. iv. 1. 637.

The wife, where danger or dishonour lurks,
Safest and seemliest by her husband stays,
Who guards her, or with her the worst endures.
Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. ix. 1. 267.
With thee goes
Thy husband, him to follow thou art bound ;
Where he abides, think there thy native soil.
Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. xi. 1. 290.
She who ne'er answers till a husband cools,
Or if she rules him, never shows she rules.

Pops. Morat Essays. ii. 1. 261.
The lover in the husband may be lost. Lord Lytileton. Advice to a Lady.
And truant husband should return and say,
"My dear, I was the first who came away."
Byron. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 141.
As the husband is the wife is; thou art mated with a clown,
And the grossness of his nature will have weight to drag thee down.

Tennyson. Locksely Hall. St. 24.

HYPOCRISY.

(See Appearance.)
Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones. and of all uncleanness.

Bassanio. There is no vice so simple, but assumes
Some mark of virtue on his outward parts.
rbid. Merchant of Venice. Act iii. Sc.2. 1. 81.

Antonio. Mark you this, Bassanio,
The devil can cite Scripture for his purpose.
An evil soul, producing holy witness,
Is like a villain with a smiling cheek;
A goodly apple rotten at the heart;
O , what a goodly outside falsehood hath. Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 99.

Gloster. But then I sigh, and with a piece of Scripture,
Tell them that God bids us do good for evil;
And thu's I clothe my naked villainy
With odd old ends, stol'n forth of holy writ:
And seem a saint, when I most play the devil.

Though angel on the outward side !
Shafespeare. Measure for Measure. Act ili. Sc. 2. 1. 285.
Isabella. This outward sainted deputy, Whose settled visage and deliherate word
Nips youth i' the head, and follies doth emmew
As falcon doth the fowl, is yet a devil.
Ibid. Measure for Measure. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 89.

Luciana. Apparel vice like virtue's harbinger;
Bear a fair presence, though your heart be tainted;
Teach sin the carriage of a holy saint.
Ibid. Comedy of Errors. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 12.

Lady Macbeth. Your face, my Thane, is as a book, where men
May read strange matters.-To beguile the time,
Look like the time; bear Welcome in your eye,
Your hand, your tongue; look like the innocent flower,
But be the serpent under it.
Ibid. Macbeth. Act i. Sc. 5. 1.63.
Juliet. O serpent heart, hid with a flow'ring face!
Did ever dragon keep so fair a cave?
Beautiful tyrantl fiend angelical!
Dove-feather'd raven! wolfish-ravening lamb!
Despised substance of divinest show !
Just opposite to what thou justly seem'st,
A damned saint, an honorable villain!
Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 73.

Hamlet. My tables,-meet it is I set it down,
That one may smile, and smile, and be a villain;
At least I'm sure it may be so in Denmark.

Ibid. Hameet. Act i. Sc. 5. 1. 107.
Gloster. Why, 1 can smile and murder while I smile
And cry content to that which grieves my heart,
And wet my cheeks with artificial tears
And frame my face to all occasions.
Ibid. III. Henry VI. Act iii. Sc.2. 1. 182.

For neither man nor angel can discern Hypocrisy, the only evil that walks Invisible, except to God alone,
By His permissive will, through Heaven and Earth;
And oft, though Wisdom wake, Suspicion sleeps
At Wisdom's gate, and to Simplicity
Resigns her charge, wlile goodness thinks no ill
Where no ill seems.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. iil. 1. 682.
L'hypocrisie est un hommage que le vice rend â la vertu.

Hypocrisy is the homage vice pays to virtue.

La Rochepoocauld. Maxim 218.
There is some virtue in almost every vice. except hypocrisy : and even that, while it is a mockery of virtue, is at the same time a compliment to it.

With one hand he put
A penny in the urn of poverty, And with the other took a shilling out. Pollos. Course of Time. Bk. viii. 1. 632 .

A man may cry Cliurch! Church! at ev'ry word,
With no more piety than other people-
A daw's not reckoned a religious bird
Because it keeps a-cawing from a steeple.
Hood. Ode to Rae-Wilson. 1. 171.
Be hypocritical, be cautious, be
Not what you seem but always what you see.
Byron. Don Juan. Canto xi. St. 86.
Oh, for a forty-parson power to chant
Thy praise, Hypocrisy! Oh, for a hymn
Loud as the virtues thou dost loudly vaunt,
Not practise !
Ibid. Don Juan. Canto x. St. 34.
Paint the gates of Hell with Paradise,
And play the slave to gain the tyranny.
Tennison. The Princess. Pt. iv. 1. 131.

IGNORANCE.

(See Knowledge.)
It is better to be unborn than untanght: for ignorance is the root of misfortune.

Plato.

A chyld were beter to be unhorne, than to be untaught.

Unlearned men of books assume the care,
As eunuchs are the guardians of the fair.

Young. Satire ii. 1. 83.
He that voluntarily continues in ignorance, is guilty of all the crimes which ignorance produces.

Dr. Johnson. Letter to Mr. W. Drummond. 13th August, 1766.
But Knowledge to their eyes her ample page,
Rich with the spoils of time, did ne'er unroll;
Chill penury repress'd their noble rage,
And froze the genial current of the soul.

Gray. Elegy. St. 13.
Rich with the spoils of nature.
Sir T. Browne. Religio Medici. Pt. i. Sec. 13.
Yet, ah, why should they know their fate,
Since sorrow never comes too late,

And happiness too swiftly flies? Thought would destroy their paradise. No more;-where ignorance is bliss,
'Tis folly to be wise.
Gray. Ode on a Distant Prospect of Eton College. Concluding lines.
In much wisdom is much grief; and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow.

Old Testament. Ecclesiastes i. 18.
But ask not hodies (doomed to die), To what abode they go ;
Since knowledge is but sorrow's spy,
It is not safe to know.

Better be happie than wise.
J. Heywood. Proverbs. Bk. ii. Ch. vi.

If we see right, we sce our woes;
Then what avails it to have eyes?
From ignorance our comfort flows:
The only wretched are the wise.
Prior. Epistle to the Hon. Chas. Montague. St. 9.
Be ignorance thy choice where knowledge leads to woe.
Beatrie. The Minstrel. Bk, ii. St. 30.
Grief should be the instructor of the wise;
Sorrow is knowledge: they who know the most
Must monrn the deepest o'er the fatal truth,
The Tree of Knowledge is not that of life.
Byron. Manfred. Act i. Sc. 1.
A sadder and a wiser man
He rose the morrow morn.
COLERIDGE. The Ancient Mariner. Cou* cluding lines.

It was a childish ignorance,
But now'tis little joy
To know I'm further off from heaven
Than when I was a boy.
Hood. I Remember. Concluding lines.
Ignorance is not innocence but sin.

ILLUSION.

Antipholus of Syracuse. And here we wander in illusions:
Some blessed power deliver us from hence!
SHakespeare. Comedy of Errors. Act iv. Sc. 3. 1. 42.

Hippolyta. This is the silliest stuff that e'er I heard.
Theseus. The best in this kind are but shadows ; and the worst are no worse if imagination amend them.
Shakespeare. Midsummer Night's Dream. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 214.

Own riches gather'd trouble, fame a breath,
And life an ill whose only cure is death. Prior. Epistle to Dr. Sherlock. 1. 26.

Impell'd with steps unceasing to pursue Some fleeting good, that mocks me with the view,
That, like the circle bounding earth and skies,
Allures from far, yet, as I follow, flies. Goldsmith. The Traveller. 1.25.
" Did you ever taste orange-peel and water ?"

Mr. Swiveller replied that he liad never tasted that ardent liquor. . . .
"If you make believe very much, it's quite nice," said the small servant, " but if you don't, you know, it seems as if it would bear a little more seasoning, certainly."
Dickens. The Old Curiosity Shop. Ch. 64.
What youth deemed crystal, age finds out was dew,
Morn set a-sparkle, but which noon quick dried,
While ynutl bent gazing at its red and blue,
Supposed perennial,--never dreamed the sun
Which kindled the display would quench it too.
R. Browning. Jocoseria, Jochanan Hakkedosh.

Feeling is deep and still ; and the word that floats on the surface
Is as the tossing buny, that betrays where the anchor is hidden.
Therefore trust to thy heart, and to what the world calls illusions.
Longfellow. Evangeline. Pt.ii. Canto ii. 1. 112.

IMAGINATION.

Theseus. The lunatic, the lover, and the poet
Are of imagination all compact :

One sees more devils than vast hell can hold,
That is, the madman : the lover, all as frantic,
Sees Helen's beauty in a brow of Egypt:
The poet's eye, in a fine frenzy rolling,
Doth glance from heaven to earth, from earth to heaven;
And as imagination bodies forth
The forms of things unknown, the poet's pen
Turns them to sliape, and gives to airy nothing
A local babitation and a name.
Shakespeare. A Mididummer Night's Dream. Act v. Sc. 1, 1. 7.

Theseus. Such tricks hath strong imagination,
That if it would but apprelend some joy,
It comprehends some bringer of that joy ;
Or in the night imagining some fear,
How easy is a bush supposed a bear !
Ibid. A Midsummer Night's Dream. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 18.

Bolingbroke. O, who can hold a fire in his hand,
By thinking on the frosty Cancasus?
Or cloy the hungry edge of appetite
By bare imagination of a feast?
Or wallow naked in December snow
By thinking on fantastic summer's leeat?
Oh, no! the apprehension of the good
Gives but the greater feeling to the worse:
Fell sorrow's tooth doth never rankle more
Than when it bites, but lanceth not the sore.
Ibid. Richard II. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 295.
King Henry. Oh! who can hold a fire in his hand,
By thinking on the frosty Cancasus?
Or wallow naked in December's snow,
By bare remembrance of the summer's heat?
Richard III, Altered by Colley Cibber. Act i. Sc. 1.

Hamlet. And my imaginations are as foul
As Vulcan's stithy.
Ibid. Hamiet. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 88.

Don't let ns make imaginary evils, when you know we have so many real ones to encounter.

Golnsmith. The Good-natured Man. Act i. Sc. 1.

The surest road to health, say what they will,
Is never to suppose we shall be ill.
Most of those evils we poor mortals know,
From doctors and imagination flow.

It has all the contortions of the sibyl without the inspiration.

Edmund Burie. Prior's Life.
(See under Jounson, Samuel.)
Seeks painted trifles and fantastic toys, And eagerly pursues imaginary joys.

MARK AKENSine. The Virtuoso. St. 10. Concluding lines.

But thou, who didst appear so fair
To fond imagination,
Didst rival in the light of day
Her delicate creation.
Wormsworte. Yarrow Visited. St. 6.
Never yet was shape so dread,
But fancy, thus in darkness thrown, And by such sounds of horror fed, Could frame more dreadful of her own.
T. Moore. Lalla Rookh. vii.

When I could not sleep for cold
I had fire enough in my brain;
And builded with roofs of gold
My beautiful castles in Spain. Lowell. Aladdin. St. 1.
[Castle in the air, visionary project or scheme, day dream, idle fancy. Common since 1575, varied occasionally with castle in the skies and the like; castle in Spain= Fr. chateau an Espagno, is found 1400-1600, and occasionally as a Gallicism in modern writers.

Murray. New English Dictionary.]
Thou shalt make castels thanne in Spayne, And dreme of joye, alle but in vayne.
Unknown. Romaunt of the Rose. 1. 2573.

IMMORTALITY.

'Tis true ; 'tis certain ; man though dead retains
Part of himself; the immortal mind remains.
Homer. Míad. Bk. xxiii. 1. 122. (Pope, trans.)
Non omnis moriar, multaque pars mei
Vitabit Libitinam.
I shall not wholly die; large residue
Shall 'scape the queen of funerals.
horace. Odes. iii. 30, 6. (Coninoton, trans.)
On the cold cheek of Death smiles and roses are blending,
And beauty immortal awakes from the tomb.
Beattie. The Hermit. St. 6. Concluding lines.
One short sleep past we wake eternally, And Death shall be no more. Death, thou shalt die.

Donne. Sonnet. xvii.
'Tis immortality to die aspiring,
As if a man were taken quick to heaven.
George Chapman. Byron's Conspiracy. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 254.
Northumberland. Even through the hollow eyes of death
I spy life appearing.
Shakespeare. Richard II. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 270.

There is nothing strictly immortal but immortality. Whatever hath no beginning may be confident of no end, which is the peculiar of that necessary essence that cannot destroy itself; and the highest strain of omnipotency, to be so powerfully constituted as not to suffer even from the power of itself; all others have a dependent being, and within the reach of destruction.

Sir T. Browne. Hydriotaphia. Urn Burial. Cb. 5.
But felt through all this fleshly dress
Bright shoats of everlastingness. Henry Vaugean. The Retreat.
They eat, they drink, and in communion sweet
Quaff immortality and joy.
Militon. Paradise Lost. Bk. v. 1. 637.
By labonr and intent study (which I take to be my portion in this life), joined with the strong propensity of nature, I might perlaps leave something so written to after times as they should not willingly let it die.

Milton. The Reason of Church Government. Introduction. Bk. ji.

Cato. It must be so,-Plato, thou reasonest well l
Else whence this pleasing hope, this fond desire,
This longing after immortality?
Or whence this secret dread and inward horror
Of falling into naught? Why shrinks the soul
Back on herself, and startles at destruction?
'Tis the divinity that stirs within us;
'Tis Heaven itself that points out an bereafter,
And intimates eternity to man.
Eternity 1 thou pleasing, dreadful thought I Addibon. Cato. Act v. Sc. 1.

Cato. I'm weary of conjectures,-this must end 'em.
Thus am I doubly armed: my death and life,
My bane and antidote, are both before me:
This in a moment brings me to an end;
But this informs me I shall never die.
The soul, secured in her existence, smiles
At the drawn dagger, and defies its point.
The stars shall fade away, the sun himself
Grow dim with age, and Nature sink in years ;
But thou shalt flourish in immortal youth,
Unhnrt amidst the war of elements,
The wrecks of matter, and the crush of worlds.

1bid. Cato. Act v. Sc. 1.
Smiling always with a never fading serenity of countenance, and flourishing in an immortal youth. Isaac Barrow. Thanksgiving. Works. Vol. i.

Immortal! Ages past, yet nothing gone!
Morn without eve! A race without a goal 1
Unshorten'd by progression infinite !

Futurity forever future! Life
Beginning still, where computation ends I
'Tis tbe description of a Deity 1
Young. Night Thoughts. Night vi. 1.542.
Still seems it strange, that thou shouldst live for ever?
Is it less strange, that thou shouldst live at all?
This is it miracle, and that no more.
Ibid. Night Thoughts. Night vii. I. 1396.
One of the few, the immortal names, That were not born to die. Fitz-Greene Halleck. Marco Bozzaris. Concluding lines.

He ne'er is crown'd
With immortality, who fears to follow Where airy voices lead.

Keats. Endymion. Bk. ii. l. 211.
When the good man yields his breath

Montgomery. The Wanderer of Switzerland. Pt. v. St. 1.

A good man never dies.
Callimachus. Epigrame. $\mathbf{x}$.
Great spirits never with their bodies die.
Herrick. Hesperides. 549. Great Spirits Supervive.

He who died at Azan sends
This to comfort all his friends:
Faithful friends ! It lies, I know,
Pale and white and cold as snow;
And ye say, "A bdnllall's dead ""
Weeping at the feet and liead.
I can see your falling tears,
I can hear your sighs and prayers;
Yet I smile and whisper this:
I am not the thing yon kiss.
Cease your tears and let it lie;
It was mine-it is not I.
Edwin Arnold. He Who Died at Azan.
Safe from temptation, safe from sin's pollution,
She lives, whom we call dead.
Longfellow. Resignation. St. 7.
Though inland far we be,
Our souls have sight of that immortal sea
Which brought us hither.
Wordsworth. Ode on the Intimation of Immortatity. St. 9.

And then he thinks he knows
The Hills where his life rose, And tbe Sea where it goes.

Matthew Arnold. The Buried Life.
Fool! All that is, at all,
Lasts ever, past recall ;
Earth changes, but thy soul and God stand sure:
What entered into thee,
That was, is, and shall be :
Time's wheel runs back or stops; Potter and clay endure.

Browning. Rabli Ben Ezra.
I swear I think there is nothing but immortality.

Walt Whitman. To Think of Time.
It is but crossing with a bated breath, A white, set face, a little strip of sea-
To find the loved one waiting on the shore,
More beautiful, more precious than before.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox.
[These lines were inscribed upon a wreath sent by the Princess of Wales (now Queen Alexandra) to be laid on the coffin of Mrs. William Ewart Gladstone, in June, 1900.]

IMPOSSIBLE.

A cceur vaillant rien d'impossible.
Nothing is impossible to a valiant heart.

Motto of Jeanne d'ALBRET of Navarre, mother of Henry IV., and adopted by him as his own devise.

It is not a lucky word, this same impossible; no good comes of those that have it so often in their noouth.

Carlyle. French Kevolution. Pt. iii. Bk. iii. Ch. $\mathbf{x}$.

INCOMPLETENESS.

Labor with what zeal we will,
Something still remains undone,
Sometling nacompleted still
Waits the rising of the sun. LONGFELLOW. Something Left Ondone.

Something there was in her life incomplete, imperfect, unfinished;
As if a morning of June, with all its music and sunshine,
Suddenly paused in the sky, and, fading, slowly descended
Into the east again, from whence it late had arisen.
Ibid. Evangeline. Pt. ii. St. 1. 1. 24.

O me! for why all around us here
As if some lesser God had made the world,
But had not foree to shape it as he would?
Tennyson. The Paseing of Arthur. 1.13.

INCONSISTENCY.

Unthought-of frailties cheat us in the wise;
The fool lies hid in inconsistencies.
See the same man, in vigour, in the gout;
Alone, in company ; in place, or out; Early at bnsiness, and at hazard late; Mad at a fox-chase, wise at a debate; Drunk at a borongh, civil at a ball;
Friendly at Hackney, faithless at Whitehall!

Catius is ever moral, ever grave,
Thinks who endures a knave, is next a knave,
Save just at dinner-then prefers, no donbt,
A rogue with venison to a saint without. Pope. Moral Essays. Epistle i. 1. 69.

Not always actions show the man; we find
Who does a kindness, is not therefore kind.

She smiled-and I could not but love;
She is faithless-and I am undone. Shenstone. Pastoral Ballad. Pt. iv. 1.5.

There are three things a wise man will not trust, -
The wind, the sunshine of an April day,
And woman's plighted faith. I have beheld

The weathercock upon the steeple-point
Steady from morn till eve; and I have seen
The bees go forth upon an April morn,
Secure the sunshine will not end in showers;
But when was woman true?

INDEPENDENCE.

Banquo. Speak then to me, who neither beg nor fear
Your favours nor your hate. Shakespeare. Macbeth. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 60 .

The man who by his labour gets
His bread, in independent state,
Who never begs, and seldom eats, Himself can fix or change his fate.

Prior. The Old Gentry. St. 5.
All we ask is to be let alone.
Jefferson Davis. First Message to the Confederate Congress. April 29, 1861.
Hail! Independence hail! heaven's next best gift,
To that of life and an immortal soul I
The life of life! that to the banquet high
And sober meal gives taste; to the bow'd roof
Fair-dream'd repose, and to the cottage charms.

Thomson. Liberty. Pt. v. 1. 124.
Thy spirit, Independence, let me share;
Lord of the lion heart and eagle eye,
Thy steps I follow with my bosom bare,
Nor heed the storm that howls along the sky.

Smoleett. Ode to Independence.

But while
I breathe Heaven's air, and Heaven looks down on me,
And smiles at my best meanings, I lemain
Mistress of mine own self and mine own soul.
Tennyson. The Foresters. Act iv. Sc. 1.
When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the canses which impel them to the separation.

Thomas Jefrerson. Declaration of Independence.
Its constitution the glittering and sounding generalities of natural right which make up the Declaration of Independence.
R. Choate Letter to the Maine Whig Committee. 1856.
Yesterday the greatest question was decided which ever was debated in America; and a greater perhaps never was, nor will be, decided among men. A resolution was passed without one dissenting colony, that those United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States.

John ADams. Letter to Mrs. Adams. July 3, 1776.
The second day of July, 1776, will be the most memorable epocha in the history of America. I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by sncceeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward frr evermore.
Ibid. Letter to Mrs. Adams. July 3, 1776.
On the day of his (John Adams') death, hearing the noise of bells and cannon, he asked the occasion. On being reminded that it was "Independent Day," he replied, "Independence forever."

Dantel Webster. Works. Vol. i.
It is my living sentiment, and by the blessing of God it shall be my dying senti-ment,-Independence now and Independence forever.

Ibid. Eulogy on Adams and Jefferson. August 2, 1826.
Let independence be our boast,
Ever mindful what it cost;
Ever grateful for the prize,
Let its altar reach the skies 1
JOSEPE HOPIINSON. Hail, Columbia /

INDEX.

An index is a necessary implement, and no impediment, of a book, except in the same sense wherein the carriages of an army are termed impediments. Without this a large author is but a labyrinth without a clew to direct the reader therein. I confess there is a lazy kind of learning, which is only indical; where scholars (like adders which only bite the horse heels) nibble but at the tables, which are called calces librorum, neglecting the body of the book. But, though the idle deserve no crutches (let not a staff be used by them, but on them), pity it is the weary should be denied the benefit thereof, and industrious scholars prohibited the accommodation of an index, most used by those who most pretend to contemn it.

Thomas Fuller. History of the Worthies of England. Norfolk. Writeris. Alan of Llyn.
The most accomplished way of using books at present is twofold : either, first, to serve them as men do lords,-learn their titles exactly and then brag of their acquaintance; or, secondly, which is, indeed, the choicer, the profounder and politer method, to get a thorough insight into the index, by which the whole book is governed and turned, like fishes by the tail. For to enter the palace of learning at the great gate requires an expense of time and forms, therefore men of much haste and little ceremony are content to get in by the back door. . . . For this great blessing we are wholly indebted to systems and abstracts, in which the modern fathers of learning, like prudent usurers, spent their sweat for the ease of us their children. For labor is the seed of idleness, and it is the peculiar happiness of our noble age to gather the fruit.

Swirr. A Tale of a Mub. A Digression in Praise of Digressions.

Index-learning turns no student pale, Yet holds the eel of science by the tail. Pope. The Dunciad. Bk. i. 1. 279.

So essential did I consider an index to be to every book, that I proposed to bring a bill into Parliament to deprive an author who publishes a book without an index of the privilege of copyright, and, moreover, to subject him for his offence to a pecuniary penalty.

Lord Campbeld. Lives of the Chief Justices of England. Vol. iii. Preface.

INDIAN.

Lo the poor Indian 1 whose untutored mind
Sees God in clouds, or hears him in the wind ;
His soul proud science never taught to stray
Far as the solar walk or milky way.
But thinks, admitted to that equal sky,
His faithful dog shall bear him company.
Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle i. 1.99.
Our isle, indeed, too fruitful was before;
But all uncultivated lay
Out of the solar walk and heaven's highway.
Dryden. Threnodia Augustatis. Canto xii. 1. 351.

As monumental bronze unchang'd his look :
A soul that pity touch'd, but never shook:
Train'd, from his tree-rock'd cradle to his bier,
The fierce extremes of good and ill to brook
Impassive-fearing but the slame of fear-
A stoic of the woods-a man without a tear.
Campbeld. Gertrude of Wyoming. Pt. i. St. 23.

INDOLENCE.

Why stand ye here all the day idle? New Testament. Matthew xx. 6.
I live an idle burden to the ground.
Homer. Riad. Bk. xviii. I. 134. (Pope, trans.)
Olim nescio, quid sit otium, quid quies, quid denique illud iners quidem, jucundum tamen, nihil agere, nihil esse.

For some time past I have not known the meaning of leisure, of repose, of that indolent yet delightful doing nothing, being nothing.

Pliny the Younger. Epistolx. viii. 9.
[The possible original of the pseudo-Italian phrase, "Dolce far' niente"-i. e., the sweet do-nothing.]

For sluggard's brow the laurel never grows;
Renown is not the child of indolent repose.
Thomson. The Castle of Indolence. Canto ii. St. 50 .

A pleasing land of drowsyshead it was,
Of dreams that wave before the halfshut eye;
And of gay castles in the clouds that pass,
Forever flushing round a summer sky ;
There eke the soft delights that witchingly
Instil a wanton sweetness through the breast,
And the calm pleasures always hover'd nigh;
But whate'er smack'd of noyance or unrest
Was far, far off expell'd from this delicious nest.
Ibid. The Castle of Indolence. Canto i. St. 6.
In the afternoon they came unto a land In which it seeméd always afternoon,
All round the coast the languid air did swoon,
Breathing like one that hath a weary dream.
Full-faeed ahove the valley stood the moon;
And like a downward smoke, the alender stream
Along the cliff to fall and pause, and pause - and fall did seem.

Tennyson. The Lotus-eaters. 1. 3.
Their only labor was to kill the time
(And labor dire it is and weary woe.)
They sit, they loll, turn o' er some idle rhyme,
Then, rising sudden, to the glass they go
Or saunter fortl with tottering step and slow.
Thomson. Castle of Indolence. Canto i. St. 72.

A man is very apt to complain of the ingratitude of those who have risen far above him.

Samuel Johnson. Boswell's Life. Ch. iv. 1776.

He that's ungratefil, has no guilt but one,
All other crimes may pass for virtue in him.

Young. Busiris.

INJUSTICE.

Injustice swift, erect and unconfin'd,
Sweeps the wide earth, and tramples o'er mankind.
Homer. Iliad. Bk. ix. l.628. (Pope, trans.)

A good man should and must
Sit rather down with loss, than rise unjust.
Ben Jonson. Sejanus. Act iv. Sc. 3.
Hero. Why, you speak truth: I never yet saw man,
How wise, how noble, young, how rarely featared,
Bat she would spell him backward: if fair fac'd,
She would swear the gentleman shonld be her sister;
If black, why nature, drawing of an antique,
Made a foul hlot: if tall, a lance, ill headed;
If low, an agate very vilely cut :

If speaking, why, a vane blown with all winds;
If silent, why, a block moved with none.
So turns she every man the wrong side out;
And never giyes totruth and virtue that Which simpleness and merit purchaseth.

Shakespeare. Mweh Ado about Nothing. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 59.
Ah, how unjust to Nature and himself
Is thoughtless, thankless, inconsistent man!
Youne. Night Thoughts. Night ii. 1. 112.

INN.

Falstaff. Shall I not take mine ease at mine inn?

Shakespeare. I. Henty IV. Act iii. Sc. 3. 1. 93.
These great rich men take their ease $i^{\prime}$ their inn.

MrdnLeton. The Worta Tosi at Tennis.
There is no private house in which people can enjoy themselves so well as at a capital tavern. Let there be ever so great plenty of good things, ever so much grandeur, ever so much elegance, ever so much desire that everybodv should be easy, in the nature of things it cannot be: there must always be some degree of care and anxiety. There is nothing which has yet been contrived by man, by which so much bappiness is produced as by a good tavern or inn.

Sam'l Johnson. Boswell's Life. March 21, 1776.
Whoe'er has travell'd life's dull round,
Where'er his stages may have been,
May sigh to think he still has found
The warmest welcome at an inn.
SHenstone. Written on a Windone of an Inn.
[The inn was at Henley. It is interesting to note that Johnson and Boswell slept on the night of March 21, 1776, at thís inn.]

He who bas not been at a tavern knows not what a paradise it is. O holy tavern! o miraculous tavern!-holy, because no carking cares are there, nor weariness, nor pain; and miracnlons, because of the spits, which of themselves turn round and round! ARETINO. (Quoted by Longfellow in Hyperion.) Bk. iii. Ch. ii.
Like pilgrims to the appointed place we tend;
The world's an inn, and death the journey's end.
Dryden. Palamon and Arcite. Bk.iii. 1.887.
[Palamon and Arcite is one of Dryden's modermized paraphrases from The Canterbury

Tales. The corresponding lines in Chaucer are as follows:
This world nys but a thurghfare ful of wo, And we been pilgrymes passynge to and fro. Death is an end of every worldly soore.]

Onr life is nothing but a winter's day :
Some only break their fast, and so away :
Others stay dinner and depart full-fed:
The deepest age but sups and goes to bed :
He's most in debt that lingers ont the day:
Who dies betimes bas less and less to pay. Francis Quarles. Divine Fancies.

For the world I count it not an inn, but an hospital, and a place not to live, but to die in.

Sir Thomas Browne.
He (Archbishop Leighton) used often to say that if he were to choose a place to die in, it should be an inn; it looking like a pilgrim's going home, to whom this world was all as an inn, and who was weary with the noise and confusion in it. ...And he obtained what be desired, for he died at the Bell Inn in Warwiek Lane.

GIlbert Burnet. History of My Own Times.

Born for a very brief space of time, we regard this life as an inn which we are soon to quit that it may be made ready for the coming guest.

I hope I don't intrude. John Poole. Paul Pry.
[An apology ever on the lips of the inquisitive and intrusive Paul Pry, especially in his most intrusive moments. The same phrase, used under similar circumstances but without similar iteration, may be found in the anonymous comedy of The Maid of the Oaks, Act ii.]

INSANITY.

Quem deus vult perdere, prius dementat.
Whom God will ruin He first deprives of his senses.

Unknown.

[This Latin line was found on the table of a gentleman of fashion, Sir D. O.-his full name is not recorded-who committed suicide about the middle of the eighteenth century. He had scribbled the words on a scrap of paper, probably as an explanation of his action. Some years afterward Boswell, who, like his friend, Dr. Johnson, had been anxious to trace the quotation to its source, was informed that a Mr. Pitts had found it among the fragments of Enripides. Mr. Pitts, presumably on hoaxing bent, sent Boswell what purported to be the original Greek, saying that he had taken it from Barnes' edition of Euripides:
Whom God wishes to destroy he first phrenzies.
No such line is to be found among the Fragments of Euripides. Pitts had evidently concocted the Greek out of the Latin. Yet, after all, the line was no doubt based on one of the Fragments, which runs thus:

But when Divine Power plans evils for a man it first injures his mind.
The Scholiast on Sophocles : Antigone. 620.
This was, no doubt, what the suicide bad in memory. The Latin version, or rather paraphrase, was his own, and so this poor suicide became the author of a quotation which was to prove one of the most famons in the world.]

[^17]And make the better judgment seem the worse,
So that he may not know wherein he errs. Lycurgus. In Leocratem. 92. (Cap. xxi.). (Quoted as "from one of the old poets.")

Hei mihi, insanire me aiunt, ultro cum ipsi insaniunt.

Woe is me, they call me insane when they themselves are insane.

Pladtus Mengechmi. v. 2.
A Mad World, my Masters.
A proverbial phrase of unknown origin which Middleton took as the title of one of his plays (1608). Over forty years later (1649) John Taylor, the water poet, wrote these lines:
'Tis a mad world (my masters) and in sadness
I travail'd madly in these dayes of madnes.
John Taylor. Wandering to See the Wonders of the West.]
Polonius. Though this be madness, yet there's method in 't.

Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act ii. Sc. 2.l. 208.

He would try to be mad with a certain reason and method.

Horace. Satires. Bk. ii. Sat. 3. l. 270.
Hamlet. I am but mad north-northwest: when the wind is southerly, I know a hawk from a handsaw.

Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 395.

Ophelia. Oh, what a noble mind is here o'erthrown !
The courtier's, scholar's, soldier's eye, tongue, sword;
The expectancy and rose of the fair state,
The glass of fashion, and the mould of form,
The observ'd of all observers, quite, quite down!
And I, of ladies most deject and wretched,
That suck'd the honey of his musicvows,

Now see that noble and most sovereign reason,
Like sweet bells jangled, out of tune and harsh;
That unmatch'd form and feature of blown youth,
Blasted with ecstasy. Oh, woe is me! Shakispeare. Hambet. Act iii. Sc. 1. l. 158.

King. Madness in great ones must not unwatch'd go.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 189.
Hamlet. My pulse, as yours, doth temp'rately keep time,
And makes as healthful music: it is not madness,
That I have utter'd : bring me to the test,
And I the matter will re-word; which madness
Would gambol from.
Ibid. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 4. 1.140. .
Banquo. Were such things here as we do speak about?
Or have we eaten on the insane root
That takes the reason prisoner?
Ibid. Macbeth. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 83.
Macbeth. How does your patient, Doctor?
Doctor. Not so sick, my lord,
As she is troubled with thick-coming fancies,
That keep her from her rest.
Macbeth. Cure her of that.
Canst thou not minister to a mind diseas'd;
Pluck from the memory a rooted sorrow;
Raze out the written troubles of the brain ;
And, with some sweet oblivious antidote,
Cleanse the stufft d bosom of that perilous matter
Which weighs upon the heart?
Doctor. Therein the patient
Mnst minister to himself.
Macbeth. Throw physic to the dogs; I'll none of it.

INSTINCT.

Falstaff. Instinct is a great matter ; I was now a coward on instinct.

SHakespeare. I. Henty IV. Act ii. Sc. 4. 1. 299.

Coriolanus. I'll never
Be such a gosling to obey instinct, but stand,
As if a man were author of himself
And knew no other kin. Ibid. Coriolanus. Act v. Sc. 3. 1. 34 .
The spider's touch, how exquisitely fine!
Feels at each thread, and lives along the line:
In the nice bee what sense, so subtly true
From poisonous herbs extracts the healing dew?
How instinct varies in the grov'ling swine,
Compar'd, half-reasoning elephant, with thine !
'Twixt that and reason what a nice barrier!
Forever sep'rate, yet forever near.
Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle i. 1. 217.
(See under Spider.)
But bonest instinct comes a volunteer;
Sure never to o'ershoot, but just to hit ;
While still too wide or short is human wit.
Ibid. Essay on Mcn. Epistle iii. 1. 88.

Learn from the birds what food the thickets yield;
Learn from the beasts the physic of the field;
The arts of building from the bee receive;
Learn of the mole to plougb, the worm to weave;
Learn of the little nautilus to sail,
Spread the thin oar, and catch the driving gale.
Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle iii. 1. 173 .
Instinct and reason how can we divide?
'Tis the fool's ignorance, and the pedant's pride.
Prior. Solomon on the Vices of the World. Bk. i. 1. 231.

INVENTION.

Th' invention all admir'd, and each how he
To be th' inventor miss'd; so easy it seem'd,
Once found, which yet unfound most would have thought
Impossible !
Milion. Paradise Lost. Bk. vi. 1. 498.
A weak invention of the enemy.
Cibber. Richard III. (altered). Act v. Sc. 3.
[Sbakespeare's line runs:
A thing devised by the enemy.
Richard IIII. Act v. Sc. 3. 1. 306.]
A tool is but the extension of a man's hand, and a machine is but a complex tool. And he that invents a machine augments the power of a man and the well-being of mankind.

Henry Ward Beecher. Proverbs from Plymouth Pulpit. Business.

INVOCATION.

Lady Macbeth. Come, you spirits
That tend on mortal thoughts, unsex me here;
And fill me, from the crown to the toe, top-full
Of direst cruelty 1 make thick my blood, Stop up the access and passage to remorse;
That no compunctious visitings of nature
Shake my fell purpose, nor keep peace between
The effect and it ! Come tomy woman's breasts,
And take my milk for gall, you murthering ministers.
Shakrspeare. Nacbeth. Act i. Sc. 5. l. 41.

Glendower. I can call spirits from the vasty deep.
Hotspur. Why, so can I, or so can any man;
But will they come when you do call for them?
Glendower. Why, I can teach you, cousin, to command the devil.
Hotspur. And I can teach thee, coz, to shame the devil;
By telling truth : tell truth, and shame the devil.

If thou have power to raise him, bring him hither,
And I'll be sworn I have power to shame him hence.
0 , while you live, tell truth, and shame the devil.
Shatespeare. I. Henry IV. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 52.

Of man's first disobedience and the fruit
Of that forbidden tree, whose mortal taste
Brought death into the world and all our woe,
With loss of Eden, till one greater Man
Restore us and regain the blissful seat,
Sing, heavenly Muse!
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. l. 1.
Or, if Sion hill
Delight thee more, and Siloa's brook that flowed
Fast by the oracle of God, I thence
Invoke thy aid to my adventurous song,
That with no middle flight intends to soar
Above the Aonian mount, while it pursues
Things unattempted yet in prose or rhyme.
And chiefly Thou, O Spirit, that dost prefer
Before all temples the upright heart and pure,
Instruct me, for Thou knowest ; Thou from the first
Wast present, and with mighty wings outspread
Dove-like satst brooding on the vast abyss,
And madest it pregnant ; what in me is dark
Illumine; what is low raise and support ;
That to the height of this great argument
I may assert eternal Providence,
And justify the ways of God to man. Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. 1. 1c.

IRELAND.

When Erin first rose from the darkswelling flood
God blessed the green island, he saw it was good.

The Emerald of Europe, it sparkled, it shone
In the ring of this world, the most precious stone.

Dr. Whliam Drennen. Erin.
Arm of Erin, prove strong, but be gentle as brave,
And, uplifted to strike, still be ready to save;
Nor one feeling of vengeance presume to defile
The cause or the men of the Emerald Isle.

Ibid. Erin.
[This has sometimes been held to be the origin of the phrase, "The Emerald 1sle." But Dr. Drennen himself, in an introduction to this poem (1815), expressly states that the epithet was first used in Erin, to Her Own Tune, a " party song written without the rancor of party in the year 1795." Dremnen was certainly anticipated by Horace Smith in the Rejected Addresses (1812):

And flourish ye pillars as green as the rushes
That pillow the nymphs of the Emerald Isle.]

Old Dublin city there is no doubtin'
Bates every city upon the say,
'Tis there you'd hear O'Connell spoutin'
And Lady Morgan makin' tay.
For'tis the capital of the finest nation
With charmin' pisintry upon a fruitful sod,
Fightin' like divils for couciliation,
And hatin' each other for the love of God.

Unknown. Dublin City.
[The song is sometimes attributed to Charles Lever. Lady Morgan says she was familiar with it in 1828, but it was prohably written earlier, when Lever was a mere boy. It is one of the many humorous street songs of the period which were never claimed and whose authorship it is now impossible to trace.]

There came to the beach a poor Exile of Erin,
The dew on his thin robe was heavy and chill;
For his country he sigh'd, when at twilight repairing,
To wander alone by the wind-beaten hill.

But the day-star attracted his eyes' sad devotion,
For it rose o'er his own native isle of the ocean,
Where once in the fire of his youthful emotion,
He sang the bold antlem of Erin-gobragh 1

ITALY.

For wheresoe'er I turn my ravished eyes
Gay gilded scenes and shining prospects rise.
Poetic fields encompass me around,
And still I seem to tread on classic ground.

ADDison. Letter from Italy.
[Malone states that this was the first use of the phrase "classic ground," now so common. It was ridicnled by some contemporaries as quaint and affected.]

Kennst du das Land wo die Citronen blühen,
Im dunkeln Laub die Gold-Orangen glïihn,
Ein sanfter Wind vom blanen Himinel weht
Die Myrte still und hoch der Lorbeer steht?
Kennst du es wohl?
Dahin I Dalin,
Möclit ich mit dir, O mein Geliebter, ziehn.
Know'st thou the land where the lemontrees bloom,
Where the gold orange glows in the deep thicket's gloom,
Where a wind ever soft from the blue heaven blows,
And the groves are of laurel and myrtle and rose? Gorthe. Wühelm Meister. Bk. iii. Ch. i. Mignon's Song.

Know ye the land where the cypress and myrtle
Are emblems of deeds that are done in their clime;
Where the rage of the valture, the love of the turtle,
Now melt into sorrow, now madden to crime?
Byron. The Bride of Abydos. Canto i. St. 1.
For 10 ! the winter is past, the rain is over and gone; the flowers appear on the earth ;
the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land. old Testament. The Song of Solomon. ii. 11.

Where the virgins are soft as the roses they twine,
And all save the spirit of man is divine?
Byron. The Bride of Abydos. Canto i. St. 1.
That soft bastard Latin,
Which melts like kisses from a female mouth.

Ibid. Beppo. St. 44.
Italial O Italial thou who hast
The fatal gift of beauty, which became
A funeral dower of present woes and past,
On thy sweet brow is sorrow plough'd by shame,
And annals graved in claracters of flame.
Oh God I that thou wert in thy nakedness
Less lovely or more powerful, and could'st claim
Thy right, and awe the robber's band who press
To shed thy blood, and drink the tears of thy distress.
Ibid. Childe Harold. Canto iv. St. 42.
[Byron, in this stanza, paraphrases without acknowledgment a famons sonnet by the Italian poet, Filacaja, beginning:
Italy ! Italy! thon who'rt doomed to wear
The fatal gift of beauty and possess
The dower funest of infinite wretchedness Written upon thy forehead by despair.
Ah, would that thou wert stronger or less fair
That they might fear thee more or love thee less.
Filacaja. Sonnet. (Longrellow, trans.)]
Italy, my Italy !
Queen Mary's saying serves for me-
(When Fortune's malice Lost her Calais)-
Open my heart and you will see
Graved inside of it, "Italy."
Robert browning. Men and Women.
" De Gustibus." 2.
And we slope to Italy at last
And youth, by green degrees.
I follow wherever $I$ am led,
Knowing so well the leader's hand-

Ol, woman-country, wooed, not wed,
Loved all the more by earth's malelands
Laid to their hearts instead I

IVY.

Bring, bring the madding bay, the drunken vine;
The creeping, dirty, courtly Ivy join. Pope. The Dunciad. Bk, i. 1. 303.
Round broken columns clasping ivy twin'd.

Ibid. Windsor Forest. l. 69.
Where round some mould'ring tow'r pale ivy creeps,
And low-brow'd rocks hang nodding ${ }^{\prime}$ 'er the deeps.

Ibid. Eloisa to Abelard. 1. 243.
As creeping ivy clings to wood or stone, And lides the ruin that it feeds upon. Cowrer. The Progress of Error. 1. 285.
Oh! how could fancy crown with thee, In ancient days the God of Wine,
And bid thee at the banquet be Companion of the vine?
Ivy! thy home is where each sound Of revelry hath long been o'er ;
Where song and beaker once went round,
Bnt now are known no more.
Mrs. Hemans. Ivy Song.
Oh , a dainty plant is the ivy green,
That creepeth o'er ruins old!
Of right choice food are his meals, I ween,
In his cell so lone and cold.
Creeping where no life is seen,
A rare old plant is the ivy green. Dickens. Pickwick Papers. Ch. vi.

JEALOUSY.

Love is strong as death; jealousy is cruel as the grave.

Abbess. The venom clamours of a jealous woman
Poisons more deadly than a mad dog's tooth.
Shakespeare. Comedy of Ervors. Act p . sc. 1. 1. 69.

Iago. Beware, my lord, of jealousy;
It is the green-ey'd monster, which doth mock
The meat it feeds on: that cuckold lives in bliss
Who, certain of his fate, loves not his wronger;
But, 0 , what damnèd minutes tells he o'er
Who dotes, yet doubts, suspects, yet strongly loves! 1vid. Othello. Act iii. Sc. 3. 1. 165.
Othello. O curse of marriage,
That we can call these delicate creatures ours,
And not their appetites! I had rather be a toad,
And live upon the vapour of a dungeon, Than keep a corner in the thing I love For others' uses.

Ibid. Othello. Act iii. Sc. 3. 1272.
Iago. Trifles, light as air,
Are to the jealous confirmations strong As proofs of Holy Writ.

Ibid. Othello. Act iii. Sc. 3. 1. 326.
0 jealousy thou magnifier of trifles! Schllemer. Fiesco. Act i. Sc. 1. (Bohn, trans.)

A jealous woman believes everything her passion suggests.

Gay. The Beggar's Opera. Act ii. Sc. 2.
It is jealousy's peculiar nature,
To swell small things to great, nay, out of nought,
To conjure much; and then to lose its reason
Amid the hideous phantoms it has form'd.
Young. The Revenge. Act iii. Sc. 1.
Othello. Nothing extenuate,
Nor set down aught in malice : then must you speak
Of one, that lov'd not wisely, hut too well;
Of one, not easily jealous, but being wrought,
Perplex'd in the extreme; of one whose hand
Like the base Indian, threw a pearl away,
Richer than all his tribe.
Shakespeare. Othello. Act $\nabla$. Sc. 2. 1. 345.

Nor jealousy
Was understood, the injur'd lover's hell. Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. v. 1. 449.
He makes a false wife that suspects a true.

Nata. Fields, Amends for Ladies. Act i. Sc. i .

Inquisitiveness as seldom cures jealousy, as drinking in a fever quenches the thirst.

Wycherley. Love in a Wood. Ac̣tiv. Sc. 5.
Hunger, revenge, to sleep are petty foes, But only Death the jealons eyes can close.
Ibid. Love in a Wood. Act i. Sc. 4.
Jealousy is always born with love, but does not always die with it.

La Rochefoucauld. Reflections. No. 361.

Jealousy lives upon doubt, and comes to an end or becomes a fury as soon as it passes from doubt to certainty.

Ibid. Reffections. No. 32.
In jealonsy there is more self-love than love.

Ibid. Reflections. No. 344.
Can't I another's face commend,
And to her virtues be a friend, But instantly your forehead lowers,
As if her merit lessen'd yours?
Edward Moore. The Marmer, the Spaniel, and the cat. Fable ix.
Jealnosy is the bellows of the mind; Touch it but gently, and it warms desire, If handled roughly, you are all on fire.
D. Garrick. Epilogue to Horne's Alonzo.

A jealous love lights his torch from the firebrands of the furies.

Bdrise. Speech on the Plan for Economic Reform. February 11, 1780.
Her maids were old, and if she took a new one,
You might be sure she was a perfect fright.
She did this during even her husband's life-
I recommend as much to every wife. Byron. Don Juan. Canto i. st. 48.
Yet he was jealous, though he did not show it,
For jealousy dislikes the world to know it.

Ibid. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 65.

What effect
Hath jealousy, and how befooling men,
It makes false true, abuses eye and ear,
Turns mere mist adamantine, loads with sound
Silence, and into void and vacancy
Crowds a whole phalanx of conspiring foes?
R. BRowning. The Ring and the Book. Bk. ix. 1. 385.

JEST.

(See Ridicule; Wit.)

To offend, we should always be unwilling; and the inclination to lose a friend rather than a joke should be far from us.

Quintilian. Institutes of Oratory. Bk. vi. Ch. iii. (Watson, trans.)

He that will lose his friend for a jest, deserves to die a beggar by the bargain.

Fuller. Hoty and Profane States. Of Jesting. Maxim viii.
Rosaline. A jest's prosperity lies in the ear
Of him that hears it, never in the tongue
Of him that makes it.
SaAKespeare, Love's Labonr's Lost. Act ₹. Sc. 2. 1. 871.
Biron. This fellow pecks up wit, as pigeons peas,
And utters it again when Jove doth please;
He is wit's peddler; and retails his wares
At wakes and wassels, meetings, markets, fairs;
And we that sell by gross, the Lord doth know,
Have not the grace to grace it with such show.
Ibid. Love's Labour's Lost. Act v. Sc. 2. 1. 315.

Regan. Jesters do oft prove prophets. Ibid. King Lear. Act v. Sc. 3. 1. 71 .
Speed. O jest unseen, inscrutable, invisible,
As a nose on a man's face, or a weathercock on a steeple I
My master sues to her; and she hath taught her suitor,
He being her pupil, to become her tutor,

O excellent device! was there ever heard a better?
That my master, being scribe, to himself should write the letter?
Shakespeare. Two Gentlemen of Verona. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 141.
Hamlet. Alas! poor Yorick!-I knew him, Horatio ; a fellow of infinite jest, of most excellent fancy.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 204.
Laugh not too much; the witty man laughs least:
For wit is news only to ignorance:
Less at thine own things laugh; lest in the jest
Thy person share, and the conceit advance.
Make not thy sport abuses: for the fly That feeds on dung is colored thereby. Herbert. Temple. Church Porch. St. 39 .
A joke's a very serious thing.

When Israel, of the Lord beloved, Out of the land of bondage came, Her fathers' God before her moved, An awful guide in smoke and flame. Scotr. Ivanhoe. Ch. xxxix.

Salar. Why, I am sure, if be forfeit, thou wilt not take his flesh? What's that good for?
Shylook. To bait fish withal ; if it will feed nothing else it will feed my revenge. He hath disgraced me, and hindered me half a million; langhed at my losses, mocked at my gains, scorned my nation, thwarted my bargains, cooled my friends, heated mine enemies ; and what's his reason? I am a Jew.

Shakespeare. The Merchant of Venice. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 53 .
Shylock. Hath not a Jew eyes? hath not a Jew hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions? fed with the same food, hurt with the same weapons, subject to the same disease, healed by the same means, warmed and cooled by the same winter and summer, as a Christian is? if you prick us, do we not bleed? if you tickle us, do we not laugh? if you poison us, do we not die?
and if you wrong us, shall we not revenge? If we are like you in the rest, we will resemble you in that.

Shakespeare. The Merchant of Venice. Act iii, Sc. 1. 1. 60.
Falstaff: I am a Jew else, an Ebrew Jew.

T. Moore. Sacred Songs. Sound the Loud Timbrel.
This is the Jew
That Shakespeare drew. Ascribed to Pope.

On the 14th of February, 1741, Macklin established his fame as an actor in the character of Shylock, in the Merchant of Venice. . . Macklin's performance of this character so forcibly struck a gentleman in the pit that $h e$, as it were involuntarily, exclaimed,-
"This is the Jew
That Shakespeare drew!"
It has been said that this gentleman was Mr. Pope, and that he meant his panegyric on Macklin as a satire against Lord Lansdowne.

Biographica Dramatica. Vol. i. Pt. ii.
It is curious to see a superstition dying out. The idea of a Jew (which our pious ancestors beld in horror) has noth. ing in it now revolting. We have found the claws of the beast, and pared its nails, and now we take it to our arms, fondle it, write plays to flatter it : it is visited by princes, affects a taste, patronizes the arts, and is the only liberal and gentleman-like thing in Christendom.

JEWELS.

Barabas. Bags of fiery opals, sapphires, amethysts,
Jacinths, hard topaz, grass green emeralds,
Beauteous rubies, sparkling diamonds,

And seld-seen costly stones of so great price,
As one of them, indifferently rated,
And of a carat of this quality,
May serve in peril of calamity
To ransom great kings from captivity,
This is the ware wherein consists my wealth :
And thus, methinks, should men of judgment frame
Their means of traffic from the vulgar trade,
And, as their wealth increases, so inclose
Infinite riches in a little room.
Christopher Marlowe. The Rich Jew of Malta. Act 1.

Like stones of worth, they thinly placed are,
Or captain jewels in the carcanet. SHakespeare. Sonnet. lii.

Valentine. Win her with gifts, if she respect not words,
Dumb jewels often, in their silent kind,
More than quick words, do move a woman's mind.

JOHNSON, DR. SAMUEL.
That great Cham of literature.
Smoleletr. Letter to Wilkes. March 16, 1759.

Here lies poor Johnson! Reader have a care;
Tread lightly, lest you rouse a sleeping bear!

Religious, moral, generous and humane
He was, but self-sufficient, rude and vain,
Ill-bred and over-bearing in dispute,
A scholar and a Christian and a brute.
Attributed to Soame Jenyns.
Here Johnson lies-a sage by all allowed
Whom to have bred, may well make England proud;
Whose prose was eloquence, by wisdom taught,
The graceful vehicle of virtuous thought;
Whose verse many claim-grave masculine and strong,
Superior praise to the mere poet's song
Who many a noble gift from Heaven possessed
And faith at last, alone worth all the rest.
Oh man, immortal by a double prize
By fame on earth-by glory in the skies !

Cowper. Epitaph on Dr. Johnson.
I own I like not Johnson's turgid style,
That gives an inch the importance of a mile,
Casts of manure a wagon-load around
To raise a simple daisy from the ground;
Uplitts the club of Hercules, for what?
To crush a butterfly or brain a gnat 1
Bids ocean labor with tremendous roar, To heave a cackle-shell upon the shore.
Alike in every theme his pompons art
Heaven's awful thunder, or a rumbling cart!
Dr. Jozn Wolcor. On Dr. Samuel Johnsom.
When Crofts Life of Dr. Young was spoken of as a good imitation of Dr. Johnson's style, "No, no," said he [Burke], "it is not a good imitation of Johnson; it has all his pomp without his force; it has all the nodosities of the oak without its strength ; it has all the contortions of the sibyl without the inspiration."

Prior. Life of Burke.
Rough Johnison, the great moralist.
Byron. Don Juan. Canto xiii. St. 7.

The great English moralist. Never was a descriptive epithet more nicely appropriate than that! Dr. Johnson's morality was as English an article as a beefsteak.

JOY.

(See Happiness; Mirth.)
Every humour hath his adjunct pleasure, Wherein it finds a joy above the rest. Sharespeare. Sonnet. xci.

Gladness in every face express'd,
Their eyes before their tongues confess'd.
Men met each other with erected look, The steps were higlier that they took;
Friends to congratulate their friends made haste,
And long inveterate foes saluted as they pass'd.
Dryden. Threnodia Augustalis. 1122.
In Folly's cup still laughs the bubble, Joy.

Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle ii. 1. 288.
And e'en while fashion's brightest arts decoy,
The heart, distrusting, asks if this be joy.
Goldsmith. The Deserted Village. 1. 263.
Joy is the sweet voice, joy the luminous cloud.
We in ourselves rejoice!
And thence flows all that charms or ear or sight,
All melodies the echoes of that voice, All colours a suffusion from that light.

Coleridee. Dejection. An Ode. St. 5.

JUDGE.

Judex damnatur cum nocens absolvitur.

The judge is condemned when the criminal is acquitted.

Publilius Syrus. Maxim 407.
When by a pardon'd murd'rer blood is spilc, The judge that pardon'd hath the greatest guilt.

Denham. On Justice. 1. si.
It is better that a judge should lean on the side of compassion than severity. Cervantes. Don Quixote. Pt. ii. Ch. xliii. (Jaryls, trans.)

Judges must beware of hard constructions and strained influences; for there is no worse torture than the torture of laws: specially in case of laws penal, tbey ought to have care, that that which was meant for terror be not turned into rigor.

Bacon. Essays. Of Judieaturc.
Lear. A man may see how this world goes with no eyes. Look witl thine eyes: see how yond justice rails upon yond simple thief. Hark, in thine ear: change places ; and, handy-dandy, which is the justice, which is the thief?

Shakespeare, King Lear. Act iv. Sc. 6. 1. 153.

Angelo. Thieves for their robbery have authority,
When judges steal themselves.
Ibid. Measure for Measure. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 176.

Shylock. A Daniel come to judgment! yea, a Daniel !
O, wise young judge, how I do honor thee!
Ibid. The Merchant of Venice. Act iv. Sc. l. 1. 224.

Gratiano. Oh Jew, an upright judge, a learned judge !

Shakespeare. The Merchant of Venice. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 323.
Gratiano, A second Daniel, a Daniel, Jew!
Now, infidel, I have you on the hip.
Ibid. The Merchant of Venice. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 333.
Portia. To offend, and judge, are distinct offices,
And of opposed natures.
Ibid. The Merchant of Venice. Act ii. sc. 9. 1. 61.
Jaques. And then the justice
In fair round belly with good capon lined.
Ibid. As You Like It. Act ii. Sc. 7. 1. 153.

It is not permitted to the most equitable of men to be a judge in his own cause.

Pascal. Thoughts. Ch. iv. I.
No one should be judge in his own cause. PGBLILIUS SYRUS. Maxim 545.

During good hehaviour.
That after the said limitation shall take effect, . . . judge's commissions be made quando se bene gesserit.
Statutes 12 and 13, William III. c. 2 . sec. 3 .
'Tis but half a judge's task to know.
Pope. Essay on Criticism. Pt. iii. 1. 2.
A justice with grave justices shall sit;
He praise their wisdom, they admire his wit.

Gay. The Birth of the Squire. 1. 77.
The cold neutrality of an impartial judge.

Burke. Preface to Brissot's Address. Works. Vol. v. p. 67.

JURY.

Angelo. 'Tis one thing to be tempted, Escalus,
A nother thing to fall. I do not deny
The jury, passing on the prisoner's life,
May, in the sworn twelve, have a thief or two
Guiltier than him they try: what's open made to justice,
That justice seizes.
Sharespeare. Measure for Measure. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 19.

The hungry judges soon the sentence sign,
And wretches hang, that jurymen may dine.
Pope. Rape of the Lock. Canto iii. 1. 21.
Wilt make haste to give up thy verdict because thou wilt not lose thy dinner. Middleton. A Trich to Catch the Old One. Act iv. Sc. 5.
For twelve honest men have decided the cause,
Who are judges alike of the facts and the laws.
William Pulieney. The Honest Jury.
In my mind, he was guilty of no error, he was chargeable with no exaggeration, he was betrayed by his fancy into no metaphor, who once said that all we see about us, kings, lords, and Commons, the whole machinery of the State, all the apparatus of the system, and its varied workings, end in simply bringing twelve good men into a box.

Lord Brougham. Present state of the Law. February 7, 1828.

JUSTICE.

Fiat justitia et pereat mundus.
Let justice be done though the world perish.

Motto of Ferdinand I., Emperor of Germany. (Johannes Mantius," Loci Communes," II., Octavum præceptum.)
Fiat justitia, ruat cœlum.
Let justice be done though the heqavens fall.

Lord Mansfield. In" Rex v. Wilkes." Burrows' Reports. iv. 2562.
[Lord Mansfield gave currency to a quotation of post-classical origin, whose first recorded appearance in English literature is in Prynne's First Discovery of Prodigious New Wandering Btazing Stars (1646). In reversing the sentence of outlawry passed upon John Wilkes for the publication of the North Briton, Mansfield says, "The constitution does not allow reasons of state to influence our judgment. God forbid it should! We must not regard political consequences, however formidable they might be; if rebellion was the certain consequence, we are bound to say, 'Justitia fiat, ruat colum.'"]
Fundamenta justitiæ sunt, et ne cui noceatur, deindé ut communi utilitati serveatur.
The foundations of justice are that no one shall be harmed, and next that the common weal be served.

Cicero.

Ruat coelum, fiat voluntas tua.
Though the sky fall, let Thy will be done. Sir T. Browne. Religio Medici. Pt. ii. Sec. 11.

Lear. Plate sin with gold,
And the strong lance of justice hurtless breaks;
Arm it in rags, a pigmy's straw doth pierce it.
Shakespeare. King Lear. Act iv. Sc. 6. 1. $16 \overline{5}$.

Hotspur. The arms are fair,
When the intent of bearing them is just. Ibid. I. Henry IV. Act v. Sc. 2. 1. 89.

The weakest arm is strong enough that strikes
With the sword of justice.
John Webster. The Duchess of Malfi. Act v. Sc. 2.

Duke. Our decrees
Dead to infliction, to themselves are dead;
And liberty plucks justice by the nose.
Shakespeare. Measure for Measure. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 27.

King. Where the offence is, let the great axe fall.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act iv. Sc. 5. 1. 210.
Where the fault springs, there let the judgment fall.

Herrick. Hesperides. 608.
He that is void of fear, may soon be just;
And no religion binds men to be traitors.
Ben Jonson. Catiline. Act iii. Sc. 2.
A prince's favours but on few can fall, But justice is a virtue shar'd by all. Dryden. Britannia Rediviva. 1. 337.

Justice is blind, he knows nobody. Ibid. The Wild Gallant. Act v. Sc. 1.

Justice may wink a while, but see at last. Middleton. The Mayor of Queenborough (Simon). Act v. Sc. 1.

Justice, while she winks at crimes,
Stumbles on innocence sometimes.
Butler. Hudibras. Pt. i. Cantoii. Concluding lines.
Justice is lame as well as blind, amongst us.

Otway. Venice Preserved. Act i. Sc. 1.

Justice indeed
Should ever be close-ear'd and openmouth'd;
That is, to hear a little, and speak much.
Middleton. The Old Law (Simonides). Act v. Sc. 1.

Justice is what is established; and thus all our established laws will be regarded as just, without being examined, since they are established.

Pascal. Thoughts. Ch. vii. vi.
Poetic Justice, with her lifted scale,
Where in nice balance truth with gold she weighs,
And solid pudding against empty praise. Pope. The Dunciad. 1. $5 \mathbf{1}$.

Hard is the task of justice, where distress
Excites our mercy, yet demands redress. Colley Cibber. The Heroick Daughter. Act iii. last lines.

The love of justice is simply, in the majority of men, the fear of suffering injustice.

La Rochefoucauld. Maxim 78.
Amongst the sons of men how few are known
Who dare be just to merit not their own?
Churchill. Epistle to Hogarth. 1. 1.
It looks to me to be narrow and pedantic to apply the ordinary ideas of criminal justice to this great public contest. I do not know the method of drawing up an indictment against a whole people.

Burke. Speech on Conclliation with America.

I tremble for my country when I reflect that God is just ; that his justice cannot sleep forever; that considering numbers, nature, and natural means only, a revolution of the wheel of fortune, an exchange of situation, is among possible events; that it may become probable by supernatural interference: The Almighty has no attribute which can take side with us in such a contest.

Thomas Jefferson. Notes on Virginia. Query xviii. Manners.

He only judges right who weighs, compares,
And, in the sternest sentence which his voice
Pronounces, ne'er abandons charity.
Wordsworth. Ecclesiaalical Sonnets. Pt. ii. 1. 1.
Truth is its [justice's] handmaid, freedom is its child, peace is its companion, safety walks in its steps, victory follows in its train; it is the brightest emanation from the Gospel; it is the attribute of God.

Sldney Smith. Lady Holland's Memoir.
A man's vanity tells him what is honour, a man's conscience what is justice.

Landor. Imaginary Conversations. Peter Leopold and President Du Paty.
But the sunshine aye shall light the sky,
As round and round we run;
And the truth shall ever come uppe most,
And justice shall be done.
Charleg Mackay. Eternot Justice. St. 4.
The hope of all who suffer, The dread of all who wrong.

Whittier. Mantle of St. John De Matha. St. 21.
Justice is like the kingdom of Godit is not without us as a fact, it is within us as a great yearning.

George Eliot. Romola. Bk. iii. Ch. lxvii.

Whoever fights, whoever falls,
Justice conquers evermore. Emerbon. Voluntaries.
God's justice, tardy though it prove perchance,
Rests never on the track until it reach Delinquency.
R. Browning. Cenciaja.

We love justice greatly, and just men but little.

KEATS, JOHN.

But now thy youngest, dearest one has perished,
The nursling of thy widowhood, who grew

Like a pale flower by some sad maiden cherished,
And fed with true love tears instead of dew,
Most musical of mourners weep anew !
Shelley. Adonais. St. 6.
The Pilgrim of Eternity, whose fane
Over his living head like heaven is bent,
An early hut enduring monument,
Came, veiling all the lightnings of his song
In sorrow.
Ibia. Adonais. St. xxx.
[The reference probably is to Byron mourning over Keats's tomb.]
John Keats-who was killed off by one critique,
Just as he really promised something great,
If not intelligible without Greek,
Contrived to talk about the gods of late
Much as they might have been supposed to speak.
Poor fellow! His was an untoward fate ;
'Tis strange the mind, that very fiery particle,
Should let itself be snuffed out by an article.
byron. Don Juan. Canto xi. St. 60 .

KING.

Nec posse dari regalibus usquam Secretum vitiis: nam lux altissima fati
Occultum nihil esse sinit, latebrasque per omnes
Intrat et abstrusos explorat fama recessus.

Kings can have
No secret vices, for the light that shines
On those who've climhed to Fortune's highest peaks
Leaves naught in darkness; every lurk-ing-place
Fame eniers, and its hidden nooks explores.
Clatdianus. De quarto Consulatu Honorii. 272.

Kings' misdeeds cannot be hid in clay.
Shakespeare. The Rape of Lucrece. 1. 609.

King Henry. Every subject's duty is the king's; but every subject's soul is his own. 1bid. Henry V. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 186.
King Henry. The slave, a member of the country's peace,
Enjoys it; but in gross brain little wots What watch the king keeps to maintain the peace,
Whose hours the peasant enjoys. Ibid. Henry V. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 299.
King Henry. Gives not the hawthorn bush a sweeter shade
To shepherds looking on their silly sheep,
Than doth a rich embroider'd canopy
To kings, that fear their subjects' treachery?
Ibid. III. Henry VI. Act ii. Sc. 5. 1. 45.
King Richard. No lord of thine, thou haught, insulting man,
Nor no man's lord; I have no name, no title,
No, not that name was given me at the font,
But 'tis usurped. Alack the heavy day, That I have worn so many winters out,
And know not now what name to call myself !
Oh ! that I were a mockery king of snow,
Standing before the sun of Bolingbroke, To melt myself away in water-drops ! Ibid. Richard II. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 254.
King. Henry. And what have kings that privates have not too?

Ibid. Henry V. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 234.
King Richard. Not all the water in the rough-rude sea
Can wash the balm from an anointed King;

The breath of worldly men cannot depose
The deputy elected by the Lord.
Shakespeare. Richard II. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 55.

King. There's such divinity doth hedge a king,
That treason can but peep to what it would.
Ibid. Hamlet. Act iv. Sc. 5. 1. 120.
King. Give me the cups;
And let the kettle to the trumpet speak,
The trumpet to the cannoneer without,
The cannons to the heavens, the heavens to earth,
Now the king drinks to Hamlet.
Ibid. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 2. 1. 285.
Princes are like to heavenly bodies, which cause good or evil times, and which have much veneration, but no rest.

Bacon. Essay xix. Of Empire.
Kings are like stars-they rise and set, they have
The worship of the world, but no repose. Shelley. Hellas. Mahmud.

The greatest king is he who is the king Of greatest subjects.
G. West. Instilution of the Garter. 1. 302.

A crown,
Golden in show, is but a wreath of thorns,
Brings dangers, troubles, cares, and sleepless nights,
To him who wears the regal diadem,
When on his shoulders each man's burden lies,
For therein stands the office of a king, -
His honor, virtue, merit, and chief praise,-
That for the public all this weight he hears.
Milton. Paradise Regained. Bk. ii. 1. 458.

This 'tis to be a monarch when alone
He can command all, but is awed by none.
Massinger. The Roman Actor. Act i. Sc. 4.

A merry monarch, scandalous and poor.

The public burden of the nation's care. Prior. Solomon. Bk. iii. 1. 275.
Ce sont là jeux de prince:
On respecte un moulin, on vole une province!
Such is the sport of princes; they spare a windmill and steal a province. Andrievx. Meunier de Sans Souci.
[The king, Frederick II., had threatened to seize his neighbor, the miller's, windmill, to which the latter replies, "Oni, si nous n'avions pas de juges à Berlin'" ; in the end the mill is spared.]
Ces malheureux rois
Dont on dit tant de mal, ont du bon quelquefois.
These miserable kings of whom so much evil is said, have their good points sometimes.

Ibid. Meunier de Sans Souci.
So sit two kings of Brentford on one throne;
And so two citizens who take the air,
Close packed and smiling in a chaise and one.
Cowrer. The Task. Bk. i. The Sofa. 1. 78.

Le roi regne et ne gouverne pas.
The King reigns but does not govern.
[Mot of Thiers in the National newspaper of July 1, 1830, relating to the accession of Louis Philippe. Zamoyski had already said in a specch in the Polish Diet : "Rex regnat sed non gubernat."]

A long train of these practices has at length unwillingly convinced me that there is something behind the throne greater than the King himself.

William Pitt (Earí of Chatham). Chatham Correspondence. Speech, March 2, 1770.
[Hence the phrase, "The power behind the throne."]

KING'S FAVORITES.

Wolsey. O Cromwell, Cromwell !
Had I but served my God with half the zeal
I served my king, He would not in mine age
Have left me naked to mine enemies.
Shakespeare. Henty VIII. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 455 .
[According to Hume, who gives Cavendish as his authority, Wolsey, a littlc before he expired, addressed the following words to Sir William Kingston, constable of the town, who had him in custody: "Had I but served God as diligently as I have served the king, He would not have given me over in my gray hairs. But this is the just reward that I must receive for my indulgent pains and study, not regarding my service to God, but only to my prince."

History of Engtand. Ch. xxx. Henry
VIII. 1530.]

Whoever prefers the service of princes hefore his duty to his Creator, will be sure, early or late, to repent in vain.

Who are so high above,
Are near to lightning, that are near to Jove.
Ibid. Tragedy of Philotas. Act iv. Sc. 1.
King John. It is the curse of kinge to be attended
By slaves that take their humors for a warrant
To break within the bloody house of life,
And, on the winking of Authority,
To understand a law; to know the meaning
Of dangerous majesty, when, perchance, it frowns
More upon humor than advised respect. Sharespeare. King John. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 208.

Wolsey. O how wretched
Is that poor man that hangs on princes' favours!
There is, betwixt that smile we would aspire to,

That sweet aspect of princes, and their ruin,
More pangs and fears than wars or women have.
Shakespeare Henry VIII. Act ill. Sc. 2. 1. 367.
(See under Fall.)
Put not your trust in princes.
Old Testament. Psalm cxlvi. 3.
To be a kingdom's bulwark, a king's glory,
Yet loved by both, and trusted and trustworthy,
Is more than to be king. Coleripge. Zapolya. Pt.i.

KISS.

The kisses of an enemy are deceitful. Old Testament. Proverbs xxvii. 6.
Julia. Fie, fie! How wayward is this foolish love,
That like a testy babe will scratch the nurse
And presently, all humbled, kiss the rod.
Shakespeare. Two Gentlemen of Veroma. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 58.
[In the History of Reynard the Fox (Ch. xii. How Reynard Shroef Him), Reynard is enjoined hy Grimbert to kiss the rod as part of the penance imposed on him.]

Queen. Wilt thou, pupil-like,
Take thy correction mildly, kiss the rod, And fawn on rage with base humility.

Shakespeare. Richard II. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 32.

Did some more sober critic come abroad;
If wrong, I smiled; if right, I kiss'd the rod. Pope.

Take, oh, take those lips away,
That so sweetly were forsworn;
And those eyes, the break of day,
Lights that do mislead the morn ;
But my kisses bring again, bring again,
Seals of love, but seal'd in vain, seal'd in vain.
Shakespeare. Measure for Measure. Act iv. Sc. 1. l. 1.
[This song, with slight verbal alterations, appears in Beaumont and Fletcher's The Bloody Brother, Act v., Sc. 2. Probably it was a current song of anonymous authorship and merely introduced into both plays. In The Bloody Brother the following additional stanza is given:

Hide, O, hide those hills of snow, Which thy frozen bosom bears, On whose tops the pinks that grow Are of those that April wears! But first set my poor heart free Bound in those icy chains hy thee.]
lago. Then kiss me hard,
As if he pluck'd up kisses by the roots,
That grew upon my lips. Shakespeare. Othello. act iii. Sc. 3. 1. 422.

Gloster. Teach not thy lips such scorn; for they were made
For kissing, lady, not for such contempt. Ibid. Richard III. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 173 .
Romeo. They may seize
On the white wonder of dear Juliet's hand
And steal immortal blessing from her lips,
Who, even in pure and vestal modesty, Still blush, as thinking their own kisses sin.
Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act iii. Sc. 3. 1. 34.
Kissing goes by favour.

The kiss, snatch'd hasty from the sidelong maid.
Thomson. The Seasons. Winter. 1. 625.
A man may kiss a bonny lass,
And ay be welcome back again.
Burns. Duncan Davison. Concluding lines.
Gin a body meet a body Comin' thro' the rye,
Gin a body kiss a body
Need a body cry?
Comin' Through the Rye. Author Unknown.
Kissin' is the key o' love,
An' clappin' is the lock.

Jenny kiss'd me when we met,
Jumping from the chair she sat in;
Time, you thief! who love to get
Sweets into your list, put that in:
Say I'm weary, say I'm sad,
Say that health and wealth have miss'd me,
Say I am growing old, but add, Jenny kissed me.

Leigh Hunt. Jennie Kizsed Me.

When age chills the blood, when our pleasures are past-
For years fleet away with the wings of the dove-
The dearest remembrance will still be the last,
Our sweetest memorial, the first kiss of love.
Byron. The First Kiss of Love. st. 7.
I love the sex, and sometimes would reverse
The tyrant's wish, "That maukind only had
One neck, which he with one fell stroke might pierce."
My wish is quite as wide, but not so bad,
And much more tender on the whole than fierce;
It being (not now, but only while a lad)
That womankind had but one rosy mouth,
To kiss them all at once from north to south.
rbid. Don Juan. Canto vi. st. 27.
A long, long kiss,-a kiss of youth and love. Ibid. Don Juan. Canto ii. St. 186.
"Kiss" rhymes to "bliss" in fact, as well as verse.

Ibid. Don Juan. Canto vi. St. 59.

Her lips, whose kisses pout to leave their nest,
Bid man be valiant ere he merit such. Ibid. Childe Hurold. Canto i. 1.58 .

See the mountains kiss high heaven,
And the waves clasp one another;
No sister flower would be forgiven If it disdained its brother ;
And the sunlight clasps the earth, And the moonbeams kiss the sea;
What are all these kissings worth, If thou kiss not me? Shelley. Love's Philosophy. St. 2.

First time he kissed me, he but only kiss'd
The fingers of this hand wherewith I write;
And ever since it grew more clean and white.
Mrs. Browning. Sonnets from the Portuguese. Sonnet xxxviil.

All the breath and the bloom of the year in the bag of one bee:
All the wonder and wealth of the mine in the heart of one gem :
In the core of one pearl all the shade and the shine of the sea :
Breath and bloom, shade and shine,wonder, wealth, and-how far above them-
Truth, that's brighter than gem,
Trust, that's purer than pearl-
Brightest truth, purest trust in the uni-verse-all were for me
In the kiss of one girl.
Robert Browning. Summum Bonum.
Many an evening by the waters did we watch the stately ships,
And our spirits rush'd together at the touching of the lips.

Tennyson. Locksley Hall. 1.37.
0 love! O fire! once he drew
With one long kiss my whole soul through
My lips, as sunlight drinketh dew.
Ibid. Fatima. St. 3.
Sweet Helen, make me immortal with a kiss !
Her lips suck forth my soul : see where it flies!

Marlowe. Faustus.
Dear as remember'd kisses after death, And sweet as those by hopeless fancy feign'd
On lips that are for others.
Tennyson. The Princess. Pt. iv. Song. Tears, Idle Tears. St. 4.
Kisses balmier than half-opening buds Of A pril.

Ibid. Tithonus. 1. 59.

KNOWLEDGE.

(See Learning; Ignobance.)
A wise man is strong; yea, a man of knowledge increaseth strength.

Old Testament. Proverbs xxiv. 5.
Ipsa scientia potestas est.
Knowledge itself is power.
Bacon. Meditationes Sacre. De Haerisibus.
Knowledge is more than equivalent to force.

Johnson. Rasselas. Ch. xiii.
To be great, be wise:
Content of spirit must from science flow, For 'tis a godlike attribute to know.

Prior. Solomon. Bk, i. 1. 41.

Knowledge is as food, and needs no less Her temp'rance over appetite, to know
In measure what the mind may well contain:
Oppresses else with surfeit, and soon turns Wisdom to folly.

Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. vii. 1. 126.
So by false learning is good sense defac'd; Some are hewilder'd in the maze of schools, And some made coxcombs Nature meant but fools.
Pope. Essay on Criticism. Pt. i. 1. 25.
Learning itself, received into a mind
By nature weak, or viciously inclined,
Serves but to lead philosophers astray,
Where children would with ease discern the wry.

Cowfer. Progress of Error. 1. 431.

Knowledge and Wisdom, far from being one,
Have ofttimes no connexion. Knowledge dwells
In heads replete with thoughts of other men;
Wisdom in minds attentive to their own.
Knowledge, a rude unprofitable mass,
The mere materials with which Wisdom builds,
Till smooth'd and squared, and fitted to its place,
Does hut encumber whom it seems to enrich.
Knowledge is proud that he has learn'd so much;
Wisdom is humble that he knows no more. Books are not seldom talismans and spells. Cowper. The Task. Bk. vi. 1. 88.

Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers.
Tennyson. Locksley Hall. 1. 141.
Who are a little wise the hest fools be.
Donne. The Triple Foot.
Nor will life's stream for observation stay,
It hurries all too fast to mark their way:
In vain sedate reflections we would make,
When half our knowledge we must snatch, not take.
Pope. Moral Essays. Epistle i. 1. 37.
But knowledge to their eyes her ample page,
Rich with the spoils of time, did ne'er unroll; ${ }^{1}$

Craik had originally intended to call it The Love of Knowledge Overcoming Difficulties in its Pursuit. The improvement is said to have been suggested hy Lord Brougham.]

Diffused knowledge immortalizes itself.

James Mackintosh. Vindicix Gallicx.

I have not the Chancellor's ${ }^{1}$ encyclopedic mind. He is indeed a kind of semi-Solomon. 'He half knows everything, from the cedar to the hyssop.

Macaulay. Letter to Macvey Napier. December 17, 1830.
1 Henry, Lord Brougham.
Let knowledge grow from more to more.

Tennyson. In Memoriam. Prologue, 1. 25.

O lift your natures up:
Embrace our aims ; work out your freedom. Girls,
Knowledge is now no more a fountain sealed :
Drink deep, until the habits of the slave; The sins of emptiness, gossip and spite And slander, die. Better not be at all Than not be noble.

LABOR.

In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken. Old Testament. Genesis iii. 19.
[Frequently misquoted "in the.sweat of thy brow." The error may have been originally a reminiscence of Milton's phrase, "Let us go forth and resolutely dare with sweat of brow to toil our little day."

Tractate of Education.]
Thou hast made them equal unto us, which have borne the burden and heat of the day.

New Testament. Matthew xx. 12.

To labour is the lot of man below;
And when Jove gave us life, he gave us woe.
Homer. lliad. Bk. x. 1. 78. (Pope, trans.)

Quæ regio in terris nostri non plena laboris.

What region of the earth is not full of our travails?

Virgil. Ameid. i. 460.
Labor omnia vicit
Improbus, et duris urgens in rebus egestas.
Stubborn labor conquers all things and [so does] want ever urgent in hard times.

Ibid. Georgics. i. 145.

The labor and tediousness of polishing (any work of art, poetry, painting, etc.) as though with a file.

Horace. Ars Poetica. 1. 291.
Laborare est orare.
To labor is to pray.
[This is the aucient maxim of the Benedictine monks. It may be a misquotation from the Vulgate's "laborare et orare" in the text from Jeremiah (Lamentations, iii. 41) which the authorized version translates, "Let us lift up our hearts with our bands unto God in the heavens." The PseudoBernard, referring to Jeremiah, has "Qui orat et laborat, cor levat ad Deus cum manibus" ("Who prays and works lifts up to God his heart with his hands") (ST. Bernard, opera, Vol. ii. Col. 866, Paris, 1690). "Orando laborando" (" Praying at work") is the motto of Rugby School in England. 1

The busy lark, the messenger of day. CHaucer. The Knighte's Tate. 1. 1493. ,

By robbing Peter he paid Paul, he kept the moon from the wolves, and was ready to catch larks if ever the heavens should fall.

Rabelais. Works. Bk, i, Ch. xi.
Romeo. It was the lark, the herald of the morn.

Shakgspigare. Romeo and Juliet. Act iii. Sc. 5. 1. 6.

Romeo. The lark whose notes do beat The vaulty heaven, so high above our heads.
Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act iii. Sc. 5. 1. 21.

And now the herald lark
Left his ground-nest, high towering to descry
The morn's approach, and greet her with his song.
Mllion. Paradise Regained. Bk. ii. l. 279.

Up springs the lark,
Shrill-voic'd, and loud, the messenger of morn ;
Ere yet the shadows fly, he mounted sings
Amid the dawning clouds, and from their haunts
Calls up the tuneful nations.
THomson. Seasons. Spring. 1. 590.
Hark! hark ! the lark at heaven's gate sings,
And Phoebus'gins arise,
His steeds to water at those springs
On chaliced flowers that lies;
And winking Mary-buds begin
To ope their golden eyes:
With everything that pretty is,
My lady sweet arise;
Arise, arise I
Shakespeare. Oymbeline. Actii. Sc. 3. Song. 1. 21.
None but the lark so shrill and clear :
How at heaven's gates she claps her wings, The morn not waking till she sings.
Lyly. Cupid and Campaspe. Aet v. Sc. 1.
Lo! here the gentle lark, weary of rest,
From his moist cabinet mounts up on high,
And wakes the morning, from whose silver breast
The sun ariseth in his majesty.
Shakespeare. Venus and Adomis. 1. 853.
The lark now leaves his watery nest. And climbing shakes his dowy wings;
He takes this window for the east,
And to implore your light, he sings.
Davenant. Morning Song.

Merry larks are ploughmen's clocks.
Shakespeare. Love's Labour's Lobl (Song). Act v. Sc. 2. 1. 891.
Juliet. It is the lark that sings so out of tune,
Straining harsh discords and unpleasing sharps,
Some say the lark makes sweet division. Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act iii Sc. 5. 1. 27.

To hear the lark begin his flight, And singing, startle the dull night, From his watchtower in the skies, Till the dappled dawn doth rise; Then to come, in spite of sorrow, And at my window bid good morrow. Milton. D'Allegro. 1. 41.
Bird of the wilderness, Blithesome and cumberless,

Hogg. The Skylark.
Hail to thee, blithe spirit I
Bird thou never wert,
That from heaven, or near it,
Pourest thy full heart
In profuse strains of unpremeditated art.
Shelley. To a Skylark. 1.
Up with mel up with me, into the clouds:
For thy song, Lark, is strong ;
Up with me, up with me, into the clouds 1
Singing, singing,
With clouds and sky about thee ringing,
Lift me, guide me, till I find
That spot that seems so to thy mind.
Wordsworth. To a Skylark.
Ethereal minstrel! pilgrim of the sky 1
Dost thou despise the earth where cares abound?
Or, while the wings aspire, are heart and eye
Both with thy nest upon the dewy ground?
Thy nest which thou canst drop into at will,
Those quivering wings composed that music still!

Ibid. To a Skylark.

Leave to the nightingale her shady wood;
A privacy of glorious light is thine:
Whence thou dost pour upon the world a flood
Of harmony with instinct more divine:
Type of the wise who soar but never roam:
True to the kindred points of Heaven and Home.
Wordsworth. To a Skylark. St. 3.
The bird that soars on highest wing,
Builds on the ground her lowly nest ;
And she that doth most swectly sing,
Sings in the shade when all things' rest :
In lark and nightingale we see
What honor hath humility.
Jas. Montgomery. Humility.
The music soars within the little lark,
And the lark soars.

Solvuntur risu tabulæ; tu missus abibis. O, then a laugh will cut the matter short:
The case breaks down, defendant leaves the court.
Ibid. Satires. Bk. ii. Satire i. 1. 86. (CONINGTON, trans.)
["Solvuntur risu tabulæ" is said of any question which only succeeds in raising general laughter, and is so dismissed. The matter or case is "]anghed ont of court."]

To langh, if but for an instant only, las never been granted to man before the fortieth day from his birth, and then it is looked upon as a miracle of precocity.

Pliny THe Elder. Natural History. Bk. vii. Sec. 2. (Holland, trans.)

Take my word for it, it is no laughing matter.

Cicero. Letter to Atticus.
Quid rides? Mutato nomine de te
Fabula narratnr.
Why do you laugh ? Change but the name, and the story is told of yourself.

Horace. Satires. Bk. i. Satire i. 1. 69.
One inch of joy surmounts of grief a span,
Because to lavgh is proper to the man. Rabelais. To the Reader.
Laughter almost ever cometh of things most disproportioned to ourselves and nature: delight hath a joy in it either permanent or present ; langhter hath only a scornful tickling.

[^19]Laugh, and be fat, sir, your penance is known.
They that love mirth, let them heartily drink,
'Tis the only receipt to make sorrow sink.

Clcero. De Officiis. i. 10. 33.
Men of most renowned virtue have sometimes by transgressing most truly kept the law.

Milton. Tetrachordon.

In bondage to the letter still,
We give it power to cramp and kill,--
To tax God's fulness with a scheme Narrower than Peter's house-top dream,
His wisdom and his love with plans
Poor and inadequate as man's.
Whittier. Miviam. 1. 97.
Foul shame and scorn be on ye all Who turn the good to evil,
And steal the Bible from the Lord, And give it to the Devil!
Than garbled text or parchment law

There is a higher law than the Constitution.
W. H. Seward. Speech. March 11, 1850.

The best nse of good laws is to teach men to trample bad laws under their feet.

Wendell PHillips. Speech, April 12, 1852. Sims' Anniversary.

No law can possibly meet the convenience of every one: we must be satisfied if it be beneficial on the whole and to the majority.

Livy. Histories. xxxiv. 3.
The law is blind, and speaks in general terms: She cannot pity where occasion serves.
T. Max. The Heir. Act iv.

Solon used to say that speech was the image of actions; . . . that laws were like cobwehs,-for that if any trifling or powerless thing fell into them, they held it fast; while if it were something weightier, it broke through them and was off.

Diogenes Labrtius. Soton. x.
One of the Seven was wont to say: "That laws were like cohwebs; where the small fies were caught, and the great brake through."

Bacon. Apothegms. No. 181.
Laws are like cobwebs, which may catch small fies, but let wasps and hornets break through.
SWIFT. Essay on the Faculties of the Mind.
Dat veniam corvis, vexat censura columbas.

Or lite, who do us wrong; but laid for those
Who do us none at all.
Terence. Phormio. Act ii. Sc. 2. 16.
(Phormio.) (George Colman, trans.)
Law is nothing but a correct principle drawn from the inspiration of the gods, commanding what is honest, and forbidding the contrary.

CIcero. Orations. The Eleventh Philippic. Sec. 12. (Yonge, trans.)

There is a written and an unwritten law. The one by which we regulate our constitutions in our cities is the written law ; that which arises from custom is the unwritten law.

Diogenes Laertius. Plato. li.
The gladsome light of jurisprudence. Sir Edward Coke. First Institute.

Reason is the life of the law; nay, the common law itself is nothing else but reason. . . . The law, which is perfection of reason.

Of Law there can be no less acknowledged than that her seat is the bosom of God, her voice the harmony of the world. All things in heaven and earth do her homage.- the very least as feeling her care, and the greatest as not exempted from her power.

RIchard Hooker. Ecclesiastical Polity. Bk. 1.
Shall free-born men, in humble awe,
Submit to servile shame;
Who from consent and custom draw The same right to be ruled by law,

Which kings pretend to reign?
Dryden. On the Young Statesman.
Equity is a roguish thing: for law we have a measure, know what to trust to; equity is according to the conscience of him that is chancellor, and as that is larger or narrower, so is equity. 'Tis all one as if they should make the standard for the measure we call a foot a chancellor's foot; what an uncertain measure would this be! One chancellor has a long foot, another a short foot, a third an indifferent foot. 'Tis the same in the Chancellor's conscience.

Selden, Table Talk. Equity.

John Philpot Curran. Speech. Dublin. 1808.

The condition upon which God bath given liberty to man is eternal vigilance.

Ibid. Speech. July 10, 1790.

God grants liberty only to those who love it, and are always ready to guard and defend it .

Daniel Webster. Speech. June 3, 1834,
Behold I in Liberty's unclouded blaze
We lift our heads, a race of other days.
Charles Sprague. Centennial Ode. St. 22.

If the true spark of religious and civil liberty be kindled, it will burn. Human agency cannot extinguish it. Like the earth's central fire, it may be smothered for a time; the ocean may overwhelm it; mountains may press it down; but its inherent and unconquerable force will heave both the ocean and the land, and at some time or other, in some place or other, the volcano will break out and flame up to heaven.

Daniel Webster. Address. Charlestown, Mass., June 17, 1825. The Bunker Hill Monument.
Liberty, like day,

The tree of liberty grows only when watered by the blood of tyrants.

Barkre. Speech in the Convention Nationale. 1792.
OLiberty! Liberty! how many crimes are committed in thy name!

Madame Roland.
Yes, while I stood and gazed, my temples bare,
And shot my being through earth, sea, and air,
Possessing all things with intensest love,
O Liberty! my spirit felt thee there.
Colemidge. Prance. An Ode. Concluding lines.
Ye Clouds! that far above me float and pause,
Whose pathless march no mortal may controll
Ye Ocean-waves! that, wheresoe'er ye roll,
Yield homage only to eternal laws!
Ye woods! that listen to the night-bird's singing,

0 ye loud waves! and $O$ ye Forests high!
And O ye clouds that far above me soar'd!
Thou rising sun! thou blue rejoicing sky!
Yea, everything that is, and will be free!
Bear witness for me, wheresoe'er ye be,
With what deep worship I have still adored
The spirit of divinest liberty. Colerinoe. France. an Ode. St. 1.

Oh! if there be on this earthly sphere,
A boon, an offering heaven holds dear,
'Tis the last libation Liberty draws
From the heart that bleeds and breaks in her cause.

Tell zeal, it lacks devotion ;
Tell love, it is but lust;
Tell time, it is but motion;
Tell flesh, it is but dust !
And wish them not reply,
For thou must give the lie.
Ibid. The Lie St. 6.

Prospero. Like one

Who having unto truth by telling it
Made such a sinner of his memory, To credit his own lie,-he did believe
He was indeed the duke; out of the substitution,
And executing the outward face of royalty,
With all prerogative.
Shakespeare. The Tempest. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 102.
[The words "Unto truth" have greatly puzzled the commentators. Suggested emendations are "To untruth," "Injured truth," "Unto truth by telling of't," the last with the implication that a line has been dropped. None of the suggestions is satisfactory. Boswell's gloss is as good as any: "The sentence is involved but not, I think, ungrammatical: 'Who having made his memory such a sinner to truth as to credit his own lie by telling of it."' A curions coincidence has been pointed out in Bacon's History of Henry VII:
It was generally believed that he was indeed Duke Richard. Nay, himself, with long and continual connterfeiting and with oft telling a lie, was turned by habit almost into the thing he seemed to be, and from a liar into a believer.]
Till their own dreams al length deceive'em, And oft repeating, they helieve 'em.

Sbould captains the remark, or critics, make,
They also lie too-under a mistake.
Byron. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 208.
What is a lie? 'Tis but
The truth in masquerade. Ibid. Don Juan. Canto xi. St. 37.

That a lie which is half a truth is ever the blackest of lies;
That a lie which is all a lie may be met and fought with outright ;
But a lie which is part a truth is a harder matter to fight.
Tennyson. The Grandmother. St. 8.
A mixture of a lie doth ever add pleasure.
Doth any man doubt that if there were taken out of men's minds vain opinions, flattering hopes, false valuations, imaginations as one would, and the like, but it would leave the minds of a number of men poor shrunken things, full of melancholy and indisposition, and unpleasing to themselves.

> Bacon. Essays: of Truth.

Some truth there was, but dash'd and brew'd with lies,

LIFE.

(See Mortality.)
The days of our years are three-score years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be four-score years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off and we fly away.
old Testament. Psalm xc. 10.
[The English Common Prayer Book trauslates the verse thus: "The days of our age are three-score years and ten; and though men be so strong that they come to fourscore years, yet is their strength then labor and sorrow; so soon passeth it away and we are gone.']

For what is your life? It is even a vapor, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away.

New Testament. James iv. 14.
Whose life is a buhble, and in length a span.

William Browne. Britannia's Pastorals. Bk. i. Song 2.
The World's a bubble, and the Life of Man Less than a span:
In his conception wretched, from the womb So to the tomb;
Curst from his cradle, and brought up to years

Abraham Cowley. Ode on Life and Fame. 1. 18.

Between two worlds, life hovers like a star
'Twixt night and morn, upon the horizon's verge.
How little do we know that which we are!
How less what we may be! The eternal surge

Of time and tide rolls on, and bears afar
Our bubbles: as the old burst, new emerge, Lash'd from the foam of ages.

So live that when thy summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan which moves
To that mysterious realm, where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death,
Thou go not, like the quarry-slave at night,
Scourged to his dungeon, but, sustained and soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy gràve,
Like one that wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.
William Cullen Bryant. Thanatopsis. Concluding lines.

So his life has flowed
From its mysterious urn a sacred stream,
In whose calm depth the beautiful and pure
Alone are mirrored; which, though shapes of ill
May hover round its surface, glides in light,
And takes no shadow from them.

LIGHT.

And God said "Let there be light, and there was light."

Otd Testament. Genesis i. 3.
"Let there be Light!" said God; and forthwith Light
Ethereal, first of things, quintessence pure,
Sprung from the deep; and, from her native east,
To journey through the aery gloom began, Spher'd in a radiant cloud.

Quintilian. De Institutione Oratoria. i. 6. 34.
[Hence the phrase, "Lucus a non lucendo.']
Hail, holy Light, offspring of Heaven first-born;
Or of the Eternal coeternal beam,
May I express thee unblamed? since God is light,
And never but in unapproached light
Dwelt from eternity, dwelt but in thee,
Bright effluence of bright essence increate.
Or hear'st thou rather, pure ethereal stream,
Whose fountain who shall tell? Before the Sun,
Before the Heavens thou wert, and at the voice
Of God, as with a mantle, didst invest
The rising world of waters dark and deep,
Won from the void and formless infinite. Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. iii. 1. 1.
Dark with excessive bright thy skirts appear.

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. iii. 1. 380.
[Frequently misqnoted (and improved) by, the substitution of "light "for "bright." Milton may have had in memory a passage in Longinus where, after quoting from Demosthenes, he asks, "In what has the orator here concealed the figure? Plainly, in its own lustre.']
Love in your heart as idly burns
As fire in antique Roman urns.
Butler. Hudibras. Pt. ii. Canto i. 1, 309.
[The story of a lamp which was supposed to have burned about fifteen hundred years in the sepulcher of Tullia, the daughter of Cicero, is told by Pancirollus and others:

Cowper. Conversation. 1. 357.]
Who could have thought such Darkness lay concealed
Within thy beams, O Sun ! or who could find,
Whilst flow'r, and leaf, and insect stood revealed,
That to such countless orbs thou mad'st us blind!

Why do we then shun Death with anxious strife?
If Light can thus deceive, wherefore not Life?
J. Blanco White. Sonnet. Night.

Light that makes things seen, makes some things invisible; were it not for darkness and the shadow of the earth the noblest part of the.creation had remained unseen and the stars in heaven as invisible as on the fourth day when they were created above the horizon with the sun and there was not an eye to behold them.

The two noblest things, which are sweetness and light.

SWIFT. Battle of the Books.
[A correspondent of the London Times in 1887 called attention to an analogous phrase in Philo-Judæus. Speaking figuratively of the manna which fed the Israelites in the desert, he says: "What is the bread? It is the word which the Lord ordained, and this divine ordinance imparts both light and sweetuess to the soul which has eyes to see."
Walsh. Curiosities of Literature. p. 1043.]
The Greek word euphuid, a finely tempered nature, gives exactly the notion of perfection as culture brings us to conceive it; a harmonious perfection, a perfection in which the characters of beauty and intelligence are both present, which unites "the two noblest of things,"-as Swift, who of one of the two, at any rate had himself all too little, most happily calls them in his Battle of the Books, - "the two noblest of things, sweetness and light." The euphues, I say, is the man who tends towards sweetness and light, the aphues, on the other hand, is our Philistine.

LION.

Bottom. A lion among ladies is a most dreadful thing; for there is not a more fearful wild-fowl than your lion living.

Shakespeare. Midswmmer Night's Dream. Act íii. Sc. 1. 1. 31.
Bottom. Let me play the lion too: I will roar, that I will do any man's heart good to hear me; I will roar, that I will make the duke say, Let him roar again, Let him roar again.

Quince. An you should do it too terribly, you would fright the duchess and the ladies, that they would shriek; and that were enough to hang us all.

All. That would hang us every mother's son.
Botiom. I grant you, friends, if that you should fright the ladies out of their wits, they would have no inore discretion but to hang us; but I will aggravate my voice so, that I will roar you as gently as any sucking dove: I will roar you an 'twere any nightingale.

But Titus said, with his uncommon sense,
When the Exclusion Bill was in suspense:
"I hear a lion in the lobby roar ;
Say, Mr. Speaker, shall we shut the door
And keep him there, or shall we let him in
To try if we can turn him ont again?" Jamps Rramston. Art of Potitics.

I hope we shall not be as wise as the frogs to whom Jupiter gave the stork as their king. To trust expedients with such a king in the throne would be just as wise as if there were a lion in the lobby, and we should vote to let him in and chain him, instead of fastening the door to keep him out.

Colonel Silius Titus. Speech on lhe Exclusion Bill. Jannary 7, 1680.
[His most famous speech was against the limitation which Charles offered to impose upon a Catholic sovereign rather than pass the bill for excluding his brother from the throne. Titus argned with great effect that when a sovereign was once upon the throne it would be practically impossible to maintain these restrictions. "To accept of expedients to secure the Protestant religion, after such a king had mounted the throne, would be as strange as if there were a lion in the lobby, and.we shonld vote that we wonld rather secure ourselves by letting him in and chaining him thas by keeping him out."

LITERATURE.

No man but a blockhead ever wrote except for money.

Jounson. Boswell's Life of Johnson. Vol. vi. Ch. iii. (George Biribeck Hill, editor.)
Literature is a very bad crutch, but a very good walking-stick.
C. Lamb. Letter to Bernard Barton.

There is, first, the literature of knowledge, and, secondly, the literature of power. The function of the first is to teach, the function of the second is to move; the first is a rudder, the second an oar or a sail. The first speaks to the mere discursive understanding, the second speaks ultimately, it may happen, to the higher understanding or reasou, but always through affections of pleasure and sympathy.

Thomas De Quincey. Essays on the Poets. Alexander Pope.

Writing is not literature unless it gives to the reader a pleasure which arises not only from the things said, but from the way in which they are said; and that pleasure is only given when the words are carefully or curiously or beautifully put together into sentences.

Stopford Brooke. Primer of English Literature.
Literature is the thought of thinking souls.

Carlyie. Essays. Memoirs of the Life of Scott.

LOGIC.

Post hoc, ergo propter hoc.
After this, therefore on account of this.
Fallacy in argument by which a mere precedence of circumstance is put forward as the cause of certain effects following. "He died immediately after eating his dinner, therefore, post hoc, ergo propter hoc, the dinner was the cause of death." This falsity is also referahle to the head of non causa pro causa, a wrong cause for the true cause ; as when Whitfield attributed his heing overtaken by a hailstorm to his not having preached at the last town. In arguing from canse to effect, two things are necessary: (1) The sufficiency of the cause; (2) its establishment: if either of these be unduly assumed, no conclusion can he proved as to the matter in hand. (See Whateley, Logic, p. 185.)

Cassius. Men may construe things after their fashion,
Clean from the purpose of the things themselves.
Shakespeare. Julius Cæbar. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 34.

Coleridge. Love.
True love's the gift which God has given
To man alone beneath the heaven :
It is not fantasy's hot fire,
Whose wishes, soon as granted, fly;
It liveth not in fierce desire,
With dead desire it doth not die;
It is the secret sympathy,
The silver link, the silken tie,
Which heart to heart, and mind to mind,
In body and in soul can bind.
SIr W. Scott. The Lay of the Last Minstrel. Canto v. St. 13 .
In peace, Love tunes the shepherd's reed;
In war, he mounts the warrior's steed;
In halls, in gay attire is seen;
In hamlets, dances on the green ;
Love rules the court, the camp, the grove,
And men below, and saints above;
For love is heaven and heaven is love. Ibid. Lay of the Last Minstrel. Canto iii. St. 2.
"Love rules the eamp, the eourt, the grove; for love
Is heaven, and heaven is love" : so sings the bard;
Which it were rather difficult to prove,

[This play is generally attributed to Joshua Cooke, but the authorship is somewhat uncertain.]
Even one who dances best, and all the tine
Hears not the music that he dances to,
Thinks him a madman, apprehending not
The law which moves his else eccentric action;
So he that's in himself insensible
Of love's sweet influence, misjudges him
Who moves according to love's melody;
And knowing not that all these sighs and tears,
Ejaculations and inpatiences,
Are necessary changes of a measure
Which the divine musician plays, may call
The lover crazy, which he would not do

Did he within his own heart hear the tune
Played by the great musician of the world.

LOVE (Its Troubles).
Lysander. Ay me! for aught that I ever could read,
Could ever hear by tale or history,
The course of true love never did run smooth :
But, either it was different in blood;
Or else misgraffed in respect of years;
Or else it stood upon the choice of friends:
Or, if there were a sympathy in choice,
War, death, or sickness did lay siege to it ;

Valentine. Ay, Proteus, but that life is alter'd now;
I have done penance for contemning love;
Whose ligh imperious thoughts have punish'd me
With bitter fasts, with penitential groans,
With nightly tears, and daily heart-sore sighs;
For, in revenge of my contempt of love,
Love hath chas'd sleep from my enthralled eyes,
And made them watchers of mine own heart's sorrows.
O, gentle Proteus, love's a mighty lord;
And hath so humbled me, as, I confess, There is no woe to his correction,
Nor to his service no such joy on earth !

Men, some to bus'ness, some to pleasure take;
But ev'ry woman is at heart a rake:
Men, some to quiet, some to public strife, But every lady would be queen for life.

Pope. Moral Essays. Epistle ii. To a Lady. 1. 215.
To a man, the disappointment of love may occasion some bitter pangs: it wounds some feelings of tenderness-it blasts some prospects of telicity; but he is an active being; he may dissipate his thoughts in the whirl of varied occupation, or may plunge into the tide of pleasure; or, if the scenc of disappointment be too full of painful associations, he can shift his abode at will, and taking, as it were, the wings of the morning, can "fly to the uttermost parts of the earth, and be at rest."
But woman's is comparatively a fixed, a secluded, and a meditative life. She is more the companion of her own thoughts and feelings; and if they are turned to ministers of sorrow, where shall she look for consolation? Her lot is to be wooed and won; and if unhappy in her love, her heart is like some fortress that has been captured, and sacked, and abandoned, and left desolate.

Howe'er man rules in science and in art,
The sphere of woman's glories is the heart.
T. Moore. Epilogue to the Tragedy of Ina. 1. 53.

- Man for his glory

To ancestry flies;
While woman's bright story
Is told in her eyes.
Ibid. ITish Melodies. Desmond's Song. St. 4.
Love that of every woman's heart Will hare the whole, and not a part, That is, to her, in Nature's plan, More than ambition is to man,
Her light, her life, her very breath, With no alternative but death.

Longrellow. The Golden Legend. iv.
Man dreams of Fame while woman wakes to love.

Tennyson. Merlin and Vivien. 1. 459.
For women (I am a woman now like you) There is no good of life but love.
R. Browning. In a Balcony.

Alas! the love of women!it is known To be a lovely and a fearful thing ;
For all of theirs upon that die is thrown, And if 'tis lost, life hath no more to bring

To them but mockeries of the past alone, And their revenge is as the tiger's spring,
Deadly, and quick, and crushing; yet, as real
Torture is theirs-what they inflict they feel! Byron. Don Juan. Canto ii. St. 199.
In her first passion woman loves her lover;
In all the others, all she loves is love.
Ibid. Don Juan. Canto iii. St. 3.
In their first passion women love their lovers, in all the others they love love.

La Roceefoucauld. Reflections. Maxim 471.

Women know no perfect love;
Loving the strong, they can forsake the strong;
Man clings because the being whom he loves
Is weak and needs him.
George Eliot. The Spanish Gypsy. Bk. iii.

LOVERS.

If lovers should mark everything a fault, Affection would be like an ill-set book,
Whose faults might prove as big as half a volume.

LOYALTY.

Wolsey. Though all the world should crack their duty to you,
And throw it from their soul; though perils did
Abound, as thick as thought could make them, and
Appear in forms more horrid; yet my duty,
As doth a rock against the chiding flood,
Should the approach of this wild river break,
And stand unshaken yours.
Shakespeare. Henry VIII. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 193.

Gloster. A heart unspotted is not easily daunted.
The purest spring is not so free from mud,
As I am clear from treason to my sovereign.
Ibid. II. Henry VI. Act iii. Sc 1. 1. 100.
Enobarbus. The loyalty well held to fools, does make
Our faith mere folly:-yet he, that can endure
To follow with allegiance a fallen lord,
Does conquer him that did his master conquer,
And earns a place $\mathrm{i}^{\prime}$ the story.
Ibid. Antony and Cleopatra. Act iii. Sc. 13. 1. 42.

Adam. Master, go on, and I will follow thee,
To the last gasp, with truth and loyalty.
Ibia. As You Like It. Act ii. Sc. 3. '. 69.

Polonius. To thine own self be true;
And it must follow, as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man. Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 78.

The first great work (a task performed by few)
Is that yourself may to yourself be true.
Earl of Roscommon. An Essay on 2ranslated Verse. 1. 71.
O Richard! O mon roy, l'univers t'abbandonne!
Sur la terre il n'est que moy qui s'interesse de tes affaires.
O Richard! 0 my king! the universe forsakes thee! and on the earth I am the only one that cares for thy interests. Michel Jean Sedaine. O Richard!
[A famous episode in French history was the singing of this song at the dinner given to the soldiers in the Opera Salon at Versailles, October 1, 1789. The King and Marie Antoinette appeared after dinner, the band striking up the air amid wild enthusiasm. See Carlyle, French Revolution.].
We too are friends to loyalty. We love
The king who loves the law, respects his bounds,
And reigns content within them. Him we serve
Freely and with delight, who leaves us free;
But recollecting still that he is man,
We trust him not too far.
Cowper. The Task. Bk. v. The Winter Morning Walk. 1. 330.

He is ours,
T' administer, to guard, $\mathbf{t}^{\prime}$ adorn the state,
But not to warp or change it. We are his,
To serve him nobly in the common cause,
True to the death, but not to be his slaves.
Ibid. The Task. Bk. v. The Winter Morning Walk. 1. 340.

LUXURY.

Love comforteth, like sunshine after rain,
But lust's effect is tempest after sun;
Love's gentle spring doth always fresh remain,
Lust's winter comes ere summer half be done.
Love surfeits not; lust like a glutton dies;
Love is all truth; lust full of forged lies.
Shakespeare. Venus and Adonis, 1.799.

Il lit au front de ceux qu'un vain luxe environne,
Que la fortune vend ce qu'on croit qu'elle doune.
We read on the forehead of those who are surrounded by a foolish luxury, that Fortune sells what she is thought to give.

La Fontaine. Philemon et Baucis.

What will not luxury taste? Earth, sea, and air,
Are daily ransack'd for the bill of fare. Blood stuffed in skins is British Christians' food,
And France robs marshes of the croaking brood.

Gay. Trivia. Bk. iii. l. 199.
Where the pale children of the feeble sun

Blest hour! It was a luxury-to be! Coleridee. Reftections on Having Left a Place of Retirement. 1. 43.

Blesses his stars and thinks it luxury.
Addison. Cato. Act i. Sc. 4.
His house, his home, his heritage, his lands,
The laughing dames in whom he did delight,
Whose large blue eyes, fair locks, and snowy hands,
Might shake the saintship of an anchorite,

And long had fed his youthful appetite; His goblets brimm'd with every costly wine,
And all that mote to luxury invite,
Without a sigh he left, to cross the brine,
And traverse Paynim shores, and pass earth's central line.
Byron. Childe Harold. Canto i. st. 11.
There is that glorious epicurean paradox uttered by my friend the historian,' in one of his flashing moments: "Give us the luxuries of life, and we will dispense with its necessaries."
O. W. Holmes. The Autocrat of the Break-fast-table. vi.
The want of necessaries is always followed and accompanied by the euvious longing for superfluities.

Solon. (Quoted by Orelli. Opuscula Graecorum Veterum. i. 168.)

Said Scopas of Thessaly, "But we rich meu count our felicity and happiness to lie in these superfluities, and not in those necessary things."
Pintarce. Morals. Of the Love of Wealth.
Le superilu, chose très nécessaire.
The superfluous, a very uecessary thing.
Voltaire. Le Mondain. 1.21.

MAN.

I am fearfully and wonderfully made. Old Testament. Psalm cxxxix. 14.
God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions. Ibid. Ecclesiastes vii. 29.

Pronaque quum spectent animalia cætera terram,
Os homini sublime dedit, cælumque tueri Jussit, et erectos ad sidera tollere vultus. Thus while the brute creation downward bend
Their sight, and to their earthy mother tend,
Man looks aloft, and with uplifted eyes
Beholds his own hereditary skies.
ovid. Metamorphoses. i. 84. (Dryden, trans.)

There wanted yet the master work, the end Of all yet done; a creature who, not prone And brute as other creatures, but endued With sanctity of reason, might erect His stature, and upright with front serene Govern the rest, self-knowing, and from thence Magnanimous to correspond with Heaven.
milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. vii. 1. 505.

Man is of soul and body, formed for deeds, Of high resolve.

Shelley. Queen Mab. iv.
We are spirits clad in veils:
Man by man was never seen;
All our deep communing fails
To remove the shadowy screen.
C. P. Cranch. Gnosis.

Are we not Spirits, that are shaped into a body, into an Appearance: and that fade away again into ur and Invisibility? Oh, Heaven, it is mysterious, it is awful to consider that we not only carry a future Ghost within us; but are, in very deed, Ghosts! These Limbs, whence had we them; this stormy Force; this life-blood with its burning Passion? They are dust and shadow; a Shadow-system gathered round our ME; wherein, through some moments or years; the Divine Essence is to be revealed in the Flesh.

Carlyle, Sartor Resartus: Natural Supernaturatism.
Diogenes lighted a candle in the daytime, and went round saying, "I am looking for a man."

Diooenes Laertius. Life of Diogenes. vi.

Plato having defined man to be a twolegged animal withont feathers, Diogenes plucked a cock and brought it into the Academy, and said, "This is Plato's man." On which account this addition was made to the definition," with broad flat nails."

Ibid. Life of Diogenes. vi.
And all to leave what with his toll he won
To that unfeather'd two-legged thing, a son.
Dryden. Absalom and Achitophel. Pt.i.

Man is the only one that knows nothing, that can learn nothing without being tanght. He can neither speak nor walk nor eat, and in short he can do nothing at the prompting of nature only, but weep.

Antony. This was the noblest Roman of them all;

His life was gentle; and the elements
So mixed in him, that nature might stand up
And say to all the world, This was a man!
Shakespeare. Julius Cæsar. Act v. Sc. 5. 1. 75.

A king so good, so just, so great,
That at his birth the heavenly council paused
And then at last cried out, This is a man!
Dryden. The Duke of Guise. Act i. Sc. 1.
Such a one he was, of him we boldly say,
In whose rich soul all sovereign powers did suit,
In whom in peace th' elements all lay
So mix'd, as none could sovereignty impute;
As all did govern, yet all did obey:
His lively temper was so absolute.
That 't seem'd, when heaven his model first hegan,
In him it show'd perfection in a man.
Michael Drayton. The Baron's W'ars. Bk. iii.
[So the lines run in the first edition (1603).
In the sixth edition (1619) they are considerably altered and approximate more closely to Shakespeare, viz.:
He was a man, then boldly dare to say,
In whose rich soul the virtues well did suit;
In whom so mix'd the elements did lay,
That none to one could sovereignty impute;
As all did govern, so did all ohey :
He of a temper was so ahsolute,
As that it seem'd, when Nature him began, She meant to show all that might be in man.
Julius Cæsar was not printed before its appearance in the folio of 1623, and the date of its production is uncertain. Professor Furnival conjectures that it was inspired by the fate of Essex, who was executed in 1601.]

MARLBOROUGH (JOHN CHURCHILL), DUKE OF.

'Twas then great Marlborough's miglity soul was proved,
That in the shock of charging hosts unmoved,
Amidst confusion, horror and despair
Examined all the dreadful scenes of war;
In peaceful thought the field of death surveyed,
To fainting squadrons lent the timely aid,

Inspired repulsed battalions to engage,
And taught the doubtful battle where to rage.
So when an angel by divine command With rising tempests shakes a guilty land,-
Such as of late o'er pale Brittannia past,-
Calm and serene, he drives the furious blast ;
And, pleased the Almighty's orders to perform,
Rides in the whirlwind, and directs the storm.

Addison. The Campaign. 1. 279.
[The last line is sometimes credited to Pope, as he appropriated i.t for the Dunciad, applying it in a spirit of parody to John Rich, manager of the Theatre Royal, Covent Garden :
Immortal Rich! how calm he sits at ease,
'Mid snows of paper, and fierce bail of pease;
And prond his mistress' orders to perform,
Rides in the whirlwind, and directs the storm.

Bk.iii. 1. 261.]
The extraordinary effect which this simile prodnced when it first appeared, and which to the following generation seemed inexplicable, is doubtless to be chiefly attributed to a line which most readers now regard as a feeble parenthesis:
Such as of late, o'er pale Britanuia passed.
Addison spoke, not of a storm, but of the storm. The great tempest of Noyember. 1703, the only tempest whieh in our latitude has equalled the rage of a tropical hurricane had left a dreadful recollection in the minds of all men. the simile of the angel enjoyed among Addison's contemporaries has always seemed to us to be a remarkable instance of the advantage which, in rhetoric and poetry, the particular has over the general.

Macaulay. Essays. Addison.
That simile was pronounced to be one of the greatest ever produced in poetry. That angel, that good angel, flew off with Mr. Addison and landed him in the place of Commissioner of Appeals-rice Mr. Locke providentially promoted In the following year Mr. Addison went to Hanover with Lord Halifax, and the year afterward was made Under Secretary of State. $O$ angel visits! You come few and far between to literary gentlemen's lodgings! Your wings seldom quiver at second-floor windows now!

Thackeray. The English Humorists. Addison.

The sum of all that makes a just man happy
Consists in the well-choosing of his wife:
And there, well to discharge it, does require
Equality of years, of birth, of fortune;
For beauty being poor and not cried up
By birth or wealth, can truly mix with neither.
And wealth, when there's such difference in years,
And fair descent, must make the yoke uneasy.

Of sad distrust and jealousy.
Edmund Waller. Of the Marriage of the Dwarfs. 1. 7.

When it shall please God to bring thee to man's estate, use great providence and circumspection in choosing thy wife; for thence will spring all thy future good or evil: and it is an action of life, like unto a stratagem of war, wherein a man can err but once.

William Lord Burghley. Ten Precepts to His Son.

Hail, wedded lovel mysterious law, true source
Of human offispring, sole propriety
In Paradise of all things common else.
By thee adulterous lust was driven from men
Among the bestial herds to range; by thee,
Founded in reason, loyal, just and pure, Relations dear, and all the charities
Of father, son, and brother, first were known.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. 1. 750.
Of all actions of a man's life, his marriage does least concern other people; yet of all actions of our life, 'tis most meddled with by other people.

John Selden. Table Talk. Marriage.
They that marry ancient people, merely in expectation to bury them, hang themselves, in hope that one will come and cut the halter:.

Fuller. Holy and Profane States. Bk. iii. Of Marriage.

To churel in the morning, and there saw a wedding in the church, which I have not seen many a day; and the young people so merry one with another! and strange to see what delight we married people have to see these poor fools decoyed into our condition, every man and woman gazing and smiling at them.

Pepys. Diary, December 25, 1665.

Nous avons changé tout cela.
We have changed all that.
Molière. Le Médecin Malgré Lui. Act ii. Sc. 6.
[Sganarelle, the pretended physician, declaring that the liver was on the left side, the heart on the right, is asked by Geronte to account for such an inversion of the usual arrangement, to which he replies, "Oui, cela etait antrefois ainsi; mais nous avons changé tout cela, et nous faisons maintenant la médicine d'une méthode toute nouvelle." The phrase is often used in speaking of changes or departures from old and usual customs.]

Even as a surgeon, minding off to cut
Some cureless limb,-before in use he put
His violent engins on the vicious member,
Bringeth his patient in a senseless slumber,

And grief-less then (guided by nse and art),
To save the whole, sawes off chl' infested part.

MEETING.

First Witch. When shall we three meet again
In thunder, lightning, or in rain?
Second Witch. When the hurly burly 's done,
When the battle 's lost and won:
Third Witch. That will be ere the set of sun .
First Witch. Where the place?
Second Witch. Upon the heath:
Third Witch. There to meet with Macbeth.
Shakespeare. Macbeth. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 1.

Hamlet. I am very glad to see you; good even, sir,-
But what, in faith, make you from Wittenberg?
Horatio. A truant disposition, good my lord.
Hamlet. I would not hear your enemy say so.
Nor shall you do mine ear that violence, To make it truster of your own report Against yourself; I know you are no truant.

WM. R. Aloer. Oriental Poetry. The Brief Chance Encounter.
[The original of this verse appears in the Mahabarata Ramayana.' See Max Muller in Fortnightly Review, July, 1898.]
Two lives that once part, are as ships that divide
When, moment on moment, there rushes' between
The one and the other, a sea;-

Ah, never can fall from the days that have heen
A gleam on the years that shall be!
Bulwer-Lytton. d Lament. 1. 10. (1853.)
We twain have met like the ships upon the sea,
Who hold an hour's converse, so short, so sweet;
One little hour! and then, away they speed
On lonely paths, through mist, and cloud, and foam,
To meet no more.
Alexander Smith. Life Drama. Sc. iv. (1853.)

> Alas,

We loved, sir-used to meet:
How sad and bad and mad it was-
But then, how it was sweet!
Robert Browning. Confessions. ix.

MELANCHOLY.

Jaques. I have neither the scholar's melancholy, which is emulation; nor the musician's, which is fantastical; nor the courtier's, which is proud ; nor the soldier's, which is ambitious; nor the lawyer's, which is politic ; nor the lady's, which is nice; nor the lover's, which is all these; but it is a melancholy of mine own, compounded of many simples, extracted from many objects, and, indeed, the sundry contemplation of my travels, in which my often rumination wraps me in a most humorous sadness.

Shakespeare. As You Like It. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 10.
King. Love! his affections do not that way tend;
Nor what he spake, though it lack'd form a little,
Was not like madness. There's something in his soul,
O'er which his melancholy sits on brood;
And I do doubt the hatch and the disclose
Will be some danger.
Ibid. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 173.
Hamlet. I have of late, (but, wherefore, I know not, ) lost all my mirth, foregone all custom of exercises; and, indeed, it goes so heavily with my disposition, that this goodly frame, the earth, seems to me a sterile promontory; this most excellent canopy, the air, look you,--this brave o'er-hanging firmament-this majestical roof fretted with golden fire, why, it appears no other thing to me, than a foul and pestilent congregation of vapours.

Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act ii. Sc. 2. l. 307.

Arthur. Methinks nobody should be sad but I.
Yet, I remember, when I was in France,
Young gentlemen would be as sad as night,
Only for wantonness. By my Christendom,
So I were out of prison, and kept sheep, I should be as merry as the day is long. Ibid. King John. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 14.

Antonio. In sootl, I know not why I am so sad;
It wearies me; you say it wearies you;
But how I caught it, found it, or came by it,
What stuff 'tis made of, whereof it is born,

Tbat mercy I to others show,
That mercy show to me.
Pope. The Universal Prayer. St. 10.
Mercy to him that shows it, is the rule. COWPER. The Task. Bk. vi. The Winter Walk at Noon. 1. 595.
Portia. The quality of mercy is not strain'd;
It droppeth, as the gentle rain from heaven
Upon the place beneath: it is twice bless'd;
It blesseth him that gives, and him that takes:
'Tis mightiest in the mightiest ; it becomes
The throned monarch better than his crown:
His sceptre shows the force of temporal power,
The attribute to awe and majesty,
Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings;
But mercy is above the sceptred sway;
It is enthroned in the hearts of kings,
It is an attribute to God himself;
And earthly power doth then show likest God's,
When mercy seasons justice: Therefore, Jew,
Though justice be thy plea, consider this,
That in the course of justice, none of us Should see salvation : we do pray for mercy;

And that same prayer doth teach us all to render
The deeds of mercy.
Shakespeare. The Merchant of Venice. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 184.
Excogitare nemo quicquam poterit quod magis decorum regeuti sit quam clementia.
It is impossible to imagine anything which better becomes a ruler than mercy. Seneca. De Clementia. i. 19, 1.

Isabella. No ceremony that to great ones 'longs,
Not the king's crown, nor the deputed sword,
The marshal's truncheon, nor the judge's robe,
Become them with one half so good a grace, As mercy does.

SHARESPEARE. Measure for Measure. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 63.

Mercy's indeed the attribnte of heaven.
OTwAY. Windsor Castle.
The greatest attribute of heaven is mercy; And tis the crown of justice, and the glory, Where it may kill with right, to save with pity.

Yet I shall temper so

Justice with mercy, as may illustrate most
Them fully satisfy'd, and thee appease. Militon. Paradise Lost. Bk. x. 1. 77.
My friend, judge not me,
Thou seest 1 judge not thee.
Betwixt the stirrup and the ground
Mercy I asked, mercy I found.
Campen. Remains Concerning England. Section, Epitaphs.
Camden's comments are worth quoting :
A gentleman falling off his horse, brake his neck, which suddaine hap gave occasion of mnch speech of his former life, and some in this judging world judged the worst. In Which respect a good friend made this good epitaph, remembering that of Saint Augustine, "Misericordia Domini inter pontem et fontem."
[Tbe phrase quoted from St. Augustine may be Englished "The mercy of God between the bridge and the river," and is said to have been penned by tbe saint in reference to an unfortunate gentleman who fell into a river.

Boswell, under date of April 28, 1783, tells how Johnson improved the last couplet of the epitaph by misquoting it:

Between the stirrup and the ground,
I mercy asked, I mercy found.]
Being all fashioned of the self-same dust, Let us be merciful as well as just!

Longrellow. Tales of a Wayside Inn. The Student's Tale. Emma and Eginhard. 1. 177.

Gayer insects fluttering by
Ne'er droop the wing o'er those that die, And lovelier things have mercy shown To every failing but their own, And every woe a tear can claim, Except an erring sister's shame.
byron. The Giaour. 1. 416.

MERIT.

Hamlet. Use every man after his desert, and who shall 'scape wlipping?

Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 555.

Duke. O, your desert speaks loud; and I should wrong it
To lock it in the wards of covert bosom,
When it deserves with characters of brass
A forted residence 'gainst the tooth of time,
And razure of oblivion.
Ibid. Measure for Measure. Act v. Sc. 1. l. 13.

Il y a du mérite sans élévation mais il n'y a point d'élévation sans quelque mérite.

There is merit without elevation, but there is no elevation without some merit. La Rochefoucauld. Maxim 401.
L̇e monde récompense plus souvent les apparences de mérite que le mérite même.

The world rewards the appearance of merit oftener than merit itself.

Ibid. Maxim 166.
View the whole scene, with critic judgment scan,
And then deny him merit if you can.

Where he falls short, 'tis Nature's fault alone;
Where he succeeds, the merit's all his own.

Churchall. The Robciad. 1. 1023.
It sounds like stories from the land of spirits,
If any man obtain that which he merits,
Or any merit that which he obtains.
Colerider. The Good Great Man. (Called Complaint in early editious.)

MERMAID.

Oberon. Since once I sat upon a promontory,
And heard a mermaid on a dolphin's back
Uttering such dulcet and harmonious breatb,
That the rude sea grew civil at her song:
And certain stars shot madly from their spheres,
To hear the sea-maid's music.
Shakespeare. Midsummer Night's Dream. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 149. (Act ii. Sc. 2 in some editions.)

Who would be
A mermaid fair,
Singing alone,
Combing her hair
Under the sea,
In a golden curl
With a comb of pearl,
On a throne?
I would be a mermaid fitir;
I would sing to myself the whole of the day;
With a comb of pearl I would comb my hair;
And still as I comb I would sing and say,
"Who is it loves me? who loves not me?"

Tennyson. The Mermaid.

METAPHYSICS.

Quad celui à qui l'on parle ne comprend pas et celui qui parle ne se comprend pas, c'est de la métaphysique.

When he to whom one speaks does not understand, and he who speaks himself does not understand, this is Metaphysics.

Voltaire.

When Bishop Berkeley said, "There was no matter,"
And proved it-'twas no matter what he said;
They say his system 'tis in vain to batter,
Too subtle for the airiest human head;
And yet who can believe it? I would shatter
Gladly all matters down to stone or lead,
Or adamant, to find the world a spirit,
And wear my head, denying that I wear it.
Byron. Don Juan. Canto xi. St. 1.
What is mind? No matter. What is matter? Never mind.
T. H. KEX.
[Key was at one time Head Master of University School. F. J. Furnivall is authority for ascribing the familiar phrase to him. It is sometimes quoted with the addition, "What is soul? It is immaterial."]

Hence it happened that all the armed prophets conquered, all the unarmed perished.

Machiaveldi. $1 l$ Principe. Ch. vi.
As a rule God is on the side of the big squadrons as against the small ones.

Bussy, Comte de Rabutin. Letters. October 18, 1677.

The number of the wise will always be small. It is true that it has heen largely increased, but it is nothing in comparison with the number of fools, and unfortunately they say that God always favors the beaviest battalions.

Voltaire. Letter to M. le Riche. February $6,17 \% 0$.
Wise men and God's are on the strongest side.

Sir C. Sedley. Death of Marc Antony. Activ. Sc. 2.

The winds and waves are always on the side of the ablest navigators.

Gibson. Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. Ch, lxviii.

J'ai toujours vu Dieu du cote des gra bataillons.
I have always noticed that God is on the side of the heaviest battalions.

De la Ferte. To Anne of Austria.
[De la Ferte's phrase has beell attributed to Napoleon I., and may in fact have been quoted by him. Another Napoleonic phrase was, "Providence is always on the sidc of the last reserve.']
Hast thou (a sacrilege his soul abhors)
Claim'd all the glory of thy prosperous wars?
Proud of thy fleets and armies, stolen the gem
Of his just praise to lavish it on them?
Hast thou not learn'd, what thou art often told,
A truth still sacred and believed of old,
That no success attends on spears and swords
Unblest, and that the battle is the Lord's?
Cowrer. Expostulation. 1. 349.
Put your trust in God, my boys, and keep your powder dry.

Colonel Blacker. Oliver's Advice.
There is a well-authenticated anecdote of Cromwell. On a certain occasion, when his troops were about crossing a river to attack the enemy, he concluded an address, couched in the usual fanatic terms in use among them, with these words: "Put your trustin God; but mind to keep your powder dry!"

WORDSWORTH. Rob Roy's Grave. St. 9.

Who overcomes

By force, hath overcome but half his foe. Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. 1. 648.
What is strength without a double share
Of wisdom? vast, unwieldy, burdensome, Proudly secure, yet liable to fall
By weakest subtleties, not made to rule, But to subserve where wisdom bears command.

Ibid. Samson Agonistes. 1. 53.
Then, everlasting Love, restrain thy will;
'Tis god-like to have power, but not to kill. beaumont anu fletcher. The Chances. Act ii. Sc. 2. Song.
The great mind knows the power of gentleness,
Only tries force hecause persuasion fails. R. Browning. Prince Hohenstiel-Sehwangau.
Oh, East is East, and West is West, and never the twain shall meet,
Till earth and sky stand presently at God's great judgment seat;
But there is neither East nor West, Border nor Breed nor Birth,
When two strong men stand face to face, tho' they come from the ends of the earth 1

JOHN MILTON.

Grecia Mæonidam, jactet sibi Roma Maronem,
Anglia Miltonum jactat utrique parem.
Greece boasts her Homer, Rome can Virgil claim;
England can either match in Milton's fame.

Selvaggi. Ad Joannem Miltonum.
Three poets in tbree distant ages born,
Greece, Italy, and England, did adorn:
The first in loftiness of thought surpassed; The next in majesty; in both the last. The force of nature could no further go ; To make a third. she join'd the former two.

Dryden. Lines Written Under a Portrait of Milton.
Ages elapsed ere Homer's lamp appear'd, And ages ere the Mantuan swan was heard; To carry nature lengths unknown before, To give a Milton birth, ask'd ages more. COWPER. Table-Talk. 1. 557.
'In allusion to the proverb," Every honest miller has a golden thumb."

Nor second he that rode sublime
Upou the seraph wings of ecstasy.
The secrets of the abyss to spy
He passed the flaming bounds of place and time,
The living throne, the sapphire blaze, Where angels tremble while they gaze,
He saw; but blasted with excess of light,
Closed his eyes in endless night.
Gray. Progress of Poesy. iii. st. 2. 1. 1.
Dark with excessive bright thy skirts appear.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. iii. 1. 380.
Milton's strong pinion now not heaven can bound,
Now serpent-like, in prose he sweeps the ground,
In quibbles, angel and archangel join,
And God the Father turns a schooldivine.
Pope. First Epistle of the Second Book of Horace Imilated. 1. 99.

Milton, thou shouldst be living at this hour;
England hath need of thee.
Wordsworta. Milton. Sonnet. (See under England.)

Thy soul was like a star; and dwelt apart;
Thou hadst a voice whose sound was like the sea;
Pure as the naked heavens, majestic, free,
So didst thou travel on life's common way,
In cheerful godliness ; and yet thy beart The lowliest duties on herself did lay.

MIMICRY.

Agesilaus being invited once to hear a man who admirably imitated the nightingale, he declined, saying he had heard the nightingale itself.

Plutarcie. Lives. Agesilaus II.
The vulgar thus through imitation err; As oft the learn'd by being singular;
So much they scorn the crowd, that if the throng
By chance go right, they purposely go wrong;
So schismatics the plain believers quit, And are condemn'd for having too much wit.
Imitation is the sincerest flattery. C. C. COLTON (1780-1832). The Lacon.

MIND.

Mens agitat molem.
Mind moves matter.
Virgil. 位eid. vi. 727.
It is the mind that makes the man, and our vigour is in our immortal soul. Ovid. Metamorphoses. xiii.
Valentior omni fortuna animus est: in utramque partem ipse res suas ducit, beatæque miseræ vitæ sibi causa est.
The mind is the master over every kind of fortune: itself acts in both ways, being the cause of its own happiness and misery.
SEneca. Epistolx Ad Lucilium. xeviii.
Mens regnum bona possidet.
A good mind possesses a kingdom.
Ibid. Thyestes. ii. 380.
My mind to me a kingdom is;
Such present joys therein I'find,
That it excels all other bliss
That earth affords or grows by kind:
Though much I want which most would have,
Yet still my mind forbids to crave.
Sir Edward Dyer. MS. Rawt. 85. p. 17.
[There is a very similar but anonymous copy in the British Museum. Additional MS, 15225, p. 85. And there is an imitation in J. Sylvester's Works, p. 651 .

My mind to me a kingdom is:
such perfect joy therein I find,

As far exceeds all eartbly bliss
That God and Nature hath assigned.
Though much I want that most would have,
Yet still my miud forbids to crave. Byrd. Psalmes, Sonnets, etc. 1588.
My mind to me an empirc is ;
While grace affordeth health.
Lobert South well (1560-1595). Content and Rich.

(See under Prison.)
A mind not to be changed by place or time.
The mind is its own place, and in itself
Can make a heaven of Hell, a hell of Heaven.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. 1. 253.
Nothing is a misery,
Unless our weakness apprehend it so:
We cannot be more faithful to ourselves,
In anything that's manly, than to make
Ill fortune as contemptible to us
As it makes us to others.
Honest Man's Fortune. Act i. Sc. 1.
Edgur. Who alone suffers, suffers most $i^{3}$ the mind,
Leaving free things and happy shows behind;
But then the mind much sufferance doth o'erskip,
When grief hath mates, and bearing fellowship.

MISER.

The miser is as much without what he has as what he has not.

Publilites Syrus. Maxim 486.
Populus me sibilat; at mihi plaudo
Ipse domi, simul ac nummos contemplor in arcâ.
The people hiss me, but I applaud myself at home, when I contemplate the money in my chest.

Horace. Satirx. Bk. i. Sat. 1. 1. 66.
[The speaker is supposed to be a rich miser in Athens. Ben Jonson has copied the sentiment for one of his characters:
Poor worms, they hiss at me whilst I at home
Can he contented to applaud myself-with joy
To see how plump my hags are and my barns.
Every Man Out of His Humor. Act i.]
A mere madness, to live like a wretch and die rich.

Burton. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. i. Sec. 2. Mem. 3. Subsec. 12.
'Tis strange the miser should his cares employ
To gain those riches he can ne'er enjoy;

Is it less strange the prodigal should waste
His wealth to purchase what he ne'er can taste?
Pope. Moral Essays. Epistle iv. 1. 1. (See under Prodigal.)

MISFORTUNES.

Woe brings woe upon woe.
Sophocles. Ajax. 866. (Plumptre, trans.)
Fere fit malum malo aptissimum.
One misfortune is generally followed closely by another.

Livy. Histories. i. 46.
Fortune is not satisfied with inflicting one calamity. Publilius Syrus. Maxim 274.

Cleon. One sorrow never comes but brings an heir,
That may succeed as his inheritor. Ibid. Pericles. Act i. Sc. 4. 1. 63.
Queen. One woe doth tread apon another's heel,
So fast they follow.
1bid. Hamlet. Act iv. Sc. 7. 1. 164.
Thus woe succeeds a woe, as wave a wave Herrick. Hesperides. 48. Sorrows succeed.
Woes cluster; rare are solitary woes;
They love a train, they tread each other's heel.
Young. Night Thoughts. Night iii. l. 63.
Solamen miseris socios habuisse doloris.

It is a consolation to the wretched to have companions in misery.

Publilius Syrus. Maxim 995.
[The probable original of the well-known proverb, "Misery loves company." Before Syrus, however, Thncydides had said:
A fellowship in misfortune having nevertheless to a certain extent a certain alleviation.

Historia. vii. 75.]
Society in shipwreck is a comfort to all. Publilitus Syrus. Maxim 144.

Grief finds some ease by him that like does heare.

When grief hath mates.
Shakespeare. King Lear. Act iii. Sc. 6. 1. 113.

Benvolio. One pain is lessen'd by another's anguish;
One desperate grief cures with another's languish.
Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act i. Sc. 2, 1 47.

Misery still delights to trace
Its semblance in another's case.
Cowper. The Castaway. St. 10.
And no bond
In closer uniou knits two human hearts Than fellowship in grief.

Southey. Joan of Arc. Bk. i. 1. 346.
The sad relief
That misery loves-the fellowship of grief.
J. Montgomery. The West Indies. Pt. iii. l. $1 / 3$.
(See nnder Sympathy.)
Dans l'adversité de nos meilleurs amis nous trouvons toujours quelque chose qui ne nous déplaît pas.

In the adversity of our best friends we often find something that is not displeasing to us.
Rochefoucauld. Reflections. Maxim 99.
[This maxim was withdrawn in the third edition of the Reflections, probably on account of the outcry it raised. Swift quotes it as the epigraph to his Verses on His Own Death, and comments upon it at length :

This maxim more than all the rest Is thought too base for human breast:
"In all distresses of our friends
We first consult our private ends ;
While nature, kindly bent to ease us,
Points ont some circumstance to please us."
He defends the sentiment on the ground that as good fortune is relative, its value is sentimentally enhanced by contrast with others' misfortunes. Chesterfield accepted the maxim as a truthful estimate of human depravity: "Those who know the deception and wickedness of the human heart will not be either romantic or blind enongh to deny what Rochefoucauld and Swift have affirmed as a general truth" (Letters, 129). Burke echoed the general idea: "I am convinced that we have a degree of delight, and that no small one, in the real misfortunes and pains of others', (The Subiime and the Beautiful. Pt. i, Sec. 14). Long hefore Rochefoucauld, Montaigne had said: "In the midst of compassion we feel within us I know not what bitter sweet point of pleasure in seeing others suffer" (Essays. Of Proft and Honesty). He quotes in corroboration the first two lines of a famous passage in Lucretius:

Suave mari magno, turbantibus acquora ventis,
$\mathbf{E}$ terra magnum alterius spectare laborem
Non quia vexari quemquam 'st jucunda voluptus
Sed quibus ipse malis careus quia cornere suave 'st.
How sweet to stand, when tempests tear the main,
On the firm cliff and mark the seaman's toil!
Not that another's danger soothes the soul, But from such toil how sweet to fecl secure! De Rerum Natura. ii. 1.
Ben Jonson admits into Every Man Out of His Fumour an old song which is probably a reminiscence of Lucretius:
I wander not to seek for more:
In greatest storm I sit on shore,
And laugh at those that toil in vain
To get what must be lost again.
Is this to be helieved or to be told?
Can then such inbred malice live in man,
To joy in ill, and from another's woes, To draw his own delight?

Terence. Andria. Act iv. Sc. 1.1. 1. (George Colman, trans.)
We have all strength enough to bear the misfortunes of others.

Not too much.
[The phrase is best known in its Latin form, "Ne quid nimis." Diogenes Laertius, in his biography of Solon ( $1.2,16,63$ ), ascribes it to that philosopher-statesman. It is also attributed to Cleobolus. With the equally famous saying, "Know thyself"
(see under KNowLEDGE) it was inseribed over the temple of Apollo at Delphi. It was nnmerously imitated by the Greeks and the Romans. Its earliest known appearance in poetical literature is in Theognis:

Be not too zealous; moderation's best
In all things.
Theognis. Sententiax. 335.
 (moderation is best, in Latin, "Optimus modus"), is attribnted to Cleobolns by Diogenes Laertius ( $1,6,6,93$ ), and it is sometimes asserted that these were the words inscribed ou the temple of Apollo.]

MONEY.

For the love of money is the root of all evil: which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows.

New Testament. I. Timothy vi. 10.
Love of money is the mother of all evils.
[According to Diogenes Laertius (vi. 2, 6, 50 this was a saying of Diogenes the Cynic. It is sometimes attributed to Bion.]
Effodiuntur opes irritamenta malorum.
Men dig the earth for gold, seed of unnumbered ills.

Ovid. Metamorphoses. i. 140.
Money is the sinews of war.
[Diogenes Laertius, in his Life of Bion (Bk. iv. Ch. vii., Sec. 3), attributes to Bion the ("Money is the sinews of affairs").
Plutarch, in his Life of Cleomenes (Ch. xxvii.), thus comments on the saying. "He who first called money the sinews of affairs seems to have said this with special reference to war:" Accordingly we find Libanius (Oration XLVI.) expressly defining money as тa vevoa тoû madé $\mu$ ou" ("the sinews of war").]

Your monuments upon my breast, Nor yet within the common soil

Lay down the wreck of power to rest, Where man can boast that he has trod
On him that was "the scourge of God."
EDWARD EVERETT. Dirge of Alaric the Visigoth. St. 3.

MOON.

As when the moon, refulgent lamp of night,
O'er heaven's clear azure spreads her sacred light,
When not a breath disturbs the deep serene,
And not a cloud o'ercasts the solemn scene;
Around her throne the vivid planets roll,
And stars unnumbered gild the glowing pole,
O'er the dark trees a yellower verdure shed,
And tip with silver every mountain's head.
Homer. Iliad. Bk. viii. 1. 687. (Pope, trans.)

He . . . thought the moon was made of green cheese.

RAbeLale. Works. Bl. i. Ch. xi.
Romeo. Lady, by yonder blessed moon I swear,
That tips with silver all these fruit-tree tops.
Juliet. O, swear not by the moon, the inconstant moon,
That monthly changes in her circled orb,
Lest that thy love prove likewise variable.
Shakespeake. Romeo and Julief. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 107.
(See under OATH.)

Or thinke, that the moone is made of a greene cheese.
J. HEYwood. Proverbs. Bk. ii. Ch. vii.

Hubert. My lord, they say five moons were seen to-night:
Four fixed, and the fifth did whirl about
The other four in wondrous motion.
Shafespeare. King John. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 182.

Late, late yestreen I saw the new moone, Wi' the anld moon in hir arme.

Thomas Percy. Reliques. Sir Patrick Spence. St. 7.
I saw the new moon late yestreen,
Wi' the auld moon in her arm.
Scott. Minstrelsy of the Scottish Borler.
Let the air strike our tune,
Whilst we show reverence to yond peeping moon.
Thomas Middleton. The Witoh. Act v. Sc. 2.
[These lines are introduced also into Macbeth, Act iv., sc. 1. Doubtless they are part of a song of older date than either Midaleton or Shakespeare.]
Queen and huntress, chaste and fair,
Now the sun is laid to sleep,
Seated in thy silver car,
State in wonted manuer keep.
Hesperns entreats thy light,
Goddess, excellently bright!
BEN Jonson.' Hymn. To Cynthia.
The neighboring noon,
(So call that opposite fair star), her aid
Timely interposes, and her monthly round
Still ending, still renewing, through mid-heaven.
With borrow'd light her countenance triform
Hence fills and empties to enlighten th' earth,
And in her pale dominion checks the night.
Miston. Paradise Lost. Bk iii. 1. 726.
Soon as the evening slades prevail, The moon takes up the wondrons tale, And nightly to the listening earth Repeats the story of her birth.
ADdison. Spectaior. No. 465. Ode. St. 2.
The dews of summer night did fall;
The moon (sweet regent of the sky)
Silver'd the walls of Cumnor Hall,
And wany an oak that grew thereby. William J. Micile. Cumnor Hall.

Jove, thou regent of the skies.
Pope. The Odyssey. Bk. 1i. 1. 42.
Now Cynthia, named fair regent of the night.

Gay. Trivia. Bk. iii. l. 4.
Aud hail their queen, fair regent of the night.

Darwin. The Botanic Garden. Pt. i. Canto ii. l. 90.
The moon had climbed the highest hill
Which rises o'er the source of Dee,
And from the eastern summit shed
Her silver light on tower and tree. John Lowe. Mary's Dream. 43.
How like a queen comes forth the lonely Moon
From the slow opening curtains of the clouds;
Walking in beauty to her midnight throne!

George Croly. Diana.
The moving moon went up the sky,
And nowhere did abide;
Softly she was going up,
And a star or two beside.
Colekridge. The Rhyme of the Ancient Mariner. Pt. Iv. St. 10.
The moon looks
On many brooks,
The brook can see no moon but this. Moore. Irish Melodies. While Gazing on the Moon's Light. St. 2.
[This image was suggested by the following thought, which occurs somewhere in Sir William Jones's Works: "The moon looks npon many night-flowers; the nightflower sees but one moon."

Note by Moore.]
Like moonlight o'er a troubled sea,
Brightening the storm it cannot calm.
Ibid. The Loves of the Angels. Second. Angel's Story. St. 48.
If thou would'st view fair Melrose aright,
Go visit it by the pale moonlight;
For the gay beams of lightsome day
Gild, but to flout, the ruins gray.
Scort. Lay of the Last Minstrel. Canto ii. St. 1.

Art thou pale for weariness
Of climbing heaven, and gazing on the earth,
Wandering companionless
Among the stars that have a different birth,-
And ever changing, like a joyless eye
That finds no object with its constancy?
Shellex. To the Moon.

Oh! to see it by moonlight, - when mellowly shines
The light o'er its palaces, gardens, and shrines;
When the waterfalls gleam like a quick fall of stars,
And the nightingale's hymn from the Isle of Chenars
Is broken by laughs and light echoes of feet,
From the cool shining walks where the young people meet.
Thomas Moore. Lalla Rookh. The Light of the Harem. 1. 15.
That orbed maiden, with wbite fire laden,
Whom mortals call the moon. Shelley. The Cloud. St. 4.
Tha moon put forth a little diamond peak
No bigger than an unobserved star,
Or tiny point of fairy scimetar.
Keats. Endymion. Bk. iv. 1. 499.
The devil's in the moon for mischief; they
Who call'd her chaste, methinks, began too soon
Their nomenclature: there is not a day,
The longest, not the twenty-first of Juné,
Sees half the business in a wicked way,
On which three single hours of moonshine smile-
And then she looks so modest all the while!
Byron. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 113.
Come o'er the moonlit sea,
The waves are brightly glowing. Charles Jeffervs. The Moonlit Sea.
Meet me by moonlight alone,
And then I will tell you a tale
Must be told by the moonlight alone,
In the grove at the end of the vale!
J. A. Wade. Meet Me by Moonlight.

I stood on the bridge at midnight,
As the clocks were striking the hour,
And the moon rose o'er the city,
Behind the dark church-tower.
I saw her bright reflection
In the waters under me,
Like a golden goblet falling
And sinking into the sea. Longfellow. The Bridge.

MORNING.

(See Sunriae.)
Full many a glorious morning have I seen
Flatter the mountain tops with sovereign eye,
Kissing with golden face the meadows green,
Gilding pale streams with heavenly alchemy.

Shakzspeare. Sonnet. xxxiii.
Richard. See how the morning opes her golden gates,
And takes her farewell of the glorious sun!
How well resembles it the prime of youth,
Trimm'd like a younker prancing to his love.
Ibid. III. Henry VI. Actii. Sc. 1. 1. 21.
Troilus. The busy day,
Wak'd by the lark, hath rous'd the ribald crows,
And dreaming night will hide our joys no longer.

Sweet is the breath of morn, her rising sweet,
With charm of earliest hirds. Mrlion. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. 1. 641.

Romeo. Look, love, what envious streaks
Do lace the severing clouds in yonder east.
Night's candles are burnt ont, and jocund day
Stands tiptoe on the misty mountain tops.
Shakespeare. Romeo and Juliet. Act iii. Sc. 5. 1. 9.

Horatio. But, look, the morn, in russet mantle clad,
Walkso' er the dew of yon high eastern ${ }^{1}$ hill.
Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 166.
Till morning fair
Came forth with pilgrim steps in amice gray.
Milion Paradise Regained. Bk. iv. 1. 426.

Flames in the forehead of the morning sky.

Ibid. Lycidas. 1. 171.
Now morn, her rosy steps in th' eastern clime
Advancing, sow'd the earth with orient pearl,
When Adam wak'd, so custom'd; for his sleep
Was aëry light, from pure digestion bred.
Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. v. 1.1.
Morn
Wak'd by the circling hours, with rosy hand
Unbarr'd the gates of light.
Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. vi. 1. 2.
Haste hither, Eve, and, worth thy sight, behold
Eastward among those trees what glorious shape
Comes this way moving, seems another morn
Risen on mid noon.
Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. v. 1. 308.

Another morn

Risen on mid-noon.
Wordsworth. The Prelude. Bk. vi. J. 197.

The sun had long since, in the lap
Of Thetis, taken out his nap,
And, like a lobster boil'd, the morn
From hlack to red began to turn.
Butler. Hudibras. Pt. ii. Canto ii. 1.29.
Day, peeping from the east, makes the sun turn from black to red, like a boiled lobster. Rabelais. Works. Bk. v. Ch. vii.
As far as Phœebus first doth rise,
Until in Thetis' lap he lies.
Sir Arthur Gorges.
The meek-eyed Morn appears, mother of Dews.
Thonson. The Seasoms. Summer. 1. 47.

Behold how brightly breaks the morning!
Though bleak our lot, our hearts are warm.
James Kenney. Behold How Brightly Breaks.
There shall he love, when genial morn appears,
Like pensive Beauty smiling in her tears.
тhomas Campbell. Pleasures of Hope. Pt. ii. 1. 95 .
She stood breast-high amid the corn
Clasp'd by the golden light of morn,
Like the sweetheart of the sun,
Who many a glowing kiss had won. THomas Hoon. Ruth.
'Tis always morning somewhere in the world.
R. H. Horne. Orion. Bk. iii. Canto ii. (See under Hope.)
O Father, touch the east, and light
The light that shone when Hope was born.
tennyson. In Memoriam. Pt. xxx.
In the morning of the world
When earth was nigher heaven than now.

Browning. Pippa Passes. Pt. iii.
The yellow fog came creeping down
The bridges, till the houses' walls
Seemed changed to shadows, and St. Paul's
Loomed like a bubble o'er the town. Oscar Wilne. Impression du Matin.

The breezy call of incense-breathing morn.
Gray. Elegy in a Country Church-yard. St. 5.

Dewy morn
With breath all incense, and with cheek all bloom,
Laughing'the clouds away with playful scorn,
And living as if earth contained no tomb.
Bryon. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 98.

MORTALITY.

(See Life; Man; Skeleton.)
Man that is born of a woman is of few days, and full of tronble. He cometh forth like a flower, and is cut down; he fleeth also as a shadow, and continueth not.

Old Testament. Job xiv. 1, 2.
As of the green leaves on a thick tree, some fall, and some grow.

Tbid. Ecclesiasticus xiv. 18.
Like leaves on trees the race of man is found,-
Now green in youth, now withering on the ground;
Another race the following spring supplies:
They fall successive, and successive rise.
Homer. The liad. Bk. vi. 1. 181. (Pope, trans.)
All, that in this world is great or gay Doth, as a vapor, vanish and decay.

SPENSER. Ruins of Time. 1. 55.
Mark how fleeting and paltry is the estate of man,-yesterday in embryo, to-morrow a mummy or ashes. So for the hair's-breadth of time assigned to thee live rationally, and part with life cheerfully, as drops the ripe olive, extolling the season that bore it and the tree that matured it.

Marcus Aurelivs. Meditations. iv. 48.

Memento mori.

Remember you must die.
Motto of the Order of the Death's Head.
[A reminder of our latter end. The Egyptians passed round a skull at their feasts for this purpose: and behind the Roman general in his triumphal chariot stood a slave whispering in his ear, "Respice post te, hominem memento te" ("Look hehind you, remember that you are but a man"). The Russian Tsars used to be presented with specimens of marble at their coronation, from which to sclect one for their tombs.]

Remember that thon art mortal.
Phocylides. Sententix. 109.
Pallida mors æquo pulsat pede pauperum tabernas
Regumque turres.
Pale death, with impartial step, knocks at the hat of the poor and the palaces of kings.
horace. Odes. Ode i. Bk. 4. 1. 13.
Hamlet. Imperious Cessar, dead and turn'd to clay,
Might stop a hole to keep the wind away:
O! that that earth, which kept the world in awe,
Should patch a wall, to expel the winter's flaw!
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act v. Sc.1. 1. 207.

Expende Hannibalem: quot libras in duce summo
Invenies?
Produce the urn that Hannibal contains,
And weigh the mighty dust which yet remains;
And is this all?
Juvenal. Satires. x. 147. (Gifford, traus.)
Warwick. Why, what is pomp, rule, reign, but earth and dust?
And, live we how we can, yet die we must.
Shakespeare. III. Henry l'I. Act v. Sc. 2. 1. 27.

Queen. All that lives must die,
Passing through nature to eternity. Ibid. . Hamet. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 72.

Antony. But yesterday, the word of Cesesar might Have stood against the world: now lies he there,
And none so poor to do him reverence. Ibid. Julius Cæsar. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 118.

Antony. O mighty Cæsar! dost thou lie so low?
Are all thy conquests, glories, triumphs, spoils,
Shrunk to this little measure?
Ibid. Julius Cæsar. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 149.
Prince Henry. Ill-weaved ambition, how much art thou shrunk!
When that this body did contain a spirit,
A kingdom for it was too small a bound:
But now two paces of the vilest earth
Is room enough.
Ibid. I. Henry IV. Act v. Sc. 4. 1. 88.
Richard. Let's talk of graves, of worms and epitaphs;
Make dust our paper ; and with rainy eyes
Write sorrow on the bosom of the earth.
Let's choose executors and talk of wills:
And yet not so, for what can we bequeath,
Save our deposed bodies to the ground?
Our lands, our lives, and all are Bolingbroke's,
And nothing can we call our own but death,
And that small model of the barren earth
Which serves as paste and cover to our bones.

For heaven's sake let us sit upon the ground,
And tell sad stories of the death of kings:-
How some have been depos'd, some slain in war;
Some haunted by the ghosts they have depos'd ;
Sone poison'd by their wives, some sleeping kill'd;
All murder'd.
Shakespeare. Richard II. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 145.

To smell to a turf of fresh earth is wholesome for the body; no less are thoughts of mortality cordial to the soul. Thomas Fuller. The Virtuous Lady.
I made a posy while the day ran by;
Here will I smell my remnant out, and tie

My life within this band.
But time did beckon to the flowers, and they
By noon most cunningly did steal away, And wither'd in my hand. Herbert. The Church. Life.
That flesh is but the glass, which holds the dust
That measures all our time; which also shall
Be crumbled into dust.
Ibid. The Temple. Church Monuments. St. 4.
Man's life is like nnto a winter's day, -
Some break their fast and so depart away;
Others stay dinner, then depart full fed;
The longest age but sups and goes to bed.
O reader, then behold and see!
As we are now, so must you be.
Joseph Henshaw. Horx Sucisive. (See under INN.)
The glories of our blood and state
Are shadows, not substantial things;
There is no armour against fate,
Death lays his icy hand on kings.
Scepter and crown
Must tumble down.
And, in the dust, be equal made
With the poor crooked scythe and spade. Shirley. Contention of Ajax and Ulysses. Sc. 5.

Scilicet omne sacrum Mors importuna profanat,
Ommihus obscuras injicit illa manus.
Death lays his impious touch on all things rare:
His shadowy hands no sacred office spare. Ovid. Avt of Love. iii. 9. 19.

The prince, who kept the world in awe,
The judge, whose dictate fix'd the law,
The rich, the poor, the great, the small,
Are levell'd : death confounds 'em all. Gay. Fables. Pt. ii. Fable 16. The Ravens, Nexton, and Earth-worm. 1. 143.

Our days begin with trouble here,
Our life is but a span,
And cruel death is always near, So frail a thing is man.

New England Primer.
Or like a wind that chafes the flood,
Or bubbles which on water stood;
Even such is man, whose borrow'd light
Is straight call'd in, and paid to-night.
The Wind blows out, the bubble dies,
The Spring entomb'd in Autumn lies;
The Dew's dried up, the Star is shot.
The Flight is past, and man forgot.
Dr. H. King. Sic Vīta.
This world is all a fleeting show, For man's illusion given ;
The smiles of joy, the tears of woe,
Deceitful shine, deceitful flow,-
There's nothing true but Heaven.
Moore. This World is all a Fleeting Show.
Like the dew on the mountain,
Like the foam on the river,
Like the bubhle on the fountaiu,
Thou art gone, and for ever!
Scotr. Lady of the Lake. Canto iii. St. 16. Coronach.

Like bubbles on the sea of matter borne,
They rise, they break, and to, that sea return. Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle iii. 1. 19.

For what are men who grasp at praise sublime,
But bubbles on the rapid stream of time,
That rise, and fall, that swell, and are no more,
Born, and forgot, ten thousand in an hour?
Young. Love of Fame. Satire ii. 1. 285.
So peaceful rests, without a stone, a name,
What once had beauty, titles, wealth, and fame,
How lov'd, how honour'd once, avails thee not,

To whom related, or by whom begot;
A heap of dust alone remains of thee ;
'Tis all thou art, and all the proud shall be!
Pope. Elegy to the Memory of an Unfortunate Lady. 1. 69.

horace Smith. Address to the Mummy at Belzmi's Exhibition.

My life is like the summer rose,
That opens to the morning sky:
But ere the shades of evening close,
Is scattered on the ground-to die.
R. H. Widee. Summer Rose. Lament of the Captive. St. 1.
If I had thought thou couldst have died
I might not weep for thee;
But I forgot, when by thy side,
That thou couldst mortal be I
It never through my mind had passed,
That time would e'er be o'er
When I on thee should look my last,
And thou shouldst smile no more!
Charles Wolfe. Song. The Death of Mary.
Oh why should the spirit of mortal be proud?
Like a fast-fitting meteor, a fast-flying cloud,

A flash of the lightning, a break of the wave,
He passes from life to his rest in the grave.

William Knox. Mortality.

All that's bright must fade,-
The brightest still the fleetest;
All that's sweet was made
But to be lost when sweetest. Moore. All that's Bright Must Fade.

Once, in the flight of ages past,
There lived a man :-and who was he?
Mortal! howe'er thy lot be cast, That man resembled thee.

He saw whatever thou bast seen;
Encountered all that troubles thee:
He was-whatever thou hast been;
He is-what thou shalt be.

MOUNTAINS.

Then the omnipotent Father with his thunder made Olympus tremble, and from Ossa hurled Pelion.

Ovid. Metamorphoses.
fAn allusion to the myth of the Titans, who piled Mount Pelion and Mount Ossa upon Olympus in order to scale the dwellings of the Gods, but were overwhelmed by Jupiter. The myth belongs to the same cycle as the Biblical story of the tower of Bahel. Homer tells the story in the eleventh book of the Odyssey. The most famous linea are thus translated by various hands:

They were setting on Ossa upon Olympus, and upon
Steep Ossa leavy Pelius.
Chapman. Homer's Odyssey. Bk. xi. 1. 426.

Heav'd on Olympus tott'ring Ossa stood ; On Ossa Pelion nods with all his wood. POPE. Odyssey. Bk. xi. 1. 387.
To the Olympian summit they essay'd To heave up Ossa, and to Ossa's crown Branch-waving Pelion.

Cow PER. Odyssey. Bk. xi. 1. 379.
To fling
Ossa upon Olympus, and to pile
Pelion with all its growth of leafy woods On Ossa.

Bryant. Odyssey. Bk. xi. 1. 389.
I would have you call to mind the strength of the ancient giants, that undertook to lay the high mountain Peliou on the top of Ossa, and set among those the shady Olympus.
EABELAIS. Works. Bk. iv. Ch. xxxviii.
Mahomet made the people believe that he would call a hill to him, and from the top of it offer up his prayers for the observers of his law. The people assembled; Mahomet called the hill to come to him, again and again ; and when the hill stood still, he was never a whit abashed, but said, "If the hill will not come to Mahomet, Mahomet will go to the hill."

BaCON. Ebsays. Of Boldness.

So pleased at first the towering Alps we try,
Mount o'er the vales and seem to tread the sky;
The eternal snows appear already pass'd,
And the first clouds and mountains seem the last :
But those attain'd, we tremble to survey
The growing labours of the lengthen'd way;
The increasing prospect tires our wandering eyes,
Hills peep o'er hills, and Alps on Alps arise !
Pope. Essay on Crüticism. Pt. ii. 1. 25.
All as a pilgrim who the Alps doth pass,
When he some beaps of hills hath overwent,
Begins to think on rest, his journey spent,
Till, mounting some tall mountain, he doth find
More heights before him than he left behind.

Drummond.
[As Pope imitated Drummond, so he in turn was imitated by Roussean, who likens successful conquerors to "those inexperienced travellers who, finding themselves for the first time in the Alps, imagine that they can clear them with every monntain, and, when they have reached the summit, are discouraged to see higber mountains in front of them." Emile. Bk.iv. See Walsh's
Handy Book of Literary Curiosities, p. 45, for other parallelismas.]
Alps on Alps in clusters swelling,
Mighty, and pure, and fit to make
The ramparts of a Godhead's dwelling! Moore. Rhymes on the Road. Extract i. 1. 26.

As some tall cliff that lifts its awfol form,
Swells from the vale, and midway leaves the storm,
Though round its breast the rolling clouds are spread,
Eternal sunshine settles on its head.
Goldsmita. The Deserted Village. 1. 189.
Rave ceaselessly ; but thou, most awful Form !
Risest from forth thy silent sea of pines,
How silently 1 Around thee and above
Deep is the air and dark, substantial, black,
An ebon mass: methinks thou piercest it
As with a wedge! But when I look again
It is thine own calm home, thy crystal shrine,

Thy habitation from eternity !
O dread and silent Mountl I gazed upon thee,
Till thou, still present to the bodily sense,
Didst vanish from my thought: entranced in prayer
I worshipped the Invisible alone.
Coleridge. Hymn Before Sunrise in the Vale of Chamouni. 1.5.
Lands, intersected by a narrow frith, Ablor each other. Mountains interpos'd Make enemies of nations, who had else,
Like kindred drops, been mingled into one.
Cowrer. Task. Bk. ii. The Time-Piece 1. 16.

See the mountains kiss high heaven, And the waves clasp one another.

Shmery. Love's Philosophy.
Oh, thon Parnassus whom I now survey, Not in the phrensy of a dreamer's eye, Not in the fabled landscape of a lay, But soaring snow-clad through thy native sky,
In the wild pomp of mountain majesty !
Byron. Childe Harold. Canto i. st. 60 .
The castled crag of Drachenfels
Frowns o'er the wide and winding Rhine.
Ibid. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 55.
Mont Blane is the monarch of mountains;
They crown'd him long ago,
On a throne of rocks, in a robe of clouds,
With a diadem of snow.
Ibid. Manfred. Act i. Sc. 1.
That speck of white just on its marge
Is Pella; see, in the evening glow
How sharp the silver spear-heads charge
When Alp meets Heaven in snow.

MOURNING.

It is better to go to the house of mourning than to go to the house of feasting.

Old Testament. Ecclesiastes vii. 2.
Leontes. Once a day I'll visit
The chapel where they lie: and tears shed there

Shall be my recreation: so long as Nature
Will bear up with this exercise, so long I daily vow to use it.

But cheerly seek how to redress their harms.
Ibid. III. Henry VI. Act v. Sc. 4. 1.1.
King. How is it that the clouds still hang on you?
Hamlet. Not so, my lord; I am too much ${ }^{\prime}$ ' the sun.
Queen. Good Hamlet, cast thy nighted colour off,
And let thine eye look like a friend on Denmark.
Do not, for ever, with thy vailed lids
Seek for thy noble father in the dust.
Thou know'st, 'tis common; all that lives must die,
Passing through nature to eternity.
Hamlet. Ay, madam, it is common.
Queen. If it be,
Why seems it so particular with thee?
Hamlet. Seems, madam! nay it is; I know not seems.-
'Tis not alone my inky cloak, good mother,
Nor customary suits of solemn black,
Nor windy suspiration of forc'd breath,
No, nor the fruitful river in the eye,
Nor the dejected haviour of the visage,
Together with all forms, modes, shews of grief,
That can denote me truly: these indeed, seem;
For they are actions that a man might play:
But I have that within which passeth show;
These, but the trappings and the suits of woe.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 2. 1.66.

Hamlet. That it should come to this!
But two months dead! nay, not so nuch, not two;
So excellent a king ; that was, to this,
Hyperion to a satyr: so loving to my mother,
That he might not beteem the winds of heaven
Visit her face too ronghly. Heaven and earth!
Must I remember? why, she would hang on him,
As if increase of appetite had grown
By what it fed on : And yet, within a month,-
Let me not think on 't-Frailty, thy name is woman!-
A little month; or ere those shoes were old,
With which she follow'd my poor father's body,
Like Niobe, all tears;-why she, even she, -
$O$ heaven ! a beast, that wants discourse of reason,
Would have mourn'd longer,-married with my uncle,
My father's brother ; but no more like my father,
Than I to Hercules: Within a month;
Ere yet the salt of most unrighteous tears
Had left the flushing of her galled eyes,
She married :-O most wicked speed, to post
With such dexterity to incestuous sheets;
It is not, nor it cannot come to good.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 138.

Lives there whom pain hath evermore pass'd by
And sorrow shunned with an averted eye?
Him do thou pity, him ahove the rest, Him of all hopeless mortals most unbless'd.

Wm. Watson. Epigrams.

King Richard. My grief lies all within,
And these external manners and laments Are merely shadows to the unseen grief, That swells with silence in the tortur'd soul.
Shakes. Richard II, Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 295.
Lafeu. Moderate lamentation is the right of the dead; excessive grief the enemy to the living.

Shaiespeare. All's Well that Ends Well. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 48.

Capulet. All things that we ordained festival,
Turn from their office to black funeral :
Our instruments, to melancholy bells;
Our wedding cheer, to a sad burial feast;
Our solemn hymns to sullen dirges change;
Our bridal flowers serve for a buried corse,
And all things change them to the contrary.
Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act iv. Sc. 5. 1. 84.

Hamlet. Nay, then, let the devil wear black, for I'll have a suit of sables.

Ibid. Hamlel. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 124.
There to converse with everlasting groans,
Unrespited, unpitied, unreprieved,
Ages of hopeless end?
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. ii. l. 184.
What though no friends in sable weeds appear,
Grieve for an hour, perhaps, then mourn a year;
And bear about the mockery of woe
To midnight dances, and the public show?
Pope. Elegy to the Memory of an Unfortunate Lady. 1. 55.
Then flash'd the living lightning from her eyes,
And screams of horror rend the affrighted skies.
Not londer shrieks to pitying Heaven are cast,
When husbands, or when lapdogs, breathe their last;
Or when rich China vessels, fallen from high,
In glittering dust and painted fragments lie!
Ibid. Rape of the Lock. Canto iii. 1. 155.
O ! sing unto my roundelay,
O! drop the briny tear with me.
Dance no more at holiday,
Like a running river be;

My love is dead,
Gone to his death bed
All under the willow tree.
Thomas Chatterton. Aella. Minstrel's Song.
When Dido found Aneas would not come
She mourned in silence and was Di do dum.

Richard Porson. Impromptu.
Each lonely scene shall thee restore;
For thee the tear be duly shed; Belov'd till life can charm no more,

And mourn'd till Pity's self be dead.
William Collins. Dirge in Cymbeline. Concluding lines.
They bear him to his resting place-
In slow procession sweeping by ;
I follow at a stranger's space;
His kindred they, his sweetheart I.
Unclanged my gown of garish dye,
Though sable-sad is their attire;
But they stand round with griefless eye,
Whilst my regret consumes like fire !

When musing on companions gone,
We doubly feel ourselves alone.
Sir W. Scott. Marmion. Canto ii. Introduction. St. vi.
Ah, surely nothing dies but something mourns.

Byron. Don Juan. Canto iii. St. 108.
He that lacks time to mourn, lacks time to mend.
Eternity mourns that. 'Tis an ill cure
For life's worst ills, to have no time to feel them.
Where sorrow's held intrusive and turned out,
There wisdom will not enter, nor true power,
Nor aught that dignifies humanity. Sir Henry Taylor. Phiiip Van artévelde. Act i. Sc. 5. 1. 38.
Ah, what avails the sceptred race,
Ah, what the form divine!
What every virtue, every grace!
Rose Aylmer, all were thine.
Rose Aylmer, whom these watchful eyes
May weep, but never see,
A night of memories and of sighs
I consecrate to thee.
W. S. Landor. Rose Aylmer.
[The lady to whose memory these lines are dedicated was one of Landor's early loves; she died suddenly and prematurely in India. Instead of repeating the name, Landor "originally wrote in the second stanza "Sweet Aylmer."]

MOUSE.

I hold a mouse's wit not worth a leke That hath but on hole for to sterten to.

Chaucer. Wufe of Bath's Prologue. 1. 572.

Consider the little mouse, how sagacious an animal it is which never entrusts his life to one hole only.

Pladtus. Truculentus. Act iv. Sc. 4. 1. 15.

The mouse that always trusts to one poor hole
Can never be a mouse of any soul.
Pope. Paraphrase of the Wife of Bath. Her Prologue: 1. 298.
The mouse that hath one hole is quickly taken.

Murder may pass unpunish'd for a time,
But tardy justice will o'ertake the crime. Dryden. The Cock and the Fox. 1. 285.
Bolingbroke. They love not poison that do poison need,
Nor do I thee; though I did wish him dead,
I bate the murderer, love him murdered.
The guilt of conscience take thou for thy labour,
But neither my good word nor princely favour.
Shakespeare. Richard II. Act v. Sc. 6. 1.38.

Pembroke. All murders past do stand excus'd in this;
And this, so sole, and so unmatchable,
Shall give a holiness, a purity,
To the yet-unbegotten sin of time's,
And prove a deadly bloodshed but a jest,
Exampled by this heinons spectacle.
Ibid. King John. Aet iv. Sc. 8. 1. 51.
Macduff. Confusion now hath made his masterpiece!
Most sacrilegious murder hath broke ope
The Lord's anointed temple, and stole thence
The life ${ }^{\circ}$ ' the building.

Ghost. Murder most foul, as in the best it is;
But this most foul, strange and unnatural. Shakespeare. Hamlet. Acti. Sc. 5. 1. 27.

Antony. O, pardon me, thou bleeding piece of earth,
That I am meek and gentle with these butchers!
Thon art the ruins of the noblest man
That ever lived in the tide of times.
Woe to the hand that shed this costly blood
Over thy wounds now do I prophesy.

A deed of dreadful note.
Ibid. Macbeth. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 44.
Macbeth. Blood lath been shed ere now, $i$ ' the olden time,
Ere human statute purg'd the gentle weal;
Ay, and since too, murders have been perform'd
Too terrible for the ear: the time has been,
That, when the brains were out, the man would die,
And there an end; but now they rise again,
With twenty mortal murders on their crowns,
And push ns from our stools: this is more strange
Than snch a murder is
Ibid. Macbeth. Act iii. Sc. 4. 1. 76.
Macbeth. Will all great Neptune's ocean wash this blood
Clean from my hand? No; this my hand will rather

And sweet revenge grows harsh.
Ibid. Gthello. Act v. Sc. 2. 1. 115.

Othello. Put ont the light, and then put ont the light:
If I quench thee, thou flaming minister, I can again thy former light restore
Should I repent me; but once put out thy light,
Thou cunning'st pattern of excelling nature,
I know not where is that Promethean heat
That can thy light relume.
Shakespeare. Othella. Act v. Sc. 2. l. 7.

Ghost. But, soft! methinks I scent the morning air;
Brief let me be. Sleeping within my orchard,
My custom always of the afternoon,
Upon my secure hour thy uncle stole,
With juice of cursed hebenon in a phial,
And in the porcbes of mine ears did pour
The leperous distilment.
Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 5. 1, 59.
Ghost. Thus was I, sleeping, by a brother's hand,
Of life, of crown, of queen, at once despatch'd;
Cut off even in the blossoms of my sin, Unhousel'd, disappointed, unanel'd;
No reckoning made, but sent to my account
With all my imperfections on my head. Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 5. 1. 74.
Unrespited, unpitied, unrepriev'd.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. ii. 1. 185.
Unwept, unhonored, uninterred he lies.

Without a grave, unknelled, uncoffined, and unknown.
Byron. Chilḋe Harald. Canto iv. St. 179.
To the vile dust, from whence he sprung, Unwept, unhonoured, and unsung.

Sir W. Scott. Lay of the Last Minstrel. Canto vi. St. 1.
Unwept, unshrouded, and unsepulchred. Sodthey. A Tale of Paraguay. Canto i. St. xi.
Hamlet. Now might I do it, pat, now he is praying;
And now I'll do 't;-and so he goes to heaven :

And so am I reveng'd? That would he scann'd:
A villain kills my father ; and, for that, I, his sole son, do this same viltain send To heaven.
O , this is hire and salary, not revenge.
He took my father grossly, full of bread;
With all his crimes broad blown, as flısh as May;
And, how his audit stands, who knows, save heaven?
But, in our circumstance and course of thought,
'Tis heavy with him. And am I then reveng'd,
To take him in the purging of his soul,
When he is fit and season'd for his passage?
No.
Up, swords; and know thou a more horrid hent:
When he is drunk, asleep, or in his rage:
Or in the incestuous pleasure of his hed;
At gaming, swearing; or about some act
That has no relish of salvation in 't:
Then trip him, that his heels may kick at heaven;
And that his soul may be as damn'd, and black,
As hell to which it goes.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 3. 1. 76.

Frankford. Ob me unhappy! I havc found them lying
Close in each other's arms, and fast asleep.
But that I would not damn two precious souls,
Bought with my Saviour's blood, and send them, lader
With all their scarlet sins upon their backs,
Unto a fearful judgment, their two lives
Had met upon my rapier!

MUSE.

If answerable style I can obtain
Of my celestial patroness, who deigns
Her nightly visitation animplored,
And dictates to me slumbering, or inspires
Fasy my unpremeditated verse;
Since first this subject for heroic song
Pleased me, long choosing and beginning late.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. ix. 1. 20.
When panting virtue her last efforts made
You brought your Clio to the virgin's aid.
Whlliam Somerville. Poetical Address to Mr. Addizon.
[Addison signed his papers in the Spectator. with one or the other of the letters making up the name Clio, the muse of history. These lines delighted Dr Johnson: "The couplet which mentions Clio is written with the most exquisite delicacy of praise; it exhibits one of those happy strokes which are seldom attained.'"]

MUSIC.

Eftsoones they heard a most melodious sound.

Spenser. Faerie Queene. Bk. ii. Canto xii. St. 70.

Cleopatra. Give me some music; music, moody food
Of us that trade in love.

A lamentable tune is the sweetest musick to a woeful mind. Sir P. Sidney. Arcadia. Bk. ii.
Peter. When griping grief the heart doth wound,
And doleful dumps the mind oppress,
Then music with her silver sound,
Withl speedy help doth lend redress.
Shakespeare. Romeo and Juliet. Act iv. Sc. 5. 1. 123.
[These lines are quoted by Peter to the musicians. Evidently they are a reminiscence of the ancient song preserved by Thomas Percy:
Where gripinge grefes the hart would wounde,
And dolefulle dumps the mynde oppresse,
There music with her silver sound
With spede is wont to send redresse.
PERCY. Reliques. A Song to the Lute in Mussicke.]

Music the fiercest grief can charm,
And fate's severest rage disarm.
Music can soften pain to ease,
And make despair and madness please;
Our joys helow it can improve,
And antedate the bliss above.
Pope. Ode on St. Cecilia's Day. St. 7.
Duke. If music be the food of love, play on ;
Give me excess of it, that, surfeiting,
The appetite may sicken, and so die.
That strain again ! it had a dying fall:
O, it came o'er my ear like the sweet sound
That breathes upon a bank of violets,
Stealing and giving odour!
Shakespeare. Twelfth Night. Act i, Sc. 1. 1. 1.

Twitched strings, the clang of metal, beaten drums,
Dull, shrill, continnous, disquieting ;
And now the stealthy dancer comes
Undulantly with cat-like steps that cling.

Symons. Javanese Dancers.
Lorenzo. How sweet the moon-light sleeps upon this bank!
Here will we sit, and let the sounds of music
Creep in our ears; soft stillness, and the night,
Become the tonches of sweet harmony.
Sit, Jessica. Look! how the floor of heaven
Is thick inlaid with patines of bright gold.
There's not the smallest orb, which thou behold'st,
But in his motion like an angel sings,
Still quiring to the young-ey'd cherubim;
Such harmony is in immortal souls.
But, whilst this muddy vesture of decay
Doth grossly close it in, we cannot hear it.
Shakespeare. Merchant of Venice. Act v. Sc. 1. 1.54.

And sure there is music even in the beanty, and the silent note which Cupid strikes, far sweeter than the sound of an instrument; for there is music wherever there is harmony, order, or proportion; and this far we may maintain the music of the spheres.

Sir Thomas Browne. Retigio Medici. Pt. ii. Sec. ix.
Ring out, ye crystal spberes!
Once bless our human ears,
If ye have power to tonch our senses so;

And let your silver chime
Move in melodious time,
And let the base of Heaven's deep organ blow;
And with your ninefold harmony
Make up full consort to the angelic sympbony. Milton. Hymn. On the Moming of Christ's Nativity. St. 13.
When his veering gait
And every motion of his starry train
Seem governed by a strain
Of music, audible to him alone.
Wordsworth. The Triad. 1. 48.
Jessica. I am never merry, when I hear sweet mousic.
Lorenzo. The reason is, your spirits are attentive;
For do but note a wild and wanton leerd,
Or race of youthful and unhandled colts,
Fetching mad bounds, bellowing, and neighing loud,
Which is the hot condition of their blood;
If they but hear perchance a trumpet sound,
Or any air of music touch their ears,
You shall perceive them make a mutual stand,
Their savage eyes turn'd to a modest gaze,
By the sweet power of music. Therefore, the poets
Did feign that Orpheus drew trees, stones, and floods;
Since nought so stockish, hard, and full of rage,
But music for the time doth cliange his nature.
Shakespeare. Merchant of Venice. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 69.

Music bath charms to soothe a savage breast, ${ }^{1}$
To soften rocks, or bend a knotted oak.
I've read that things inanimate have moved,
And, as with living souls, bave been inform'd

The smouldering infelicity of man. Wm. Watson. Epigrams.
Hark ! the numbers soft and clear,
Gently steal upon the ear;
Now louder, and yet louder rise
And fill with spreading sounds the skieg.
Pope. Ode for Music on St. Cecilia's Day.

Light quirks of music, broken and maeven,
Make the soul dance upon a jig to Heav'n.

The harp that once through Tara's halls
The soul of music shed,
Now hangs as mute on Tara's walls As if that sonl were fled.
So sleeps the pride of former days, So glory's thrill is o'er ;
And hearts that once beat high for praise Now feel that pulse no more. Moore. The Harp that Once Through Tara's Halls.

I pant for the music which is divine;
My heart in its thirst is a dying flower;
Pour forth the sound like enchanted wine,
Loosen the notes in a silper shower;
Like a herbless plain for the gentle rain I gasp, I faint till they wake again.

Shelley. Music.
When Music, heavenly maid, was young, While yet in early Greece she sung,

The Passions oft, to hear her swell, Throng'd around her magic cell,

Emerson. The Sphinx.

A velvet flute-note fell down pleasantly, Upon the bosom of that harmony, And sailed and sailed incessantly,
As if a petal from a wild-rose blown
Had fluttered down upon that pool of tone,
And boatwise dropped o' the convex side
And floated down the glassy tide
And clarified and glorified
The solemn spaces where the shadows bide.
From the warm concave of that fluted note
Somewhat, half song, half odor forth did float
As if a rose might somehow be a throat. Sidney Lanier. The Symphony.

To point a moral or adorn a tale.
DR. Joanson. Vanity of Human Wishes.
His opinion was that there was a strange kind of magic hias which good or bad names, as he called them, irresistibly impressed upon our characters and conduct. . . . How many Cæsars and Pompeys, he would say, by merc inspiration of the names, have been rendered worthy of them! And how many, he would add, are there who might have done exceeding well in the world, had not their characters and spirits been totally depressed and Nicodemus'd into nothing.

Grand, gloomy, and peculiar, he sat upon the throne a sceptred hermit, wrapped in the solitude of his own originality.

CEarles PHillifs. The Character of Napoleon.

Yes! where is he, the champion and the child
Of all that's great or little, wise or wild?
Whose game was empires, and whose stakes were thrones,
Whose table earth-whose dice were human bones?

Byron. The Age of Bronze. St. 3.
On a lone barren isle, where the wild roaring billows
Assail the stern rock, and the loud tempests rave,
The hero lies still, while the dew-drooping willows,
Like fond weeping mourners, lean over his grave.
The lightnings may flash and the loud thunders rattle;
He heeds not, he hears not, he's free from all pain;
He sleeps his last sleep, he has fought his last battle;
No sound can awake him to glory again!

It is a goodly sight to see
What Hearen hath done for this delicious land! ${ }^{1}$
What fruits of fragrance blush on every tree!
What goodly prospects o'er the hills expand !
Byron. Childe Harold. Canto i. St. 15.
Except by name, Jean Panl Friedrich Richter is little known out of Germany. The only thing connected with him, we think, that has reached this country is lis saying,-imported by Madame de Staël, and thankfully pocketed by most newspaper critics,-" Providence has given to the French the empire of the land; to the English that of the sea; to the Germans that of-the air!

Carlivee. Essays. Richter (Edinburgh Review, 1827).
A nation's right to speak a nation's voice:
And own no power but of the nation's choice!

Milton. Comus. 1. 727.
If Nature be a phantasm, as thousay'st,
A splendid fiction and prodigious dream,
To reach the real and true I'll make no haste,
More than content with worlds that only seem.

Wh. Watson. Epigrams.

To-morrow to fresh woods, and pastures new.

Milton. Lyeidas. Concluding line.
With thee conversing I forget all time, All seasons, and their change, all please alike:
Sweet is the breath of morn, her rising sweet,
With charm of earliest birds; pleasant the sin
When first on this delightful land he spreads
His orient beams on herb, tree, fruit, and flower,
Glist'ring with dew ; fragrant the fertile earth
After soft showers; and sweet the coming on
Of grateful ev'ning mild; then silent night
With this her solemn bird and this fair moon,
And these the gems of heaven, her starry train.
1bid. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. 1. 639.
'Tis sweet to be awaken'd by the lark,
Or lull'd by falling waters; sweet the hum
Of bees, the voice of girls, the song of hirds.
The lisp of children, and their earliest words.

Betwixt them lawns or level downs and flocks
Grazing the tender herb were interposed,
Or palmy hillock ; or the flowery lap
Of some irriguous valley spread her store,
Flowers of all hue, and without thorn the rose.
Another side, umbrageous grots and caves
Of cool recess, o'er which the mantling vine
Lays forth her purple grape and gently creeps
Luxuriant; meanwhile murmuring waters fall
Down the slope liills dispersed, or in a lake,
That to the fringèd bank with myrtle crowned
Her crystal mirror holds, unite their streams.
The birds their quire apply ; airs, vernal airs,

Breathing the smell of field and grove, attune
The trembling leaves.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. I. 252.
The perfections of Nature show that she is the image of God; her defects show that she is only his image.

Pascal. Thoughts. Ch. xii.
Nature, so far as in her lies,

Tennyson. On a Mourner.
But who can paint
Like Nature? Can Imagination hoast,
Amid its gay creation, hues like hers?
Or can it mix them with that matchless skill,
And lose them in each other, as appears In every bud that blows?

Thomson. The Seasons. Spring. I. 466.
Oh, what a glory doth this world put on
For him who, with a fervent heart, goes forth
Under the hright and glorious sky, and looks
On duties well performed and days well spent!
For him the wind, ay, and the yellow leaves,
Shall have a voice, and give him eloquent teachings.
He shall so hear the solemn hymn that death
Has lifted up for all, that he shall go
To his long resting-place without a tear. Longfellow. Autumn. Conclnding lines.
Nature! great parent! whose unceasing hand
Rolls round the seasons of the changeful year;
How mighty, how majestic are thy works!
With what a pleasing dread they swell the soul
That sees astonish'd, and astonish'd sings !
Thomson. The Seasons. Winter. 1. 106.
I care not, Fortune, what you me deny :
You cannot rob me of free Nature's grace;
You cannot shut the windows of the sky
Through which Aurora shows her brightening face;

You cannot bar my constant feet to trace
The woods and lawns, by living stream, at eve :
Let health my nerves and finer fibres brace,
And I their toys to the great children leave:
Of fancy, reason, virtue, naught can me hereave.

The sounding cataract
Haunted me like a passion: the tall rock,
The mountain, and the deep and gloomy wood,
Their colours and their forms, were then to me
An appetite; a feeling and a love,
That had no need of a remoter charm,
By thought supplied, nor any interest
Unhorrowed from the eye.-That time is past,
And all its aching joys are now no more,
And all its dizzy raptures.
Ibid. Lines on Tintern Abbey. 1.76.

I have learned

To look on Nature, not as in the hour
Of thoughtless youth, but hearing oftentimes
The still, sad music of humanity,
Nor harsh nor grating, though of ample power
To chasten and subdue. And I have felt
A presence that disturbs me with the joy
Of elevated thoughts; a sense sublime
Of something far more deeply interfused,
Whose dwelling is the light of setting suns,
And the round ocean, and the living air,
And the blue sky, and in the mind of man;
A motion and a spirit, that impels
All thinking things, all objects of all thought,
And rolls through all things. Therefore am I still
A lover of the meadows and the wroods,
And mountains; and of all that we behold
From this green earth; of all the mighty world
Of eye and ear, both what they half create,
And what they perceive; well pleased to recognize
In nature and the language of the sense,
The anchor of my purest thoughts, the nurse,
The guide, the guardian of my heart, and soul
Of all my moral bcing.
Wordsworti. Lines on Tintern Abbey. l. 88.

To him who in the love of Nature holds
Communion with her visible forms, she speaks
A various language; for his gayer hours
She has a voice of gladness, and a smile
And eloquence of heauty, and she glides
Into his darker musings, with a mild
And healing sympathy that steals away
Their sharpness ere he is aware.

Let them learn to be wise by easier means, let them observe the hind of the forest and the linnet of the grove, let them consider the life of animals, whose, motions are regulated by instinct; they obey their guide and are happy. Let us, therefore, at length. cease to dispute and learn to live; . and carry with us this simple and intelligible maxim, that deviation from Nature is deviation from happiness.

Nature never did betray
The heart that loved her.
Wordsworth. Lines composed a few miles above Tintern Abbey. 1. 123.

True fiction hath an higher end, and scope
Wider than fact ; it is nature's possible, Contrasted with life's actual mean.
P. J. Bailey. Festus. Proem.

NAVY.
Ships,
Fraught with the ministers and instruments
Of cruel war.
SHAKESPEARE. Troilus and Cressida. Prologue. 1. 3.

The royal navy of England has ever been its greatest defence and ornament; it is its ancient and natural strength,the floating bulwark of our island.

Sir WM. Blackstone. Commentaries. Vol. i. Bk. i. Ch. xiii.

All in the Downs the fleet was moor'd.

Gay. Sweet William's Farewell to Blackeyed Susan.
"Why, my Lord," replied Ben-"it with truth may be said,
While a bald pate I long have stood under;
There are so many Captains walk'd over my head,
That to see me quite scalp'd were no wonder!"

J. Collins. Ben Black.

Britannia needs no bulwarks,
No towers along the steep;
Her march is o'er the mountain waves,
Her home is on the deep.
Cambpell. Ye Mariners of England. St. 3.

They saw the cables loosened, they saw the gangways cleared,
They heard the women weeping, they heard the men that cheered;
Far off, far off, the tumult faded and died away,
And all alone the sea-wind came singing up the Bay.
Henry Newbolt. The Sailing of the Long Ships.

NECESSITY.

Mater artium necessitas.

May love a puppy cur for no more reason Than that the twain lave been tied up together.
Tennyson. Queen Mary. Act i. Sc. iv.

NEW ENGLAND.

The breaking waves dashed high
On a stern and rock-bound coast,
And the woods against a storny sky,
Their giant branches toss'd.
Mrs. Hemans. The Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers in New England. st. 1.
What sought they thas afar?
Bright jewels of the mine,
The wealth of seas, the spoils of war?
-They sought a faith's pure slorine.
Ibid. The Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers. St. 9.
I first drew in New England's air, and from her hearty breast
Sucked in the tyrant-hating milk that will not let me rest;
And if my words seem treason to the dullard and the tame,
'Tis but my Bay-state dialect,-our fathers spoke the same.
J. R. Lowell. On the Capture of Fugitive Slaves near Washington. St. 2.
I shall enter on no encomium upon Massachusetts; she needs none. There she is. Behold her, and judge for yourselves. There is her history; the world knows it by heart. The past, at least, is secure. There is Boston and Concord and Lexington and Bunker Hill; and there they will remain forever.
Daniei Webster. Second Specch on Foote's Resolution. January 26, 1831.

NEWS.

How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings; that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good; that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth 1

Otd Testament. Isaiah lii. 7.

As cold waters to a thirsty sonl, so is good news from a far country.
old Testament. Proverbs xxy. 25.
It is good news, worthy of all acceptation; and yet not too good to be true. Mathew Henry. Commentaries. I. Timothy i. 15.
Cleopatra. Though it be honest, it is never good
To bring bad news; give to a gracious message
An host of tongues: but let ill tidings tell
Themselves when they be felt. Shakespeare. Antony and Cleopatra. Act ii. sc. 5. 1. 8 o.
Messenger. The nature of bad news infects the teller.

Ibid. Antony and Cleopatra. Aet i. Sc. 2. 1. 92 .

Northumberland. The first bringer of unwelcome news
Hath but a losing office; and his tongue
Sounds ever after as a sullen bell,
Remember'd knolling a departing friend.
Ibid. Henry LV. Pt. ii. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 100.
Clown. Hey, Robin, jolly Robin,
Tell me how thy lady does.
Ibid. Twelfth Night. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 70.
A Robyn,
Jolly Robyn,
Tell me how thy leman does.

> A Robyn, Jolly Robyn.

Cleopatra. Prithee, friend,
Pour out the pack of matter to mine ear, The good and bad together.

Shakespeare. Antony and Cleopatra. Act li. Sc. 5. l. 53.

Cleopatra. Ram thou thy fruitful tidings in mine ears,
That long time have been barren.
Ibid. Antomy and Cleopatra. Act ii. Sc. 5. 1. 26.

Hubert. Old men, and beldams, in the streets
Do prophesy upon it dangeronsly :
Young Arthur's death is common in their montls:
And, when they talk of him, they shake their heads,
And whisper one another in the ear; And he that speaks doth gripe the hearer's wrist ;

Whilst he that hears makes fearful action,
With wrinkled brows, with nods, with rolling eyes.
I saw a smith stand with his hammer, thus,
The whilst his iron did on the anvil cool,
With open mouth swallowing a tailor's news;
Who, with his shears and measure in his hand,
Standing on slippers-which his nimble haste
Had falsely thrust upon contrary feet-
Told of a many thousand warlike French,
That were embatteled and rank'd in Kent:
Another lean, unwashed artificer
Cuts off his tale, and talks of Arthur's death.
Shakespeare. King John. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 185.

Biondello. Master, master 1 news, old news, and such news as you never heard of!

Ibid. Taming of the Shrew. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 30.

Ill news is wing'd with fate, and flies apace.

Dryden. Threnodia Augustalis. 1. 49.

Ill news hath wings, and with the wind doth go:
Comfort's & cripple, and comes ever slow.
Drayton. The Baron's Wars. Bk. ii. 28.
Evil news fly faster still than good.
T. Kyd. The Spanish Tragedy. Acti.

For evil news rides post, while good news baits.

Milton. Samson Agonistes. l. 1538.
He's gone, and who knows how he may report
Thy words by adding fuel to the flame?
Ibid. Samson Agonistes. 1. 1350.
Let the greatest part of the news tbou hearest be the least part of what thou believest, lest the greater part of what thou believest be the least part of what is true. Where lies are easily admitted the father of lies will not easily be excluded.
QUarles. Enchiridion. Cent. ii. No. 50.
Where village statesmen talk'd with looks profound,
And news much older than their ale went round.
Goldsmitr. The Deserted Village. 1. 223.
News, the manna of a day.
Green. The Spleen. 1. 169.

NEWSPAPERS.

Ask how to live? Write, write, write anything;
The world's a fine believing world, write news !
Beaumont and Fletcher. Wit Without Money. Act ii.
I am a printer, and a printer of news; and I do hearken after them, wherever they be at any rates; I'll give anything for a good copy now, be it true or false, so it be news.
B. Jonson. News from the New World.

The newspapers! Sir, they are the most villainons, licentions, abominable, infernal,--not that I ever read them! No-I make it a rule never to look into a newspaper.
R. B. Sheridan. The Critic. Act i. Sc. 2.

Caused by a dearth of scandal should the vapours
Distress our fair ones-let them read the papers.
Garitck. Prologue to Sheridan's School for Scandal,

How shall I speak thee or thy power address,
Thou god of our Idolatry, the Press ! Cowper. Progress of Error. 1. 452. (See under Printina.)
He comes, the herald of a noisy world,
With spatter'd boots, strapp'd waist, and frozen locks;
News from all nations lumbering at his back.

NEWTON, SIR ISAAC.

Nature and Nature's laws lay hid in night:
God said, "Let Newton be!" and all was light.
Pope. Epitaph Intended for Sir I. Newton.
I do not know what I may appear to the world ; but to myself I seem to have been only like a boy playing on the seashore, and diverting myself in now and then finding a smoother pebble or a prettier shell than ordinary, whilst the great ocean of truth lay all undiscovered before me.
Newton. Quoted in Brewster's Memoir. Vol. ii. Ch. xxvii.
Newton (that proverb of the mind), alas!
Declared, with all his grand discoveries recent,
That he himself felt only "like a youth
Picking up shells by the great ocean, Truth." BYron. Don Juan. Canto vii. St. 5.
Deep versed in books, and shallow in himself,
Crude or intoxicate, collecting toys,
And trifles for choice matters, worth a sponge;
As children gath'ring pebbles on the shore. Mitavon. Paradise Regained. Bk. iv. 1 . 327.

Where the statue stood
Of Newton, with his prism and silent face,
The marble index of a mind forever
Voyaging through strange seas of thought alone.
Wordsworth. The Prelude. Bk. iii. 1. 60.

NIGHT.

Watchman, what of the night?
old Testament. Isaiah xxi. 11.
Macbeth. What is the night?
Lady Macbeth. Almost at odds with morning, which is which.

SHakespeare. Macbeth. Act iii. Sc. 4. l. 126.

I must work the works of Him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work.

New Testament. John ix. 4.

By night comes counsel to the wise. Menander. Monosticha. 150.
[Usually quoted in its French form, "La nuit porte conseil." This is the motto of the New Yoris Herald.]

It was evening here,
But upon earth the very noon of night. Dante. Purgatorio. Canto xv. 1.5.
This dead of midnight is the noon of thought,
And Wisdom mounts her zenith with the stars.
Mrs. Barbauld. A Summer's Evening Meditation.

And smale foules maken melodie,
That slepen alle night with open eye,
So priketh hem nature in hir corages;
Than longen folk to gon on pilgrimages.
Chavcer, Canterbury Tales. Prologue. 1. 9.

Hamlet. 'Tis now the very witching time of night,
When churchyards yawn and hell itself breathes out
Contagion to this world.
Shaiespeare. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 377.

When it draws near to witching time of night.

Blair. The Grave. 1. 55.
'Tis the witching hour of night,
Orbed is the moon and bright,
And the stars they glisten, glisten,
Seeming with bright eyes to listen-
For what listen they?
Keats. A Prophecy. 1. 1.
Macbeth. Now o'er the one-half world
Nature seems dead; and wicked dreams abuse
The curtain'd sleeper ${ }^{1}$; witchcraft celebrates
Pale Hecate's offerings; and wither'd murder,
Alarumed by his sentinel, the wolf,
Whose howl's his watch, thus with his stealthy pace,
With Tarquin's ravishing strides, towards his design
Moves like a ghost.
Sharespeare. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 50.

Hamlet. Making night hideous.
Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 4. 1. 54.
Silence, ye wolves! while Ralph to Cynthia howls,
And makes night hideous; answer him, ye owls.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 198. 1 "Sleep" in Folio.
${ }^{2}$ This is the reading of the quarto. Other old copies read "waste," which modern editors have sometimes changed into "waist."

Till sable Night, mother of dread and fear,
Upon the world dim darkness doth display,
And in her vaulted prison stows the day. Shakespeare. The Rape of Lucrece. 1. 117.

Puck. Now the hungry lion roars,
And the wolf behowls the moon;
Whilst the heavy ploughman snores,
All with weary task foredone.
Ibid. Midsummer Night's Dream. Act $\nabla$. Sc. 1. ${ }^{1}$ 1. 360.

Juliet. Come, gentle night, come, loving, blackbrow'd night.

Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 20.

Juliet. Come, civil night,
Thou sober-suited matron all in black
With thy black mantle.
Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 10.

Beaford. The day begins to break, and night is fled,
Whose pitchy mantle overveil'd the earth.
Ibid. I. Henry VI. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 1.
Night's black mantle covers all alike.
Du Bartas. Divine Weekes. First week, first day.

A night of tears! for the gusty rain
Had ceased, but the eaves were dripping yet;
And the moon looked forth, as tho' in pain,
With her face all white and wet.
Owen Meredith (Lord Lytton): The Wanderer. Bk. ii. The Portrait.
Now had Aurora displayed her mantle over the blushing skies, and dark night withdrawn her sable veil.

Cervantes. Don Quixote. Pt.i. Bk.iii. Ch. vi.

Sable-vested Night, eldest of things.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. ii. 1. 962.
Night was drawing and closing ber curtain (a sky full of silent suns, not a breath of breeze moving in it), up above the world and down heneath it.

Richter. Flower, Fruit, and Thorn Pieces. Bk. i. Ch. ii. (EwINg, trans.)
Whilst twilight's curtain spreading far, Was pinned with a single star.

Macdonald Clarke. Death in Disguibe. 1. 227. (Boston ed., 1833.)
${ }^{1}$ Sc. 2, 1. 1, in some editions.
[Mrs. F. M. Child, in an obituary notice of Clarke, quoted these lines in this form, which has become widely accepted:
Now twilight lets her curtain down
And pins it with a star.]
I heard the trailing garments of the Night
Sweep through her marble halls.
Longrellow.' Hymn to the Night. St. 1.
Mucbeth. Come, seeling night,
Skarf up the tender eye of pitifnl day :
And with thy bloody and invisible hand
Cancel and tear to pieces that great bond
Which keeps me pale!
Sbakespeare. Macbeth. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 46.

Angelo. This will last out a night in Russia,
When nights are longest there.
Ibid. Measure for Measure. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 139.

Portia. This night methinks is but the daylight sick.

Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 124.

Midnight brought on the dusky hour
Friendliest to sleep and silence.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. v. 1. 667.

O thievish Night

Why shouldst thou, but for some felonious end,
In thy dark lantern thus close up the stars,
That nature hung in heaven, and filled their lamps
With everlasting oil, to give due light
To the misled and lonely traveller?
Ibid. Comus. 1. 195.

When night

Darkens the streets, then wander forth the sons
Of Belial, flown with insolence and wine.
Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. l. 500.
Eldest Night
And Chaos, ancestors of Nature.
Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. ii. 1. 894.
Nor fragrance after showers,
Nor grateful evening mild, nor silent night
With this her solemn bird, nor walk by moon
Or glittering starlight, without thee is sweet.

But wherefore all night long shine these? for whom
This glorious sight, when sleep hath slut all eyes?
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. 1. 653.
. . . for now began
Night with her sullen wings to doubleshade
The desert; fowls in their clay nests were couch'd,
And now wild beasts came forth, the woods to roam.
Ibid. Paradise Regained. Bk. i. l. 499.
The day is done, and the darkness
Falls from the wings of Night,
As a feather is wafted downward
From an eagle in his fight.
Longrellow. The Day is Done.
Darkness now rose,
As daylight sunk, and brought in low'ring Night,
Her shadowy offspring.
Milton. Paradise Regained. Bk. iv. 1. 397.

Night, sable goddess ! from her ebon throne,
In rayless majesty, now stretches forth
Her leaden sceptre o'er a slumbering world.
Silence, how dead ! and darkness, how profound!
Nor eye, nor list'ning ear, an object finds;
Creation sleeps. 'Tis as the general pulse
Of life stood still, and nature made a pause;
An awful pause ! prophetic of her end.
Young. Night Thoughts. Night i. 1. 18.
Now black and deep the Niglit begins to fall,
A shade immense! Sunk in the quenching Gloom,
Magnificent and vast, are heaven and earth.
Order confounded lies; all beauty void, Distinction lost, and gay variety
One universal blot: such the fair power
Of liglit, to kindle and create the whole. Thomson. The Seasons. Autumn. 1. 1138.
Swiftly walk over the western wave, Spirit of Night!

Shelley. To Nighs.

How beautiful this night 1 the balmiest sigh
Which vernal zephyrs breathe in evening's ear
Were discord to the speaking quietude
That wraps this moveless scene. Heaven's ebon vault,
Studded with stars mutterably briglit,
Through which the moon's unclouded grandeur rolls,
Seems likeacanopy which love has spread
To curtain her sleeping world. SHELLEY. Queen Mab. Pt. iv. 1. 1.
How beautiful is nightl
A dewy freshness fills the silent air;
No mist obscures, nor clond, nor speck, nor stain
Breaks the serene of heaven :
In full-orbed glory yonder moon divine
Rolls through tlie dark blue depths.
Beneath her steady ray
The desert circle spreads
Like the round ocean, girdled with the sky.
How beautiful is night!
Robert Southey. Thalaba. Bk. i. St. 1.
The stars are forth, the moon above the tops
Of the snow-shining mountains-Beantifull
I linger yet with Nature, for the niglit
Hath been to me a more familiar face
Than that of man; and in her starry shade
Of dim and solitary loveliness
I learn'd the language of another world. Byron. Manfred. Act iii. Sc. 4.

For the night
Shows stars and women in a better light. Ibid. Don Juan. Canto ii. St. 152.
And the best of all ways
To lengthen our days
Is to steal a few hours from the night, my dear.
Moore. The Young May Moon. 1. 8 .
There is a budding morrow in midnight. Keats. Sonnet to Homer.
Night is the time to weep,
To wet with unseen tears
Those graves of memory where sleep
The joys of other years.
James Montgomery. Night. St. 4.

The scene was more beautiful far to the eye
Than if day in its pride had arrayed it.

Paul Moon James. The Becacon.

And o'er them the lighthouse looked lovely as hope,-
That star of life's tremulous ocean. Ibid. The Beacon.

I felt her presence, by its spell of might, Stoop o'er me from above;
The caln, majestic presence of the Night, As of the one I love.
Longrellow. Hymn to the Night. St. 2.
The night is come, but not too soon ;
And sinking silently,
All silently, the little moon
Drops down hehind the sky.
There is no light in earth or heaven
But the cold light of stars ;
And the first watch of night is given
To the red planet Mars.
Ibid. The Light of Stars. St. 1.
God makes sech nights, all white an' still
Fur'z yon can look or listen,
Moonshine an' snow on field an' hill,
All silence an' all glisten.
Lowell. The Courtin'. St. 1.
The light white cloud swam over us. Anon
We heard the lion roaring from his den;
We saw the large white stars rise one by one,
Or, from the darken'd glen,
Saw God divide the night with flying flame,
And thunder on the everlasting hills.
I heard Him, for He spake, and grief became
A solemn scorn of ills.
Tennyson. A Dream of Fair Women. St. 56.

NIGHTINGALE.

The nightingale, as soon as April bringeth
Unto her rested sense a perfect waking,

While late bare earth, proud of new clothing, springeth,
Sings out her woes, a thorn her songhook making.
And mournfully bewailing,
Her throat in tunes expresseth
What grief her breast oppresseth.
Sir Piulup Sinney. o Philomela Fair.
Juliet. Wilt thou be gone? it is not yet near day:
It was the nightingale, and not the lark,
That pierc'd the fearful hollow of thine car;
Nightly she sings on yond pomegranate tree:
Believe me, love, it was the nightingale. Shakespeare. Romeo and Juliet. Act iii. Sc. 5. 1. 1.

Lord. Wilt thou have music? hark, Apollo plays,
And twenty caged nightingales do sing. Ibid. Taming of the Shrew. Induction. Sc. 2. 1. 38.

What bird so sings, yet does so wail?
0 , 'tis the ravish'd nightingale-
Jug, jug, jug, jug,-tereu-she cries,
And still her woes at midnight rise.
Lyly. The Songs of Birds.
Sweet bird that shunn'st the noise of folly,
Most musical, most melancholy !
Thee, chauntress, oft, the woods among,
I woo, to hear thy even-song.
Militon. Il Penseroso. 1.61.
"Most musical, most melancholy" bird!
A melancholy bird! Oh! idle thought!
In nature there is nothing melancholy. Coleridge. The Nightingale. 1. 13.

0 nightingale, that on yon bloomy spray
Warblest at eve, when all the woods are still;
Thou with fresh hope the lover's heart dost fill
While the jolly hours lead on propitious May.
Milion. Sonnet. i. To the Nightingate.
To the poplar shade,
Where, all abandon'd to despair, she sings
Her sorrows through the night; and on the bough
Sole-sitting, still, at every dying fall,
Takes up agaln her lamentable strain
of winding woe; till, wide around, the woods
Sigh to her song, and with her wail resound. Tномson. Seasons. Spring. 1. 720.

Thy liquid notes that close the eye of day. Militon. Sonnet. To the Nightingale.
The olive grove of Academe,
Plato's retirement, where the Attic bird
Trills her thick-warhled notes the summer long.
Ibid. Paradise Regained. Bk. iv. 1. 244.
One nightingale in an interfluous wood
Satiate the hungry dark with melody.
Shelley. The Woodman and the Nightingale. St. 2.

O Nightingale,
Cease from thy enamoured tale.
Ibid. Scenes from Calderon's "Magico Prodigiobo." Sc. 3.
Thou wast not born for death, immortal bird!
No hungry generations tread thee down;
The voice I hear this passing night. was heard
In ancient days by emperor and clown.

Keats. To a Nightingale. St. 7.
Where the nightingale doth sing
Not a senseless, tranced thing,
But divine melodious truth.
Ibid. Ode, "Bards of Passion and of Mirth." 1. 17.
Hark! ah, the nightingale-
The tawny-throated!
Hark, from that moonlit cedar what a burst!
What triumph! hark!-what pain!
O wanderer from a Grecian shore,
Still, after many years, in distant lands,
Still nourishing in thy hewilder'd brain
That wild, unquench'd, deep-sunken, old-world pain-
Say, will it never heal?
Math. ARNold. Philomela.

NO.

One made the observation of the people of Asia that they were all slaves to one man, merely because they could not pronounce that syllable No.

Plotarch. Morals. Of Bashfuness.
Have you not heard it said full oft,
A woman's nay doth stand for nought.
C. Marlowe. Pasionate Pilgrim. St. 14.

Julia. And yet, I would I had o'erlook'd the letter.
It were a shame to call her back again,
And pray her to a fanlt for which I chid her.
What fool is she, that knows that I am a maid,
And would not force the letter to my view 1
Since maids, in modesty, say No to that
Which they would have the profferer construe Ay.
Fie, fie! how wayward is this foolish love,
That, like a testy babe, will scratch the nurse,
And presently, all humbled, kiss the rod!
Shakespeare. Two Gentlemen of Verona. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 50.
The lasse saith no, and would full faine:
And this is Love, as I heare saine.
Sir Walter Raleige. What is Love?
Maids' nays are nothing, they are shy,
But to desire what they deny.
Herrick. Hesperides. Aphorism. 131.
And whispering, "I will ne'er consent," consented.

Byron. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 117.
I have heard, indeed, that two negatives make an affirmative; but I never heard before that two nothings ever made anything.

Duke of Buckingham. Speech in the House of Lords.
O Damsel Dorothy! Dorothy Q.!
Strange is the gift that I owe to you;
What if, a hundred years ago,
Those close-shut lips had answered No,
When forth the tremulous question came
That cost the maiden her Norman name,
And under the folds that look so still
The bodice swelled with the bosom's thrill?
Should I be I, or would it be
One-tenth another, to nine-tenths me? O. W. Holmes. Dorothy Q. St. 5.

NOBILITY.

(See Aristocracy; Rank.)
The nobly born must nobly meet his fate.

Euripides. Alemene. Fragment 100.
Whoso by nature's formed for noble deeds,
E'en though his skin be dark, is nobly born.
Menander. Fabula Incertæ. Fragment 4, 11, or EPICHARMOS. Fabulæ Incertw. Fragment

A noble soul is like a ship at sea,
That sleeps at anchor when the ocean's calm;
But when she rages, and the wind blows high,
He cuts his way with skill and majesty. beaumont and Fletcher. The Honest Man's Fortune. Act iv. Sc. 1.
Ay, these look like the workmanship of heaven;
This is the porcelain clay of human kind,
And therefore cast into these noble moulds.
Dryden. Don Sebastian. Act i. Sc. 1.
The precious porcelain of human clay. Byron. Don Juan. Canto iv. St. 11,

Whoe'er amidst the sons
Of reason, valor, liberty, and virtue
Displays distinguished merit, is a noble
Of Nature's own creating.
Thomson. Coriolanus. Act iii. Sc. 3.
Titles are marks of honest men, and wise :
The fool or knave that wears a title lies.
Young. Love of Fame. Satire i. 1. 145.
Howe'er it be, it seems to me,
'Tis only noble to be good.
Kind hearts are more than coronets,
And simple faith than Norman blood. Tennyson. Lady clara Vere de Vere. St. 7.
Better not to be at all
Than not be noble.
Ibid. The Princess. Pt. ii. 1. 79.
Very rich he is in virtues, very noblenoble, certes;
And I shall not blush in knowing that men call him lowly born.
E. B. Brownino. Lady Geraldine's Courtship. Concluding lines.

NONSENSE.

(See Folly.)
Misce stultitiam consiliis brevem:
Dulce est desipere in loco.
Mingle a little folly with your wisdom; a little nonsense now and then is pleasant.
Horace. Carmina. Bk. 1v. Ode 12, 1. 27.
[Conington's translation runs as follows: Be for once unwise; when time allows
'Tis sweet to play the fool.]
Aliquando et insanire jucundum est.
It is pleasant at times to play the madman.

Seneca. De Tranquillitate Animi. xvii. 10.

A little nonsense now and then Is relished by the wisest men.

Anon.
A careless song, with a little nonsense in it now and then, does not misbecome a monarch.

Horace Walpole. Letter to Sir Horace Mann. 1770.

Qui vit sans folie n'est pas si sage qu'il croit.
He who lives without committing any folly is not so wise as he thinks.

La Rochefoucauld. Maximes. 209.
Questio subtillissima, utrum Chimera, in vacuo bombinans, possit comedere secundas intentiones; et fuit debatuta per decem hebdomadas in concilio Constantiensi.

A most subtle question, whether a chimera buzzing in space could devour second intentions, and was debated for ten daily sittings in the Council of Constance.

Rabelals. Works. Bk. ii. Ch. vii.
[Rabelais pretends that this bit of nonsense was the title of a book which Pantagruel, on his visit to Paris, noticed in the library of St. Victor. It is an ohvious burlesque of the mediæval scholastic disputations.]

Go, call a coach, and let a coach be call'd,
And let the man who calleth be the caller,
And in his calling let him nothing call
But "Coach! Coach ! Coach ! Oh, for a coach, ye gods l"
Carex. Chrononhotonthologos. Act i. Sc. 3.

An oyster may be crossed in love! Who says
A whale's a bird ?-Haldid you call my love? -
He's here I he's there! he's everywhere! Ah mel he's nowhere!
R. B. Sherinan. The Critic. A Tragedy Rehearsed. Act iii. Sc. i.

Fluttering spread thy purple pinions,
Gentle Cupid, o'er my heart ;
I, a slave in thy donimions ;
Nature must give way to art. Pope. Song by a Person of Quality.

So she went into the garden to cut a cabbage-leaf to make an apple-pie; and at the same time a great she-uear coming up the street pops its head into the shop. "What! no soap?" So be died, and she very imprudently married the barber; and there were present the Picninnies and the Joblilies and the Garulilies and the Great Panjandrum himself with the little round button at top. And they all fell to playing the game of "catch as catch can" till the gunpowder ran out at the heels of their boots.

Samuel Foote.

[Written to test the powers of one who had bragged that he could commit to memory any dozen lines at the first reading.]

Bombastes. So have I heard on Afric's burning shore
A hungry lion give a grievous roar;
The grievous roar echoed along the shore.
Artax. So have I heard on Afric's burning shore
Another lion give a grievons roar ;
And the first lion thought the last a bore.
William B. Rhones Bombastes Furioso. Act i. Sc. 4.

If down his throat a man should choose, In fun, to jump or slide,
He'd scrape his shoes against his teeth,
Nor dirt his own inside.
Or if his teeth were lost and gone,
And not a stump to scrape upon,
He'd see at once how very pat
His tongue lay there, by way of mat,
And he would wipe his feet on that! Edmund Cannon. Impromptu.

There was an Old Man who said, "How Shall I flee from this horrible Cow?
I will sit on this stile, and continue to smile,
Which may soften the heart of that Cow."

Edmund Lear. Book of Nonsense.

The piper he piped on the hill-top bigh
(Butter and eggs and a pound of cheese),
Till the cow said, "I die," and the goose said, "Why?"
And the dog said nothing, but searched for fleas.
C. S. Calverley. Ballad of the Period.

They dined on mince, with slices of quince,
Which they ate with a runcible spoon,
And hand in hand, on the edge of the sand,
They danced by the light of the moon, The moon !
The moon!
They danced by the light of the moon! edmund Lear. The Owl and the Pussy Cat.
They sought it with thimbles, they sought it with care;
They pursued it with forks and hope;
They threatened its life with a railway share;
They charmed it with smiles and soap.
C. L. Dodgson. The Hunting of the Snark.

But the principal failing occurred in the sailing,
And the Bellman, perplexed and distressed,
Said he had hoped, at least, when the wind blew due East,
That the ship would not travel due West !

Ibid. The Hunting of lhe Snark.
'Twas brillig, and the slithy toves
Did gyre and gimble in the wabe;
All mimsy were the borogoves,
And the mome raths outgrabe.
"Beware the Jabberwock, my son 1
The jaws that bite, the claws that catch !
Beware the Jubjub bird, and shon
The frumious Bandersnatch !"
Ibid. Jabberwocks.

NOSE.

Speed. O jest unseen, inscrutable, invisible,
As a nose on a man's face, or a weathercock on a steeple.
Sharespeare. Theo Genllemen of Verona. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 124.

As clear and as manifest as the nose in a man's face.

Burton. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. iii. Sec. 3. Memb. 4. Subsec. 1.
Nose, nose, nose, nose !
And who gave thee that jolly red nose?
Sinament and Ginger, Nutmegs and Cloves,
And that gave me my jolly red nose.
Ravenscroft. Deuterometa. Song No. 7. (1609.)
[Quoted in Beatmont and Fletcher, The Enight of the Burning Pestle, Act i. Sc. 3.'」
So saying, with delight he snuffed the smell
Of mortal change on earth.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. x. 1. 275.
So scented the grim feature, and upturned
His nostril wide into the murky air, Sagacious of his quarry from so far.

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. x. 1. 272.
If the nose of Cleopatra had been shorter, the whole face of the earth would have heen changed.

Pascal. Thoughts. Ch. viii. 29. (O. W. Wight, trams.)
Ah, qui jamais auroit pu dire
Que ce petit nez retronsse
Changerait les lois d'un empire?
Ah, who conld have ever foretold that that little retronssé nose would change the laws of an empire.

Charles Simon Favart. Les Trois Sultanes.
[Farart's tragedy is virtually a dramatization of Marmontel's tale founded on the history of Soleiman the Magnificent, Sultan of the Ottomans (1490-1566). Soleiman's favorite Sultana was Roxelane, who had been born a slave in Russia. Marmoutel says that sbe would never have been espoused by the Sultan bad not her nose been retroissé, thus affording a pleasant relief from the Saracenic hook-nose. To this day a retroussé nose is known in France as a nose à la Roxelane.]

Lightly was her slender nose
Tip-tilted like the petal of a flower. Tennyson. Gareth and Lynette.
She's an angel in a frock,
With a fascinating cock
To her nose.
Frederici Locker Lampson, My Mistress's Brats.

Any nose
May ravage with impunity a rose.
R. Browning. Sordello. Bk. vi.

NOTHING.

De nihilo nihil, in nihilum nil posse reverti.
Nothiag can come from nothing. Apt and plain!
Nothing return to nothing. Good again! Pergivg. Satires. iii. 83. (Gifforn, trans.)
[Literally:
Out of nothing nothing can come, and nothiag can become nothing.
Matter being considered eternal, the creation of the world out of nothing, and its ultimate resolution into nothingness, was held hy the school of Epicurus to be absurd.

Nil igitur fieri de uilo posse putandum es, Semine quando opus est rehus.
We cannot conceive of matter being formed of nothing, since things require a seed to start from.

Lucretius. De Rerum Natura. 1. 206.

Nothing proceeds from nothingness, as also nothing passes away into non-existence.

Marcus Aurellus. Quod Sibi Ipsi.Scripsit. Meditations. iv. 4.

Haud igitur redit ad nihilum res ulla.
Nothing therefore returns to nothingness. Lucretids. De Rerum Natura. i. 242 .
As having nothing and yet possessing all things.

New Testament. II. Corinthians vi. 10.
I have everything, yet bave nothing; and although I possess nothing, still of nothing am I in want.

Terence. Eunuchus. Act ii. Sc. 2, 12. (243.)

Ad Kalendas Græcas.

At the Greek Kalends. The next day after never.
[As the Greeks bad no Kalends, the phrase is used of anything that can never possihly take place. According to Suetonius, the saying was often in the mouth of Augustus in speaking of the probability of his paying his creditors.]

There is nothing to write about, you say. Well, then, write and let me know just this,-that there is nothing to write about; or tell me in the good old style if you are well. That's right. I am quite well.

Pliny the Younger. Letters. Bl. i. Letter xi. 1.

Bassanio. Where every something, being blent together, Turns to a wild of nothing.

Shakripeare. Merchant of Venice. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 184.

Richard. Whate' er I be,
Nor I, nor any man that but man is,
With nothing shall be pleas'd, till he be eas'd
With being nothing.
Ibid. Richard II. Act v. Sc. 5. 1. 39.
Nothing speaks our grief so well
As to speak nothing.
Crashaw. Upon the Death of a Gentleman. 1. 27.
Nothing! thou elder brother e'en to shade.

Rochester. Poem on Nothing.

They have learned nothing and forgotten nothing.
[This saying concerning the Bourhons is attributed to Talleyrand. In a letter of the Chevalier de Panat to Mallet du Pan, January, 1796, it occurs almost literally,-"No one is right; no one could forget anything nor learn anything.']
Nothing was born ;
Nothing will die;
All things will change.
Tennyson. Nothing Will Die. St. 3.
A life of nothings, nothing worth,
From that first nothing ere his birth
To that last nothing under earth.
Ibid. The Two Voices. St. 3.

NOVELTY.

There is no new thing under the sun. Old Testament. Ecclesiastes i. 9.
There is nothing new except what has been forgotten.
[Saying attributed to Mademoiselle Bertin, milliner to Marie Antoinette.
" There is nothing new except that which has become antiquated," was the motto of the "Revue Retrospective."]

Est quoque cunctarum novitas carissima rerum.

In all things what we most prize is novelty.

Ovin. Epistolæ ex Ponto. iii. 4, 51.
Natura hominum novitatis avida.
Human nature is greedy of novelts.
Pliny the Elder. Natural History. Bk. xii. Sec. 5.

Indeed, what is there that does not appear marvellous when it comes to our knowledge for the first time? How many things, too, are looked upon as quite impossible until they have been actually effected?

Pliny the Elner. Natural History. Bk. vii. Sec. 6.

There's naught so easy, but when it was new Seemed difficult of credence, and there's naught
So great, so wonderful, when first'tis seen, But men will later cease to marvel at it.

Lucretius. De Rerum Natura. ii. 1024.
Let not things, because they are common, enjoy for that the less share of our consideration.

Pliny the Elder. Naturat History. Bk. xix. Sec. 59.

New opinions are always suspected and usually opposed, for no other reason than because they are not already common.

Locke. Essay on the Human Understanding. Dedicatory Epistle.

Clothing tbe palpable and familiar
With golden exhalations of the dawn.
Schiller. Death of Wallenstein. Act i . Sc. 1. (Coleridge, trans.)

King Henry. Rob, murder, and commit
The oldest sins the newest kind of ways. Shakespeare. II. Henry IV. Act iv. Sc. 5. 1. 127.

Ah well I wot that a new broome sweepeth cleane.

Lyly. Euphues.
Be not the first by whom the new are tried,
Nor yet the last to lay the old aside.
Pope. Essay on Criticism. Pt. ii. 1. 133.
Strange the world about me lies
Never yet familiar grown-
Still disturbs me with surprise,
Haunts me like a face half known.
In this house with starry dome,
Floored with gem-like plains and seas,
Shall I never feel at home,
Never wholly be at ease?
Wm. Watson. World-strangeness.
There was another fine passage, too, which he struck out: "When I was a young man, being anxions to distinguish myself, I was perpetually starting new propositions. But I soon gave this over ; for I found that generally what was new was false."

Boswell. Life of Johnson. Vol. vii. Ch. viii. (1779.)

I have read their platform, and though I think there are some unsound places in it, I can stand apon it pretty well. But I see nothing in it both new and valuable. "What is valuable is not ncw, and what is new is not valuable."
Daniel Webster. Works. Vol. iii. Speech al Marshfleld, September 1, 1848.
This new page opened in the book of our public expenditures, and this new departure taken, which leads into the hottomless gulf of civil pensions and family gratuities.
T. H. Benton. Speech in the United States Senate against a Grant to President Harrison's Widow, April, 1841.

NUDITY.

And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed.
oid Testament. Genesis ii. 25.
And he said, Naked came I ont of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither.

Ibid. Job i. 21.
Naked came we into the world, and naked. shall we depart from it.

无sop. Fabies. cxx. The Bald-headed Horseman.
Lear. Poor naked wretches, wheresoe'er yon are,
That bide the pelting of this pitiless storm,
How shall your houseless heads and unfed sides,
Your looped and windowed raggedness, defend you
From seasons such as these?
Shakespeare. King Lear. Act iii. Sc. 4. 1.28.

A kind and gentle heart he had,
To comfort friends and foes:
The naked every day he clad,
When he put on his clothes.
Goldsmith. Elegy on the Death of a Mrad Dog.
Lives the man that can figure a naked
Duke of Windlestraw addressing a naked House of Lords?

Carlyle. Sartor Resartus. Bk. i. Ch. ix.

> We shift and bedeck and bedrape us, Thou art noble and nude and antique. Swinbubne. Dotures.

NUMBERS.

Why is it that we entertain the belief that for every purpose odd numbers are the most effectual?

Pliny the Elder. Natural History. Bk. xxviii. Ch. $v$.
(See under Chance; Luck.)
One on God's side is a majority.
Wendell Phillips. Speech. Harper's Ferry, November 1, 1859.
That cause is strong which has not a multitude, but one strong man behind it.

Lowell. Democracy and Other Addresses. Address, Chelsea, Mass., December $22,1885$.
Sliall we judge a country by the majority or by the minority? By the minority, surely.

Emerson. Conduct of Life. Considerations by the Way.

OATH.

My tongue has sworn it, but my mind's unsworn.

EURIPIDES. Hippolyta. 612.
[Cicero's Latin translation is often quoted: Juravi lingua, mentem injuratam gero.]
Biron: Or, having sworn too hard-a-keeping oath,
Study to break it and not break my troth. SHAKESPEARE. Love's Labour's Lost. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 65 .

Salisbury. It is a great sin to swear unto a sin,
But greater sin to keep a sinful oath.
Ibid. II. Henry VI. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 182.

Clarence. Perhaps, thou wilt object my holy oath?
To keep that oath were more impiety
Than Jephtha's, when he sacrific'd his daughter.
Ibid. III. Henry VI. Act v. Sc. 1. 1.89.
Ease would recant
Vows made in pain, as violent and void.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. 1. 96.
He that imposes an oath makes it,
Not he that for convenience takes it;
Then how can any man be said
To break an oath he never made?
Samuel Butler. Hudibras. Pt. ii. Canto ii. 1. 377,

It is not the oath that makes us believe the man, but the man the oath. Ascry lus. Fragment 385 .
Diana. 'Tis not the many oaths that make the truth;
But the plain single vow that is vow'd true.

To lose an oath to win a paradise?
Ibid. Love's Labour's Lost. Act iv. Sc. 3. 1. 72.

Sir Toby Belch. For it comes to pass oft that a terrible oath, with a swaggering accent sharply twanged off, gives manhood more approbation than ever proof itself would have earned him.
Ibid. Twelfth Night. Act iii. Sc.4. 1. 169.
Shylock. An oath, an oath, I have an oath in heaven:
Shall I lay perjury upon my sonl?
No, not for Venice.
Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Activ. Sc. 1. 1. 223.

Hotspur. Swear me, Kate, like a lady as thou art,
A good mouth-filling oath.
Ibid. 1. Henry IV. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 254.
Juliet. Do not swear at all;
Or, if thou wilt, swear by thy gracious self,
Which is the god of my idolatry,
And I'll believe thee.
Ibir. Romeo and Juliet. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 112.
(See under Gops and Moon.)
Take not His name, who made thy mouth, in vain;
It gets thee nothing, and hath no excuse. Herbert. Temple. Church Porch. St. 10.

Vows with so much passion, swears with so much grace,
That 't is a kind of Heaven to be deluded by him.
Nathaniel Lee. The Rival Queens; or, Alexander the Great. Act i. Sc. 1.
I will take my corporal oath on it.
Ceryantes. Don Quixole. Pt. i. Bk. iv. Ch. $\mathbf{x}$.

Oaths are but words, and words but wind.

Un menteur est toujours prodigue de serments.

A liar is always lavish of oatlis. Corneille. Le Menteur. iii. 5.

A giurar presti i mentitor son sempre.
Liars are always most disposed to swear. Alfieri. Virginia. ii. 3.

And for the support of this declaration, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

Thomas Jefferson. Declaration of Independence.

They fix attention, heedless of your pain,
With oaths like rivets forced into the brain;
And e'en when sober truth prevails throughout,
They swear it, till affirmance breeds a doubt.

Cowper. Conversation. 1. 63.
And hast thou sworn on every slight pretence,
Till perjuries are common as bad pence,
While thousands, careless of the dame ing sin,
Kiss the book's outside, who ne'er look'd within?

Ibid. Expostulation. 1. 384.
Jack was embarrassed-never hero more,
And as he knew not what to say, he swore. Byron. The Island. Canto iii. St. 5.
A demd, damp, moist, unplcasant body!
Dicerns. Nicholas Nickelby. Ch. xxxiv.
I made them lay their hands in mine and swear
To reverence the King, as if he were
Their conscience, and their conscience as their King.
To break the heathen and uphold the Christ,
To ride abroad redressing human wrongs,
To speak no slander, no, nor listen to it,

To honour liss own word as if his God's, To lead sweet lives in purest chastity, To love one maiden only, cleave to her, And worship her by years of noble deeds,
Until he won her.
Temnyson. Idylls of the King. Guinevere. 1. 463.

OBEDIENCE.

York. Let them obey that know not how to rule.

Shakespeare. II. Henry VI. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 6.

One so small
Who knowing nothing knows but to obey. Tennyson. Idylls of the King. Guinevere. 1. 183.

Wolsey. The bearts of princes kiss obedience,
So much they love it: but to stubborn spirits,
They swell, and grow as terrible as storms.
Shakespeare. Henty VIII. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 162.

Antiochus. It fits thee not to ask the reason why,
Because we bid it.
Ibid. Pericles. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 157.
Henceforth I learn that to obey is hest, And love with fear the only God.

Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. xii. 1. 561.
Let thy child's first lesson be obedience, and the second will be what thou wilt.

Benjamin Franklin. Poor Richard's Almanac.

Power, like a desolating pestilence,
Pollutes whate'er it touches ; and obedience,
Bane of all genius, virtue, freedom, truth,
Makes slaves of men, and of the buman frame
A mechanized automaton.
Shelley. Queen Mab. iii. 1. 183.
Obedience is the bond of rule.
TENNYSON. Morte d'Arthur. 1. 94.
Obedience is the courtesy due to kings. Ibid, Launcelot and Elaine. St. 31,

By contenting ourselves with obedience we become divine.

Oblivion is not to he hired.
sir Thomas Browne. Hydriotaphia. Cb. v.

Far off from these a slow and silent stream,
Lethè, the river of oblivion, rolls
Her watery labyrinth, whereof who drinks
Forthwith his former state and being forgets,
Forgets both joy and grief, pleasure and pain.
Miluon. Paradise Lost. Bk. il. 1. 582.
Thus let me live, unseen, unknown,
Thus unlamented let me die;
Steal from the world, and not a stone Tell where I lie.

Pope. Ode on Solitude. Concluding lines.

How happy is the blameless vestal's lot !
The world forgetting, by the world forgot:
Eternal sunshine of the spotless mind!
Each prayer accepted, and each wish resign'd ;

Labour and rest, that equal periods keep;
"Obedient slumbers that can wake and weep";
Desires composed, affections ever even. Pope. ELoisa to Abelard. 1. 207.
Of all aflliction taught a lover yet,
'Tis sure the hardest science to forget. Ibid. Eloisa to Abelard. 1. 189.
As flashes of dawn that mists from an east wind smother
With fold upon fold,
The past years gleam that linked us one with another. SWINRURNE. A Century of Roundels.

The silence of neglect can ne'er appall. beatite. The Minsirel. Bl. i. st. 2.
Some write their wrongs in marble: he, more just,
Stoop'd down serene and wrote them in the dust,
Trod under foot, the sport of every wind,
Swept from the earth and blotted from his mind.
There, secret in the grave, he bade them lie,
And grieved they could not'scape the Almighty eye.
SamUEL MADDEN. Boulter's Monument.
Obliviou is the dark page whereon memory writes her lightbeam characters, and makes them legible; were it all light, nothing could be read there, any more than if it were all darkness.

Carlyle. Essays. On History Again.
But each day brings its petty dust
Our soon-chok'd souls to fill,
And we forget because we must,
And not because we will.
Matteew arnold. Abence.

OBSERVATION.

Bastard. For he is but a bastard to the time,
That doth not smack of observation.
Shafegpeare. King John. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 208.

Jaques. In his brain,
Wbich is as dry as the remainder biscuit
After a voyage, he hath strange places cramm'd
With observation, the which he vents In mangled forms.

Shakespeare. As You Like It. Act ii. Sc. 7. 1.38.
Armado. How hast thou purchased this experience?

Moth. By my penny of observation. Ibid. Love's Labour's Lost. Act iii. Sc. 1. 1. 23.

Let observation with expansive view
Survey mankind from China to Peru.
Dr. Johnson. Variety of Human Wishes. 1. 1.
[De Quincy, in hia Essay on Rhetoric, quotes approvingly from "a little biographical sketch of Dr. Johnson, pablished immediately after his death," the objection that the above lines are desperately tautological. "Put in other words they mean simply " Let observation with extensive observation observe mankind extensively." It has also been pointed out that the phrase "from China to Peru" is not original:
The wondera of each region view
From frozen Lapland to Peru.
Soame Jenyns. Epistle to Lord Lovelace. (1713.)
'Tis nothing, when a fancied scene's in view
To skip from Covent Garden to Peru.
Sir Richard Steele. Prologue to Ambrose PHILLIPs' The Distressed Mother.

All human race, from China to Peru,
Pleasnre, howe'er disgnised by art, pursue. Thomas Warton. Universal Love of Pleasure.]

OBSTINACY.

(See Will.)
Novi ego ingenium viri
Indocile: flecti non potest, frangi potest.
I know the stubborn temper of the man;
He may be broken but can ne'er be bent.
Senec. Thyestes. 199.
A man may well bring a horse to the water.
But he cannot make him drinke without he will.
John Heywood. Proverbs. Bk. i. Ch. xi.

Camillo. You may as well
Forbid the sea for to obey the moon, As, or by oath, remove; or counsel, shake

The fabric of his folly, whose foundation
Is pil'd upon his faith, and will continue The standing of his body.

Shakespeare. The Winter's Tale. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 427.

Man is a creature of a wilful head,
And bardly driven is, but eas'ly led.
S. Daniel. The Queen's Arcadia. Act iv. Sc. 5.

For fools are stubhorn in their way,
As coins are harden'd by th' allay;
And obstinacy's ne'er so stiff
As when 'tis in a wrong belief.
Butler. Hudibras. Pt. iii. Canto ii. 1. 481.

He that complies against his will
Is of his own opinion still.
Ibid. Hudibras. Pt. iii. Canto Lii. 1. 547.
Peraistently misquoted (and improved) thus:
"A man convinced against his will," etc.
Mrs. Malaprop. (She is) as headstrong as an allegory on the banks of the Nile.

Sheridan. The Rivals. Act iii. Sc. 2.

OCEAN.

(See Sea.)
Camillo. To unpathed waters, undreamed shores.

Shakespeare. The Winter's Tale. Act iv. Sc. 4. 1. 558.

Well pleased they slack their course, and many a league
Cheered with the grateful smell old Ocean smiles.
Militon. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. 1. 164.
Where the broad ocean leans against the land.

Goldsmite. The Traveller. 1. 288.
(See inder Holland.)
Past are three summers since she first beheld
The ocean; all around the child await
Some exclamation of amazement here.
She coldly said, her long-lasht eyes abased,
Is this the mighty ocean? is this all?
That wondrous soul Charoba once pos-sest,-
Capacious, then, as earth or heaven could hold,
Soul discontented with capacity,-

Is gone (I fear) forever. Need I say She was enchanted by the wicked spells Of Gebir, whom with lust of power inflamed
Tlie western winds have landed on our coast?
I since have watcht her in lone retreat,
Have heard her sigh and soften ont the name.

Landor. Gebir. Bk. ii.
Once more upon the waters! yet once more
And the waves bound beneath me as a steed
That knows his rider. Welcome, to their roar !
Swift be their guidance, wheresoe'er it lead
Though the strain'd mast should quiver as a reed,
And the rent canvas fluttering strew the gale,
Still must I on; for I am as a weed,
Flung from the rock, on Ocean's foam, to sail
Where'er the surge may sweep, the tempest's breath prevail.
Byron. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 2.
Roll on, thou deep and dark blue Ocean -roll !
Ten thousand fleets sweep over thee in vain;
Man marks the earth with roin-his control
Stops with the shore;-opon the watery plain
The wrecks are all thy deed, nor doth remain
A shadow of man's ravage, save his own,
When, for a moment, like a drop of rain,
He sinks into thy depths with bubbling groan,
Without a grave, unknell'd, uncoffin'd, and umknown.
Ibid. Childe Harold. Canto iv. St. 179. (See under Muramer.)

Time writes no wrinkle on thy azure brow-
Such as creation's dawn beheld, thou rollest now.
Ibid. Childe Harold. Canto iv. St. 182.

His deeds inimitable, like the sea
That shuts still as it opes, and leaves no tracts
Nor prints of precedent for poor men's facts. George Chapman. Buzsy d'Ambois. Act i. Sc. 1.

See Time has touched me gently in his race. And left no odious furrows in my face.

Crarbe. Tales of the Hall. Bk. xvii. The Widow. St. 3.
And thou, vast occan! on whose awful face Time's iron feet can print no ruin-trace.
R. Montgomery. The Omnipresence of the Deity. Pt. l.
Thou glorious mirror, where th' Almighty's form
Glasses itself in tempests; all in time, Calm or convulsed, in breeze, or gale, or storm,
Icing the pole, or in the torrid clime,
Dark-heaving ;-boundless, endless, and sublime,
Th' image of Eternity-the throne
Of th' Invisible; even from out thy slime
The monsters of the deep are made; each zone
Obeys thee; thou goest forth, dread, fathomless, alone.
Byron. Childe Haroid. Canto iv. St. 183.
And I have loved thee, Ocean! and my joy
Of youthful sports was on thy breast to be Borne, like thy bubbles, onward: from a boy
I wanton'd with thy breakers-they to me
Were a delight; and if the freshening sea
Made them a terror-'twas a pleasing fear,
For I was as it were a child of thee,
And trusted to thy billows far and near,
And laid my hand upon thy mane-as I do liere.
Ibid. Childe Harold. Canto iv. St. 184.
I'll bid him welcome, clap his mane,
And hug his breakers to my breast.
George Gray. The Storm.
He laid his hand upon "the ocean's mane," And played familiar with his hoary locks.' Pollor. The Course of Time. Bk.iv. l. 389.

Old ocean's gray and melancholy waste. Bryant. Thanatopbis. 1. 43.

A life on the ocean wave, A home on the rolling deep, Where the scattered waters rave, And the winds their revels keep!

Epes Sargent. A Life on the Ocean Wave.

OFFICE.

Places do not ennoble men, but men make places illustrious.

Plutarch. Laconic Apothegms. Agesilaus.
No post the man

Ennobles:-man tbe post!

Bulwer Lytton. King Arthur. Bk. xii.
Men in great place are thrice ser-vants,-servants of the sovereign or state, servants of fame, and servants of business.

Bacon. Essays. Of Great Place.
The phrase, " Public office is a public trust," has of late become common property.

Charles Sumner. (May 31, 1872.)
[It seems to have been a gradual evolution, whose processes may be studied in the following excerpts:
1t is not fit the public trusts should be lodged in the hands of any till they are first proved, and found fit for the business they are to be intrusted with.

Mathew Henry. Commentaries. Timothy iii $i$.
To execute laws is a royal office; to execute orders is not to be a king. However, a political executive magistracy, tbough merely such, is a great trust.

Burke. On the French Revolution.
When a man assumes a public trust, he should consider himself as public property.

THOMAS JEFFERSON in a conversation with Baron Humboldt. (See Rayner. Life of Jefferson.) p. 356.
Government is a trast, and the officers of the government are trustees; and both the trust and the trustees are created for the benefit of the people.

Henry Clay. Speech at Ashland, Ky. March, 1829.
The very essence of a free government consists in considering offices as public trusts, bestow ed for the good of the country, and not for the benefit of an individual ora party.
John C. Calmoun. Speech. July 13, 1835.]
Whenever a man has cast a longing eye on offices, a rottenness begins in his conduct.

Thomas Jefferson. Letter to Tench Coxe. 1799.

OMENS.

Nomen atque omen.
An omen in the name.
Plautus. Persa. Act iv. Sc. 4. 1. 73.
Horatio. In what particular thought to work I know not;
But, in the gross and scope of mine opinion,
This bodes some strange eruption to our state.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 67.

Horatio. In the most high and palmy state of Rome,
A little ere the mightiest Julius fell,
The graves stood tenantless, and the sheeted dead
Did squeak and gibber in the Roman streets:
As stars with trains of fire and dews of blood,
Disasters in the sun; and the moist star,
Upon whose influence Neptune's empire stands,
Was sick almost to dooms-day with eclipse.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 113.
Lenox. The night has been unruly: where we lay,
Our chimneys were blown down; and, as they say,
Lamentings heard $i^{\prime}$ the air, strange screams of death,
And prophesying, with accents terrible, Of dire combustion and confus'd events, New-hatch'd to the woful time. The obscure bird
Clamour'd the livelong night ; some say, the earth
Was feverous, and did shake.
Ibid. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc. 3. 1. 52.
Calphurnia. When beggars die, there are no comets seen;
The heavens themselves blaze forth the death of princes.
Ibid. Julius Cæsar. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 30.
Third Citizen. When clouds appear, wise men put on their cloaks;
When great leaves fall, the winter is at hand;
When the sun sets, who doth not look for night?

Untimely storms make men expect a dearth:
All may be well; but, if God sort it so,
'Tis more than we deserve, or I expect. Shakrspeare. Richard ITI. Act ii. Sc. 3. 1. 32 .

King Henry. The owl shriels'd at thy birth, an evil sign ;
The night-crow cried, aboding luckless time ;
Dogs how'd, and hideous tempests shook down trees;
The raven rook'd her on the chimney's top,
And chattering pies in dismal discords sung.
Ibid. III. Henry VI. Act. v. Sc. 6. 1.47.
That raven on yon left-hand oak
(Curse on his ill-betiding croak)
Bodes me no good.
Gay. Fabbes. The Farmer's Wife and the Raven. 1. 27.
it wasn't for nothing that the raven was just now croaking on my left hand. Plautus. Aulularia. Activ. Sc. 3.
This day black omens threat the brightest fair
That e'er deserved a watchful spirit's care;
Some dire disaster, or by force or slight;
But what, or where, the fates have wrapt in night.
Whether the nymph shall break Diana's law,
Or some frail China jar receive a flaw;
Or stain her honour, or her new brocade;
Forget her prayers, or miss a masquerade;
Or lose her heart, or necklace, at a ball;
Or whether Heaven has doom'd that Shock must fall.
POPE. Rape of the Lock. Canto ii. 1. 101.
'Tis the sunset of life gives me mystical lore,
And coming events cast their shadows before. CAMPBELL. Lochiel's Warning. 1.55.
Sed ita a principio inchoatum esse mundum ut certis rebus certa signa præcurrerent.

Thus in the beginning the world was so made that certain signs come before certain events.

Cicero. Divinalione. Liber i. Cap. 52.

Often do the spirits Of great events stride on before the events, And in to day already walks to-morrow.

SCHIlLer. Death of Wallenstein. Act $v$. Sc. I. (Colerivee, trans.)
Poets are the hierophants of an unapprehended inspiration; the mirrors of the gigantic shadows which futurity casts upon the present.

Shelley. A Defence of Poetry.

OPINION.

Quot homines tot sententix; suus cuique mus.

As many men, so many minds; every one his own way.

Terence. Phormio. Act ii. Sc. 4.
Quot capitum vivunt, totidem studiorum Millia.
Count all the folks in the world, you'll find A separate fancy for each separate mind.

Horace. Satires. ii. 1, 27. (CONINGTON, trans.)
So many heads, so many wits.
J. Heywoon. Proverbs. Bk. i. Ch. iii.

As the saynge is, so many heades, so many wyttes.

Queen Elizabeth, Godty Meditacyon of the Christen Soule.
There never was in the world two opinions alike, no more than two hairs, or two grains ; the most universal quality is diversity.

Montaigne. Essays. Ofthe Resemblance of Children to their Fathers.
Talk what you will of taste, my friend,
you'li find
Two of a face as soon as of a mind.
Pope. Satires and Epistles. Satire vi. 1. 268.

Enobarbus. Men's judgments are
A parcel of their fortunes; and things outward
Do draw the inward quality after them,
To suffer all alike. Shakespeare. Antony and Cleopatra. Act iii. Sc. 13. 1. 31.
Gratiano. Fish not, with this melancholy bait,
For this fool gudgeon, this opinion.
Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Aet i. Sc. i. 1. 102.

Thersites. A plague of opinion ! a man may wear it on both sides, like a leather jerkin,

Ibid. Troilus and Cressida. Act iii. Sc. 3. 1. 265 .

Macbeth. I have bought
Golden opinions from all sorts of people,
Which would be worn now in their newest gloss,
Not cast aside so soon.
Shakespeare. Macbeth. Act i. Sc. 7.1. s2.

Opinion in good men is but knowledge in the making.

Milton. Areopagitica.
Opinion! which on crutches walks, And sounds the words another talks. Lloyd. The Poet. 1.55.

Some praise at morning what they blame at night,
But always think the last opinion right. Pope. Essay on Crticism. Pt. ii. 1. 230.
'Tis with our judgments as our watches, none
Go just alike, yet each believes his own. Ibid. Essay on Criticism. Pt. i. 1.9.

But as when an authentic watch is shown, Each man winds up and rectifies his own, So in our very judgments. Sir John Sucking. Aglaura. Epilogue.

Monuments of the safety with which errors of opinion may be tolerated where reason is left free to combat it.

Thomas Jefferson. Inaugural Address, March 4, 1801.

Men are never so good or so bad as their opinions.

Mackintosh. Ethical Philosophy.
Popular opinions, on subjects not palpable to sense, are often true, but seldom or never the whole truth.
Joenn Stuart Mile. On Liberty. Ch. ii.
Truth is one forever absolute, but opinion is truth filtered through the moods, the blood, the disposition of the spectator.

Wendell Phillips. Orations, Speeches, Lectures, and relters. Idols.
The chief good is the suspension of the judgment, which tranquillity of mind follows like its shadow.

Diooenes Laertics. Pyrrho. xí.
I traversed a dominion
Whose spokesmen spake out strong Their purpose and opinion

Througlı pulpit, press, and song.

I saw, in web unbroken, Its listory outwrought
Not as the Ioud had spoken,
But as the mute had thought.
Hardy. Wessex Poems.

OPPORTUNITY.

Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die.

New Testament. I. Corinthians xp. 32.
Then I commended mirth, because a man hath no hetter thing under the sun, than to eat, and to drink, and to bc merry.

Old Testament. Eeclesiastes viii. 15.
Drink, sport, for life is mortal, short upon earth our days;
But death is deathless, once a man is dead.
AмрPLis. Gyngecocratia. Fragment.
Eat, drink, and play, and think that is bliss: There is no heaven but this;

There is no hell
Save earth, which serves the purpose doubly well.
A. H. Clovgh. Spirit's Song in Dipsychus.

Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation. New Testamend IE. Corinthians vi. 2.
Carpe diem.
Seize the present day.
horace. Odes. Bk. i. Ode 11. 1. 8.
[The context runs as follows:
Sapias, vina liques et spatio hrevi
Spem longam reseces. Dum loquimur, fugerit invida
压tas: carpe diem, quam minimum credula postero.
Strain your wine, and prove your wisdom : life is short, should hope be more?
In the moment of our talking, envious time has slipped away.
Seize the present; trust to-morrow e'en as little as you may.
(Conington, trans.)].
Catch, then, oh catch the transieut hour ;
1mprove each moment as it flies!
Life's a shoxt summer, man a flower;
He dies-alas! how soon he dies !
Dr. Johnson. Winter. An Ode.
Dum vivimus, vivamus.

Unknown.

[The earliest known appearance of this familiar Latin phrase is in Inscriptiones Grutuli, a mediæval collection of proverbs.]
"Live, while you live," the epicure would say,
"And seize the pleasures of the present day";
"Live, while you live," the sacred preacher cries,
"And give to God each moment as it flies."
Lord, in my views let both united be;
I live in pleasure, when I live to Thee.
PHILIP DODDRIDGE. Lines written under Motto of his Family Arms.

I slept, and dreamed that life was Beauty ;
I woke, and found that life was Duty.
Was thy dream then a shadowy lie?
Toil on, poor heart, unceasingly;
And thou shalt find thy dream to he
A truth and noonday light to thee.
Ellen Stureis Hooper. Life a Duty.
Let us crown ourselves with rose-buds, before they be withered.

Old Testament. Apocrypha. Wisdom of Solomon. ii, 8.

Carpite florem,
Qui nisi carptus erit, turpiter ipse cadet.
Pluck the flower,
For if you pluck it not, 'twill fade and fall. Ovid. Art of Love. iii. 179.

Gather therefore the rose whilest yet is prime,
For soone comes age that will her pride deflowre;
Gather the rose of love whilest yet is time,
Whilest loving thou mayst loved be with equall crime.
Spenser. The Faerie Queene. Bk. ii. Canto Xii. St. 75.

Make use of time, let not advautage slip;
Beauty within itself should not he wasted:
Fair flowers that are not gather'd in their prime,
Rot and consume themselves in little time.
Shakespeare. Venus and Adonis. St. 22.

Strong is the soul, and wise, and beautiful;
The seeds of god-like power are in us still;
Gods are we, bards, saints, heroes, if we will.
Math. Arnolo. Written in Emerson's Essays.

Sweet lady mine! while yet 'tis time,
Requite my passion and my truth,
And gather in their blushing prime
The roses of your youth.
Ronsard. Lines to His Mistress. Concluding lines. (Thackeray, trans.)

If you let slip time, likc a neglected rose,
It withers on the stock with languish'd hcad.

Milton. Comus. 1. 743.

Gather ye rosebuds while ye may, old time is still a flylug:
And this same flower that smiles to-day
To-morrow will be dying.
Herkick. Hesperides. To the Virgins, to Make Much of Time.

Then be not coy, but use your timc,
And while you may, go marry;
For having lost but once your prime, You may for ever tarry.

Ibid. Hesperides. To the Virgins, to Make Much of Time.

Life let us cherish, while yet the taper glows,
And the fresh flow'ret pluck ere it close;
Why are we fond of toil and care?
Why choose the rankling thorn to wear?
J. M. Usterl. Life Let U8 Cherish.

Nunc est profecto, interfici, cum perpeti me possum,
Ne hoc gaudium contaminel vita aegritudine aliqua.
Now sure 's the moment when I ought to die,
Lest some hereafter bitterness in life
Impair this joy.
Terence. Eunuchus. Act iii. Sc. 5, 3. (W. F. H. King, trans.)

Othello. If it were now to die,
'Twere now to be most happy ; for, I fear,
My soul hath her content so absolute,
That not another comfort like to this
Succeeds in unknown fate.
Shakespeare. Othello. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 187.

And conld we choose the time, and choose aright,
'Tis best to die, our honour at the height.
Dryden. Palomon and Arcite. Bk. iii.

1. 1086.

Ottima. Sebald, as we lay,

Who said, "Let death come now! 'tis right to die!
Right to be punished! nought completes such bliss
But woe !" Who said that?
Robert Brownino. Pippa Passes.
Ille potens sui
Laetusque deget, cui licet in diem
Dixisse, "Vixi."
Happy he
Self-centred, who each night can say,
"My life is lived."
Horace. Odes. Bk, ili. Ode 29. 1. 41. (Conineton, trans.)

Not heaven itself upon the past has power;
But what has been, has been, and I have had my hour.
Drynen. Imitation of Horace. Bk. iil. Ode xxis. 1.71:

Amariorem enim me senectus facit. Stomachor omnia. Sed mihi quidem $\beta \in \beta i \omega \tau a l$. Viderint juvenes.

Old age makes me sour. The least thing puts me out. However, as far as I am concerned, I have lived my time. Let the young men look to it.

Cicero. Epistolarum ad Atticum. xiv. 21, 3.

Ich habe genossen das irdische Glück,
Ich habe gelebt und geliebet.
I have enjoyed earthly happiness,
I have lived and loved.
Schiller. Piccolomini. iii. 7, 9.
I die,-but first I have possess'd,
And come what may, I have been bless'd. BYRON. The Giaour. 1. 1114.
J'ai vécu.
I existed.
Famous mot of Sieyès when asked what be did during the "Terror" of the Revolution.

Mignet. Notices Hist. 1, 81.
You should hammer your iron when it is glowing hot.

Publilius Sybus. Maxim 262.
Strike whilst the iron is hot.
Rabelals. Bk. ii. Ch. xxxi.
It is a maxim universally agreed upon in agriculture, that nothing must be done too late; and again, that everything must be done at its proper season ; while there is a third precept which reminds us that opportunities lost can never be regained.

Pliny the Elder. Natural History. Bk. xviii. Sec. 44.
Take Time by the forelock: Thales of Miletus.
[Likewise attributed to Pittacus, author of the Seven Wise Men of Greece. Time (Cronos in Greek, Saturn in Latin) was pairted and sculptured by the ancients with a perfectly bald pate, save for a single lock in front.]
King. Let's take the instant by the forward top;
For we are old, and on our quick'st decrees
Th' inapdible and noiseless foot of time Steals, ere we can effect them.

Syakespeare. All's Well that Ends Well. Act V . Sc. 3. 1. 39.

Time wears all his locks before,
Take thou hold upon his forenead;
When he flies, he turns no more,
And behind his scalp is naked.
Works adjourned have many stays,
Long demurs breed new delays.
Robert Southwell. Loss in Delay.
Tell her the joyous Time will not be staid, Unlesse she doe him by the forelock take.

Spenser. Amoretil. 1xx.
Rem tibi quam nosces aptam dimittere noli;
Fronte capillata, post est occasio calva.
Let nothing pass which will advantage you ;
Hairy in front, Occasion's bald behind.
Dionysius Cato. Disticha de Moribus. ii. 26.
[Besides Saturn, or Time, the Romans also personified Occasion (or, in more idiomatic English, opportunity) as a god or goddess, standing on a rotating wheel, the feet fitted with winged sandals, the head hairy in front but bald behind. The hair veiled the face from the unwary, but offered a handhold to him who promptly recognized the flying figure. In other words, Occasion must be gripped from the front at the critical moment when it presents itself, or it will be beyond capture.]
Occasio prima sui parte comosa, posteriore calva
Quam si occupasis, teneas; elapsum
Non isse possit Jupiter reprehendere.
Opportunity has hair on her forebead, but is bald behind. If you meet her seize her, for once let slip Jove himself cannot catch her again.

Peaedrus.

When fair occasion calls, 'tis fatal to delay.

Lucan. Phorsalia. Bk. i. 1. 513. (Rowe, trans.)
For occasion hath all her hair on her forehead; when she is past, you may not recall her. She hath no tuft whereby you can lay hold on her, for she is bald on the hinder part of her head, and never returneth again.
Rabelais. Gorgantua. Bk. i. Ch. xxxyii.
(Urquhart and Motseux, trans.)
Zeal and duty are not slow;
But on occasion's forelock watchful wait.
Milton. Paradise Regained. Bk. 3, 1. 172.

Who lets slip fortune, her shall never find;
Occasion once past by, is bald hehind. Cowley. Pyramus and Thisbe. xv.
Brutus. There is a tide in the affairs of men,
Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune;

Omitted, all the voyage of their life
1s bound in shallows and in miseries.
On such a full sea are we now afloat,
And we must take the current when it serves,
Or lise our ventures.
SHAKespeare. Julius Cæsar. Activ. Sc. 3. 1.218.

When fortune favours, none but fools will dally.

Dryden. Epitogue VIII. To the Duke of Guise.
There is an hour in each man's life appointed
To make his happiness, if then he seize it.

Wordsworth. Desultory Stanzas. St. 9.
My County Guy, the hour is nigh,
The sun has left the lea,
The orange flower perfumes the bower,
The breeze is on the sea.
Scott. Quentin Durward. Ch.iv.
Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide,
In the strife of Truth with Falsehood, for the good or evil side;
Some great cause, God's new Messiah offering each the bloom or blight,
Parts the goats upon the left hand, and the sheep upon the right;
And the choice goes by forever 'twixt that darkness and that light.
James Russell Lowell. The Present Crisis. St. 5.

Then to side with Truth is noble when we share her wretched crust,
Ere her cause bring fame and profit, and 'tis prosperous to be just;
Then it is the hrave man chooses, while the coward stands aside,
Doubting in his abject spirit, till his Lord is crucified.

Ibid. The Present Crisis. St. $\mathbf{1 1}$.
Age is opportunity no less
Than youth itself, though in another dress,

And as the evening twilight fades away
The sky is filled with stars, invisible by day.
Longrellow. Morituri Salutamus. Concluding lines.

What is opportunity to the man who can't use it? An unfecundated egg, which the waves of time wash away into nonentity.

George Eliot. Scenes from Clerical Life: Amos Barton.

For now I see the true old times are dead,
When every morning brought a noble chance,
And every chance brought out a noble knight.
Such times have been not since the light that led
The holy Elders with the gift of myrrh.

R. Browning. Sordello. Bk. iii.

Each life's unfulfilled, you see;
It hangs still, patchy and scrappy :
We have not sighed deep, laughed free,
Starved, feasted, despaired,-been happy.
And nobody calls you a dunce,
And people suppose me clever :
This could but have happened once, And we missed it, lost it forever. Ibid. Youth and Art, xvii,

OPTIMISM.

(See Hope.)
Tout est pour le mieux dans le meilleur des mondes possibles.

All is for the best in the best of possible worlds.

Voltaire. Candide.
[An ever-recurrent phrase which Voltaire puts into the mouth of Dr. Pangloss, as a hit at the optimist doctrines of Leibnitz.]

In the best of possible worlds the chateau of monseigneur the baron was the most beautiful of châteaux, and madame the best of possible baronesses. Ibid: Candide. Ch. i.

Emerson. The Park. Concluding lines.
But life is sweet, though all that makes it sweet
Lessen like sound of friends' departing feet,
And Death is beautiful as feet of friend
Coming with welcome at our journey's end ;
For me Fate gave, whate'er she else denied,
A nature sloping to the southern side;
I thank her for it, though when clouds arise
Such natures double-darken gloomy skies.
Lowell. An Epistle to George William Curtis. Postscript, 1887. 1. 49.

This one sits shivering in Fortune's smile,
Taking his joy with bated, doubtful breath :
This other, gnawed by hunger, all the while
Laughs in the teeth of Death.

ambiguitles of the Delphic oracles.]

Gratiano. As who should say, "I am Sir Oracle,
And when I ope my lips let no dog bark!"
Shakespeare. The Merchant of Venice. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 93.

The oracles are dumb,
No voice or hideous hum
Runs through the archéd roof in words deceiving.
Apollo from his shrine
Can no more divine
With hollow shriek the steep of Delphos leaving.
No nightly trance or breathéd spell
Inspires the pale-eyed priest from the prophetic cell.
Milton. On the Morning of Christ's Nativity. 1. 173.
[Plutarch relates (Isis and Osiris) that a ship well laden with passengers drove with the tide near the Isles of Paxi, when a loud voice was heard by most of the passengers calling unto one Thanus. ## ORATOR.

(See Eloquence; Argument.)
Cedant arma toga, concedat laurea linguæ.

Let arms give place to the robe, and the laurel of the warrior yield to the tongue of the orator.

Cicero. De Officizs.
[So the line is usually quoted, though Cicero wrote laudi, not linguw.]

When Demosthenes was asked what was the first part of Oratory, he answered, "Action"; and which was the second, he replied, "Action"; and which was the third, he still answered "Action."

Plutarch. Morals. Lives of the Ten Orators.
(See under Action.)
I asked of my dear friend Orator Prig:
"What's the first part of oratory?" He said, "A great wig."
"And what is the second?" Then, dancing a jig
And bowing profoundly, he sald, " A great wig."
"And what is the third?" Then he snored like a pig,
And puffing hls cheeks out, he replied, "A great wig."
George Colman the Younger. Orator Prig.
Cowards and faint-hearted runaways
Look for orations when the foe is near:
Our swords shall play the orator for us.
Marlowe. Tambourlaine the Great. Pt. i. Act i. Sc. 2.

Buckingham. Fear not, my lord, I'll play the orator
As if the golden fee for which I plead Were for myself.

Shakespeare. Richard III. Act iii. Sc. 5. 1. 95.
Antony. I come not, friends, to steal away your hearts;
I am no orator, as Brutus is.
Ibid. Julius Cæsar. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 216.
Canterbury. List his discourse of war, and you shall hear
A fearful battle render'd you in music:
Turn him to any cause of policy,
The Gordian knot of it he will unloose,
Familiar as his garter; that, when he speaks,
The air, a charter'd libertine, is still. Ibid. Henry V. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 43. (See under Versatility.)
Beaufort. Nephew, what means this passionate discourse,
This peroration with such circumstance? Ibid. II. Henry VI. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 99.
Bid me discourse, I will enchant thine ear.

Ibid. Venus and Adonis. 1. 145.
Thence to the famous orators repair,
Those ancient, whose resistless eloquence
Wielded at will that fierce democratie,
Shook the arsenal, and fulmin'd over Greece,
To Macedon, and Artaxerxes' throne.
Milton. Paradise Regained. Bk.iv. 1. 267.

That dishonest victory
At Cheronæa, fatal to liherty,
Killed with report that old man eloquent. Ibid. Sonnet 10.
[Isocrates, the celebrated orator of Greece. His patriotic feelings received so severe a shock on hearing the result of the battle of Cheronæa that he died broken-hearted, or, as some anthors say, of self-starvation.]

Adepts in the speaking trade
Keep a cough by them ready made. Churchlll. The Ghost. Bk. ii. 1. 545.
Proud of his " Hear hims," proud, too, of his vote
And lost virginity of oratory,
Proud of his learning (just enough to quote).
He revelled in his Ciceronian glory :
With memory excellent to get by rote,
With wit to hatch a pun or tell a story,
Graced with some merit, and with more effrontery,
"His country's pride," he came down to the country.
Byron. Don Juan. Canto xiii. St, 91.
You'd scarce expect one of my age
To speak in public on the stage;
And if I chance to fall below
Demosthenes or Cicero,
Don't view me with a critic's eye
But pass my imperfections by.
Large streams from little forntains flow;
Tall oaks from little acorus grow.

ORDER.

Maria. Ay, but you must confine yourself within the modest limits of order.

Seakespeare. Twelfth Night. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 7.
Puck. Not a monse
Shall disturb this hallow'd house:
I am sent with broom before,
To sweep the dust behind the door.
Ibid. Midsummer Night's Dream. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 376.

Confusion heard his voice, and wild uproar
Stood ruled, stood vast infinitude confined;
Till at his second bidding darkness fed, Light shone, and order from disorder sprung.
Milton, Paradise Lost. Bk. iii. l. 710.
Not chaos-like together crush'd and brnis'd,
But, as the world, harmoniously confused:
Where order in variety we see,
And where, tho' all things differ, all agree.

Pope. Windsor Foresl. 1. 18.

Order is Heaven's first law; and this confest,
Some are, and must be, greater than the rest,
More rich, more wise; but who infers from hence
That such are happier, shocks all common sense.
Pope. Essay on Man. Epistle iv. 1. 49.
Ulysses. The heavens themselves, the planets and this centre
Observe degree, priority, and place,
Insisture, course, proportion, season, form, Office and custom, in all line of order. Shakespeare. Troilus and Cressida. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 85.
Ulysses. Oh! when degree is shak'd
Which is the ladder to all high designs,
The enterprise is sick. How could communities,
Degrees in schools, and brotherhoods in cities,
Peaceful commerce from dividable shores, The primogenitive and due of birth,
Prerogative of age, crowns, sceptres, laurels
But by degree, stand in authentic place?
Take but degree away, untune that string,
And, hark, what discord follows! each thing meets
In mere oppugnancy.
Ibid. Troilus and Oressida. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 101.

Can any man lave a higher notion of the rule of right and the eterual fitness of things?

Henry Fielding. Tom Jones. Bk. if. Ch. iv.
For the world was built in order
And the atoms march in tune;
Rliyme the pipe, and Time the warder,
The sun obeys them and the moon.
Emerson. Monadnock. St. 12.

ORTHODOXY.

And prove their doctrine orthodox, By A postolic blows and knocks.
Butler. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto i. 1. 199.
Every one's true worship was that which he found in use in the place where he chanced to be.

Montaigne (Quoting Apollo). Essays: Apology for Raimond Sebond. Bk. il. Ch. xii.
"Orthodoxy, my Lord," said Bishop Warburton, in a whisper,-"orthodoxy is my doxy,-heterodoxy is another man's doxy."

Joseph Priestiy. Memoirs. Vol. 1. p, 572,

OWL.

Then nightly sings the staring owl, 'I'u-whit;
Tu-who, a mierry note.
Shakespeare. Love's Labour's Lost (Song). Act v. Sc. 2. 1. 905.
Lady Macbeth. It was the owl that slirieked, the fatal bell-man
Which gives the stern'st good-night. Ibid. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 3.
Do you think I was born in a wood to be afraid of an owl?

Swift. Potite Conversation. Dialogue i.
Can grave and formal pass for wise When men the solemn owl despise?

Gay. Fables: The Shepherd and the Philosopher. 1. 55.
St. Agnes' Ere-Alh, bitter chill it was! The owl, for all his feathers, was a-cold. Keats. The Eve of St. Agnes. 1. 1.

OYSTER.

Falstaff. I will not lend thee a penny. Pistol. Why, then the world's mine oyster,
Which I with sword will open.
Shakespeare. Merry Wives of Windsor. Act ii. Sc. 2. 2.1.
Benedick. I will not be sworn but love may transform me to an oyster ; but I'll take my oath on it, till he have made an oyster of me, he shall never make me such a fool.

Ibid. Much Ado About Nothing. Act ii. Sc. 3. 1. 25.
He was a bold man that first eat an oyster.
Swift. Polite Conversation. Dialogue ii.
Ceres presents a plate of vermicelli, -
For love must be sustained like flesh and blood,-
While Bacchus pours out wine, or hands a jelly:
Eggs, oysters, too, are amatory food.
Byron. Don Juan. Canto ii. St. 170.
An oyster may be crossed in love.
Sheridan.- The Critic. Aet iii. Sc. 1.

PAINTING; PICTURES.

(See Architecture; Art.)
Painting is silent poetry, and poetry is painting with the gift of speech.

Simonides. Quoted by Piutarch, $D e$ Gloria Atheniensium. iii. 346.

A picture is a poem without words.
Cornificus. Anet. ad Her. 4. 28.
He has done like Orbaneja, the painter of Ubeda, who, being asked what he painted, answered, "As it may hit"; and when he had scrawled out a misshapen cock, was forced to write underneath, in Gothic letters, "This is a cock." Cervantes. Don Quixote. Ch. iii.
[The painter Orbaneja of Ubeda, if he chanced to draw a cock, he wrote under it, "This is a cock," lest the people should take it for a fox. (JaRvis, trans.)]

Poet. I will say of it,
It tutors nature: artificial strife
Lives in these touches, livelier than life. Shakespeare. Timon of Athens. Aet i. Sc. 1. 1. 36.

Timon. Painting is welcome.
The painting is almost the natural man:
For since dishonour traffics with man's nature,
He is but outside; pencill'd figures are Ev'n such as they give out.

Ibid. Timon of Athens. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 157.

Wrought he not well that painted it?
He wrought better that made the painter. Ibid. Timorr of Athens. Act. i. Sc. 1.

Hamlet. Look liere, upon this picture, and on this,
The counterfeit presentment of two brothers.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 4. 1. 53.
Balsamo. What demi-god
Hath come so near creation?
Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Act. iii. Sc. 2. 1.116.

Connubialis amor de Mulcibre fecit A pellem.
Connubial love turned Mulciber into Apelles.
Epitaph on Quentin Matsys: the Black-sinith-painter of Antwerp.

A kiss from my mother made me a painter.

Benjamin West (in conversation).
Hard features every bungler can command:
To draw true beauty shows a master's hand.
Dryden. To Mr. Lee, on his Alexander.

Or where the pictures for the page atone,
And Quarles is sav'd by beauties not his own.

Pope. The Dunciad. Bk. i. 1. 139.
A flattering painter, who made it his care
To draw men as they ought to be, not as they are.

Goldsmith. Retaliation. 1. 63.
The canvas glow'd beyond ev'n Nature warm,
The pregnant quarry teem'd with human form.

Ibid. The Traveller. 1. 137.
Then marble soften'd into life grew warm,
And yielding, soft metal flowed to human form.

Pope. Satires. Epistle i. Bk. 2. 1. 147.
From the mingled strength of shade and light
A new creation rises to my sight
Such heav'nly figures from his pencil flow,
So warm with light his blended colors glow.

The glowing portraits, fresh from life, that bring
Home to our hearts the truth from which they spring.
Byron. Monody on the Death of the Rt. Hon. R. B. Sheridan. St. 3.

With hue like that when some great painter dips
His pencil in the gloom of earthquake and eclipse.
Shelley. Revolt of Islam. Canto v. St. 3.
This is her picture as she was:
It seems a thing to wonder on,
As though mine image in the glass
Should tarry when myself am gone. Rossetit. The Portrait.

PARADISE.

(See Heaven.)
A limbo large and broad since call'd
The Paradise of fools to few unknown. Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. iii. l. 495.
In this fool's paradise, he drank delight. Crabbe. The Borough Players. Letter xii.
So on he fares, and to the border comes, Of Eden, where delicious Paradise,

Now nearear, crowns with her enclosure green,
As with a rural mound, the champain head
Of a steep wilderness. Milion. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. 1. 131.

One morn a Peri at the gate,
Of Eden stood disconsolate.
Moore. Lalla Rookh. Paradise and the Peri.

With nine heavens are eight Paradises;
Where is the ninth one? In the human breast.
Only the blessed dwell in the Paradises;
But blessedness dwells in the human breast.
Wm. R. Alger. Oriental Poetry. The Ninth Paradise.

A book of verses underneath the bough, A jug of wine, a loaf of bread-and Thou

Beside me singing in the wildernessOh, wilderness were Paradise enow !

Omar Khay yam. The Rubaiyat. . (FitzGerald, trans.)

PARASITES.

(See Flattery.)
Men lived like fishes; the great ones devoured the small.

Algernon Sidney. Discoutrses on Government. Ch. ii. Sec. xviii.

Timon. Live loath'd, and long,
Most smiling, smooth, detested parasites,
Courteous destroyers, affable wolves, meak bears,
You fools of fortune, trencher friends, time's flies,
Cap and knee slaves, vapours, and min-ute-jacks !
Of man, and beast, the infinite malady
Crust you quite o'er!
Shakespeare. Timon of Athens. Act. iii. Sc. 6.

So, naturalists observe, a flea
Has smaller fleas that on him prey;
And these have smaller still to bite' em ,
And so proceed ad infinitum.
Swift. Poetry. A Rhapsody.
Great fleas have little fleas on their backs to bite 'em,
And little fleas have lesser fleas, and so ad inflinitum,

And the great fleas themselves, in turn, have greater fleas to go on:
While these again have greater still, and greater still, and so on.
de morgan. A Budget of Paradoxes. p. 377.

PARTING.

(See Dismissal ; FAREWELL.)
If we must part forever
Give me but one kind word to think upon,
And please myself with, while my heart's breaking.
Thomas Otway. The Orphan. Act iii. Sc. 1.
He that parts us shall bring a brand from heaven,
And fire us hence like foxes.
Shakespeare. King Lear. Act v. Sc. 3. 1. 22.

Juliet. 'Tis almost morning: I would have thee gone:
And yet no further than a wanton's bird;
Who let's it hop a little from her hand,
Like a poor prisoner in his twisted gyves,
And with a silk thread plucks it back again,
So loving-jealous of his liberty.
Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act i1. Sc. 2. 1. 177.

But in vain she did conjure him,
To depart her presence so,
Having a thousand tongues $t^{\prime}$ allure him
And but one to bid him go.
When lips invite,
And eyes delight,
And cheeks as fresh as rose in June,
Persuade delay, -
What boots to say
Forego me now, come to me soon.
Sir Walter Raleigh. Dulcina. (See Cayley's Life of Raleigh. Vol. i. Ch. iii.)

So sweetly she bade me adieu,
I thought that she bade me return.
Shenstone. A Pastoral Ballad. Absence. Pt. i.
Excuse me, then! you know my heart; But dearest friends, alas! must part.

Gay. The Hare and Many Friends. 1. 61.
But fate ordains that dearest friends must part. Young. Love of Fame. Satire 11. 1. 232.
We only part to meet again.
Gay. Black-eyed Susan. St. 4.

And must we part?
Well-if we must, we must-and in that case
The less said the better.
R. B. Sheridan. The Critic. Act ii. Sc. 2.

When we two parted
In silence and tears,
Half broken-hearted,
To sever for years.
Byron. When We Two Parted.
To know, to esteem, to love, and then to part,
Makes up life's tale to many a feeling heart!
CoLeringer. On Taking Leave of -, 1817.
Childe Harold had a mother-not forgot,
Though parting from that mother he did shun;
A sister whom he loved, but saw her not
Before his weary pilgrimage begun:
If friends he had, he bade adieu to none.
Yet deem not thence his breast a breast of steel.
Ye, who have known what 't is to dote upon
A few dear objects, will in sadness feel
Such partings break the heart they fondly hope to heal.
Byron. Chîde Harold. Canto 1. St. 10.
And there were sudden partings, such as press
The life from out young hearts, and choking sighs
Which ne'er might be repeated; who could guess
If ever more should meet those mutual eyes,
Since upon night so sweet such awful morn could rise!
Ibid. Childe Harold. Canto iii, St. 25.
Let's not unman each other-part at once;
All farewells should be sudden, when forever,
Else they make an eternity of moments
And clog the last sands of life with tears.
Ibid. Sardanapalus. Act v. Sc. 1.
She went her unremembering way,
She went and left in me
The pang of all the partings gone,
And partings yet to be.
Francis Thompson. Daiby. St. 12.

In mid whirl of the dance of Time ye start,
Start at the cold touch of Eternity,
And cast your cloaks about you, and depart:
The minstrels pause not in their minstrelsy.

William Watson. Epigrams.

PASSION.

Player King. What to ourselves in passion we propose,
The passion ending, doth the purpose lose.
Shakebpeare. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 204.

The seas are quiet when the winds give o'er;
So calm are we when passions are no more !
Edmund Waller. On Divine Poems.
Hamlet. Blessed are those Whose blood and judgment are so well commingled
That tbey are not a pipe for fortune's finger
To sound what stop she please. Give me that man
That is not passion's slave, and I will wear him
In my heart's core, aye, in my heart of heart,
As I do thee.
Shakespeare. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 72.

It is a harder lot to be a slave to one's passions than to tyrants.

Pythagoras. Stobaeus, Florilegium. vi. 47.

Macbeth. Who can be wise, amaz'd, temperate, and furious,
Loyal and neutral, in a moment? No man.
The expedition of my violent Love
Outran the pauser Reason. Shakespeare. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc. 3. 1. 114.

Prospero. Look, thou be true; do not give dalliance
Too much the rein ; the strongest oaths are straw
To the fire $i^{\prime}$ the blood : be more abstemious,
Or else, good night, your vow !
Ibid. The Tempest. Act iv. Sc. 1. 1. 51.

Here passion first I felt,
Commotion strange, in all enjoyments else
Superior and unmoved, here only weak
Against the charm of beauty's powerful glance.
Or nature failed in me, and left some part
Not proof enough such object to sustain, Or from my side subducting took perhaps
More than enough; at least on her bestowed
Too much of ornament, in outward show Elaborate, of inward less exact. Milton. Paradise Lost Bk. viii. 1.530.

Take heed lest passion sway
Thy judgment to no aught, which else free will
Would not admit. Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. viii. 1. 634.
May I govern my passion with absolnte sway,
And grow wiser and better as my strength wears away. Walter Pope. The Old Man's Wish.
Manners witl fortunes, humors turn with climes,
Tenets with books, and principles with times,
Search then the Ruling Passion ; there, alone,
The wild are constant, and the cunning known,
The fool consistent, and the false sincere,
Priests, princes, women no dissemblers here.
Alexander Pope. Morat Essays. Epis.
i. 1. 172.

And you, brave Cobham! to the latest breath,
Shall feel your Ruling Passion strong in death.
Ibid. Moral Essays. Epis. i. 1. 262.
In men, we various Ruling Passions find;
In women, two almost divide the kind; Those, only fix'd, they first or last obey, The love of pleasure and the lore of sway. Ibid. Moral Essays. Epis. ii. 1. 207.
"All this is madness," cries a sober sage.
But who, my friend, has reason in his rage?
"The ruling passion, be it what it will, The ruling passion conquers reason still."
alexander Pope. Moral Eszays. Epis. iii. l. 153.

On different senses different objects strike;
Hence different passions more or less inflame,
As strong or weak, the organs of the frame;
And hence one Master Passion in the breast,
Like Aaron's serpent, swallows up the rest.
Ibid. Moral Essays. Epis. ii. 1. 128.
In the human breast
Two master-passions cannot co-exist. Campbell. Theodric.
Where passion leads or prudence points the way.

Robert Lowth. Choice of Hercules. i.
But, children, you should never let
Such angry passions rise;
Your little hands were never made
To tear each otber's eyes.
Isaac Watts. Divine Songs. Song xvi.
Too avid of earth's bliss, he was of those
Whom Delight flies because they give her chase.
Only the odour of her wild hair blows

They love their land because it is their own,
And scorn to give aught other reason why;
Would shake hands with a king upon his throne,
And think it kindness to his majesty. fitz Greene halleck. Connecticut.
For when was public virtue to be found When private was not? Can he love the whole

Who loves no part? He be a nation's friend
Who is, in truth, the friend of no man there.

Cowper. The Task. Bk. v.
Breathes there the man with sonl so dead
Who never to himself hath said,
This is my own, my native land!
Whose heart hath ne'er within him burn'd ${ }^{1}$
As home his footsteps he hath turn'd
From wandering on a foreign strand?
If such there breathe, go, mark him well!
For him no minstrel raptures swell;
High thongh his titles, proud his name,
Boundless his wealth as wish can claim,-
Despite those titles, power, and pelf,
The wretch, concentred all in self,
Living, shall forfeit fair renown,
And, donlly dying, shall go down
To the vile dust from whence he sprung,
Unwept, unhonour'd, and unsung.
[Hath not thy heart within thee burned At evening's calm and holy hour?
S. G. Bulfinct. The Voice of God in the Garden.]

Land of my sires 1 what mortal hand
Can e'er untie the filial band
That knits me to thy rugged strand!

We join ourselves to no party that does not carry the flag and keep step to the music of the Union.

Rufus Choate. Letter to the Whig State Convention, Worcester, Mass. Oct. 1, 1855.

The mystic chords of memory, stretching from every battlefield and patriot grave to every living heart and hearthstone all over this broad land, will yet swell the chorus of the Union, when again touched, as surely they will be by the better angels of our nature.

Abramam Lincoln. Inaugural Address. March 4, 1861.

The ever lustrous name of patriot
To no man be denied because he saw
Wherein his country's wholeness lay the flaw,
Where, on her whiteness, the unseemly blot.

William Watson. Sonnet.
There are no points of the compass on the chart of true patriotism.

Robert C. Winthrop. Letter to Boston Commercial Club. 1879.

In pace ut sapiens aptarit idonea bello.
Like as a wise man in time of peace prepares for war.

Horace. Satires. ii. 2, 111.
[Pope paraphrases Horace thus:
And who stands safest? Tell me, is it he
That spreads and swells in puffed prosperity,
Or, blessed with little, whose preventing care
In peace provides fit arms against a war. Imitations of Horace. Satires. ii. 1. 123.]
We should provide in peace what we need in war.

Publillus Syros. Maxim 709.
It is most meet we arm us 'gainst the foe:
For peace itself should not so dull a kingdom,
But that defences, musters, preparations,
Should he maintain'd, assembled and collecteđ,
As were a war in expectation.
Shakespeare. Henry V. Act. ii. Sc. 4.

The commonwealth of Venice in thelr armoury have this inscription: "Happy is that city which in time of peace thinks of war."

Burton. Analomy of Melancholy. Pt.ii. Sec. 2. Memb. 6.
To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace.

George Washington. Speech to bolh Houses of Congress. Jan. 8, 1790.
As has been often said, the goal of war is peace; of business, leisure.

Aristotle. Politica. iv. 14.
We should so enter upon war as to show that our only desire is peace.

Cicero. De Officiis. i. 23.

Mihi enim omais pax cum civibus, bello civili utilior videbatur.
I consider that peace at any price with our fellow-citizens is preferable to civil war.

Cicero. Philippica. ii. 15, 37.
Vel iniquissimam pacem justissimo bello ante ferrem.
I would prefer even the most unfavourable peace to the justest war that ever was waged.
lbid. Epistle vi. 6. 5.
There never was a good war or a bad peace.

Benjamin Franklin. Letter to quincy. Sept. 11, 1773.
We love peace, as we abhor pusillanimity ; but not peaceat any price. There is a peace more destructive of the manhood of living man than war is destructive of his material body. Chains are worse than bayonets.

DOUGLAS JRFRoLn. Specimens of Jerrold's Wit. Peace.
No more to watch at night's eternal shore,
With England's chivalry at dawn to rlde;
No more defeat, faith, victory,-O! no more
A cause on earth for which we might have died.

Henry Newbolt. Peace.

Archbishop. A peace is of the nature of a conquest ;
For then both parties nobly are subdued,
And neither party loser.
Shakespeare. 11. Henry IV. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 89.
King Heniy. In peace, there's nothing so becomes a man,
As modest stillness, and humility. lbid. Henry V. Act iii. Sc. 1, 1. 3.

Volumnia. That it shall hold companionship in peace
With honour, as in war.
Shakespeare. Coriolanus. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 84.

I bring you peace with houour.
BeaCONSFLELD.
Gloster. Now is the winter of our discontent
Made glorious summer by this sun of York;
And all the clouds, that lower'd upon our house,
In the deep bosom of the ocean buried.
Now are our brows bound with victorious wreaths;
Our bruised arms hung up for monuments;
Our stern alarums clanged to merry meetings,
Our dreadfil marches to delightful measures.
Grim-visaged war hath smoothed his wrinkled front;
And now-instead of mounting barbed steeds,
To fright the souls of fearful adver-saries-
He capers nimbly in a lady's chamber,
To the lascivious pleasing of a lute.
Shakegpeare. King Richard III. Acti. Sc.1.1.1.
Gloster. Why, I, in this weak piping time of peace,
Have no delight to pass away the time,
Unless to spy my shadow in the sun.

Peace and friendship with all mankind is our wisest policy, and I wish we may be permitted to pursue it.

Thomas Jefferson. Letter to C. W. F. Dumas. 1786.
I knew hy the smoke that so gracefully curled
Above the green elms, that a cottage was near,
And I said, "If there's peace to be found in the world,
A heart that was humble might hope for it here."

Moore. Ballad Stanzas.
. . . Verily I do think
War is as hateful almost, and well-nigh
As ghastly, as this terrible Peace, whereby
We halt forever on the crater's brink, And feed the wind with phrases

Wm. Watson. Ver Tenebrosum.
The days of peace and slumberous calm are fled.

Keats. Hyperion. Bk. ii.
Yet there we follow but the bent assigned
By fatal Nature to Man's erring kind ; Mark where his conrage and his conquests cease!
He makes a solitude and calls it-peace! Byron. The Bride of Abydos. Canto ii. St. 20.
[Byron may have had his Tacitus in mind, who ascribes a similar phrase to Galgacus, the leader of the Britons in their hattles against the Roman legions at the foot of the Grampian lines. "Not East nor West," cried Galgacus, "would satisfy these Romans. Alone of all people they covert alike plenty and poverty. To plunder, to slay, to harry they miscall empire. And where they make a solitude they call it peace,'Atque ubi solitudinum faciunt pacem adpellant.]

L'empire, c'est la paix.
The empire is peace.
Napoleon IIL. Speech at Bordeaux. Oct. 9, 1852.
Let us have peace.
U. S. Grant. Accepting Nomination. May 20, 1868.
Peace! and no longer from its brazing portals
The blast of War's great organ shakes the skies!
But beautiful as songs of the immortals,
The holy melodies of love arise.

And shall they scorn Tre, Pol, and Pen, And shall Trelawny die?
There's thirty thousand Cornish men Shall know the reason why. R. S. Hawker.
[A ballad based upon a seventeenth centnry conplet, thus quoted by Macaulay:
And shall Trelawney die, and shall Trelawney die?
Then thirty thousand Cornish boys will know the reason why.
The miners from their caverns re-echoed the song with a variation:-
Then twenty thousand under ground will know the reason why.
Lord Macaulay. History of England. Ch. viii.

Hawker wrote bis ballad in 1824. Afterwards Davies Gilbert. President of the Royal Society, reprinted the entire ballad, believing it to be an ancient one, and Sir Walter Scott regarded it as "the solitary people's song of the seventeenth century.']

The high masts flicker'd as they lay afloat;
The crowds, the temples, waver'd, and the shore;
The bright death quiver'd at the victim's throat,
Touched; and I knew no more.

When I approach

Her loveliness, so absolute she seems,
And in herself complete; so well to know Her own, that what she wills to do or say, Seems wisest, virtuonsest, discreetest, best.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. viii. 1. 546 .
'Tis true, perfection none must hope to find
In all the world, much less in womankind.

Pope. January and May. 1. 190.
Whoever thinks a faultess piece to see,
Thinks what ne'er was, nor is, nor 'e'er shall he.
Pope Essay on Criticiesm. Pt. ii. 1.53. (See Faulus.)
The very pink of perfection.
GoLDsmith. She Stoops to Conquer. Act i. se. 1.

A man cannot have an idea of perfection in another, which he was never sensible of in himself.

Steele. The Tattler. No. 227.
To keep in sight Perfection, and adore
The vision, is the artist's best delight;
His bitterest pang, that he can ne'er do more
Than keep her long'd-for loveliness in sight.

> Wm. Watson. Epigrams.

They are perfect ; how else ?-they shall never change:
We are faulty; why not ?-we have time in store.
Robert browning. old Pictures in Florence. St. 16.

What's come to perfection perishes. Things learned on earth we shall practise in heaven;
Works done least rapidly Art most cherishes.
Robert Browning. Old Pictures in Florence. St. 17.

Yon may break, you may shatter the vase if you will,
But the scent of the roses will hang round it still.
Moore. Farewell! But whenever you welcome the Hour.
In virtue, nothing earthly could surpass her,
Save thine "incomparable oil," Macassar!
Byron. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 17.
Fell on the upturn'd faces of these roses :
That gave out, in return for the lovelight,
Their odorous souls in an ecstatic death. Poe. To Helen. 1. 11.

PERSEVERANCE.

By constant dripping
A drop of water hollows out a rock.
Choerilus of samos. Fragment 9. (Düb$n e r$ ).
The unceasing drop of water, as they say,
Will wear a channel in the hardest stone.
bion Smyrnaeus. Fragment 9. 11. 1.

No rock so hard but that a little wave
May beat admission in a thousand years.
tennyson. The Princess.
Ulysses. Perseverence, dear my lord, Keeps honour bright: to have done is to hang Quite ont of fashion, like a rusty mail
In monumental mockery.
Shakespeare. Troilus and Oressida. Act iii. Sc. 3. 1. 150.

Neither to change, nor falter, nor repent; This, like thy glory, Titan! is to be Good, great, and joyous, beautiful and free;
This is alone Life, Joy, Empire, and Victory.

Shelley. Prometheus. Activ.

PERSONAL.

(See Names of Famous Personager.)
But were it to my fancy given
To rate her charms, I'd call them heaven;
For though a mortal made of clay,
Angels must love Ann Hathaway;
She hath a way so to control,
To rapture the imprisoned soul,
And sweetest heaven on earth display,
That to be heaven Ann bath a way;
She hath a way.
Ann Hathaway, -
To be heaven's self Ann hath a way. Attributed to Shakespeare..
[Ann Hathaway was the maiden name of Shakespeare's wife. Some critics read a biting irony into this poem.]

Here lies our sovereign lord the king,
Whose word no man relies on;
He never said a foolish thing,
Nor ever did a wise one.
Earl of Rochester. Written on Charles II.'s bed-chamber door.
[The first line is often quoted:
Here lies our mutton-eating king.
The king made an apt and witty reply :
"That is very true," he said, " for my words are my own, my actions are my ministers.')

Shadwell alone, of all my sons, is he, Who stands confirm'd in full stupidity. The rest to some faint meaning make pretence,
But Shadwell never deviates into sense. Dryden. Mac Flecknoe. 1. 17.

A fiery soul, which working out its way, Fretted the pigmy body to decay,
Aud o'er-informed the tenement of clay.
A daring pilot in extremity,
Pleased with the danger when the waves ran high,
He sought the storms.
Dryden. Absalom and Achitophel. Pt. i. 1. 156.

So over-violent, or over-civil,
That every man with him was God or Devil.
Ibid. Absalom and Achitophel. Pt.i.1. 557.

Made still a blund'ring kind of melody;
Spurred boldly ou, and dashed through thick and thin,
Through sense and nonsense, never out nor in.
Ibid. Absalom and Achitophel. Pt. ii. 1. 413.

Statesman, yet friend to truth I of soul sincere,
In action faithful, and in honour clear;
Who broke no promise, served no private end;
Who gain'd no title, and who lost no friend;
Ennobled by himself, by all approved,
And praised, unenvied by the muse he loved.
Pope. Epistleto Mr. Addison (concluding lines).
Who now reads Cowley? if he pleases yet,
His moral pleases, not his pointed wit:
Forgot his epic, nay Pindaric art,
But still I love the language of his heart. 1bid. Satires. Epis. v. 1. 75.
For pointed satire I would Bucklurst choose,
The best good man with the worstnatured muse.
Ibid. An Allusion to Hmace. Satire x. Bk . i.

Thou best-humour'd man with the worsthumour'd muse ! Goldsmite, Retalialion. Postseript.
The bard whom pilfered pastorals renown,
Who turns a Persian tale for half a crown,

Just writes to make his barrenness appear,
And strains, from hard-bound brains, eight lines a year;
He , who still wanting, though he lives on theft,
Steals much, spends little, yet has nothing left;
And he, who now to sense, now nonsense leaning,
Means not, but blunders round about a meaning:
And lie, whose fustian's so sublimely bad,
It is not poetry, but prose run mad :
All these my modest satire bade translate;
And own'd that nine such poets made a Tate.

Pope. Prologut to the Satires. 1. 179.
But all our praises why sloould lords engross?
Rise, honest musel and sing the Man of Ross ;
Pleased Vaga echoes through her winding bounds,
And rapid Severn hoarse applause resounds.
Who hung with woods yon mountain's sultry brow?
From the dry rock who bade the waters flow?
Not to the skies in useless columns toss'd,
Or in proud falls magnificently lost,
But clear and artless, pouring through the plain
Health to the sick, and solace to the swain.
Whose causeway parts the vale with shady rows?
Whose seats the weary traveller repose? Who taught that heaven-directed spire to rise?
"The Man of Ross 1" each lisping bahe replies.
Pope. Moral Essays. Epis. iii. 1. 249.
Flavia's a wit, has too much sense to pray;
To toast our wants and wishes, is her way;
Nor asks of God, but of her stars, to give The mighty blessing, " while we live, to live."

Then all for death, that opiate of the soul!
Lucretia's dagger, Rosamonda's bowl.
Say, what can cause such impotence of mind?
A spark too fickle, or a spouse too kind.
Wise wretch $!$ with pleasures too refined to please;
With too much spirit to be e'er at ease:
With too much quickness ever to be taught;
With too much thinking to have common thought.
Pope. Moral Essays. Epis.ii. 1. 87.
Narcissa's ${ }^{1}$ nature, tolerably mild,
To make a wash, would hardly stew a child;
Has even been proved to grant a lover's prayer,
And paid a tradesman once to make lim stare;
Guve alms at Easter in a Christian trim,
And made a widow happy, for a whim.
Why, then, declare good-nature is her scorn,
When'tis by that alone she can be borne?
Why pique all mortals, yet affect a name?
A fool to pleasure, yet a slave to fame:
Now deep in Taylor and the Book of Martyrs,
Now drinking citron with his Grace and Chartres;
Now conscience chills her, and now passion burns:
And atheism and religion take their turns;
A very heathen in the carnal part,
Yet still a sad, good Christian at her heart.
Ibid. Moral Essays. Epis. ii. 1. 53.
"Odious! in woollen I 'twould a saint provoke,"
(Were the last words that poor Narcissa spoke);
"No, let a charming chintz and Brussels lace
Wrap my cold limbs, and shade my lifeless face:

1 Duchess of Hamilton.

One would not, sure, be frightful when one's dead-
And-Betty-give this cheek a little red."
Pope. Moral Essays. Epis. i. l. 246.

PERSUASION.

(See Eloquence; Orator.)
He , from whose lips divine persuasion flows.

Homer. Iliad. Bk. vii. 1. 143.
(POPE, trans.)
Persuasive speech, and more persuasive sighs,
Silence that spoke, and eloquence of eyes.

Ibid. Iliad. Bk. xiv. 1. 251.
(POPE, trans.)
Shallow. Persuade me not. I will make a star-chamber matter of it.

Shakespeare. Merry Wives of Windsor. Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 1.

Yet hold it more humane, more heav'nly, first,
By winning words to conquer willing hearts,
And make persuasion do the work of fear.
Milton. Paradise Regained. Bk. i. 1. 221.

PLAGIARISM.

(See Quotation.)
Quicquid bene dictum est ab ullo, meum est.

Whatever has been well said by any one is my property.

Seneca. Epistolx. xvi. 7.
Je prends mon bien où je le trouve.
I take my property wherever I find it. Aitributed to Moliere.
[But Molière really said reprends (recover), not prends (take); meaning that when any one stole from bim he recaptured his own property.]
In his immense quotation and allusion we quickly cease to discriminate between what he quotes and what he invents. 'Tis all Plutarch by right of eminent domain, and all property vests in the emperor.
R. W. Emerson. Representative Men: Ptutarch.
It has come to be practically a sort of rule in literature, tbat a man, haying once shown himself capable of original writing, is entitled thenceforth to steal from the writings of others at discretion. Thought is the property of him who can entertain it, and of him who can adequately place it.

Ibid. Representative Men: Shakespeare.
When Shakespeare is charged with debts to his anthors, Landor replies: "Yet be was more original than his originals. He breathed upon dead bodies and brought them into life."

Ibid. Letters and Social Aims. Quotation and Originality.
Nullum est jam dictum quod non dictum sit prius.

Nothing is said nowadays that has not been said before.

Terence. Eunuchus. Prologue. xli.

Sic vos non vobis vellera fertis oves:
Sic vos non vobis mellificatis apes:
Sic vos non vobis fertis aratra hoves.
I wrote these lines; another wears the bays:
Thus you for others build your nests, 0 birds:
Thus you for others bear your fleece, $\mathbf{O}$ sheep:
Thus you for others honey make, $O$ bees: Thus you for others drag the plough, 0 kine:
Virgil. Claudius Donatus. Life of Virgil. (Delphin edition. 1830. p. 17.)
[The story runs that a versifier named Bathyllus had stolen a distich of Virgil's, Written in honor of Augustus. Virgil, in the presence of emperor and plagiarist, wrote these lines beneath the distich:

Hos ego versiculos feci, tulit alter honores:

Sic vos non vobis-
Sic vos non robis-
Sic vos non vobis-
Sic vos non vobis-
When Bathyllus confessed that he conld not fill up the blank spaces, Virgil accomplished the feat as above.]

The seed ye sow another reaps;
The wealth ye find, another keeps;
The robe ye weave, another wears;
The arms ye forge another bears.
SHELLEv. To the Men of England.
In comparing various authors with one another, I have discovered that some of the gravest and latest writers have transcribed, word for word, from former works, without making acknowledgment.

Still from the fonnt of joy's delicious springs
Some bitter o'er the flowers its bubbling venom fings. Byron. Childe Harotd. Canto i. St. 82.

She dwells with Beauty-Beauty that must die:
And Joy, whose hand is ever at his lips
Bidding adieu ; and aching Pleasure nigh,
Turning to poison while the bee-mouth sips:
Ay, in the very temple of Delight
Veiled Melancholy has her sorran shrine,
Though seen of none save him whose strenuous tongue
Can burst Joy's grape against his palate fine:
His soul shall taste the sadness of her might,
And be among her cloudy trophies hung.
Keats. Ode on Melancholy.
There's not a string attuned to mirth,
But has its chord in melancholy.
HOOD. Ode to Melancholy.

The more it feels pleasure and also pain. Dante. Inferno. Canto vi.

Chords that vibrate sweetest pleasnre, Thrill the deepest notes of woe.

Burns. Sensibility.
No! Life is a waste of wearisome hours,
Which seldom the rose of enjoyment adorns;
And the heart that is soonest awake to the flowers,
Is always the first to be tonch'd by the thorns.
Moore. Irish Melodies: Oh : think not my spirits are atways so tight.
Alas! by some degree of woe
We every bliss must gain:
The heart can ne'er a transport know, That never feels a pain.

Shut, shut the door, good John! fatigued I said,
Tie up the knocker, say I'm sick, I'm dead.
The Dog-star rages; nay, 'tis past a doubt,
All Bedlam, or Parnassus, is let out :
Fire in each eye, and papers in each hand,
They rave, recite, and madden round the land.

Ibid. Prologue to Satires. J. 1.
Is there a parson much be-mused in beer,
A maudlin poetess, a rhyming peer,
A clerk, foredoom'd his father's soul to cross,
Who pens a stanza, when he should engross?
Is there, who, lock'd from ink and paper, scrawls
With desperate charcoal round his darken'd walls?

True poets are the guardians of state. Roscommon. Essay on Transtated Verse.
Call it not vain :-they do not err,
Who say, that, when the poet dies,
Mute Nature mourns her worshipper,
And celebrates his obsequies;
Who say, tall cliff, and cavern lone,
For the departed bard make moan;
That mountains weep in crystal rill;
That flowers in tears of halm distil;
Through his loved groves that breezes sigh,
And oaks, in deeper groan, reply;
And rivers teach their rushing wave
To murmur dirges round his grave.

POTTER.

Dear Tom, this brown jug that now foams with mild ale,-
In which I will drink to sweet Nan of the vale,-
Was once Toby Fillpot, a thirsty old soul
As e'er drank a bottle, or fathomed a bowl;
In bousing about'twas his praise to excel,
And among jolly topers he bore off the bell. Francis Fawkes. The Brown Jug.
Beneath this stone lies Catherine Gray, Changed to a lifeless lump of clay. By earth and clay she got her pelf, And now she's turned to earth lierself. Ye weeping friends let me advise, Abate your tears and dry your eyes; For what avails a flood of tears? Who knows but in a course of years, In some tall pitcher or brown pan, She in her shop may be again?

New Teslament. Matthew vi. 8.

Permittas ipsis expendere numinibus, quid Conveniat nobis, rebusque sit utile nostris
Nam projucundis aplissima quaeque dabunt dii,
Carior est illis homo quam sibi.
Allow the gods themselves to decide what is best for us and most suitable to our circumstances. For instead of our imaginary bliss the gods will give us real good. In truth, man is dearer to the gods than to himself.

Juvenal. Satires. x, 347.

Let not that happen whicb I wish, but that which is right.

Menander. Fragment.
Menecrates. We, ignorant of ourselves,
Beg often our own harms, which the wise powers
Deny us for our good; so find we profit
By losing of our prayers.
Shakespeare. Antony and Cleopatra. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 7.

Who finds not Providence all good and wise, Alike in what it gives, and what denies? Pope. Essay on Man. Epis. i. 1. 205.

Good when he gives, supremely good,
Nor less when he denies,
E'en crosses from his soyereign hand Are blessings in disguise.

UnkNOWN. Hymn.
[The hymn tinkers occasionally snbstitute the word "afflictions" for the two words "e'en crosses" in the next to the last line.]

Are afflictions aught
But blessings in disguise?
davin Mallet. Amyntor and Theodora.
Let us be patient! These severe affictions Not from the ground arise,
But oftentimes celestial benedictions
Assume this dark disguise.

Mrs. Quickly. His worst fault is, he's given to prayer; he is something peevish that way; but nobody but luas his fault : -but let that pass.

Shakespeare. Merry Wives of Windsor. Act i. Sc. 4. l. 10.
But that fron us aught should ascend to heav'n
So prevalent as to concern the mind
Of God high-bless'd, or to incline His will,
Hard to belief may seem, yet this will prayer.
Milton. Paradise Lost. Bk. xi. 1. 143 .
Desine fata deum flecti sperare precando.

Seek not by prayers to shake the will of heaven.

Virgil. 正neid. vi. 376.
1f by prayer
Incessant I could hope to change the will
Of him who all things can, I would not cease To weary him with my assiduous cries; But prayer against his absolute decree
No more avails than breath against the wind Blown stifling back on him that breathes it forth:
Therefore to his great bidding I submit. Milton. Paradise Lost. Bl. xi. I. 307.

He that forgets to pray

Some kinder casuists are pleased to say,
In nameless print, that I have no devotion;
But set those persons down with me to pray,
And you shall see who has the properest notion
Of getting into heaven the shortest way;
My altars are the mountains and the ocean,
Earth, air, stars,-all that springs from the great Whole,
Who hath produced and will receive the soul.
Byron. Don Juan. Canto iii. St. 104.
Full on this casement shone the wintry moon,
And threw warm gules on Madeline's fair breast,
As down she knelt for heaven's grace and boon;
Rose-bloom fell on her hands, together prest,
And on her silver cross soft ametliyst,
And on her hair a glory, like a saint:
She seemed a splendid angel, newlydrest,
Save wings, for Heaven.

And recks not his own rede.
Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 47.

The proud he tam'd, the penitent he cheer'd: Nor to rebuke the rich offender fear'd.
His preaching much, but more his practice wrought-
(A living sermon of the truths he taught-) For this by rules severe his life he squar'd, That all might see the doctrice which they heard.

Dryden. Character of a Good Parson. 1. 75.

Of right and wrong he taught,
Truths as refined as ever Athens heard;
And (strange to tell!) he practised what he preached.

PREDESTINATION.

(See Destiny.)
O how far remov'd,
Predestination! is thy foot from such
As see not the First Cause entire: and ye, 0 mortal men! be wary how ye judge; For we, who see the Maker, know not yet The number of the chosen ; and esteem Srich scantioess of knowledge our delight : For all our good is, in that primal good, Concentrate; and God's will and ours are one.
Dante. Vision of Paradise. Canto xx. 1. 122.

You can and you can't,
You will and you won't;
You'll be damn'd if you do,
You'll be damn'd if you don't.
LORENzo DOW. Chain (Definition of Calvinism).

In the fell clutch of circumstance
I have not winced nor cried aloud:
Beneath the bludgeonings of chance
My head is bloody, but unbowed.
It matters not how straight the gate,
How charged with punishment the scroll:
I arn the master of my fate,
I am the captain of my sonl.

PREPARATION.

Semper paratus.
Always prepared.
Motto of Lord Cifford.
Chorus. From camp to camp, through the foul womb of night,
The hum of either army stilly sounds,
That the fixed sentinels almost receive
The secret whispers of each other's watch :
Fire answers fire: and through their paly flames
Each battle sees the other's umber'd face :
Steed threatens steed, in high and boastful neighs
Piercing the night's dull ear; and from the tents,
The armourers accomplishing the knights,

Witl busy hammers closing rivets up, Give dreadfu] note of preparation.

Shakespeare. Henry V. act iv. Prologue. 1, 4.
[Colley Cibber incorporated this speech, with some verbal variations, into his stage version of Richard 1II. as part of the soliloquy uttered by Richard from his tent prior to the battle of Busworth (Act v. Sc. 5). Cibber's most notable alteration was in line 14, which he improved thus:
With clink of bammers closing rivets up.]

PRIDE.

Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall. old Testament. Proverbs xvi. 18.
The lowly bart doth wiu the love of all, But pride at last is sure of shameful fall. Turberville. To Piero of Pride.

Pryde will have a fall;
For pryde goeth before and shame conimeth after.

A prond man is always hard to be pleased, because he hath too great expectations from others.

Richard Baxter. Christian Efhics.
Pride brings want, want makes rogues, rogues come to be langed, and the devil's alone the gainer.

Vanburge. Asbop. Pt.i. Act.iv. Sc. 2.
Pride (of all others the most dangerous fanlt)
Proceeds from want of sense, or want of thought.
The men who labor and digest things most,
Will be much apter to despond than boast.
Roscommon. Essay on Translated Verse. 1. 161 .

Of all the causes which conspire to blind
Man's erring judgment, and misguide the mind;
What the weak bead with strongest bias rules,-
Is pride, the never-failing vice of fools. Pope. Essay on Criticism. Pt. ii. 1. 1.
In pride, in reas'ning pride, our error lies;
All quit their sphere and rush into the skies.
Pride still is aiming at the bless'd abodes,
Men would be angels, angels would be gods. Ibid. Essay on Man. Epis. i. 1. 124.

Byron. Marino Fatiero. Act ii. Sc. 1.
He saw a cottage with a double coachhouse,
A cottage of gentility !
And the devil did grin, for his darling $\sin$
Is pride that apes humility.
Coleridge. Devil's Thoughts.
He passed a cottage with a double coachhouse,
A cottage of gentility;
And heowned with a grin
That his favorite sin
is pride that apes humility.
Southey. The Devil's Walk. St. 8.
How poor religious pride,
In all the pomp of method, and of alt,
When ment display to congregations wide, Devotion's every grace except the beart! Bunns. The Colter's saturday Night.
A pride there is of rank-a pride of birth, A pride of learning, and a pride of purse,
A London pride-in short. there be on earth
A host of prides, some better and some worse;
But of all prides, since Lucifer's attaint,
The proudest swells a self-elected saint.
Hood. Ode to Rac-Wilson.

I was not ever thus, nor prayed that Thou Shouldst lead me on;
I loved to choose and see my path ; but now
Lead Thou me on !
I loved the garish day, and, spite of fears,
Pride ruled my will. Remember not past years 1
John Henry Newman. Lead, Kindly Light.

My thonghtless youth was wing'd with vain desires;
My manhood, long misled by wandering fires,
Follow'd false lights; and, when their glimpse was gone.
My pride struck out new sparkles of her own. Such was I, such by nature still I am ;
Be thine the glory, and be mine the shame.

Jack Cade. Thou hast most traitorously corrupted the youth of the realm in erecting a grammar school: and whereas, before, our forefathers had no other books but the score and the tally, thou hast caused printing to be used, and, contrary to the king, his crown and dignity, thou hast built a paper-mill.

Seakrspeare. II. Henry VI. Act iv. Sc. 7. 1. 35.
How shall I speak thee or thy power address,
Thou God of our idolatry, the Press?
By thee, religion liberty, and laws
Exert their influence and advance their canse;
By thee worse plagues than Pharaoh's land befell,
Diffused, make earth the vestibule of hell;
Thou fountain, at which drink the good and wise;
Thou ever-bubbling spring of endless lies;
Like Eden's dcad probationary tree,
Knowledge of good and evilis from thee! Cowper. The Progress of Error,

Whole as the marble, founded as the rock;
As broad and general as the casing air.
But now, I am cabin'd, cribb'd, confin'd, bound in
To saucy doubts and fears. 1bid. Macbeth. Act iii. Sc. 4. 1. 23.

Stone walls do not a prison make, Nor iron hars a cage;
Minds innocent and quiet take That for an hermitage;
If I have freedom in my love, And in my soul am free,
Angels alone that soar above Enjoy such liberty.
Richard Lovelace. To Athea from Prison. iv.
Ferdinand. My spirits, as in a dream, are all bound np.
My father's loss, the weakness which I feel,
The wreck of all my friends, or this man's threats,
To whom I arn subdu'd, are but light to me,
Might I but throngh my prison once a day
Behold this maid: all corners else o' th' earth
Let Liberty make nse of; space enough
Have I in such a prison.
Shakespeare. The Tempest. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 635.

Cassius. Nor stony tower, nor walls of beaten brass,
Nor airless dungeon, nor strong links of iron,
Can be retentive to the strength of spirit;
But llfe, being weary of these worldly bars,
Never lacks power to dismiss itself.
Ibid. Julius Cæsar. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 93.

Romeo. For stony limits cannot keep love ont:
And what love can do, that dares love at tempt.

SHAKESPEARE. Romeo and Juliet. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 67 .

That which the world miscalls a jail
A private closet is to me,
Whilst a good conscience is my bail,
And innocence my liberty;
Locks, bars, and solitude, together see,
Make me no prisoner, but an anchoret.
Lord Arthur Capel. Written in Confinement.

Eternal Spirit of tbe chainless Mind!
Brightest in dungeons, Liberty ! thon art,
For there thy habitation is the heart-
The heart which love of thee alone can bind;
And when thy sons to fetters are consign'd-
To fetters and the damp vault's dayless gloom,
Their country conquers with their martyrdom.
Byron. Sonnet. On Chillon. Introductory to Prisoner of Chillon.

In durance vile here must I wake and weep,
And all my frowsy couch in sorrow steep. Dryden. Evistle from Esopus to Maria.

Alencon. Defer no time, delays have dangerous ends.

Shakespeare. I. Henty VI. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 33.

All delays are dangerous in war. Dryden. Tyrannic Love. Act i. Sc. 1.

Defer not till to-morrow to be wise, To-morrow's sun on thee may never rise; Or should to-morrow chance to cheer thy sigbt
With her enlivening and unlook'd for light, How grateful will appear her dawning rays, As favors unexpected donbly please.

Congreve. Letter to Cobham.

Be wise to-day; 'tis madness to defer ;
Next day the fatal precedent will plead; Thus on, till wisdom is push'd out of life. Young. Night Thoughts. Night i. 1. 387.

Great Pompey's shade complains that we are slow,
And Scipio's ghost walks nnaveng'd amongst us!
Joseph Addison. Cato. Act ii. Sc. 1.
The patient dies while the physician sleeps;
The orphan pines while the oppressor feeds;
Justice is feasting while the widow weeps;
Advice is sporting while infection breeds. Shakespeare. The Rape of Lucrece. 130.
Katharine. O, my good lord, that comfort comes too late ;
'Tis like a pardon after execution ;
That gentle plyysic, given in time, had cur'd me;
But now I'm past all comforts here but prayers.
Ibid. Henry VIII. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 120.
It is too late to shutte the stable door when the steede is stolne.

Lyly. Euphues.
Know the true value of time; snatch. seize, and enjoy every moment of it. No idleness, no laziness, no procrastination: never put off till to-morrow what you can do to-day.

Earl of Chesterfield. Letters to His Son. Dec. 26, 1749.

Procrastination is the thief of time: Year after year it steals, till all are fled, And to the mercies of a moment leaves The vast concerns of an eternal scene.

Young. Night Thoughts. Night i. 1. 390.

How prodigal of time 1
Mis-spending all thy precious lours,
Thy glorious, youthtinl primel Burns. Despondency.
To be a prodigal's favourite, then worse truth,
A miser's pensioner,-hehold our lot. Wordsworth. The Small Celandine.

PROGRESS.

(See Evolution.)
Equidem æternâ constitutione crediderim nexuque causarum Jatentium et multo ante destinatarum suum quemque ordinem immutabili lege percurrere.

For my own part I am persuaded that everything advances by an unchangeable law through the eternal constitution and association of latent causes, which have been long before predestinated.

Quintus Curtius Rufus. De Rebus Gestis Alexandri Magni. V. 11. 10.

Yet I doubt not thro' the ages one increasing purpose runs,
And the thoughts of men are widen'd with the process of the suns.

Tennyson. Locksley Hall. St. 69.
Nitor in adversum, nee me, qui cætera vincit
Impetus, et rapido contrarius evehor orbi.
I forge ahead, nor can the opposing rush,
That sways all else, my onward progress check,
But bears me on against a whirling world.

Three sleepless nights I passed in sounding on,
Through words and things, a dim and perilous way.
WORDSWORTH. The Borderers. Act iv. Sc. 2.
The intellectual power, through words and things,
Went sounding on a dim and perilous way ! Ibid. The Excursion. Bk. iii.
We live by Admiration, Hope, and Love;
And, even as these are well and wisely fixed,
In dignity of being we ascend.
Ibid. The Excursion. Bk.iv.
The world goes up and the world goes down,
And the sunshine follows the rain;
And yesterday's sneer and yesterday's frown
Can never come over again. Charles Kingaley. Dolcino to Margaret.

A sacred burden is this life ye bear:
Look on it, lift it, bear it solemnly,
Stand up and walk beneath it steadfastly.
Fail not for sorrow, falter not for sin,
But onward, upward, till the goal ye win.
Frances Anne Kemble. Lines Addressed to the Young Genllemen leaving the Lenox Academy, Mass.
Here in the body pent,
Absent from Him I roam,
Yet nightly piteh my moving tent
A day's march nearer home.

Lead, kindly Light, amid the encircling gloom,
Lead Thou me on!
The night is dark, and I am far from home-
Lead Thon me on I
J. H. Newman. The Pillar of Cloud.

I held it truth, with him who sings
To one clear harp in divers tones,
That men may rise ou stepping-stones
Of their dead selves to higher things.
Tennyson. In Memoriam. i.
[The poet alluded to is Goethe. I know this from Lord Teunyton himself, although he could not identify the passage; and when I submitted to him a small book of mine on his marvellous poem, he wrote: "It is Goethe's creed,' on this very passage.-Rey. Dr. Alfred Gatty.]
Saint Augustine ! well hast thou said,
That of our vices we can frame
A ladder, if we will but tread
Beneath our feet each deed of shame.
Longfellow. The Ladder of St. Augustine.
De yitiis nostris scalam nobis facimus, si vitia ipsa calcamus.
If we tread our vices under our feet, we make of them a ladder by which to rise to higher things.
St. Aueustine. Sermo clxxvii. 4. (Migne's Patrologiæ Cursus. Vols. Xxxviii. and xxxix., p. 2082.)

We rise by things that are under our feet;
By what we have mastered of good and gain;
By the pride deposed and the passion slain, And the vanquished ills that we hourly meet.
J. G. Holland. Gradation.

Forward, forward let us range,
Let the great world spin for ever down the ringing grooves of change.

Tennyson. Locksley Hall.
[Dr. Alfred Gatty, in English Notes and Queries, Eighth Series, Vol. ii., p. 387, has informed the world that these lines were due to a misconception by the lanreate. "After reading the poem in his dcep monotone, he told us that he was present at the first opening of the railway line betwixt Manchester and Liverpool, when Mr. Huskisson was killed, aud, being short-sighted, he thought that the wheels ran in 'ringing grooves' instead of on the smooth rail, kept in their place by the inside flange. No doubt he who dipt into the future far as human eye could see perceived the advent of a mighty change and advance, both in time and space, from a general adoption of railways, which this event prognosticaied."]
